Quarters Allowance Policies Stated for Service Couples

Who gets the quarters allowance when an enlisted man is married to an enlisted woman, or when both the husband and wife are officers or when a male enlisted man is wed to a female officer, or vice versa?

This knotty problem has just been solved in a policy

Army Field Band's Leader Possesses Broad Background

Master of music and a leader of men!

The job called for both qualifications in unlimited amounts.

Who was he? And where was he?

He was and still is Major Chester A. Whiting, organizer, commanding officer and director of the US Army Field band, currently slated to play a pair of concerts in San Francisco Sunday and Monday, 7 and 8 June.

And he was in the South Pacific area when he was ordered back to Washington, D. C., that spring of 1946, to organize what was then to be a 100-piece band made up of combat infantrymen with musical backgrounds, to tour the country in the interest of war bond sales.

ORGANIZER, COMMANDER, and leader of the U. S. Army Field band is Major Chester A. Whiting, who has been "in the service" since 1923 when he was appointed warrant officer, bandmaster in the Massachusetts National Guard. He was recalled from the South Pacific in 1946 to organize the group which he has led for the past seven years in its appearances throughout the world.

From this original group has evolved the US Army Field band of today. The 85-man group of Army career-musicians has traveled throughout the United States, Canada, Mexico and Europe as musical ambassadors of Department of the Army.

Major Whiting's home is Malden, Massachusetts. He received his early musical education at the New England Conservatory of Music, and upon graduation became a member of the teaching faculty, instructor of instrumental music, at Malden High school.

In 1923, he was appointed by the Governor of Massachusetts as warrant officer, bandmaster in the Massachusetts National Guard. His position was unique in that he commanded one of the few mounted cavalry bands in the Army.

Major Whiting was ordered into federal service in 1940 along with his unit and sailed for the South Pacific in 1942. He served with distinction on Bougainville and in many other combat areas. He has been awarded the Combat Infantry Badge, the Legion of Merit, and the Bronze Star Medal.

statement issued by the Personnel Policy Board, OSD, to the Secretaries of the Military Departments. It sets forth in detail provisions for basic allowances for quarters for "all of the various combinations of marriages and dependency" of members of the uniformed service.

These combinations (various) can lead to complications.

Considered first in the statement are the marriages where both parties concerned are members of the uniformed services with no other dependents and are stationed at the same or adjacent installations. The combinations and what happens to the quarters allowances involved are:

Male enlisted—female enlisted: Eligibility for assignment to married quarters, or to payment of "single" basic allowance for quarters in lieu thereof, rests with the husband. The wife has no entitlement to either married quarters or to "single" quarters allowance unless single quarters are not available.

Male officer—female officer: Same as above.

Male enlisted—female officer, or vice versa. Certification will be provided for the husband that "no suitable married quarters are available," and entitlement will be established for payment of "single" basic allowance for quarters. The wife has no entitlement to married quarters nor to "single" quarters allowance unless single quarters are not available.

When both husband and wife are in service, but are unable to live together because of the distance between their assigned installations, both are to be considered as members without dependents.

When either or both of two married service people have other dependents, entitlement to married quarters rests with either or both and either or both may be entitled to basic allowance for quarters provided for members with dependents when not assigned quarters, according to the dependency status of each.

Last of the combinations considered in the statement are those marriages where only one is a member of the uniformed services and there are no dependents. When a service woman is married to a civilian husband, the law does not recognize the husband as a dependent unless he is dependent upon his wife for more than one-half support. As a result, she would be considered as a member without dependents for the purpose of assignment to quarters and entitlement to allowance unless her husband's dependency is established.

Length of Foreign Tour in Northeast

Foreign service tours for Army personnel in Northeast Area commands are as follows or 12 months following arrival of dependents in Area, whichever is greater:

Greenland, Labrador and adjacent areas, without dependents, 12 months; with dependents, 24 months.

Newfoundland, without dependents, 18 months; with dependents, 36 months.

Isolated detachments and all stations above the Arctic Circle, without dependents, 12 months; with dependents, 24 months.

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

Friday, 5 June, 1953

WIZARDRY—WOODEN FASHION is demonstrated by this drum novelty group, part of the U. S. Army Field band which will be appearing in the Bay area shortly. They will perform at the bandstand at Golden Gate Park Sunday from 1100 to 1200 and at the Civic Auditorium Monday, beginning at 2000. The 85-piece band has traveled more than 200,000 miles all over the world since its inception in 1946, and has played before approximately six million persons. In addition to the drum novelties and the complete band orchestrations, there will be numbers by the "Soldiers' Chorus" and solos by three outstanding vocalists. Both concerts are open to the public without charge and with no reserved seats.

85-Man Show for Free!

US Army Field Band Sets 2 San Francisco Performances

Only seven years old and "acquainted" with more than six million persons!

That's how the United States Army Field band gets around.

Since its inception in March, 1946, this unique 85-man organization has traveled the ups and downs of U. S. hi and low ways, as well as those of Canada, Mexico, and most recently—Europe.

While on its 14-nation tour over there, the band took part in the tradition-steeped Edinburgh Music Festival.

Now they are coming to San Francisco!

Not one but two concerts will be presented here, both open to all interested persons without charge, on a "first come" seating arrangement.

On Sunday, 7 June, the band will perform in the Golden Gate bandstand from 1100 to 1200, and on Monday, 8 June, at the Civic Auditorium they will present a two-concert and variety show, beginning at 2000.

Among the selections to be presented at the Civic Auditorium are "Band of America," LaValla; "American Patrol," Meacham; "Mexican Hat Dance," Partichela; "March of the Slide Trombones," Scott; "Universal Judgment," de Nardis; "Without a Song," Youmans.

"Stars and Stripes Forever," Sousa; excerpts from "Andrea Chenier," Giordano; "Tico Tico," Abreau; a medley of marches titled "Tribute to Our Armed Forces"; drum novelty, and excerpts from "Oklahoma," Rogers and Hammerstein.

Vocal soloists who will be heard include Sgt. Rex Johnson, lyric tenor, in "Come Back to Sorrento," by de Curtis; Sgt. Eugene Coughlin, baritone, in "Old Man River," by Kern and "Bless This House," by Brahe, and Sgt. John Riccobene, tenor, in "Pretend," and "Night and Day," by Porter.

The "Soldiers' Chorus," trained and directed by CWO Arthur V. Donofrio, will also present several numbers. This group doubles in the brass section of the band.

And the six-man drum novelty group, something a little bit sensational, will also perform. The precision stickwork of these men poured voodoo over the camera, so a motion picture went on record as capturing their skills for all time. And this too has made the rounds of the countryside.

The band, which arrived in the Sixth Army area on 21 May, boasts among its career soldier-musicians, several who were bandmasters themselves and who have performed with the major symphonic orchestras in this country and abroad.

Performances so far this tour have been at Los Angeles, the Hollywood Bowl, in Riverside, San Diego, Santa Barbara, Bakersfield, San Luis Obispo, Monterey and Fresno. And when it leaves here, the group will travel through Nevada, Oregon, Washington and up to Vancouver, B. C., before departing for their home station at Washington, D. C., on 6 July.

On the move from six to eight months of the year, the band travels in a nine-vehicle convoy consisting of three buses, four trucks and two sedans.

This method of transport makes it possible for them to not only carry everything they could conceivably need, but to arrange to visit what you might call remote sections of the country whose citizens might otherwise never be able to say, "I saw the US Army Field band perform."

So they have covered more than 200,000 miles in this manner.

And they have been preparing stages for concerts for so long that they can unload their trucks, assemble heavy instruments, and have a stage set in 20 minutes flat, complete with sound equipment and music stands!

When they are not traveling, the band is always busy with radio and television appearances.

Col. Driskell, 6th Army Provost Marshal, Leaves For New Post in Korea

Colonel Joseph L. Driskell, Sixth Army Provost Marshal since September, 1951, will leave shortly for his new assignment in Korea, Far East Command.

With more than 22 years service behind him, Col. Driskell served in Germany in World War II, and, following a brief stay in this country, returned to Germany where he initiated several excellent policing reforms.

During the war, he served as commanding officer of an artillery battalion, 99th Division, and also commanded the 214th field artillery group.

Upon his return to Germany in 1945, Col. Driskell became commanding officer of Polish guards of the Continental Base Section, Bad Nauheim, Germany, and later served with the G-4 Section, Headquarters EUCOM.

In October, 1947, he initiated and organized the German Industrial Police which was under the Provost Marshal Section, Headquarters EUCOM. From then until October of 1949, he served as chief of that group in addition to his duties as assistant executive and later executive officer of the Provost Marshal Section.

Before coming to the Presidio of San Francisco, Col. Driskell served two years as Provost Marshal, Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

Sixth Army Bandsmen Ready Grove Concert For Next Month

The popularity of the Sixth Army band's spring concert season has resulted in its preparing another special concert, which will be presented Sunday (7 June) at 1430 at the Presidio Service club.

Under the direction of CWO Nathan A. Cammack, Jr., and SFC Fred C. Rose, the concert will feature several vocal presentations by Richard L. Armbrust, Jr., baritone, as well as a varied instrumental program.

Sigmund Stern Grove in San Francisco will be the setting for the band's next concert presentation, as part of the Grove's annual summer musical festival. The date will be Sunday, 5 July.

Army Has Cold Shoulder for High Cost of Fuel

Washington—The Army is giving the cold shoulder to high heating costs.

During 1952 it stretched its fuel dollar to save American taxpayers $1,400,000.

Fuel consumption per soldier has been decreasing steadily during the past several years. In 1952 it was about $32 per man as compared with $52 per man during 1948.

The fuel requirement per soldier in the United States was reduced from 4.07 tons in 1951 to 3.5 tons in 1952.

Individual Army installations saved vast amounts during 1952 with fuel conservation programs of their own.

These savings were made primarily by training stokers to fire heating plants so the Army gets the most out of fuel consumed, by controlling temperatures to prevent overheating and by modernizing heating plants at Army installations. The Army also put into effect a maintenance program for heating equipment and in cold weather, consolidated activities in as few buildings as possible.

Commercial heating industries helped the Army in its fuel conservation program. One company (Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company) conducted a fuel survey at its own expense on 100 military bases throughout the country.

The survey resulted in substantial savings to the Army by showing where installation of automatic heat controls could save money for the taxpayer.

USMA Graduation

Commencement exercises were held at the United States Military Academy this week with 512 members of this year's class, including five foreign students, receiving diplomas presented by Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving, superintendent of the academy. The class was addressed by General Lucius D. Clay, chairman of the board of the Continental Can Company and military governor of the United States Zone in Germany from 1947 to 1949.

COPY DEADLINE IS WEDNESDAY
NOON

A MILLION DOLLAR JOB has been completed and the result is the Army's powerful, phenomenally equipped radio receiver station at Middletown, California. Formal dedication of the structure was held Armed Forces Day, 16 May, and hundreds of persons associated with the Signal Corps as well as civilian personnel of the area visited the installation and got a briefing on the whys and wherefores of the intricate equipment. (U. S. Army photo.)

New Construction!

Middletown Is Site of Newly Dedicated Radio Relay Station

An estimated 500 persons were present at the formal dedication ceremony of the new Army command and administrative network radio receiver station AAG, recently constructed at Middletown, California.

More than 1,000 persons took advantage of the open house invitation to come and observe the fixed station radio equipment in operation and to view the display of other Signal Corps equipment.

Dedication was made on Armed Forces day, 16 May, and inasmuch as the dedication coincided with the nationwide salute to the armed forces, local citizenry as well as county and state officials joined with the Sixth Army Signal section in its observance.

Speakers of the day included Colonel Airel B. Cooper, Signal officer, Headquarters Sixth Army; and Lt. Colonel Leo R. Jensen, chief, radio branch, Signal section, Headquarters, Sixth Army. The invocation was given by Chaplain (Major) Donald E. Carter.

Captain E. A. Casper is the officer in charge of the new station which boasts more than a million dollars worth of latest signal equipment including a facsimile circuit designed to transmit and receive photographs and a recently designed radio set which, together with carrier equipment, provides 16 voice channels to the Presidio of San Francisco.

Revise Curriculum

Revisions in the General Military Science curriculum are to be made as a result of conferences and recommendations received from the field, announces the Office, Chief of Army Field Forces. The number of course titles will be kept to a minimum and will include only major subjects with coverage of secondary subjects included. The subcourse now titled "History of the Army, Its Mission and Organization" is to be renamed "American Military History" and will be given in a 30-hour block early in the course. It is anticipated that beginning next year summer camps for students will be of the General, rather than the Branch, type.

Army Major Carl R. Darnall devised the first apparatus for using chlorine gas in the purification of drinking water in 1910. Later, he was the first to use liquid chlorine for this purpose.

AG Employee Wins High Civilian Award

Fern A. Kamler, AG Section, Headquarters Sixth Army, last week received a Department of the Army Meritorious Civilian Service Award in a presentation ceremony attended by 35 military and civilian officials. This honorary award, the second highest given by the Department of the Army, has been awarded only to one other Presidio employee during the past year. Col. H. H. Marcus, Adjutant General, Sixth Army, made the presentation and Col. E. T. Adler, AG Executive Officer, read the commendation, which in part says, "For meritorious performance of duty as Civilian Personnel Clerk from 1 May 1950 to 30 April 1953. . . Her exceptional ability to evoke confidence and instill trust, combined with sound decisions emanating from maturity of judgment, were exhibited by her outstanding leadership during this period."

Presidio Car Owners Cautioned on Minor Bad Safety Habits

All metal plates formerly attached to both military and civilian cars of Presidio personnel are obsolete and should be removed, announces Lt. Col. James H. Ashcraft, Post Provost Marshal. Post tags or stickers from other posts on cars now being used on the Presidio should be removed and all cars belonging to military and civilian personnel on the post must be registered.

Personnel are also requested by Col. Ashcraft to make the greatest possible use of parking facilities by being careful to park within the white lines designated as parking stalls. He further noted that some motorists are failing to observe the speed laws and that many drivers tend to be impatient at tourists or pleasure motorists driving through the Presidio at a slower speed.

OCS Program Changes Result from Reduced Commission Requisites

Major changes in the Officer Candidate School program resulting from the reduced requirements for commissioned officers has been announced by the Office, Chief of Army Field Forces.

Future acceptances to OCS classes will be limited to the Infantry, Artillery and Engineer schools. Officer candidates selected for commissions in other branches will attend the Infantry OCS course, while the Artillery School will train applicants formerly trained at AA&GM Branch, The Artillery School.

Officers commissioned from the OCS program for branches other than Infantry, Artillery and Engineer will receive further schooling at appropriate Branch Service Schools following receipt of their commissions. Artillery OCS graduates assigned antiaircraft artillery duty will attend the AA Transition Course conducted at AA&GM Branch, The Artillery School.

Effective with reporting dates to officer candidate schools of 1 June, 1953, applicants must have agreed to serve on active duty in commissioned status for a minimum of 24 months in order to be eligible for selection.

Army May Test Light, Low Visor Plastic Helmets

Washington—Studies may soon get underway to discover a more protective helmet for the Army if Dr. Melvin A. Casberg's recommendations for future experiments are accepted.

Dr. Casberg, Assistant to the Secretary of Defense (Health and Medical), has just returned from Korea where he observed firsthand the work of medical units in action and certain armor requirements of men in combat.

Increased cranial injuries due to fragments from ammunition such as the mortar shell and the hand grenade makes it necessary to provide more protection for the individual without hampering his movements, Dr. Casberg indicated.

Dr. Casberg's immediate suggestion was a helmet with a lower visor, without being so low as to hamper vision. Dr. Casberg would enlist the aid of neuro-surgeons and Army Quartermaster experts in conducting experiments.

A possible plastic helmet was also considered by Dr. Casberg.

"Our current helmets can't stop high velocity projectiles so it might be wise to turn to a lighter plastic helmet," the medical expert advises.

Dr. Casberg praised medical units in Korea as well as the armored vest in cutting sharply the number of men killed in action or dying from wounds.

He revealed that less than two per cent of the injured reaching medical units die from wounds—a low figure in light of previous war totals.

The doctor estimated that 70 per cent of the men wounded today in Korea are hit in their extremities—arms and legs. The medical expert says that leg guards or armored pants are the answer to that problem, providing they do not burden the combat soldiers to cut down his efficiency.

All United Nations troops queried by Dr. Casberg agreed that they have been getting the best medical treatment possible. They also have said that their confidence is greater because of the excellent treatment. (AFPS)

Recently Assigned

Lt. Colonel Wallace B. Hall has been assigned as chief of the reviews and operations division, office of the Inspector General, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Lt. Col. W. B. Hall

A veteran of 26 years' service, Colonel Hall served most recently at Headquarters, US Army, Alaska, and at Camp Stone-man, California.

Colonel Hall served three years with Japan occupation forces as assistant, office of the Inspector General, Headquarters Eighth Army. He is a graduate of the Command and General Staff school, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and has been awarded the Army Commendation ribbon.

Lt. Waldon G. Latendresse is a new platoon leader with Detachment A, 6002 ASU. Prior to his

Lt. W. G. Latendresse

Presidio assignment, he served at Fort Ord for a year as tactical officer and assistant S-3, Leaders course, 53rd Field Artillery Bn.

A veteran of both World War II and the Korean conflict, Lt. Latendresse spent 10 months in Korea with the 21st Infantry Regiment, 24th Division, and in World War II he spent 10 months in the European theatre with the First Division, followed by occupation duty in Japan.

Lt. Latendresse has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf cluster and "V," the Air Medal with cluster, and the Combat Infantry Badge with star.

Captain Frances S. Cameron, recently returned from three years' duty in Tokyo, is now assistant to the chief, food service division, Quartermaster Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Capt. F. S. Cameron

While in Japan, she served as assistant food service supervisor and assistant commissary officer at the Grant Heights commissary.

In the service for the past 10 years, Capt. Cameron served as chief, clothing issue warehouse, Fort Des Moines, Iowa, during World War II, and was the first WAC through the training center there.

New Machine Record Course is Established

A new course known as the machine accounting supervision course, is to be opened 2 July at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana.

Purpose is to train enlisted personnel to supervise machine accounting specialists engaged in operation and wiring of electrical accounting equipment. MOS of those applying for the school should be machine accounting specialist (1400).

The course will run for four weeks, closing on 30 July, and the class capacity has been set at 24 persons. Applications to attend may be submitted to Headquarters Sixth Army.

Lt. Robert L. Fincox, executive officer, division headquarters company, Fort Ord, for the past year, is now a platoon leader with Detachment A, 6002 ASU.

Lt. R. L. Fincox

In Korea, he served eleven months with the 7th Regiment, Third Division, and has also served four years at the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia.

A veteran of nine years' military service, Lt. Fincox served with the US Navy in World War II, in the Atlantic and European theatres.

Lt. Charles D. Engle has been assigned as CO of the 66th Signal Det., a newly assigned radar repair team which will work with the 459th AAA AW Bn.

Lt. Charles D. Engle

In the service for the past four and one-half years, Lt. Engle spent the past seven months at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, in the student officer associate radar MOS courses.

State Elections

(This is the first in a series of articles containing the latest voting information in accordance with change No. 3 of DA Pamphlet 50, NavPers 15850C, AF Pamphlet 34-5-1C, and change No. 3 of CG Personnel Circular 8-52. It applies to Service personnel, dependents residing with Service personnel and U. S. citizens attached to, and serving with, U. S. Armed Forces beyond the continental limits of the U. S.)

Eleven states will hold state and/or local elections during the summer and fall of 1953.

Generally speaking, Armed Forces personnel and civilians officially attached to, and serving with, the Armed Forces of the United States will not be able to vote in person if stationed outside their home states. Laws in most states, however, provide for voting by absentee ballot for Service personnel.

In many cases, servicemen and women will return to their home states upon completion of their service requirements and therefore it is to their advantage to take part in the state and local elections at home.

Information concerning the first two states holding elections of any kind during the summer and fall of 1953 is as follows:

CONNECTICUT

Towns, cities and boroughs will hold elections on varying dates. (Schedule can be obtained from local I&E offices.) Service personnel may obtain ballots by mailing the Federal Post Card Application to town, city or borough clerk at place of Connecticut residence.

MISSISSIPPI

The general election for mayors, members of Boards of Aldermen, and other municipal or local officers in most municipalities was held June 2, 1953. Application for ballots by the Federal Post Card Application may be made at any time to City or County Registrar.

(Next Week: Kentucky and Virginia.)

Army T.I.C. Topic

In observance of the Army's 178th birthday, Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units next week will review some of the major contributions of the Army to the welfare of the nation, past and present.

Although the Army is generally considered as primarily a fighting machine with a wartime mission of fighting and a peacetime mission of being ready to fight, its peacetime or nonmilitary achievements are an important part of the whole story.

This side of the Army's history is as old as its fighting history which goes back to 14 June 1775, when Congress authorized the raising of six companies of expert riflemen to serve in the American Continental Army for one year.

These major "nonfighting" accomplishments of the Army, beginning with its contributions to the early exploration of America to present day achievements in medical, engineering, chemical and other research that has civilian as well as military application will be reviewed during the conferences next week.

Basis of the discussions will be the Department of the Army pamphlet No. 20-159, Troop Topics, "The Army's 178th Birthday."

Blood Bank Announces New Policy for Donors With Malaria History

Donations for the Armed Forces Blood program will be accepted next Wednesday, 10 June, from 0800 to 1500 in Building 562. Time for all personnel who desire to donate will be arranged by section chiefs and unit commanders.

Under a policy change announced by the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank, many civilian and military personnel who have been unable to give blood before may now donate as a result of the relaxing of regulations regarding those who have had malaria.

The new policy provides that only those with a history of active malaria within the past year will be rejected. Individuals having had the disease at an earlier date, or those who have been in a malaria area or who have had suppressive therapy may be accepted for the Defense program providing their blood is drawn in 4 percent sodium citrate solution and processed into blood derivatives.

Korean veterans may now be able to donate for the first time and an increase in the number of donations is anticipated.

Plans are now being made for a second blood donation day for the Presidio this month, tentatively set for 24 June. Those who wish to donate at this later date are requested to notify their section chiefs or unit commanders so that final arrangements can be made.

Tube Types Reduced

Future designs of electronic devices for the Armed Forces will incorporate only the 192 types of tubes prescribed by a new military standard, the Defense Department announces.

At present there are over 5000 different types of electron tubes in the military supply systems. Adherence to the new military standard will eventually cut the need for different type tubes to an estimated 10 per cent of the present number.

For Better Service

Civilian News Notes

By EARLE F. REINKE

You may now apply for overseas employment with the Department of the Army at Civilian Personnel Division, Bldg. 86. Most of the recruiting being done is for "white collar" jobs in Alaska, Japan, Okinawa and Europe. There are occasional vacancies for specialized positions in Italy, Puerto Rico, Trieste and Turkey. This headquarters rarely recruits for Hawaii, since most of the appointments are filled through appropriate civil service examinations in Hawaii. Persons selected for clerk-typist and clerk-stenographer positions overseas cannot be sure of their exact duty location until they reach the overseas area. New appointees report to the command headquarters in Tokyo, Japan, for example, and are then assigned to the station with the most critical need at the time.

Occasionally recruiting is done in the U. S. for skilled labor positions, usually in Alaska, but most of these are filled through local hiring in the overseas area. The list of vacant positions changes frequently, and persons interested in overseas jobs are urged to keep in touch with the Civilian Personnel office.

For women the age limits are 21-40; for men, 21-50. The minimum ages for school teachers and recreation personnel is 25 years. Exceptions to maximum age may be made on technical and supervisory positions in some areas.

Applicants must meet the minimum experience qualifications as established by the Civil Service Commission, and any additional requirements which the overseas commands may desire. For example, if you are a typist or stenographer you must pass the appropriate civil service written and performance tests.

Job commitments by recruiting officers are contingent upon satisfactory reports on physical examination, personal reference checks, character and security investigations. Any unfavorable reports received as a result of these investigations will disqualify the applicant.

All overseas appointments are "excepted" appointments, i.e., excepted from the usual competitive requirements. An employee who accepts an appointment for overseas duty and who holds a Federal position within the U. S. does not lose any rights acquired as a result of Federal employment. Service overseas, however, does not provide competitive status for persons who have not held it prior to the appointment.

In general, overseas civilian employees are entitled to the same benefits and rights as Federal employees in the United States. It is not possible, however, to transfer from a position with the government in the U. S. to an overseas position, or at the termination of overseas employment, to transfer back to a position in the U. S. In certain instances, however, reemployment rights are granted, and the individual may return to his former position. All efforts are made to arrange overseas appointments with no break in service so that annual leave and sick leave may be transferred.

Salaries for the graded positions are the same as for similar government positions in the U. S. plus allowances and/or differentials which vary according to geographic area. Rates for ungraded jobs (skilled labor, mechanics, etc.) also vary according to geographic area. Whether or not it is possible to give salary protection or to maintain an individual's present salary rate, if above the base step of the grade, depends on the policy of the particular command. It is usually possible for this to be done.

Personnel selected for overseas jobs are required to sign Conditions of Employment and Transportation Agreements. The minimum tour of duty is for two years except in Korea, Okinawa, Greece and Turkey, where the tour is for one year. The government provides transportation both to and from the foreign post of duty. Return transportation at government expense, however, is contingent upon the satisfactory completion of the assignment.

Dependents may not accompany civilian appointees to overseas commands. For the European Command, dependents of civilian appointees in grade GS-7, its equivalent and above, may follow at a later date. The housing shortage necessitates the establishment of a priority waiting list subject to command approval. In Japan, housing is available for families of employees in grades GS-12 and above.

Submit Standard Form 57 (Application for Federal Employment) in triplicate to Civilian Personnel Division, Bldg. 86. An interview will be arranged at which time you will be given information as to salaries and working conditions, and asked the earliest date that you will be available for overseas duty, etc. There will probably be a waiting period of two to four weeks or longer, before you are notified of acceptance or non-acceptance on a position.

If you are accepted on the position, you will then start processing. At the present time this will take place at Ft. Mason, San Francisco. You will be required to pass a physical examination, and to take a series of inoculation "shots" necessary for the particular area to which you are going. Transportation to Europe and the Far East is usually by ship, to Alaska by air.

All of the processing takes about three to six weeks. You will be given a "Port Call" date, which is the actual date of departure for overseas, about ten days in advance.

Officers Win Degrees

Two Sixth Army officers will be among those receiving degrees next week from San Francisco State College. Colonel Lawrence E. Fouchs of the Sixth Army Signal Section will be awarded a masters degree, having completed all the required study within a year of his earning a bachelor's degree. Major William M. Jones of the Sixth Army Special Services Section will receive his bachelor of arts degree.

Post Engineers Will Remove Traffic Hazard

Current projects of the Post Engineers include the removal of the hazardous road condition at the lower curve on Infantry Terrace and painting of the exteriors of post building. Lt. Col. Daniel R. Moss, Post Engineer, states the widening of Infantry Terrace will assure a safer flow of traffic and that the painting will preserve the surface, as well as improve the appearance, of Presidio structures.

1800 Checkups! Mobile Chest X-Ray Unit Spends Week at Presidio

Approximately 1800 civilian employees of the Presidio, its sub-posts and Letterman Army Hospital will have had chest X-ray checkups by the time the mobile unit of the San Francisco Tuberculosis Association completes an annual visit to the post today.

This is the third year that the mobile unit has come to the Presidio and the total number taking X-rays during this period has increased progressively. The unit was first brought to the post upon an employee's suggestion in 1951 when 1100 had checkups. Last year 1500 individuals were X-rayed.

On Monday the unit was stationed between Buildings M-7 and M-8 and the following day it was across the street from Stilwell Hall, with over 300 reporting each day. Wednesday and Thursday were near-capacity days for the unit while on the Main Parade Ground. Today the final X-rays are being made in the East Hospital area of Letterman.

Civilian employees of Fort Baker, Fort Barry and Fort Cronk-hite were brought over to the main post for their examinations in a special bus.

Time required for the individual checkups of post personnel averaged two minutes, a one and a half minute waiting period and one-half minute of the actual X-ray. During the past week, the unit has averaged 360 persons per day, in addition to the time required for various moves and the setting up of equipment.

If the present trend of increased participation in the program continues, the unit will probably be run at full capacity of 500 persons per day at the Presidio, states Mr. Arthur Linsley, program coordinator of the Civilian Personnel Division in charge of the program.

The annual visits of the mobile unit are public services of the San Francisco Tuberculosis Association supported by funds from the Christmas Seal sales. Mr. Linsley stated that the on-post sales of these seals were the largest last year they have ever been on the post.

The unit which came to the Presidio is one of several especially built for the San Francisco association and the original of which is the prototype of those in use now throughout the country. Its entire body is constructed with lead and a rubber synthetic mixed with inert metals in order to shield operators and those waiting outside.

In addition to making X-rays of government employees, the units also include public industry, schools and similar groups. During the year an average of 2000 checkups are made each week.

On the basis of the reports of the first two years that the unit has been here, Presidio civilians are extremely healthy, Mr. Linsley said. Of all the X-rays made on the post, only three and a half per cent required further investigation and of these only less than one per cent proved to have any findings of complications of lung, heart or other parts of the area shown in the X-rays.

By making the annual checkup, such conditions can be checked before usual symptoms normally appear. The association and the medical profession recommend that all people have chest X-rays taken annually. Men over 40 years old should have checkups every six months, since statistics show cancer of the lung is most likely to appear in men of this group.

The X-rays taken on the Presidio this week will be coordinated with those taken at other activities under the jurisdiction of the Presidio Civilian Personnel Division.

New Bill Introduced

A bill, HR-5218, was introduced by Rep. Frank Ikard (D-Tex) to provide that enlisted men below pay grade E-7 who have been prisoners of war in Korea may be promoted one grade for each year, or major part of a year, of captivity, upon their return.

50 Students at TI&E Conference Win Certificates

Certificates of Merit were earned by fifty military personnel of the Sixth Army area who successfully completed the 40-hour Discussion Leaders Course which was concluded Friday afternoon at Harmon Armory.

Conducted by the Post Troop Information and Education Section, the course stressed the importance of the role which the TI&E program is playing in the building of a well-informed Army. An over-all picture of the program was given in an opening talk by Mr. Joseph W. Burke, Sixth Army Director of Education.

As practical application of the techniques taught during the week-long conference, each student conducted a typical command conference and also made a three-minute extemporaneous speech.

First Lieutenant Jay E. Peck, Assistant Post TI&E Officer, commended the students for the enthusiasm they displayed for the course and for their ability to absorb a high level of instruction. He pointed out that while some of the students had not volunteered to attend and had started the course unwillingly, they all finished "completely sold" on the TI&E program.

Instructors of the course were Lt. Peck and SFC Virginia Chaffee, also of the Post TI&E Section. They were assisted by Mrs. Kathryn Mason, Post Education Advisor; Mr. Armand Cello, basic and intermediate instructor; Mr. J. Vincent Letty, high school instructor, and Dr. William J. Golden, Jr., of the psychology department of San Francisco State College, who is coordinator for the college and the on-post campus.

Character Guidance

Character Guidance for Presidio troops will be held in the Post Theatre Saturday, 6 June, from 0800 to 0900. Chaplain (Major) Charles O. Dutton will conduct the discussion group. Makeup for personnel who are unable to attend tomorrow's session will be held on Wednesday, 10 June, from 1300 to 1400.

Improvement Available! Post I&E Will Offer New Study Classes Next Week

Initial meetings of three group study classes to be given in classrooms of the Food Service School on the Presidio will be held next week with one class beginning on Monday, 8 June, and the other two on Tuesday, 9 June. All will be for an eight-week session.

Courses to be offered are "Twentieth Century Europe," "Public Speaking" and "Psychology of Human Relationships." These require no pre-requisites and it is not necessary to be a high school graduate to enroll.

The classes have been arranged by the Education Center of the Post Troop Information and Education Office as part of its program to offer timely courses which will meet the needs and interests of military personnel.

First class to meet will be "Twentieth Century Europe," which will be held from 1830 to 2100 on Mondays and Wednesdays with Dr. Charles A. McClelland instructing. The study will cover the political, economic, intellectual and social development of Europe from 1914 to the present.

Formal and informal speaking will be the major considerations of the "Public Speaking" course to be given by Dr. Wayne L. Britton on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1830 to 2100. Other subject areas will include study and practice in parliamentary procedures, techniques for leading discussions, and oral business and scientific reports.

This speech course has been scheduled to be of particular interest to officers or conference leaders who will be able to utilize the material in their administrative work. Those who do not desire credit for the course may audit the class without charge.

"Psychology of Human Relationships" will be a study of the factors concerned in the development of personality and social adjustment with Dr. Fred Reddell instructing on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1830 to 2100. Subjects to be covered include basic concepts of personality dynamics, application of psychological principles to personnel practices, group influences upon behavior and developing effective interpersonal relationships on the job.

Three units of upper division credit will be given for each course. "Twentieth Century Europe" is an upper division course for Social Science major and may be used as an elective for any major field. "Public Speaking" is an upper division elective course for any major and may be used to satisfy lower division oral expression requirement. "Psychology of Human Relationships" may be used also as an upper division elective for a major in any field, as well as to meet lower division requirement that each degree candidate complete a course in psychology.

Since classes will be limited, those planning to enroll should notify the Education Center, Building 117, immediately. Further details may be obtained by calling the Center, Extension 3189.

AWOL's High Cost Going Higher

Additional expenses to be charged against return absentees or deserters are now effective under change 4 to SR 600-120-1, which reinstates an old law, it was announced this week by Lt. Col. Benjamin H. Johnston, Post Finance Officer.

Under the new change, the cost of transportation, lodging and subsistence of a guard or guards used in the return of an absentee or deserter to his proper station or place of trial will be charged against his pay accounts.

These charges will be in addition to those for the amount of reward or reimbursement for expenses incident to his apprehension, detention or delivery and for the cost of his own transportation to the proper station or place of trial.

Honors for Scout

Stuart Mitchell, a member of Presidio's Explorer Post 77, will be one of nine San Francisco Boy Scouts who will become Eagle Scouts at a special ceremony to be held Friday at the Roosevelt junior high school. He is the son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Stuart M. Mitchell. Colonel Mitchell, the Post Dental Surgeon, is active in the post's Boy Scout activities serving as chairman of the Troop and Post committee.

Buglers to be Replaced With Disc Jockeys

Washington—Army buglers are going the way of the old horse cavalry—but many of their melodies linger on.

Just as there is little room in a modern, mechanized army for the colorful cavalry of days gone by, so is there also little use for the horn-blower whom every soldier groused about "murdering" each day at sun-up.

Soldier "disc jockeys" have replaced Old Army buglers at virtually all Army posts.

Famous bugle calls—ranging from rousing "Reveille" to soft and nostalgic "Taps"—have been cut in wax, and the records are played through amplifiers at post headquarters.

Army customs have changed the significance of some of the old tunes.

The bugle call, "Tattoo," which formerly was the last call of the military day, was established during the Thirty Years War—1618 to 1648—to end drinking bouts. Then known as "Tap To," it was the signal that taps in all opened beer barrels were to be closed immediately.

Later called "Tattoo," this signal was sounded by three taps on a drum. It now is the next to the last call of the military day and is used as a signal that noise must stop and all lights in the barracks must be turned out within 15 minutes.

The last call at night is "Taps" which also is used as an honorary salute at military funerals.

After the horse departed from Army formations, many stirring bugle calls also disappeared. Today only 25 or 30 calls—out of the full repertoire of 41—still are played. Many are for special occasions for procedures and few installations use them regularly. Normally, only ten or 12 bugle calls are heard every day on most Army posts.

Among old favorites no longer heard on the Army's "hit parade" of bugle calls are the boat call, the signal that a boat is going to dock or depart from an Army installation; water call, formerly played when it was time to water horses; and overcoats bugle call, to notify troops the formation soon to follow would be in overcoats.

As a substitute for the boat call, Army bands sometimes play for boat dockings and departures.

Stable call—which in the days of the old horse cavalry warned troops on stable duty to feed and curry their horses—still is used on some posts but is known as motor call. It signals Army drivers to bring in their trucks for cleaning and servicing.

Most bugle calls now used in the U. S. Army have been derived from the French and the British. But some historians believe an American officer—Major General Daniel Butterfield—composed "Taps" during the War Between the States. One historian, however, gives credit for the composition to General Truman Seymour, U. S. Army.

"Retreat," played at sunset when the flag is lowered, is similar to the French "Marches de Retraite." According to tradition, its origin dates back to the time of the Crusades. The firing of a gun at sunset on Army posts is believed to have grown out of an ancient custom of making a big noise in camps as the sun went down. This was believed to frighten away evil spirits.

The idea of inventing doggerel verses to sing with bugle calls probably began in Germany and spread to England and the United States.

Some of the best known verses used in the U. S. Army are these:

Reveille

I can't get 'em up, I can't get 'em up.
I can't get 'em up in the morning;
I can't get 'em up, I can't get 'em up.
I can't get 'em up at all;
Corporals worse than the privates;
Sergeants worse than the corporals;
Lieutenants worse than the sergeants;
And the capt'n's the worst of all.

Chorus

I can't get 'em up, I can't get 'em up.
I can't get 'em up in the morning;
I can't get 'em up, I can't get 'em up.
I can't get 'em up at all.

Comical lyrics to other popular calls follow:

Mess Call

Soup-y, soup-y, soup,
Without a single bean;
Pork-y, pork-y, pork,
Without a streak of lean;
Coffee, coffee, coffee,
Without any cream!
(Or, the weakest ever seen!)

Sick Call

Come and get your quinine, come and get your pills,
Oh! come and get your quinine, come and get your pills.

Bond Buying Soldiers Invest in Nation

Washington—Army personnel are proving their faith in Uncle Sam by investing in the nation's future.

During the first 33 months of the Korean war they invested $87.5 million in U. S. Savings "E" Bonds. At this time, they continue to buy bonds at the rate of $4.1 million each month.

These figures are actual dollar investments, not maturity value.

During the same period, $77.5 million were placed in Soldiers' Deposits which earn four per cent interest and persons receiving discharges withdrew their cumulative nest-eggs of $82.7 million. Soldiers Deposits total $38.7 million today.

Ord Wins Sixth Army Track Championship

THE THROW NEVER CAME HOME for Traveler's catcher Thayer during fourth inning action between Presidio's Red Raider ball club and visiting Camp Stoneman nine, Tuesday. Meanwhile, shifty Raider base-runner and all-around boy "Willie" Williamson came rollicking home on an error that put the Raiders out front for the balance of the game. Home team took the game 7-3 and exchanged Bay Area League standing with the Travelers. (Army photo by Brink.)

Red Raiders Stage Spirited Comeback; Occupy Fifth Place In League Race

An invigorated Presidio ball club, inspired by their two-victory morale-booster over last week-end, carried on where they left off in a two for three tally this week against the Treasure Island, Camp Stoneman and Gen. A. E. Anderson nines, deposing the Travelers for fifth place positioning in the mid-season League standings.

First game on the agenda saw the Raiders first and only loss in the series go to the T. I. Marines, 9-5. The home team led the visitors by three runs till a heart-breaking sixth inning, when Marine bats opened up for a decisive six runs. A final marker in the seventh bracket cinched the game.

"Arkie" Stanton, no mean man on the mound, as attested by his current contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates, pitched his fourth loss of the season since he came here from Fort Ord. The losses, according to "Arkie's" teammates, are not his fault, since it seems that all support from infield and outfield players has appeared to vanish every time the Modesto hurler takes to the mound.

In dugout jargon he's become known as "the hard-luck pitcher," which is a shame when you consider that he allowed only 10 hits in the Stoneman game of two weeks ago, and held the opposition to a meagre one-hit game till the seventh inning, when infield and outfield support once more blew up behind his back and allowed the visitors to run off with the game.

Pitcher Luke hurled for the Marines, holding the Raiders to eight hits. Big bat for the home boys was Gene Jacobs, who seems to be running up an impressive batting average since he's arrived from Ord. He hit three for five, one hit being a triple-marked drive over the center fielder's head.

On Monday the Raiders grabbed a practice game 10-8 victory over the Gen. A. E. Anderson ship's nine.

Lefty Gaea started on the mound for the Raiders, to be relieved in the third by the so-called hard-luck boy, Stanton. Stanton promptly proceeded to break the jinx we mentioned above, which had held him to four losses in a row, and won his first game at the Presidio.

The game saw home runs by batting kings Jacobs and Bert Fowler, and for once Thayer opened up with a line-drive in the second inning to dampen a month and a half-long batting drought. On the whole, the practice game proved to be very satisfactory practice for the Raiders.

On Tuesday, primed with victory, the boys matched bats with the Stoneman Travelers for the third time this season and slammed out a 7-3 winner.

Opening with an early 2-0 lead in the first two innings, the Raiders were overtaken by the Travelers in the top of the third.

In the bottom of the third the Raiders took a second thought on the game. Big bat Willie Williamson nailed a single for first base occupancy, and promptly stole to second. Jacobs, just to prove he isn't a fluke hitter, banged a customary triple to bring Williamson hopping into home, whereupon big Bert Fowler singled and brought Jake in. From there on the game stayed with the Raiders.

The day's batting showed Williamson with three for three, one a double, and Jacobs, one for two. Pitcher Herriage hurled for the Raiders, allowing 10 hits and fanning 10. Gillanoy, opposing pitcher, allowed seven hits.

WAC Comeback- Sees Locals Down Fort Mason Nine

The Presidio WAC softball team, after suffering two defeats in a row the last weeks, turned in their tracks today and like the mighty team they really are, walloped the Fort Mason WACs 11-8 in a game on Mason territory this Wednesday.

Infield play was considerably tightened over the last two games, and for once the home gals allowed the opposition to err on defense.

In the first inning alone four runs were scored for three hits. It went like this—Fuess walked to first and right away stole second on an error. Christian singles, then Moore walks, which makes the bags full. Big bat Wiley comes to the plate and bangs a double-marked homer, to decant the bases and bring the game into Presidio possession.

From there on it was a matter of Presidienne batting power and an inadequate Mason defense. Our improved infield kept the opposition to a bare minimum in hits.

The world's record for the 100-yard dash frontwards is 9.3 seconds. A. Forrester of Toronto, Canada, ran the dash in 14 seconds—backwards—only 4.7 seconds slower than the normal way of running it.

Sparked by the cinder talents of triple-winning Olympic broadjump master George Brown, weight-throwing titan Earl Putnam, and rugged long-distance specialist Robert Zuniga, a Fort Ord track and field team of unprecedented strength stole 10 first place laurels in an 18-event total and ran wild to a 39-point margin victory over a field of five other Army Area teams to bear away this year's All-Sixth Army Track and Field Championships, at Fort Lewis, Washington, last Saturday.

For their winning performances in the meet, eight Ord members have been assured berths in the 15-man Sixth Army representation shortly to see action at the All-Army Championships at Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

The Ord sweep owed much of its impetus to 1952 Olympic broad-jumper Pvt. George Brown, who won a triple crown in the 100-yard and 200-yard dashes and broad-jump—to flash spikester Pvt. Ollie Matson, another 1952 Olympic team member, who churned the cinders, for a 48.6 clocking in the 440-yard dash—to tough Robert Zuniga, for his double barrel victory in the stamina-testing three-mile run and two-mile steeplechase.

Other nimblefooted Ord titlists included Pvt. Dick Wells, high jump winner; stocky weight-thrower Pvt. Earl Putnam, who placed first in both shot-put and hammer-throw, and Charles Holloway, with first laurels in the 220 hurdles.

In the pole vault, San Luis Obispo's Henry Staats hurtled to top position, providing five of the total nine points his team finally tallied.

For Fort Lewis speedy Lt. Donald Brooks took the 120 hurdles; Pvt. Robert Blevins followed suit in the 440 hurdles; Cpl. Robert Cook was victor in the hop-skip-jump, and Lt. Richard E. Smith scored first honors in the javelin throw. Fort Lewis ended the two days with a second-place 60 points.

The Camp Roberts delegation, a far cry from last year's championship cry team, took 17 points home with them, discus-thrower Pvt. Victor Brewer winning first place in that event.

Of Madigan Army Hospital's final five-point tally, Pvt. William Mack earned the full percentage, with first place in the mile run.

Another purpose of the meet, aside from establishing Sixth Army kingpins, was to determine the selection of individuals to represent this command in the 1953 All-Army Track and Field Meet, to be held at Fort Jackson, 12-13 June.

Fifteen outstanding performers in the Sixth Army Meet have been named by the Track and Field Committee to represent this Area in the coming event.

The fifteen, plus three officials, left Hamilton Field yesterday morning bound for Fort Jackson to go into a week-long training period in prep for the All-Army event.

Individual winners in the All-Army meet will be picked for a team to represent the service in the big Inter-Service Track and Field Championships to be held at Fort Jackson later in the summer, and from there individual winners from all services will be entered in the AAU meet at Dayton, Ohio.

Officers Extend Win Streak; 'Toppers' Maintain Torrid Pace

Intramural softball continued great guns in the last week with the strong Presidio Officers Club reiterating the fact that it'll take a heck of a good team to take the lead away from them.

Wednesday saw only one tilt, and that one between the Officers and Detachment A. The final score sounded a 14-9 knell for the Detachment A crew.

Winning pitcher Holtz and supporting infield kept the opposition to a meager run tally for the few hits they did make. Uli was losing pitcher for the A's.

Big bats for the Officers included Tuttle, who brought in three runs in the course of the game; Vincent, who doubled; and 505th's doughty Le Van, who scored three singles.

The game was pretty much wide-open for the first few innings, with the lead changing hands four different times. Errors proved the major failing of both teams.

Last week Detachment A had made themselves look better by defeating the once-tough MRU team 12-2.

League standings to date:

Team	Won	Lost
Officers Club	6	1
Fort Scott Hill Toppers	6	1
HQ Btry. 9th AAA	5	2
Det. A Guard	4	3
102 MRU	3	3
HQ Co. 6th Army	2	4
Harbor Defense	1	5

Note: 505th MP Company B "Coppers" have retired from league play.

Popular Pastime!

Maybe it's the dirth of golfing championships coming up, maybe Ike has given some note of prestige to the duffer league participants, or maybe it's just the cool, balmy evenings of late—in any event, the Post Pitch 'n Putt course, between Rodriguez and Liggett off McArthur Blvd. opened its greens to a flourishing after-hours business this Tuesday at the opening of its new twilight schedule. The new hours—0900-1900 hours, Tuesday through Friday and 0900-1600 hours, Saturday, Sunday and holidays—makes it easier for military personnel and their dependents who are busy throughout the day to get in a little evening practice with the irons. There is no charge for greens fees, and golf balls and clubs are furnished at the clubhouse by Post Special Services.

Any Jack Kramers?

Applications are now being taken for entrants in the Post Tennis Tournament, winners of which will be representatives of this post in the Southern Division Preliminaries to be held at Camp Roberts during August. Anyone interested in participating in the local play is asked to call Pfc. Zirbel, Post Special Services Office, ext. 3968 or 3062.

LOU PERINI, the man who made the longest geographical double play in the history of baseball, Boston to Milwaukee, predicts that there will be other sweeping changes in the game's structure, including a third major league within a decade, if not sooner. Baseball, he says, has moved into an era of community partnership, with his own new operation as a model. Three points he emphasized last week in an interview with newsmen were (1) The Little League program, with 350,000 youngsters participating, insures the greatest pool of talent in baseball history, eliminating any doubt of player shortage for three big leagues. (2) The Canadian cities of Toronto and Montreal must be considered in the expansion of major league baseball. (3) Stadiums in new big league centers must be municipally built because private ownership cannot stand the expense of erecting a multi-million dollar plant without raising admission prices. The community's stake is vastly increased business and prestige, he claims.

Golfer BEN HOGAN, who has won every major golf crown in the United States, announced this week he would make his first bid for the British Open championship at Carnoustie, Scotland, 6-10 July. Ben has never played in Britain, and many of the sport's observers have been hesitant to compare him with such greats as HARRY VARDON, BOBBY JONES and WALTER HAGEN until he could prove himself on the rugged playing conditions of England's and Scotland's championship courses. But Hogan, 40 years old and now confining himself to a few handpicked tournaments, apparently is at the top of his game. This year he has won three out of the four tournaments entered—the Masters, the Pan American Open, and the Colonial Invitation.

BILL VUKOVICH, Fresno speed-ace who won the Indianapolis 500 last Saturday, said this week he doesn't plan to race any more this season. In New York for radio and TV appearances, the race-driver told reporters that he plans to take it easy until the Indianapolis race next year.

The Washington Senators were wondering last week just what it takes to get into first place. Averages showed Washington leading the American League in hitting and fielding, but fifth in standings. The Senators had made 44 double-plays and a triple play in 35 games. Heavy bat MICKY VERNON was leading hitter with .362. In runs batted in, CLYDE VOLLMER had 30, second to WALT DROPO of Detroit, while JIM BUSBY was tied for third with 23. FRANK SHEA and JULIO MORENO each had a 3-0 pitching record, while Shea joined three other Washington pitchers in the league's top 17 in earned run averages—CHICO MARRERO, SONNY DIXON, BOB PORTERFIELD.

ART LARSEN of San Leandro defeated TONY TRABERT 6-4, 6-4, this week to win the men's singles title in the Central California Tennis Championships. It was the third time the one-time national champion has won the tournament. Trabert, in the Navy at San Diego, has been playing week-ends only.

Something of the old glory returned to the San Francisco Seals this week as they finished off a nine-game victory splurge against the Oakland Oaks at San Francisco's Seal Stadium. The victory brought the heretofore cellar-dwelling Seals to fifth place in the league. In a series begun on Wednesday with Portland the Seals bagged the opener, to make their chances look good for a first division fourth place season's wind-up.

In international tennis, Australian net power in the persons of LEWIS HOAD and KEN ROSEWALL won the men's doubles championship in the French International Tennis Tournament last Sunday. They defeated compatriots MERVYN ROSE and CLIVE WILDERSPIN. The United States supplied all the participants in the women's championship, with DORIS HART and SHIRLY FRY vanquishing MAUREEN CONNOLLY and JULIA SAMSON, California bred youngsters.

By mid-week London bookmakers had established knighted jockey GORDON RICHARD'S mount PINZA as a 5-1 favorite to win Britain's golden gallop, the Epsom Derby, with QUEEN ELIZABETH'S AUREOLE a second favorite at 11-2. World Champion Jockey Sir Gordon, at 49 years, has never won a derby in 33 years of racing.

On Wednesday the pennant parade stood with stalwart Seattle still leading the Pacific Coast League with 41 games in the bag, 22 losses. The Hollywood Stars had replaced the Angels 3 up with 37 for 63 games played. In American League play New York continued to lead Cleveland with 28 for 39, splitting evenly for wins and losses since last week's standings, the Indians' second place being worth 23 wins, 15 losses. For the Nationals the Milwaukee Braves, climbing the league ladder pretty steadily in the last few weeks, became top men at last with 26 for 39, while Brooklyn had deposed St. Louis for second, with 27 for 42.

Keglers Show Form

The Presidio Mixed Bowling League progresses in its current series with the Wheels as number one team with 10 wins in 12 matches. Team No. 8 second with 8 wins, while the Central Film Library trails third with 7. Eight teams make up the league. In women's singles Cpl. Nancy Sellers, high-ranking local from last year's 6th Army prelims, bowls first with 190, for the men, Jameson, with 236.

Roberts Officer Wins Marksmen Award For Rifle Prowess

2nd. Lt. Howard J. Kunstle of Gettysburg, S. D., was awarded the Assistant Division Commander's trophy at Camp Roberts last week upon becoming high scorer on the 7th Armored Division Faculty rifle team and in slow firing from the 500-yard line.

The presentation was made by CWO Alex N. Maraz, assistant training officer, 7th Armored Division.

Kunstle received his commission through the ROTC unit at North Dakota University in 1952 and has been assigned as instructor at Roberts since 1 December, 1952.

FIRST-PLACE AWARD AND CONGRATULATIONS are handed Col. Charles Ransom by Deputy Post Commander Col. Duncan S. Somerville as the Letterman

Ransom Posts Nine Stroke Victory Margin in Presidio Golf Tournament

A high-flying 175-yard approach shot and the final eight-foot putt finished four days of play in the 72-hole Post Golf Tourney last Friday and furnished Letterman Army Hospital's Colonel Charles Ransom with first place laurels and a berth on the post team now ready for competition against Sixth Army comrades in the nearing Area preliminaries.

Another Letterman officer, 1st Lt. Joe Turner, and Presidio Captain Rollin Kapp, toured the four rounds to second and third place victories.

Col. Ransom rounded the course for a 75.3 average, 301-point total, while his closest opponent, Lt. Turner, turned in 311 for the tourney. Third place Kapp totaled 317 points.

Other local divoteers finishing among the top ten included M/Sgt. George de Rosa; 332; Pvt. Clifford Humble, 335; Capt. Louis Button, 336; Major Donald Carter, 339; Col. James Wilkins, 349; 2nd Lt. Lee Brandenburg, 357, and Pfc. Dick Jensen, 404. The winning golfers triumphed over a field of 23 players from various sections on the post.

Colonel Duncan S. Somerville, Deputy Post Commander, was on hand at the termination of last Friday's round to present trophies and congratulatory wishes to the winners. Separate awards were given to participants by Letterman and Presidio Special Services.

The top three from LAH to receive the handsome trophies were Col. Ransom, Lt. Turner, and Pfc. Jensen. Presidio golfers awarded trophies were Capt. Rollin Kapp, M/Sgt. de Rosa, Pvt. Clifford Humble, Capt. Louis Button, Major Donald Carter, and Col. James Wilkins.

It is almost certain that most of the top ten will be named for berths in the Presidio representation for the forthcoming Sixth Army preliminary tournaments, scheduled for the Presidio Golf Club, 7-10 July.

Competition in the preliminaries will be in two divisions, Main and Senior, teams entering the Main Division being limited to six members, all of whom will be eligible to compete for the individual championship. Aggregate scores of the five low medalists will be computed for team play.

Entrance in the Senior division will be on an individual basis, with no limitation as to number of entrants.

Post Special Services officers here indicate that team priorities may be juggled here and there to make a place in the future for local ace Captain Duane Bagley, ex-Special Services chief currently on TDY at Camp Irwin. Bagley is well acquainted with the Presidio course and tees with handicap 4.

Meanwhile, the local greens are expected to see plenty of practice rounds from the above named ten in the next few weeks before the important 7 July tee-off. And if they practice as hard as they played last week, visitors will find a tough team to crack. On our side is the advantage of experience, since most competitors will be relatively unversed in the peculiarities of the Presidio course.

Mercy Haven!

United Nations Hospital Aids Civilian Sick and Wounded

Seoul — A small United Nations hospital near the 38th Parallel is serving as a mercy haven for thousands of sick and wounded Korean civilians who need medical attention which their own country cannot provide.

The Civil Affairs First Corps Hospital includes a mobile medical team, eight stationary aid stations in different sections of the First Corps area and four wooden buildings where patients get all types of medical treatment and surgery.

This group of medical facilities has treated more than 200,000 patients, inoculated about 3,000,000 and dusted more than 2,000,000 people with DDT in the first 21 months of operation.

Three Korean surgeons perform operations and treat concussions, lacerations, burns, fever and other ailments. A steady stream of patients come into the hospital by Army ambulance, truck, jeep, ox cart, horse cart and "A" frame carried on the back of a Korean colleague.

A regular mobile team visits small villages five days a week and treats more than 150 patients daily.

During the summer, a team travels the entire corps area to inoculate approximately 430,000 civilians in isolated villages and rural areas. In a single two-week period, the team can inoculate and dust with DDT more than 200,000 persons.

The hospital was built in May, 1951, by the United Nations Civil Assistance Commission in Korea and was equipped with four trucks, six squad tents and 40 cots. Its primary mission then was to operate as a civilian mobile unit.

The hospital staff—besides the Korean surgeons—includes three U. S. Army soldiers who handle all non-medical problems, six nurses, cooks, truck drivers and laborers.

The American soldiers are Sergeant First Class William V. Snowden of 4312 13th St., Meridian, Miss., Corporal Frederick G. Bell, Dover, Del., and Private Robert C. Perkins of Morganton, N. C.

Fort Dix, N.J.—Established as Camp Dix July 18, 1917—was named after Major General John Adams Dix, a Civil War commander and former governor of New York.

Seven Area Officers Receive Promotions

Latest promotions of officers of the Sixth Army area include the advancement of one lieutenant colonel to colonel, three majors to lieutenant colonel and three captains to major.

The promotion from lieutenant colonel to colonel was that of Robert E. Beauchamp, 6013 ASU, Fort Lawton, Wash., with date of rank 19 May 1953.

Majors promoted to lieutenant colonels are: William D. Cox, 6006 ASU, Fort Lewis, Wash.; David S. Ford, 6th Infantry Division, Fort Ord, Calif., and John J. Madden, Headquarters Sixth Army, Presidio of San Francisco, Calif. Date of rank for each is 18 May 1953.

Those advanced to major and their date of rank are: Frank B. Smith, 6th Infantry Division, Fort Ord, Calif., 18 May 1953; George A. Cook, 6513 ASU, University of California, Davis, Calif., 8 May 1953, and Leemon C. Baird, 6513 ASU, Sacramento High School, Sacramento, Calif., 8 May 1953.

Army Will Purchase More Average Goods

Washington—The custom of the Armed Forces buying special equipment for ordinary uses is being done away with.

A Defense Department spokesman has recently announced that from now on the Services will use the same goods made for civilians whenever possible. This will apply to a wide range of items other than combat equipment.

Among the examples cited were special garbage trucks and special electrical systems in Army vehicles.

Army post offices in Japan sold more than $41,000,000 in money orders and more than $4,500,000 in stamps during the past two years.

OCS at Fort Riley For Guard Training Through Summer

Washington—A special OCS for National Guardsmen will be held this summer at Ft. Riley, Kans., Secretary of Army Robert T. Stevens has announced.

The ten-week course will be offered at the Army General School for specially-selected NCOs and warrant officers from Guard units in all 48 states, Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia.

Reporting date for selected candidates will be June 19. The course will end on Aug. 29.

Applicants for the course must be NCOs or warrant officers in the Guard, high school graduates or equivalent, attain a score of 110 or higher in the AGCT test, have a minimum of one year of aggregate military service in the Guard or any other components of the Armed Forces and meet physical requirements for NG officers.

Applicants for the course must reach the Chief, NG Bureau, before June 5.

Name Candidates for This Year's Army Rifle & Pistol Team

A list of probable candidates for the U. S. Army Rifle and Pistol Teams was issued by the Office of the Chief, Army Field Forces, recently, with the tryouts scheduled to take place at Fort Benning, Georgia, from 29 June to 24 July.

The Army team drew praise from everyone in March when it swept through the Mid-Winter Pistol championships, held at Tampa, Florida.

After the trials at Fort Benning, the rifle team will go to Camp Lejeune, N. C., to compete in the Southeastern Regional Highpower Rifle Championships, while the pistol team will travel to Fort Bliss, Texas, for the Southwestern Regional Pistol Championships. After these tournaments, both teams will go to Camp Perry, Ohio, for the National Championships.

In the Mid-Winter Championships, held at Tampa 10-14 March, the Army team captured 122 prizes, led by Major Ellis B. Lea, Fort Benning, who will also be the captain of the team at the National Championships.

Infantry Changes Checked!

Bragg Tests May Result in Revision of Regiment Structure

Washington—Extensive revisions in the Infantry regiment's structure may be in the making, the Army has revealed.

Increased fire power, improvement of tactical control, and a more effective use of manpower are the objectives which have prompted field tests, the Army says.

Tests of the proposed changes, which would involve units from regimental headquarters to the rifle squad, are scheduled to get underway at Ft. Bragg, N. C., between May 15 and Oct. 15.

Here are the proposed changes:

(1) The primary change under consideration is the merging of the heavy weapons company of each battalion with the battalion headquarters company. Under this move, the heavy machine guns of the heavy weapons company would be integrated into the three rifle companies of each battalion.

Administrative and supervisory manpower saved by the merger would be utilized elsewhere in the regiment.

The merger would also provide six 81mm. mortars per battalion, an increase of two, and forward observers for the mortars to each rifle company. Each battalion would have eight 105mm. recoilless rifles, an increase of four. The present two 75mm. recoilless rifles would be eliminated.

Also, each battalion headquarters would have an observer-sniper squad, a maintenance section, and a supply section.

(2) Another change under consideration is the addition of one automatic rifle to the rifle squad. This change would also increase the number of men in a squad from nine to 11.

(3) Each rifle company would be provided with forward observers for the 4.2 inch mortar and a three-man communications wire team. Previously, there were no wire teams in a rifle company. There would also be an increase in the number of battalion and regimental wire teams.

(4) The anti-tank mine platoon of the regimental headquarters company would be reorganized, and the company's counter-fire platoon would be transferred to the heavy mortar company.

(5) Under the suggested changes, the present strength of the Infantry regiment would be increased from 3,527 to 3,659. This gain reflects only the addition of two men to rifle squads.

The study which resulted in the proposed changes was conducted by combat-experienced officers at the Office of the Chief of Army Field Forces, Ft. Monroe, Va., and the Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga.

An Airborne Infantry regiment of the 82nd Airborne Division will make tests at Ft. Bragg. It is considered that the organization of the Infantry regiment and the Airborne Infantry regiment should be similar except for anti-tank protection. (AFPS)

Ranking Promotions

Maj. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, CG of the Fourth Army, has been promoted to the temporary rank of lieutenant general, Secretary of Army Robert T. Stevens has announced.

At the same time, Secretary Stevens announced the promotion of eight brigadier generals to the temporary rank of major general and 11 colonels to the temporary rank of brigadier general.

Letterman to Begin Operating Room Class For Army Nurses

Letterman Army hospital, Presidio of San Francisco, and Walter Reed hospital, Washington, D.C., are the sites chosen for a 22-week course in operating room technique and management.

Classes will begin 1 September 1953 and will close 13 February 1954. Army Nurse corps officers, both regular and reserve, must have an MOS of 3443, nurse, operating room.

Reserve component nurses must be on extended active duty with at least one year of current service in this status as well as one year of EAD remaining in category commitment following completion of the course.

Applications may be made to the Office of the Surgeon General in duplicate, so as to reach his office by 1 July. Preference will be given to applicants not over 35 years of age.

Sacramento Signal Base Blood Drive to Honor Injured Combat Pilot

Kenneth Schechter, former Navy pilot who gained fame last year when, blinded by enemy anti-aircraft fire over North Korea, he brought his Skyraider to a safe landing on an abandoned airstrip by means of voice radio from his roommate, Lt. Howard Thayer, will visit the Sacramento Signal Depot on 5 June to help spur blood donation program to the Armed Forces.

The date coincides with the eighth anniversary of ground-breaking for the Sacramento Signal Depot at its present site, and ground will once again be broken to plant the first of "Korea Camellias," which will be dedicated to Schechter.

Now a student at Stanford University, Schechter led a five-day blood drive there in April, which produced a new national college record of 4,460 pints of blood for the Armed Forces.

Radiobiology Course Set for Medical Men

Armed Forces special weapons project will again this year offer a postgraduate course in radiobiology for medical officers, regular Army.

Beginning on 3 August, the course will be held at Reed College, Portland, Oregon, and, because of its length and other involvements, will be a permanent change of station.

In addition to the training at Reed, there will be a one-week weapons orientation course at Sandia base, Albuquerque, New Mexico, and approximately 90 days of training in the techniques of using radioisotopes at Oak Ridge, Tennessee. These two latter training media will be TDY enroute to a new station.

Applications for entry to the school should be submitted to Headquarters Sixth Army not later than 10 June.

Army Has Proud Record on 178th Birthday

The Star-Presidian

Serving Those Who Serve A Nation!

Vol. 2, No. 2

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

Friday, 12 June, 1953

FULL MILITARY HONORS were given James P. Mitchell, Assistant Secretary of the Army, when he visited the Presidio this week during his tour of Sixth Army installations. After being greeted by Lieutenant General Joseph M. Swing, Sixth Army commander, he inspected the honor guard from Detachment A, 6002 ASU, accompanied by General Swing and Capt. Malcolm E. McDonald, commander of the honor guard. (Army Photo by Hilmer.)

Assistant Secretary of Army Visits Post on Tour of Area Installations

James P. Mitchell, newly appointed Assistant Secretary of the Army, arrived at the Presidio of San Francisco Tuesday for a three-day visit to Sixth Army installations in Northern California. He came here from Fort Lewis, Washington, following visits to installations in the northwest.

A 17-gun salute greeted Mr. Mitchell as he entered the Presidio with an escort of 505th Military Police. Following a welcome by Lieutenant General Joseph M. Swing, Sixth Army commander, Mr. Mitchell inspected an honor guard of Detachment A, 6002 ASU, to the accompaniment of music by the Sixth Army Band.

Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Mitchell conferred with staff members of Sixth Army headquarters and then traveled to Berkeley to inspect the Army ROTC unit at the University of California.

Wednesday was devoted to an inspection of training activities of the Sixth Infantry Division at Fort Ord. Mr. Mitchell visited Camp Stoneman on Thursday and later in the day inspected Bay Area units of the Western Army Antiaircraft Command.

He is to depart for Los Angeles this morning.

Prior to accepting his new post, Mr. Mitchell had served as Director of Personnel and Industrial Relations for R. H. Macy & Co., as Vice-President of Bloomingdale Brothers of New York City and as chairman of the Employee Relations Committee of the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

During World War II, Mitchell directed the Industrial Personnel Division of the War Department. In this capacity he was responsible, among other things, for the solution of labor and manpower problems that affected Army production.

In 1948 he was named to the Personnel Advisory Board of the Hoover Commission. As a member of this research group he helped draft recommendations to Congress on federal personnel policies.

Stars Will Tell

Astrologers at the Pentagon did a double take at the last Congressional Medal of Honor winners.

The last three were born in March. The three—Cpl. Lester Hammond, Jr., Cpl. Clifton T. Speicher, and Sgt. Donn F. Porter—were all born in 1931.

The two corporals were born March 25, 1931, and won their awards on the 14th of months in 1952. Hammond received his for action in August. Speicher in June.

Prophecy for the corporals born under the sign of Aries March 21-April 20, are: Pioneer type, contemptuous of difficulties and danger, full of imagination, energy, intelligence and ardent emotions.

And that's how star gazers are born. (AFPS)

Latest Promotions

Nine captains of the Sixth Army area have been promoted to majors, all with a date of rank of 1 June 1953. These new majors are: Ancil G. Adkins, 6013 ASU, Fort Lawton, Wash.; George E. Banigan, 6th Infantry Division, Fort Ord, Calif.; Osbourne A. Griffin, 195th FA Bn., Fort Lewis, Wash.

Edward R. Harrison, 6th Infantry Division, Fort Ord, Calif.; Myron O. Rosenthal, 6100 ASU, Camp Roberts, Calif.; John E. Slawson, 6019 ASU, Camp Irwin, Calif.; Horrell H. Smith, 6513 ASU, NG Instr. Gp., Sacramento, Calif.; Arnold J. Yoho, 6513 ASU, AR Instr. Gp., Presidio of San Francisco, Calif., and Earl C. Zerbach, 6916 ASU, Sacramento, Calif.

Gourmet's Guide

With the 45th Div., Korea—Found: One infantry soldier who is really enthusiastic about "C" rations.

This phenomenon among front-line troops in Korea is Thunderbird Pvt. Ray Manoskey, Chicago, a member of Co. D, 180th Inf.

There's quiet reasoning behind Private Manoskey's crazy mixed-up appetite. He's a former employee of the Chicago Quartermaster Depot where the food going into Army rations is developed.

Loyalty to the firm knows no bounds. Besides, he learned to like it while working there. His entry into the Army renewed his familiarity with these delicacies and he has continued to enjoy them since.

Washington.—The United States Army will be 178 years old Sunday.

During its lifetime, it has fought and won 11 wars and has grown from a strength of 1,775 on its birth date to a peak of more than 8,000,000 during World War II.

Today the Army's strength is about 1,500,000.

On June 14, 1775, the Second Continental Congress authorized an army of 10 rifle companies—1,775 musketmen—and appointed George Washington to command them. The Army came into being because British soldiers tried to enforce the laws of Great Britain on American colonists.

Its authorization was the direct result of battles like those at Lexington and Concord in 1775 when the British tried to capture supplies the colonials had stored there.

During its first year, the strength of the Army jumped to approximately 20,000 and later during the Revolutionary War reached a peak of 35,000.

After independence was won for the 13 colonies, Congress shrank the Army to a meager 80 soldiers—"25 privates to guard the stores at Fort Pitt and 55 to guard the stores at West Point."

During the War of 1812, the Army again took an upward swing. More than 450,000 militiamen and volunteers were called up during the two-year war. Enlistment periods were so short, however, that the number serving at any one time was far less than that figure.

The 19th century saw the Army's strength rise and fall to meet the needs of three wars and intervening periods of peace.

Peak strength during that time was approximately 2,000,000—the total number of soldiers serving in the Union army during the War Between the States.

Probably the lowest strength of the 100 years was during the period between the Mexican War and the War Between the States when the number of men in the Army fell to about 15,000. These soldiers protected small settlements which sprang up on the western frontier.

About 280,000 soldiers served during the Spanish-American War, but only a small number of these saw combat.

When World War I began, the United States Army started again to mushroom. Total strength during the war topped the 3,500,000 mark.

When Hitler marched into Poland to start World War II, the U. S. Army had only three and one-half divisions in service. Before the end of the war, however, 89 divisions served overseas and all but two of them were in combat.

From a peak World War II strength of 8,000,000, the Army rapidly demobilized. By April, 1947, it had fallen to 1,000,000 men.

In June, 1950—when North Korean Communists struck across the 38th Parallel—the Army once again began to build its forces to meet a dangerous international situation. In three years of fighting, its strength has grown to 1,500,000.

With this accordion-like growth during its 178 years, the United States Army has continued to meet needs of the nation. Its soldiers have won laurels all over the world in building the proud record of a great fighting force which never has lost a war and never has failed to provide peacetime defense for freedom loving Americans.

Effective 1 July!

Army Clothing Allowances, Prices Cut; AF, Navy Due

Washington—A change in the price tags on some articles of clothing is due July 1, 1953, for enlisted personnel of the Armed Forces, the Defense Department announces.

Along with the change in prices will come a change in the initial clothing allowances given new recruits and in the monthly maintenance allowances.

The Army said its initial clothing allowance for enlisted men would drop from the present $172.91 to $169.86 and from $232.83 to $219.83 for women.

Present "basic" monthly clothing allowance, which starts after the first six months of service, would remain at $4.20 for both men and women. The "standard" monthly allowance, received after 36 months service, of $5.40 for men and $6 for women would also remain the same.

Airmen will find lower price tags on some items, which indicates maintenance allowances will stretch farther. Air Force monthly "basic" allowance is the same as the Army but both Airmen and Wafs receive $6 monthly "standard" maintenance allowances. Reduction in the initial clothing allowance will be announced later.

Additional groups of airmen will receive special one-lump sum pay starting July 1, similar to those received by military policemen, bandsmen, and recruiters. A letter will soon appear explaining this in detail, the Air Force said.

Service officials are withholding price changes at present to prevent supply strains caused by a possible buying spree on items scheduled for an increase or lowered sales on items scheduled for a decrease in prices.

5th Annual LOGEX Concludes at Pickett; Termed Successful

Camp Pickett, Va.—The Army's fifth annual logistical support maneuver, LOGEX-53, concluded here recently.

The director of the operation, Brig. Gen. Harold R. Duffie, commanding general of the Transportation Center at Ft. Eustis, Va., said the maneuver "definitely achieved its aim of promoting increased efficiency in staff work and familiarizing the student players with problems they would encounter under actual combat conditions."

During the week thousands of players provided theoretical logistical support to an assumed army of over 500,000 fighting an unnamed aggressor in the Rhone Valley area of Southern France. This year's LOGEX was the largest since its inception in 1948.

Weekly World News AT A GLANCE

KOREAN TRUCE negotiators for the United Nations and the Communists have agreed on all major points and Thursday recessed while liaison officers worked out the final details. The staff officers met at Panmunjom to map a cease fire line and were believed also to be discussing plans for the exchange of some 70,000 Communist and 12,000 Allied prisoners during the 60-day period after an armistice is signed. After a series of meetings between President Syngman Rhee and his top military and political aides, the South Koreans announced flatly they will not accept the impending armistice. They hinted that South Korean troops who man two-thirds of the 155-mile battle line, now under command of the United States Eighth Army, would not pull back a mile and a quarter from the present battle line, as truce terms would require. The meetings were called after Switzerland moved to speed an armistice by reversing its stand and announcing it would serve on a neutral commission handling exchange of prisoners despite South Korean opposition to the plan. . . . ON KOREA'S Eastern and East Central battle fronts, Chinese communists launched an 8000-man attack Wednesday night against South Korean and American positions, smashing into the main Allied defense line at four points. American troops at Outpost Harry on the eastern edge of the Chorwon valley invasion route hurled back some 700 Chinese Communists after nearly 12 hours of fighting. South Korean troops caught the brunt of the heavy assault with two Chinese battalions driving a hole in the main lines southeast of Texas Hill with two ROK counterattacks gradually shoving them back. The attacks are believed intended to place the Reds in a better strategic position for the drawing of the cease-fire line. . . . FRANCE failed again to select a new Premier. The French National Assembly Thursday turned down Georges Bidault's bid to become the new Premier and end the country's three-week cabinet crisis. He lost by one vote. Bidault, a leader of the Catholic Popular Republican Movement, was the third candidate the Assembly has refused to confirm during the current government crisis. . . . COMMUNIST EAST GERMANY ended its fight with the Protestant Church Wednesday and announced a major change in policy which will ease restrictions on private enterprise, farming and inter-zonal trade with the West. . . .

ITALY'S pro-American government won a narrow 16-vote majority in the lower house of Italy's parliament and a seven-seat majority in the Senate in this week's election. The government's new margin was so slim that illness or enforced absence of any of DeGasperi's supporters could provoke a crisis in the Legislature. In popular vote, the official tabulation gave the government bloc 13,487,036 to 13,496,503 for the combined opposition. . . . AUSTRIAN GOVERNMENT official in Vienna announced Rusisa has decided to appoint an ambassador to Austria and reestablish full diplomatic relations with the occupied country. The announcement followed Russian relaxation this week of a number of military and economic controls that had been maintained by Soviet occupation forces in eastern Austria since the end of World War II. . . . IN MOSCOW the U.S. embassy announced that the Soviet government plans to grant permission to leave Russia to the Russian wives of two American citizens and two Russian-born minor daughters of a woman embassy employee. The announcement added the Soviet government also has under consideration cases of other Soviet wives of American citizens desiring exit visas. . . . WEST GERMAN Socialists filed a motion in Parliament demanding a four power conference to plan the unification of divided Germany after the Big Three meeting in Bermuda. The motion called on Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government to actively promote a conference of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France on the German question. It urged the three Allied high commissioners to meet immediately with the new Soviet high commissioner to try to restore full traffic and trade between Russian occupied East Germany and the West German Federal Republic. . . . ENGLAND'S Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons that he looks for an early armistice in Korea, but did not commit himself on whether Britain would press for admission of Red China into the United Nations once the fighting stops. "The course we are following has a lot of fences in it and I think it better to jump one at a time," Churchill replied to left-wing Socialists insisting on a U.N. seat for the Chinese Reds, Britain already recognized the Peiping regime, while the United States still has diplomatic relations with Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalist Government on Formosa. . . . SWITZERLAND decided it would not serve on a five nation prisoners' repatriation commission in Korea unless South Korea approves the truce. The Federal Council (cabinet) said that the United States and Communist China had simultaneously requested Switzerland to serve on the commission in accord with the agreement reached on exchange of prisoners. . . . IN STOCKHOLM, four Poles were placed under arrest for forcing a Polish captain at gunpoint to steer his vessel toward Sweden where they meant to seek asylum. The boat was carrying only the captain, two crew members and two Polish stowaways. After the boat was grounded on the southeast coast of the Island of Oeland in the Baltic, a Swedish coast guard ship rescued all five. . . . IN PARIS, General Matthew B. Ridgway, in his final report as Allied Supreme Commander in Europe, said that a shortage of planes is the weakest link in Western defense and that increased air power "must receive far greater attention." He said Russia has 20,000 first line planes plus a large reserve. The North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces are reliably reported to have only 4,000 planes, many of them obsolete propeller-driven types. Ridgway also said he knew of no developments in Moscow lessening the military danger facing Western Europe now. . . . JAPANESE news service reported that Admiral Arthur W. Radford, incoming chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, was expected to discuss mutual security aid for Japan with Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida this week. . . . Japan was reported by U.S. news service to be moving quietly but swiftly into sizable barter trade deals with Russia and Communist China in an apparent effort to bolster the nation's economy prior to a possible Korean armistice. Japan announced it was buying 450,000 tons of cheap Russian coal and in exchange Soviet ships will be repaired in Japan and Russian crew members will be allowed to land and stay in the country for a specified time. In a deal with Red China, Japan will receive 130,000 tons of coal in exchange for spinning and weaving machines for the Chinese textile industry.

New Coat of Arms for 505th MP's

By Gloria Hetherington
Star-Presidian Feature Editor

"Respice Finen!"

Translation: "Look to the End!"

Shortly, if you look to the shoulders of any member of the Presidio's 505th Military Police Bn., you will see there a shiny new coat of arms with the above inscription.

The shield, reproduced here, is green and yellow, the MP corps colors. The "fretty" (crossed lines) design symbolizes the protective function of the organization. The color of the chief or top is white, which alludes to the white accessories of the Military Police uniform. The three sable (black) fleurs-de-lis represent the battle honors awarded the unit for service in World War II in the campaigns of (1) the Rhineland, (2) Ardennes-Alsace, (3) Central Europe.

The distinctive motto of the coat of arms is the work of Captain Raymond E. LeVan, officer-in-charge of the Military Police Training Center, Fort Baker.

Initially, all officers and enlisted men of the 505th were encouraged to submit their ideas for a suitable motto. The three judged as best of the lot by a local board, headed by Lt. Colonel Keene Saxon, Commanding Officer of the 505th, then went to the Heraldic branch, Office of the Quartermaster General, Washington, D. C., where Capt. LeVan's won final approval and was incorporated into the record.

For Captain LeVan, one of the most decorated members of the entire Military Police Corps, "Respice Finen" undoubtedly raced through his mind a hundred times during World War II when he stormed and fired and fought his way through practically the entire European campaign, taking part in five major offensives from Normandy to North France to the Ardennes to Central Europe and finally, the Rhineland.

Proof of his valor and daring is graphic.

On his tunic is the Silver Star Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Bronze Star Medal for valor with three Oak Leaf Clusters, the Purple Heart with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the French Croix de Guerre with Palm, the Belgian Croix de Guerre, and the Belgian Fourragere.

And he received a battlefield commission to second lieutenant.

It all started way back when Capt. LeVan was T/Sgt. LeVan and a member of "E" Company, 120th Infantry, and he participated in the battle for Hill 314, vital to the retention of the Normandy

Captain Raymond E. LeVan

OFFICIALLY ADOPTED by the 505th Military Police battalion is the coat-of-arms reproduced above. The shield is green and yellow, colors of the Military Police corps. The top is white, alluding to the white accessories of the MP uniform. And the three fleurs-de-lis represent the battle honors awarded the unit for service in World War II in the Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace and Central Europe. The motto, "Respice Finen," which means, "Look to the End," was authored by Captain Raymond E. LeVan, officer-in-charge of the Military Police Training Center, Fort Baker.

Beachhead. He performed heroically, many times behind enemy lines, and displayed great leadership ability.

On 29 July 1944, when on reconnaissance patrol in enemy territory, Sgt. LeVan assaulted an enemy tank with grenades, discovered another tank in a camouflaged position and gained vital information of the enemy, which enabled the battalion to make a successful attack. For this action he received the French Croix de Guerre with Palm and the Belgian Croix de Guerre.

While serving near Lohn, Germany, on 23 November 1944, Sgt. LeVan "in the face of murderous enemy fire, with complete disregard for personal safety organized" the four remaining men of his platoon and attacked the objective (the town of Lohn, Germany.) The five men held their positions within the town despite direct artillery fire from an enemy tank and repeated enemy counterattacks. By their action, the battalion was able to hold its objective. This action resulted in Captain LeVan's first Silver Star Medal.

By this time, word of his many distinguished actions had won for him a battlefield commission to second lieutenant, which came in December 1944.

On 14 January 1945, southeast of Weismes, Belgium, when exposed to tremendous artillery fire, as Lt. LeVan, he organized the remnants of his first and second platoons, 15 men in all, and attacked the objective.

The enemy stronghold consisted of a group of houses held by troops of the 3rd German Parachute division. Lt. LeVan stormed, single-handed, under protective fire, one of the buildings in an attempt to destroy the enemy with his sub-machinegun. He was constantly harassed by enemy small arms fire, but alone he entered the building and attempted to work his way to the second story. It was here that he received six painful grenade wounds in the legs and body.

Despite these wounds, Lt. LeVan returned to his men and checked their positions. He then reported to his commanding officer, giving the disposition of his men and the enemy. His gallantry, and the inspiration he gave to his men and unit at this time won him his first Oak Leaf Cluster to his Silver Star, and the Purple Heart.

Still serving with the 120th Infantry, on 15 April 1945, in the vicinity of Barleben, Germany, Lt. LeVan, accompanied by a Polish DP as an interpreter and guide, volunteered, at great risk of his life, to reconnoiter two German roadblocks.

With great skill he captured the German officer in command of the first roadblock. Using this officer as a decoy under threat of death, Lt. LeVan then captured the remaining members of the block.

Leaving the prisoners with the Polish aide, Lt. LeVan and the German officer proceeded to the second roadblock and there, using a prearranged ruse, Lt. LeVan captured the entire personnel of the second roadblock, and stored them away with the first group while he completed his reconnaissance.

Total bag for the day: one enemy officer and 25 German soldiers, plus vital information as to enemy positions. So a second Oak Leaf Cluster to the Silver Star was awarded.

In July 1945, Captain LeVan left the 120th Infantry and joined the 60th Infantry Division. In the occupational capacity of this unit, Capt. LeVan further distinguished himself by being instrumental in the capture of two men connected with the shooting of a German policeman.

He also played an important role in the investigation, apprehension and conviction of German mail clerks responsible for a series of mail thefts. This valuable work led to the detailing of Captain LeVan to the Corps of Military Police in 1948.

The captain performed outstandingly with the 529th Military Police Service company, becoming commanding officer and assistant provost marshal in 1949. For his outstanding service from 9 October 1947 to 1 January 1950, he received a citation for the Army Commendation ribbon.

Captain LeVan has served the Presidio for the past two and one-half years, being associated with the 701st MP Bn., until its deactivation in June 1952, at which time he transferred to the 505th, then newly arrived on the post.

He served first as Company Commander of Company A, and on 20 February 1953, he became officer-in-charge of the Military Police Training Center at Fort Baker.

Recently Assigned

Lt. Colonel George M. Burgett has recently taken over the position of Assistant Post Engineer.

He recently returned from 20 months of duty at Machinato, Okinawa, as Sub-post Engineer.

A veteran of 18 years with the Army, Col. Burgett served in the China-Burma-India theatre in World War II, and was a leader in the construction of the famous "Stilwell Road." He wears the Army Commendation Ribbon.

Lt. Col. G. M. Burgett

Lt. Colonel Dale J. Stephenson is now associated with the manpower division, G-1 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

He has recently returned from two years' duty as Post S-1, Fort Richardson, Alaska.

Col. Stephenson has been on active duty for the past 13 years and, in World War II, he served in the Pacific theatre with the 33rd Division and Headquarters Sixth Army, arriving in Korea in 1947.

Lt. Col. Stephenson

Captain Robert F. Lokerse has been assigned as family quarters inspection officer, Post Engineers.

He was recently released from Letterman Army hospital, where he had been since July 1952, following an injury in Korea. While in Korea he served nine months with the 84th Engineers, as company commander of C Company.

Recalled to active duty in May 1951, Capt. Lokerse served five years in World War II with the 390th Engineers, European theatre. He has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal and the Purple Heart.

Capt. R. F. Lokerse

Captain Clarence B. Wiley has recently been assigned as Chief, supply and maintenance division, Chemical Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

His last assignment was as Post Chemical officer, Camp San Luis Obispo, Calif., where he served for one year.

Capt. Wiley, who has been in the Army for the past 17 years, was stationed with the 1st Separate Chemical Mortar Bn. at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, on Pearl Harbor day in 1941. For the next two years he served there and in the South Pacific with the Headquarters Hawaii Service Command, Chemical section.

He then served 18 months in Europe with the 194th Chemical Depot company, before being re-deployed again to the Pacific, where he remained until his return to the United States in 1945.

Captain Lulu R. Linder is the newly assigned Post theatre and library officer. Her last duty station was Fort MacArthur where she served as assistant comptroller and budget and fiscal officer.

Capt. C. B. Wiley

She served in Germany from December 1948 to March 1952 as comptroller and budget and fiscal officer, Hanau Signal depot. Capt. Linder entered the WAC in July 1942 on the first day of basic training, and was in the first OCS class for WAC's taken from the ranks. She trained at Fort Des Moines, Iowa.

Capt. Linder's husband is Captain Virgil R. Linder, presently an ORC instructor, 7th California Military District, Bakersfield, Calif. The pair served together in Germany, returning to the United States on the same boat.

CWO William A. Stillings has recently been assigned to the Quartermaster section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

His last duty station was at Headquarters Seventh Army, Stuttgart, Germany, where he was with the Quartermaster section for three and one-half years.

During World War II, he served at the Presidio from 1942 to 1945 as Quartermaster, Western Defense Command. CWO Stillings then went to Alaska, and following that, to the Seattle Port of Embarkation, before embarking on his assignment in Germany. He has been in the Army for the past 12 years.

CWO W. A. Stillings

Lt. Wayne L. Zike has been assigned as Detachment CO, 568th Ordnance Integrated Fire Control Repair detachment.

He has spent the past year at the Ordnance school, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland, where he was a student in the fire control class.

Lt. Zike, who has been in the Army for the past 25 months, also attended OCS at Aberdeen Proving ground.

Lt. Wayne L. Zike

Captain Earl R. Shappell is the new director of the Sixth Army CBR school.

He served last at Fort McClellan, Alabama, where he spent the past 16 months at the staff and faculty Chemical school.

In Korea and Japan, he spent 42 months as executive officer with Advance ATIS, and has received the ROK Presidential Citation.

During World War II, Capt. Shappell served in military government and completed the course in Japanese at the Army Language school, Monterey, Calif. He has been in the Army for the past 11 years.

Capt. E. R. Shappell

A-Bomb Not Guilty

Albuquerque—The weather department cleared the A-bomb makers of responsibility for an extreme amount of rain in New Mexico this spring. Natives complained frequent A-bomb experiments caused the weather to ruin crops.

Presidio Wac's Son to Say First Mass on Sunday

Rev. George Twigg-Porter, SJ, son of SFC Renee Shearing of the Presidio Wac detachment, will say his first two military Masses at the Chapel of Our Lady on the Presidio Sunday (14 June).

Times for the Masses are 0930 and 1130.

Rev. Twigg-Porter, whose father is the late William Henry Twigg, former counsel at Cinadad-Bolivia, Venezuela, is being ordained at St. Mary's Cathedral in San Francisco, in ceremonies which began at 0900 today, (12 June). He will say his first Mass on 13 June at his theology Alma Mater, Alma College, Alma, California.

He will offer his first Solemn High Mass at the Blessed Sacrament church in Hollywood, California, on 28 June, and it will be followed by a reception for relatives and friends.

Born in London, England on 20 April 1921, Rev. Twigg-Porter received his BA from Santa Clara University, and his MA from Gonzaga University, Spokane, Washington.

He has his teaching diploma for California schools and instructed at both St. Ignatius High school in San Francisco and Loyola University in Los Angeles. At each school he taught adult classes for the deaf.

Rev. Twigg-Porter attended the Junior Seminary at Los Angeles and Los Gatos, the Major Seminary at Mount St. Michael, Spokane, Washington, and completed his theological course at Alma College, Alma, California. He is a member of the Society of Jesus, most often referred to as the Jesuits.

His mother, SFC Shearing, is presently doing service club work at the Presidio Service club. She returned recently from 19 months of duty in Japan where she was again connected with Service club programming.

SFC Shearing has been a member of the WAC for the past 10 years. She was born in London and received her early schooling in England and France. In this country, she attended Hunter's College, New York, for two years.

National Front News NOTED IN PASSING

Flint, Mich.—A series of tornadoes smashed through parts of Michigan and Ohio Monday night killing 121 in Michigan and 18 in Ohio. More than 1,000 persons were injured and property damage ran into many millions of dollars. Six savage twisters raked sections of a 350-mile belt above and below Detroit. At least 111 persons were killed in the Flint area alone, which was the only densely populated area to be hit.

Worcester, Mass.—Less than 24 hours after the series of tornadoes in Ohio and Michigan, New England's worst tornado killed at least 87 persons, injured another 800 and left 10,000 homeless Tuesday. The twister struck shortly before sundown and caused damage ranging as high as $50,000,000. The Worcester area was hardest hit with 66 known dead.

Washington.—Senator Robert A. Taft has announced his hip ailment "is a serious one" that will keep him from being active as Senate floor leader for the rest of this session of Congress. The majority leader, who regulates the flow of legislation to the Senate floor, operates from an aisle seat and as a matter of practice gets preferential recognition by the presiding officer. Hence the position is one of great power over the lawmaking machinery. Senator William F. Knowland of California will be acting floor leader for the rest of this year.

New York.—United Nations Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. stated the United States would do "everything necessary" to keep Communist China out of the United Nations. He indicated this might include the veto, but he acknowledged he had not gone into that procedural question. His remarks were made in response to questions on a national broadcast.

Wilmington, Del.—Coast Guard patrol boats searched the Delaware Bay for three missing seamen feared lost after the collision of two oil tankers 40 miles south of Philadelphia. The collision cost the life of one seaman, while 82 others swam ashore after leaping from the flaming vessels or were rescued by the Coast Guard, Army Engineers and private citizens using their own boats.

Washington.—The Veterans Administration reported that the number of veterans receiving training under the Korean GI bill reached 131,056 on 30 April. That was more than double the 60,000 enrolled on 1 January, and represented a jump of nearly 20,000 during April. VA said it expects the number to continue to increase in the months ahead, as it has already had application from nearly 280,000 Korean veterans for training.

New York.—Television set production will reach an all time high in 1953 if it continues at the pace set so far this year. Production through April was estimated at 2,827,821 sets, as compared with 1,647,708 sets in the first four months of last year. The present record of 7,463,800 for a full year was established in 1950, during the first four months of which 2,147,800 were produced.

Washington.—The Army issued a draft call for 23,000 men in August, which was the same number as was asked for July. The new call will bring to 1,492,430 the total number of men drafted or earmarked for induction since selective service was resumed in September, 1950. The draft calls of the last two months are less than half the average monthly draft for the earlier part of this year and the last three months of 1952.

Washington.—Julius and Ethel Rosenberg submitted an "eleventh hour" appeal to the Supreme Court Tuesday to save them from death in the electric chair next Thursday. Last Friday the United States Court of Appeals in New York refused to tamper with the death date.

Washington.—The United States government moved to cut back the trade of foreign ships with Communist China this week by denying them the use of American fuel. A new export control regulation effective 6 July would require special Commerce Department approval before any foreign ship or plane headed for Red China can get fuel from a United States port. American ships are already barred from trading with the Chinese mainland.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Speaking to the annual convention of the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce, President Eisenhower warned that this nation must keep with its allies in the battle against Communist aggression. He voiced a faith in "unit" against the Communist peril which obviously included South Korea in the current Korean truce negotiations. At the same time he defended his military cutback program. His speech was given at the beginning of a five-day trip in five states.

Washington.—The Atomic Energy Commission, the Weather Bureau and other experts said that the Nevada atomic tests had nothing to do with the recent series of disastrous tornadoes. Their flat assertions apparently convinced one congressional skeptic. Representative James E. Van Zandt, after first saying he thought there was a link, finally decided there wasn't. The average number of tornadoes reported yearly to the Weather Bureau is 150 and this year the bureau has received reports of 249 tornadoes.

Washington.—A $30,000,000 cut in veterans' compensation and pension payments has been recommended by a House Appropriations subcommittee, foreshadowing possible curtailment of benefits to veterans with non-service disabilities.

PRESIDIO PROGRESS

Newest service for military families of the Presidio is a Well Baby clinic which will be put into operation next Wednesday (17 June) by the Post Dispensary. Purpose of the clinic is to provide monthly checkups for infants during their first year.

The clinic will be held in Building 562, near the Lombard street entrance, each Wednesday from 1300 to 1600. Parents are not required to make appointments in advance.

These checkups will enable corrective action to be taken immediately for any irregularities which sometimes are revealed during the infant's first year, although not evident at birth. When corrective measures are necessary, the child will be treated either at the clinic or at Letterman Army Hospital.

In addition to the checkups, routine immunization shots for diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus will be given, as well as vaccinations for small pox.

Dispensary specialists will discuss feeding problems with the mothers and will give advice as to adjustment of formulas and new foods. These specialists will be able to give general advice on baby care.

It is not often that an enlisted man gets such a job, but the Presidio has one private whose assignment very frequently requires his giving advice to officers.

The man with this assignment is Pvt. James B. Scott, who has been recently assigned to the Post Judge Advocate Section. He is exceptionally well fitted for the job having received his law degree from the Hastings College of Law in San Francisco following pre-legal studies at the University of California. He also has passed the California State bar examination, qualifying him for the practice of law in this state.

Scott came to the Presidio following the completion of his basic training at Fort Ord, California.

With the approach of the summer dry season, officials of the Post Engineers point out to those living in post quarters that lawns will require additional attention to keep them green, but caution against over-watering. They also warn against increased fire hazards and call upon all post personnel to be more fire conscious, especially in burning of refuse and throwing lighted cigarettes into the dry grass along the streets.

Two new units have arrived at the Presidio in permanent changes of station. The newcomers are the 315th Port Construction Company and the 46th Ordnance Group.

The Presidio is not new to the 315th Port Construction Company, which arrived from Fort Worden, Wash., following the closing of that installation. This unit was on the post for several months last year doing extensive work on soil erosion prevention projects and the improvement of forest stands. Capt. Merle Hall is the commanding officer.

The 46th Ordnance Group arrived from Camp Irwin, California, and is commanded by Colonel Russell B. Fontaine.

30th Engineers' Notes

(In Alaska with the 30th Engineers this year is pilot and free-lance writer 1st Lt. James A. Mulkern. His days are filled with flying with little time for the fourth estate. These are his first on-the-spot notes of Alaska, its people, and the work of the map making battalion.)

KING SALMON, ALASKA—Things have started rolling a bit here. The camp at Wide Bay is now firmly established and the main camp here is well along. I took the lieutenant in charge of Pilot Point camp out for a look at his location and a view of the area today, so I guess it will be in operation or in the process of being established soon.

RECONNAISSANCE FLIGHT—I got a chance to fly up to the Valley of 10,000 Smokes. Sorta over-rated. The place is about 9,996 short of the title as near as I could count. But Mt. Trident (the one erupting) made up for the lack. It is real impressive. I took a few pictures of it. I wonder how much noise it makes? The thing is a big mass of steam, dust, etc., spouting out of the side and top of a peak covering an area of about three or four square miles.

FISH STORY — Well, the ship with the 30th Engineer surveyors aboard was supposed to come in today so I was up at 5:30 to go out looking for it. No dice after 55 minutes. All I saw was a bunch of whales in the river. They come up the river with the tide after smelt. And the smelt are really thick. They say you can catch them by just dropping a bare hook in the water.

ABOUT THE TOWN (Naknek)
—Of course there is a town near here but, for example, their cake a la mode is 65 cents, milk (re-combined) 35 cents a glass, and dinner about $2.50 for practically nothing.

AND THE CIVIC LEADERS—Nearly every town has a school. The teacher is a combination doctor, lawyer, teacher, and priest as well as running the post office and filling in as mayor.

TUESDAY, JUNE 2—Evacuated a small boy to a hospital in Anchorage today who was stricken with polio.

Speedy Education

Through arrangements by the Post Education Center, an accelerated eight-week session of high school classes will begin Monday night, 15 June, at the Food Service School classrooms. Courses will be given in English, mathematics, general science and American History, each class meeting twice a week.

Instruction during the eight weeks will be speeded so that by 11 August, students will be able to earn half the credits required for diplomas by attending all classes.

Additional information regarding the session may be obtained by calling the Education Center, Extension 3189.

Ordnance Officials Say Carbine Is Getting Too Much Affectionate Care

Washington — Ordnance Corps officials here are expressing concern over the soldier's affection for his M-1 or carbine.

Not that they want to discourage the affection, but some of the men are caressing the weapons right into the scrap heap. Lots of rifles and carbines have been tagged "unserviceable" because they have been rubbed down by something other than the recommended materials.

The surface finish, Ordnance Corps officials say, is sometimes completely removed by abrasive cleaners usually used in the kitchen or shop.

These loving ministrations with unauthorized abrasives also spell murder for the M-1 rifle's barrel-bearing where tolerances are measured in almost invisible fractions.

A few deft passes with an abrasive at carbon or rust particles on the bearing's surface and Ordnance's check with the No-Go-No gauge will start the M-1 on the way back to local gunsmiths, out of commission.

In 1919 and 1920, a typhus epidemic in Poland threatened Western Europe. U. S. Army medical officers with large quantities of medical supplies helped bring the disease under control.

"Great Responsibility"

134-Man Class Graduates at Military Police School Here

Since approximately 95 per cent of the 134 graduates of "C" Company, Military Police Training center, Fort Baker, have been assigned to overseas posts, the words of Lt. Colonel Keene Saxon, commanding officer of the 505th MP Bn., at their graduation ceremonies on 6 June were most appropriate.

"When you go out to the four corners of the world to perform your duties," he said, "remember that you are emissaries of good will. If you maintain high standards of conduct and understanding, you will be a much greater asset to your country than all of the leaflets we can print or the radio programs we can air."

Of the 134 graduates, only four will remain with the 505th MP Bn. at the Presidio. A total of 86 will go to FECOM, 36 to Europe, three to Eniwetok, three to the Caribbean and two to Alaska.

Pvt. Kenneth E. Miller was the honor graduate. He fired expert with the .45 Cal. pistol, had a scholastic average of 90.50, a physical training score of 323, and was highly rated in the job he filled as assistant squad leader.

Pvt. Miller entered the service from Taft, California, on 19 January 1953. He came to the MPTC from Fort Lewis, Washington, where he had taken Infantry Basic training.

Other top men in the class who were also introduced by Captain Gerhard R. Benson, CO of "C" Company were, Pvts. James L. Hardy, Arvid E. Nelson, Jr., Albert B. Dooley, Morris L. Ball, Orville C. Dick, Theodore V. Berner, Jr., Otis S. Pierce, Gordon M. Groves and Caul R. Revis, Jr.

Certificates of Achievement were presented the class by Col. Saxon, who was introduced by Captain Raymond E. LeVan, officer-in-charge of the training school.

The Sixth Army band presented a concert for guests prior to the graduation program.

More than 7,000 ships transporting troops and supplies to the Far East were loaded and unloaded at Army-operated ports in Japan during the past two years.

34-Year-Old Corporal Claims to Be Youngest Grandfather in Army

With the 45th Inf. Div. in Korea —A soldier who claims to be the youngest grandfather in the Army has been informed that there is more to come.

Cpl. Edward N. Kleitz, 45th Signal Co., has been told by the Red Cross that his wife is expecting twins and that two of his children are about to make him a grandpa for the fourth and fifth times.

Already a grandfather at the age of 34, the expectant father boasts about his brood which will number nine with the birth of the twins. One of his sons is serving in Europe with the Army.

"Five years ago my wife and I were converted to the Roman Catholic faith," says Kleitz. "The priest told us at the time of how a young couple should be fruitful."

BOOK CORNER

THE WITCH'S THORN by Ruth Park. "The witch's thorn" was little Bethell's father, whose evil influence poisoned all the lives he touched. Strenuous and beautiful writing in a New Zealand setting.

THE WORLD AND THE WEST by Arnold Joseph Toynbee. This philosopher of history reads the future by examining the Graeco-Roman past and concludes that our most vital need today is an ideal of human brotherhood to fill our spiritual vacuum as Christianity filled the void created by the disintegration of Greek and Roman culture.

THE INTRUDER by Helen Marjorie Fowler. When an Australian war veteran visits the family of a dead companion, he unintentionally solves various problems of the Carmichaels and their neighbors, and also rids himself of the murderous obsession that drove him to make the visit.

THE NEW FORCE by Ralph E. Lapp. An atomic scientist for the first time reveals the amazing ten-year course of atomic development in language the layman can understand. He makes vivid the atom's tremendous potential for war and peace.

THE GLORIFICATION OF AL TOOLUM by Robert Aurthur. Pop wins the average American man contest and then the average Toolums assert their individuality by discrediting the sponsor's theories.

filly who is the sister of Good Time, one of the greatest money winners in pacing history.

It all started years ago when Picerno played as a kid around the Roosevelt Raceway, Long Island, N. Y. Right then he decided that someday he wanted to have a pacer. After his return from almost two years in a North Korean prison camp he told his mom that the thing he really wanted most was a trotting horse.

Word of this came to William H. Cane, president of Yonkers Raceway, and J. Alfred Valentine, general manager of Roosevelt Raceway, and they decided to do something about it. Cane looked for a horse he knew could win for Picerno and decided on Your Time. As a joint operation the two race tracks will foot all the bills such as feed, stabling, training, and entrance fees.

The horse already is entered in nine major events this year and could win as much as $128,500 in purses.

It is the expectation of those sponsoring the transaction that Your Time should win enough money to enable Picerno to buy a horse or two and set himself up in business as an owner. (AFPS)

New YWCA-USO Club Open House Sunday

New downtown club rooms of the YWCA-USO at 966 Market street will be officially opened for public inspection Sunday (June 14) from 1500 to 1800, according to Miss Vera Newcum, club director.

Hundreds of servicemen and women from Bay area installations as well as the general public will be guests of the USO for the dedication day ceremonies. They will be able to inspect all of the recently completed facilities which include a lounge, game room, music room, recreation area and kitchen. The day's festivities will close with an orchestra, semi-formal dance in the evening.

June Promotions Top May Quotas For Army

Nationwide promotion quotas are still climbing as the Army released over-all figures for the Month of June which totaled 105,450 for the first four grades. The May quota was 99,500.

Broken down, this month's total includes: E-7, 750; E-6, 4,700; E-5, 30,000; E-4, 70,000.

Sixth Army quotas for June are restricted until the end of the month, but the May distribution included, E-7, 14; E-6, 640; E-5, 1,442; E-4, 2,251, and E-3, 2,114.

Deep Freeze Fodder!

More than 4,000,000,000 pounds of meat and meat-food products destined for military consumption were inspected before purchase by Army Medical Service inspectors during the past year. Of that total, more than 127,000,000 pounds were rejected as failing to meet safe standards for issue and consumption.

87-Pound Dfc Is Answer to Army's Canine Problems

Never can tell about these Army characters. Sometimes they have hidden talents—that you least suspect.

Take the case of Storm Maclan. He had finished basic training and was placed on a shipping list. A normal course of events. He was scheduled to be shipped to the Caribbean as part of an MP platoon.

But then things started happening. Storm got sick. He was taken off the list and his buddies shipped without him. While he was sick he was nursed by Miss Phyllis Wright, which seemed like a pretty good deal.

Miss Wright, in the interests of humanity nursed the 87-pound Storm back to health. But she also took him to a couple of shows. He made such an impression the Army decided that he would make a good recruiter... so, in due course his MOS was changed.

Now if you weren't familiar with the Army you might say: "Gee, all that training gone to waste." But such is not the case.

To date, Storm has recruited 25 German Shepherds into the service.

Storm, full name—Storm of Maclan, is an 87-pound German Shepherd, or what is sometimes referred to as a dfc—dog, first class. (AFPS)

Picnic Saturday
Presidio Quartermaster military and civilian personnel will have a picnic Saturday (13 June) commemorating the 178th anniversary of the Quartermaster corps on 16 June. Millions Saved

A fuel conservation program inaugurated at Army, Navy and Air Force installations throughout the world has resulted in a savings of more than $1,000,000 a month, the Defense Department announces. Implementation of the program has cut the normal oil, coal and gas bills while providing improved heating and air conditioning facilities.

"GET DOWN AND GIVE ME TEN!" might have been in Sea Hawk first baseman Haley's mind as Raider base-runner Thayer appears to be doing push-ups during Monday's League go on the Presidio diamond. However, alert Thayer was in the process of a quick tag-up as Haley signalled to pitcher for the throw to first during third-inning action. Thayer was ruled safe, which didn't help the game much. Raiders lost the slug-fest to the League-leading Coast Guard crew 10-8. (Army Photo by Woods.)

Raiders Give Hard Fight to League's Toughest; Lose by Slim Margins

The Presidio Red Raiders went big-game hunting this week in a two-game series against the Bay Area League's toughest competition — first-place Coast Guard and runner-up team Alameda Naval Air Station. They lost both contests in a couple of hard-fought duels that proved to Raider fans that their team has it in them to match bat for bat with the best in the league.

The losses are recorded with teams who have consistently won, and won heavily, the Coast Guard having dropped one game in 14, with Alameda recording only three losses for the entire season. In both games, the ill-favored Raiders allowed only two-hit margin victories to the visitors.

Opening the series on Monday, the Raiders lost a nine-inning battle with the Coast Guard. The afternoon saw heavy hitting by both teams, the Presidio crew showing surprisingly well against the highly touted Sea Hawk batsmen. It's significant, too, that while the Presidio runs were earned in terms of heavy bats, the Coast Guard scored for the most part on a weak Presidio defense.

Stalwart Bill Herriage took to the mound for the Raiders, allowing 11 hits and fanning 10 opponents. Becker, for the visitors, allowed 13 hits, fanning only six of the Raiders.

Big bats for the Presidians included Gene Jacobs, who connected three for four, scored three times, and registered three RBIs—an imposing record for the afternoon. Falls marked three hits for six and scored three runs. Big Bert Fowler and a re-inspired Thayer both collected two for four.

On Tuesday the Raiders turned against the second-place Alameda crew, suffering a 10th inning 6-4 heart-breaker. The markers for both teams were scarce, with the visitors' main edge coming in the fifth bracket with three runs, and again belatedly in the 10th, with the two-run winning margin.

Presidio's Arkie Stanton hurled an expert game for the Raiders, allowing a meager three earned runs, only one of these occurring before the tenth inning. Stanton knocked seven opponents down via the strike-out.

Alameda, in contrast, sent three different hurlers to the plate in their effort to slow the Raiders. Carrasco opened the game for the Hell Cats. Skillman came in the fifth, blanked the Presidians for two innings, then Wertz entered in the eighth to finish off.

Real action started in the eighth, when the Raiders scored runs off timely Presidio batsmen Thayer, Stanton and Falls. Their efforts tied the game up.

In the top of the ninth, Stanton set three Hell Cat batters down in order, whereupon bottom-inning nerve-racking play began.

First batsman for the Presidio, Sal Fucile, furnished the preliminary out with a high fly to center-field. The next two batters singled. Bert Fowler, fourth to bat, drew an intentional pass to load the bases.

It looked then as if the Raiders could pull the victory. But Lady Luck suddenly quit the Raider dug-out. The succeeding outs came in batting order, and the game progressed into a fatal 10th inning rally for the Hell Cats.

Tennis Tourney Will Be Open To All

Personnel interested in participating in the coming Presidio Tennis Championship tourney are urged to contact Post Special Services, ext. 3968, prior to 1330 hours, 18 June. All persons on active duty for more than 90 days are eligible to participate.

The Championship matches have been scheduled by Post Special Services for 1500 hours, to continue from 19-22 June, on the Infantry Terrace tennis courts, located behind the main athletic field.

The top four entrants, as determined by past court record and ability, will be seeded accordingly on the tournament chart. All other entrants will be drawn and their names placed on the chart at 1330 hours, 18 June at Bldg. 122, Post Special Services, at which time all entrants should be present to receive further information concerning the tournament.

Awards will be presented to the winner and runner-up.

HQ Nicks 45th Boat in Engineer League Opener

In a comedy of errors, 27 in all, Headquarters Company outthit the 45th Boat Company to win the curtain raiser of the 30th Engineers Softball League, Tuesday, by a 19-11 tally.

In the first frame, the 45th drew first blood with one run on one hit and the first error of the game. Headquarters Company bounced back scoring five runs on just two hits but four costly errors.

Going into the second stanza Headquarters was leading 5-1. The 45th pushed one more run across the plate but Headquarters widened the gap with four more runs.

Fighting to get back into the ball game, the 45th added four more in the fifth when Brinkmeyer tagged one with home run written all over it. One man was aboard. Bennett walked and Wilson lined a double to left to score Bennett with Chicca hitting safely to score Wilson.

With the score at 12-7, Headquarters opened up with a barrage of hits in the bottom of the sixth to take a commanding 19-7 lead going into the "do or die" seventh for the 45th.

Salinas led off with an Annie Oakley to put one man on. Brinkmeyer popped out to first. Bennett singled scoring Salinas followed by Thomas and Chicca who both walked loading the bases. Randolph and Vesquiz both connected with clean singles to bring the count to 19-11. Hernandez and Thomas flew out to end the rally.

Fireballer Harold Harris was credited with the victory allowing 7 hits, 11 runs, 7 walks, and struck out five. Brinkmeyer was chalked up with the loss. He gave up 17 hits, 19 runs, walked two, and set down three men via the strikeout route.

The Softball League will continue through the summer. Winning teams will be awarded trophies for their performance. Teams in the league include: 21st Engineers, 99th Engineers, a team from the Survey Companies, Headquarters Company, and 45th Boat Company squad. (By Cpl. Allen Van Soest.)

Anglers Find Lake Crowley Excellent Trout Producer

Few California fishing spots were hotter than Lake Crowley, near Los Angeles, when the early trout angling season opened this year, according to Department of Fish and Game.

Agency biologists, who queried about 39 per cent of all anglers at the Mono County lake on 2 and 3 May, report that almost six tons of trout were taken by an estimated 3969 anglers during the two days.

Rainbow trout accounted for over 94 per cent of the total catch, and more than 75 per cent of these were from the last planting made by the Department. These fish now range from 9 to 17 inches.

All told, there were 4472 rainbow, 202 brown and 48 cutthroat trout landed.

"It was the most successful opening I have ever seen at Crowley Lake," Ralph V. Beck, assistant fisheries biologist, summed up.

Beck said it is "inevitable" that the angling success will taper off, but "at least we are off to a good start this year."

Local Wacs Whip 12th Naval 11-2; Lynch In Form

The Presidio Wac Softball team, strengthened by last week's 11-8 victory over the Fort Mason Wacs, turned against the 12th Naval District Waves this Wednesday and summarily whipped them, 11-2, in a game that showed local fans something of last year's brilliance and suggested future dazzle.

Veteran Wac hurler Neva Lynch served on the mound strictly up to par, giving the opponents only one hit for the entire evening's play, while our gals at bat suffered not one strike-out.

Big bats for the Presidiennes proved to be old-faithfuls like Christian, Guidici and Long, with three doubles, and Nordstrom, with a triple. The home-gals totaled 16 hits off opposition pitcher Dantley.

Heavy-hitters for the visitors included Mason, second-base, with two RBIs, and right-fielder Ruth-erford, who singled twice.

This week's winner brings the game score to three for five for the Wacs. Next Wednesday they go against the Oak Knoll Nurses for their sixth league game of the season.

Sixth Army Golf Plans Form; Post Will Host Visitors

Plans for the coming All-Sixth Army Golf Championship, to be held here at the Presidio Golf Club with the Presidio as host command, have set the post Special Services buzzing with preparatory activity.

A championship committee has been set up with Lt. Col. Eugene Bogard, Special Services officer, as head. The committee will be responsible for the conduct of the tournament, and administrative matters connected with the housing and messing of visiting teams, all of which means a good deal of work for the Special Services boys in the near future.

The preliminary match, to be held 7-10 July, will bring teams together from installations in four states—California, Utah, Nevada and Arizona. A similar prelim will be run concurrently at Fort Lewis, Washington, for teams in the Northern Division.

Entrants in the final championship tourney, to be held here 14-17 July, will be picked from the first five low medalists in the Main Division and two low medalists in the Senior Division play. Winning and runner-up groups from the division preliminaries will vie for the Sixth-Army team crown.

On the local links, victors from last week's Post elimination play, Lt. Joe Turner, Capt. Rollin Kapp and M/Sgt. George De Rosa, were trimming their technique in preparation for their participation as team-members in the tourney, while this year's post champion, Col. Charles Ransom, is prepping with a shot at the Marin County Amateur Championship finals across the bay next Sunday.

IF AT ONCE . . .

In 1919, when Ohio State renewed their traditional rivalry with Wisconsin, not even the referee could stop Chic Hartley, Buckeye halfback. Hartley took a short pass and ran 50 yards for the TD. The ref called it back. On the next play he ran around end to the goal line. The ref called it back, so Hartley changed his tactics. He teed up the pigskin and laid it between the crossbars with a 53-yard field goal.

Army Suffers 3-2 In Varied Duel With Navy

West Point—In a recent field day here, Naval Academy athletes took three out of five contests from the Military Academy, winning in the baseball, lacrosse and tennis meets. The Cadets were victorious in the track and golf duels.

The Midshipmen won the baseball contest 10-2, scored in tennis 6-3 and knocked the Cadets out of the national intercollegiate lacrosse finals with a 10-7 win. Army produced its seventh straight track meet victory with a 73½ to 57½ win over the Sailors. On the links, Army won 4-3.

News that BEN HOGAN had filed his entry for the British Open Golf Tournament at Carnoustie, Scotland, was welcomed with delight last week by R. C. ROE, Secretary of the British Pro Golfers' Association. Roe indicated that Ben would have a large following among the Britons and Scots, who had never had the opportunity to see him in action, and said "that he hoped the weather and course conditions wouldn't be too big a change for "that great little golfer." Ben is currently coupled with pro SAMMY SNEAD as 6-1 choices to win the U.S. Open tourney, although reports following the first qualifying rounds at the Oakmont links Tuesday credited Ben with a fat 77, five over par, which shouldn't jeopardize his chances of qualifying but which isn't the old errorless Hogan golf.

Star of Tuesday's opening was MELVIN "Chick" HARBERT, who scored a five under par 66 for the Pittsburgh Field Club course record. DR. CARY MIDDLECOFF registered second with a three under par 69 on the neighboring Oakmont Club course, followed by HOBART MANLEY, JR., of Savannah, Georgia, with 70 over the same holes.

At Epsom Downs last Saturday, recently knighted Sir GORDON RICHARDS, the greatest jock of them all, rode favored PINZA to victory for his first win in that classic in 33 years riding. QUEEN ELIZABETH II's second-choice AUREOLE placed as runner-up, as touts had prophesied.

Last Sunday saw the San Francisco Bay speckled dramatically with the scores of sails competing in the Pacific Coast Regatta's final heats in an elimination series for the 1953 North American Sailing Championships. GEORGE FLEITZ, Los Angeles Yacht Club sloop jockey, scored a victory in the pre-noon heat and hung on for second behind San Francisco's DENNY JORDAN in a nightcap to cash in on the four-race series with a winner's 13½ points. Jordan was runner-up with 12½. Fleitz's triumph will send him to Larchmont, Long Island, to represent the Coast in the North American test in September.

In world boxing, the "land down-under" saw KEN BRADY, a 20-year-old immigrant from England, win the Australian heavy-weight championship last week when he knocked out champion RED MACK in the eighth round of a scheduled 15-rounder. Brady weighed 195 pounds, Mack 178½. In London Tuesday night, ex-World Middle-weight Champion RANDY TURPIN of England fought CHARLES HUMEZ of France to an uneven 15-round decision victory that even Humez was inclined to agree with. Turpin didn't look so good to the White City Stadium crowd, however, who are used to seeing him KO his opponents. Turpin was expected to sign yesterday to meet the winner of next week's PADDY YOUNG-BOBO OLSON go for the world championship at New York next September. On this side of the Atlantic Chicagoan JOHNNY BRATTON won a unanimous ten-round decision over DANNY (Bang Bang) WOMBER, of New York. Bratton has his eye on a welterweight title fight with champion KID GAVILAN in the fall.

TV fight fans will get a chance to see a good one locally tonight over KRON-TV (7:00 p.m. PST), as world lightweight champion JIMMY CARTER risks the title against dangerous GEORGIE ARAUJO of Providence, R.I., at Madison Square Garden. By mid-week, Araujo was a slight favorite at 6-5 to wrest the crown from 29-year-old Carter.

In the Pennant Parade this week, Seattle continued to lead the Pacific Coast League with 45 wins for 70 games played, and the Hollywood Stars still trailed second with five games behind. In the American League New York led with a 12-game win streak with an over-all 35 for 11 losses. Cleveland held on for second with 29 wins, 16 losers. For the Nats, Milwaukee ran up 32 wins, 15 losses, fighting a close game with the second-place Dodgers, who had only two more losses than the Braves.

Quantico Marines Boast
Grid Stars In Roster

Although the grid season is still many months away, the Quantico Marines have already listed candidates for this year's squad. The lineup is dotted with former pros and college performers and promises to give Quantico another strong eleven. Counted on to see plenty of action this season are: John Petitbon (Notre Dame), John Amberg (NY Giants), Bob Gantt (N. Carolina), John Fry (Baylor), George Kinek (L.A. Rams), Bill Owens (Colgate), and Ken Mac-Afee (N.Y. Giants). Also, Roscoe Hansen (Phila. Eagles), Tom Payne (S.F. 49'ers), John Naylor (Texas), Roy Colquitt (Chicago Cards) and Tom Seeman (Notre Dame).

Rifle Champion

Ft. Benning, Ga.—Cpl. Cecil F. Doss has been crowned champion rifle marksman here.

Doss, a member of the 508th Airborne Regiment Combat Team, scored 584 points out of a possible 630 in winning the championship. He placed fifth in the tournament last year. He had not fired a weapon as heavy as the .30 cal. rifle until he entered the Army.

Bradley Beats Boros;
Servicemen Triumph In National Golf Day Fete

Oakmont, Pa. — Hundreds of servicemen, including Gen. Omar Bradley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff were among the 9,972 golfers who beat U. S. Open champion Julius Boros in the recent National Golf Day contest.

It was the second annual event sponsored by Life Magazine and the Professional Golfers Assn. which saw a total of more than 103,000 golfers attempt to beat Boros' two-under-par score of 70. Each golfer paid an entry fee of $1 which goes to the USO and the National Golfing Association. All entrants were allowed to apply their handicaps to the scores.

Gen. Bradley earned his "I Beat Boros" medal with a score of 81-12-69. The tournaments were conducted at nation-wide courses where thousands competed. Last year approximately 14,000 out of 80,000 competitors were able to top Ben Hogan's score of 72.

If there ever was a worse basketball shellacking, the record books don't show it. Kansas City College scored 234 points in a game in 1923. During the spree, a hotshot on the Rainbow team scored a ringer. Final score: 234-2.

Roberts Readies
For Annual Post
Golf Tournament

Camp Roberts is currently undergoing one phase of late spring fever which has attacked most of the 6th Army Area installations in the last two weeks.

Post Special Services there reports there is much mending of clubs, salvage of balls, and donning of long-brimmed visors, as Roberts linksmen make ready for the running of their 1953 post golf tournament, prep meeting for the 6th Army prelims to be held here shortly.

The 36-hole medal play tourney is scheduled for the Morro Bay Golf Course on Wednesday and Friday, 10 and 12 June.

Top-flighters from the Roberts area include Harold Freer, three handicap player from Sacramento and member of last year's championship 6th Army team, and long-hitting Dick Yost, nationally known amateur and collegiate player from Portland, Oregon, who reached the quarter finals of the United States National Amateur last summer.

It is expected that many posts within the Army Area are going into the same preparations as the starting date approaches for the 6th Army prelims, to be held concurrently at Fort Lewis, Washington, and here at the Presidio, 7-10 July.

Fort Dix Annexes
First Army Track
And Field Titles

Fort Dix thinclads ran away with all but one of the 18 events of the two-day First Army Track and Field Championships last week, scoring a total of 85 points against second-place Fort Monmouth's 62.

Fort Devens, Massachusetts, brought in 39 points for third, Camp Kilmer, New Jersey, 8, and the 802 Regiment of West Point, N. Y., 4.

Pvt. Bill Schimmel, former University of Minnesota star, won two events for Fort Monmouth, but his efforts were not enough to stem the Dix sweep.

Schimmel captured the 880-yard run in 2:01.5 and the 440-yard hurdles in 1:01.4.

Pvt. Richard Mittleman of Fort Dix and Great Neck, L. I., scored a double victory with an 11:41.1 performance in the two-mile steeplechase and a victory in the three-mile run.

The individual star was Cliff Blair of Fort Devens, formerly of Boston University. Blair won the discus, shot-put and hammer throw.

An 18-member team will be picked from First Army contestants, regardless of team affiliation, to participate in the All-Army meet at Fort Jackson, South Carolina, 12-13 June.

International Military Sports Reps Set Meet

The executive committee of the International Military Sports Association met in Paris last week to draw up the agenda for the congress of the association to be held in Stockholm next August.

Delegates from France, Italy, Sweden and Belgium studied a project to organize a navy pentathlon event. They decided to hold an experimental event in Italy this year.

Member countries are Argentina, Belgium, Denmark, Egypt, Spain, United States, France, Greece, Iraq, Libya, Luxembourg, Pakistan, The Netherlands, Sweden, Syria and Turkey.

LEVIS AND SWEATSHIRTS don't make very pretty uniforms for the baseballers of the intra-mural softball circuit, but the action is none the less tough because of it. Hq. 6th Army's Pepper slides in too late to be safe from a sneak pass to Harbor Defense's third-baseman McCormick during action in last Friday's game between the two teams. Harbor Defense stole the day 5-4. (Army Photo by Galik.)

Softball Action!

9th AAA Ominous; Toppers
And Officers Still Sizzle

Titan action on the local intra-mural softball circuit brought a total of three teams together in the last week and saw more reshuffling of the league standing.

Last Friday a cellar-dwelling Harbor Defense crew outwitted and outbatted the low-rung HQ 6th Army team 5-4 for a fifth place tie.

The afternoon's action saw Harbor's all-around boy, Ebert, take the laurels for hurling a sizzler of a fast ball all afternoon and for some game-winning batting. Ebert rang up a total of eight strike-outs, his batting average running two for three, with three RBI's. Team-mate Gamble joined to lead the team's batting with three singles for three times up.

HQ Company committed only two errors, one of which allowed the steal home for the opponent's winning run. Harbor Defense registered three errors.

This Wednesday saw some gridiron scores run up by the sturdy Hill Toppers of Fort Scott fame, and the toughening 9th AAA men.

Luckily for the 9th, pitcher Rhoan had returned to the mound in time to snuff out a Det A Guard crew, giving only 4 hits for a day's total. Heavy stickers for the 9th succeeded in running up a total of two grand-slam homers, credited to Shepherd and Srisby, with big-bats Hunter and Grissin running up three for three and three for four. The afternoon proved to be a study in batting technique, with the 9th's artillery registering four runs in the first inning, four in the second, three in the third, four in the fifth, and five in the sixth. The final score read 20-5. Astronomical figures, what?

An exasperated Det A team shuffled pitchers twice, suffering with Uli up to the fourth bracket, and Bleubaugh thereafter.

Concurrent action at Fort Scott found the Hill Toppers walloping the HQ 6th Army team in like manner, 17-3. Benson pitched for the home team, allowing only eight hits to the visitors. The Toppers did no outstanding hitting. Their margin was earned in the main from singles and canny base-running.

Wednesday's defeat for the 6th Army team makes them low men on the totem and shuffles Harbor Defense to fifth position on the league scale. The Hill Toppers' victory gives the Fort Scott crew a temporary edge in game totals over the Officers' Club—until the Officers gain their seventh victory this afternoon with an automatic 7-0 forfeit win over a non-existent Command AAA team.

Again this afternoon victory-girded Harbor Defense plus sizzle-ball hurler Ebert ply their talents against a slowing 102 MRU. If they win this one, the team ought to be a hard morsel for the Officers' Club to swallow by the time their meeting comes up on the 19th of this month.

League standing to date:

Team	Won	Lost
Fort Scott Hill Toppers	7	1
Officers' Club	6	1
HQ Btry. 9th AAA	6	2
Det A Guard	4	4
102 MRU	3	3
Harbor Defense	2	5
Hq. Co. 6th Army	2	6

Photos Speak!

Colonel Airel B. Cooper, Signal Officer, Headquarters Sixth Army, and Colonel Lloyd C. Parsons (Ret.) President of the Armed Forces Communications association, were among the prominent members of the communications and photography industry in the local area, who attended a recent meeting at the Hunters Point Naval Shipyard, San Francisco.

The increasing importance of photography in electronic and communications operations was graphically illustrated in a number of ways.

The Armed Forces Communications association, which has established chapters throughout the United States, joined with the Northern California Photographers association for the event.

Non-profit, the Armed Forces Communication association was founded in May 1946, with an eye to improving military Signal communications, radar and photography in our national military establishments. It is also a media by which industrial concerns are kept informed and interested in communications developments.

Anyone, whether military or civilian personnel, who is interested in communications, electronics or photography, may become a member.

West Point Twins

West Point, N. Y.—The first twins to be graduated in the same class from the U. S. Military Academy since 1939 received their degrees and commissions June 2 with the 1953 class.

Rob Roy and Thomas McGregor, sons of Army Col. and Mrs. Thomas McGregor, chose the Signal Corps and Infantry, respectively.

Both were born in Des Moines, Iowa, in 1931 but attended schools in Japan, Washington, D. C., and Carmel, Calif. They were active in extra-curricular activities at the Academy from the time of their appointment in 1949.

6A Librarian is Chosen to Judge National Contest

Wendell B. Coon, Sixth Army librarian, has been named as one of the judges for the John Cotton Dana Publicity Awards contest in Los Angeles on 17-18 June 1953.

The contest is held annually to select the most effective library publicity produced during the year. It is sponsored jointly by the American Library association and the Wilson Library bulletin, published by the H. W. Wilson company which specializes in library materials.

Winners of the recent Army-wide Library Publicity contest which included entries from all over the world will be among the entries in the 1953 Dana competition.

Any public library, university, school, or special library may enter the contest by submitting a scrapbook carrying representative examples of the library publicity program developed during the year. Winners are chosen on the basis of effectiveness of the publicity rather than of the scrapbook.

All entries will be on display during the annual convention of the American Library association in Los Angeles 21 through 27 June. Mr. Coon will remain in Los Angeles for the convention which regularly draws several thousand librarians, representing all types of libraries, including service librarians from many parts of the world.

A number of librarians from Sixth Army post libraries will also attend the convention, particularly the meetings of the Armed Forces librarians' section on 25 June.

Mr. Coon has been connected with the Army Library service for the past 11 years, and has been Command librarian for the Sixth Army area since 1946. He took his undergraduate training at Nebraska State Teachers college, graduate study at the University of Chicago, and his degree in Library Science at the University of Southern California. Prior to his Army library work, he was on the staff of the Los Angeles County Public library, and was in the book business for several years.

Inspection Team Gives 7th Armored Division Superior Overall Rating

Camp Roberts, Calif. — Major General Hobart R. Gay, commanding general III Corps and representatives from Sixth Army and Office of the Chief of Army Field Forces Friday awarded the 7th Armored Division a superior overall rating of 92.13 per cent, the highest ever given the unit.

These results were announced at a formal critique summarizing the three-day semi-annual inspection which began 2 June. The score given by the inspecting team was higher than the rating of 90.76 achieved last December.

Colonel Henry G. Fisher was senior representative from the Office of the Chief of Army Field Forces and Major G. H. Bell was training representative from Sixth Army Headquarters, Presidio of San Francisco. Heading inspection teams for III Corps were Colonel N. E. Borden, G-1, Lieutenant Colonel S. E. Carlson, G-4, Lieutenant Colonel A. A. Hillebrand, G-3, and Lieutenant Colonel M. M. Jameson, G-2.

Army training facilities were expanded with addition of 36 new armories and the conversion of six buildings into armories during the past year.

Combat Disease Carriers!

Soldier Medics Seek Deadly Foe In Canal Zone Jungles

Fort Amador, C. Z.—Army medical technicians down Panama way have taken to the trees in their war against the creeping advance of jungle fever.

To trap disease-bearing mosquitoes, preventive medicine technicians are climbing the gigantic hardwoods of the Central American forests in search of their quarry.

Atop the dense tropical foliage, the tree-climbing trappers offer their arms and legs as bait to the insect residents of the forest's higher reaches.

As soon as the invited guests alight on their human feeding ground, they are ushered into specially designed glass tubes and hustled off to a laboratory on the Pacific side of the Isthmus. Here they are examined, identified and classified by laboratory experts constantly striving for more effective control measures.

The "monkey business" exploits of the tree climbers are part of the Army Medical Service's effort to protect the Canal Zone from the creeping advance of jungle yellow fever from Colombia northward.

Since 1948, the disease steadily has moved up the Isthmus of Panama into Costa Rica and Nicaragua at the rate of about 15 miles a month. This seemingly relentless advance has struck terror into the hearts of native peoples inhabiting jungle areas where the disease is most prevalent.

Jungle yellow fever—a comparatively rare disease—is carried by mosquitoes that feed on monkeys and other primates living in the tropical rain forest.

Unlike the urban yellow fever which harassed builders of the Panama Canal early in this century, jungle yellow fever rarely invades cities and towns.

United States military personnel and civilians in the Canal Zone and adjacent areas are protected by vaccination and the intensive preventive medicine program waged by the Army Medical Service on mosquito-breeding places.

The fight to keep the Isthmus habitable for humans also is waged against mosquito carriers of malaria and other diseases.

As early as 1740, three Continental Marine regiments were recruited in America and assembled in New York under the command of General Alexander Spotswood of Virginia. They performed valiant service in the West Indies for the Royal British Navy.

State Elections

(This is the second in a series of articles containing the latest voting information.)

KENTUCKY

Primary election will be held Aug. 1, 1953. All members of the House of Representatives of the state, one-half of the members of the State Senate, and various state, county, and municipal officers will be nominated. The general election will be held on Nov. 3, 1953, to fill these offices. Obtain ballots by mailing Federal Post Card Applications to the County Court Clerk in the county of Kentucky residence.

VIRGINIA

Primary election will be July 14, 1953, to nominate candidates for Governor, Lt. Governor, Attorney General, and members of the House of Representatives of the state. A run-off primary to make nominations in those cases where nominations were not made in the primary will be held August 18, 1953. The general election to fill the above offices will be Nov. 3, 1953. Obtain ballots by Federal Post Card Application to Registrar of Voting Precinct, place of residence as early as 60 days prior to election for voters in the U. S. and as early as 90 days prior to election for voters outside the continental limits of the U. S.

SILVER STAR

On Dec. 1, 1952 Sgt. Maynard A. Cronin was serving as an Army medical aidman with the 224th Inf. Regt., 40th Inf. Div., near Satae-Ri, Korea. A patrol and a medic from his unit had run into heavy enemy opposition. Learning that the medic and other members of the patrol had been wounded, Sgt. Cronin volunteered to go to their aid. Getting "to their aid" meant exposing himself to enemy fire and crossing an unmarked mine field. "With great courage and utter disregard for his personal safety," Sgt. Cronin reached the wounded and successfully administered first aid to prepare them for evacuation. While kneeling over one of the wounded Sgt. Cronin was hit by enemy machine-gun fire and mortally wounded. For gallantry in action "far above and beyond the call of duty" Sgt. Cronin was posthumously awarded the Silver Star.

Economy Program!

Camps Roberts, San Luis Obispo To Be Closed by 1 January

As part of an economy program involving seven military bases in the Nation, Camp Roberts and Camp San Luis Obispo will be closed by next 1 January, the Department of the Army announced Friday.

Camp Roberts will accept no new trainees after 30 June, and its personnel will gradually be transferred to other units. Its functions will be merged with other training outfits.

Functions of Camp San Luis Obispo will be taken over by the Signal Corps School at Camp Gordon, Georgia.

The Army said it had no intention of abandoning the two camps. Small housekeeping units will be maintained to keep them in readiness for possible future use.

Also scheduled for closing by 1 January 1954 is Camp Breckenridge, Ky., while Camp Rucker, Ala., and Camp Atterbury, Ind., are to be shut down by 30 June 1954. All of these will be placed on a stand-by basis for possible future need.

Fort Crockett, at Galveston, Texas, and Fort Adams, at Newport, R. I., will be declared surplus by 1 July and will not be used again. They will be turned over to the General Services Administration for possible sale.

The deactivations are estimated by the Army to save $11,750,000 the first year, and $30,000,000 in succeeding years.

The Army said that all the camps to be inactivated were urgently needed after the start of the Korean conflict to handle expanding forces. But with a 100,000-man cut and lower draft calls, there is a decreased need for the troop training center, the Army explained.

Camp Roberts, covering 44,000 acres on the Salinas river north of Paso Robles, is now headquarters for the Seventh Armored Training Division with about 22,000 soldiers and civilians on duty.

The camp, named after Cpl. Harold W. Roberts of San Francisco, a Congressional Medal of Honor winner in World War I, was opened in 1940 as a temporary installation. It was closed after training a number of divisions during World War II and was reactivated in September, 1950.

Camp San Luis Obispo includes approximately 15,000 acres and is now used for a Replacement Training Center and a Signal Corps School with personnel totaling about 7,000. It was opened in 1927 as a National Guard installation and at the start of World War II was the training center for California's 40th division. Several other fighting divisions were trained there during the war, following which the camp was closed from 1946 to 1951, except for National Guard training.

Like Fathers

Sons of the two top ranking officers of the San Francisco Port of Embarkation, both of whom were graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1924, were among the members of the 1953 graduating class at West Point last week.

Receiving diplomas and commissions as second lieutenants were Robert E. Glasgow, son of Brigadier General Ralph I. Glasgow, port commander, and Derek Van Wyk, son of Colonel Harry Van Wyk, deputy port commander and chief of staff.

Sixth Army to Get Limited Amounts Of Gamma Globulin

A very limited stock of gamma globulin will be available at Sixth Army area installations this summer for immunization of military dependents exposed to poliomyelitis.

With only one million doses of the costly serum on hand in the entire nation, and with a Sixth Army allotment of approximately 1300 doses, it would be impossible to accomplish any mass immunization of troops. Col. Reuel E. Hewitt, Medical Corps, Sixth Army Surgeon, said. Moreover, each dose provides immunization for only five weeks.

In order to make the most effective use of the small supply, therefore, the vaccine will be administered only to members of a household in which a case of polio has been diagnosed. And even within the household only persons less than 31 years of age or pregnant women of any age will be immunized.

Colonel Hewitt emphasized that polio has not been a serious problem in the Sixth Army area, as evidenced by a record of only 14 cases among military personnel and their dependents last year in the entire area. Moreover, only a very small percentage of polio cases are crippling.

National distribution of "Poliomyelitis Immune Globulin (Human)"—to use medical terminology—is under the direction of the Office of Defense Mobilization, which has directed that the policies and rules adopted by the state and local health departments and the local medical society in use of the globulin be observed by military installations.

It is estimated that the serum will be ready for distribution in the Sixth Army area between 1 July and 15 July.

Army Announces Price Reductions On EM Clothing

Washington—The Department of Army, through revision of regulation SR 32-20-2, effective July 1, 1953, has released the new prices on enlisted men's clothing.

The revised regulation, which places the majority of prices at a somewhat lower level, supersedes the same numbered regulation dated June 10, 1952.

Some of the items affected by the price changes are:

Pants: OD—from $10.80 to $10.30. Cotton, khaki—from $3.60 to $3.00. Utility, cotton—from $2.60 to $2.40.

Shirts: Cotton, khaki—from $3.40 to $3.00.

Jackets: OD, woolen—from $19.20 to $19.00. Utility, cotton—from $2.60 to $2.40.

Several items of WAC clothing have also been affected by the price changes, including the woolen serge uniform suit which is reduced from $26.40 to $22.00.

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

Friday, 19 June, 1953

PRESIDIO DEBUT of the Skysweeper, the new 75-mm anti-aircraft gun, was held at Fort Scott Wednesday by Sixth Army and Post Ordnance Sections with members of the 459th AAA Gun Battalion manning the weapon. Electronically guided, the artillery weapon searches out hostile aircraft in all weather and can destroy them at altitudes up to four miles.

Army's Newest Anti-Aircraft Weapon Shown at Fort Scott Demonstration

Operation of the Skysweeper, the new 75-mm anti-aircraft gun developed by Army Ordnance, was shown officers of Headquarters Sixth Army and the Presidio during an orientation demonstration at Fort Scott Wednesday.

Western Antiaircraft Command battalions now equipped with 40-mm automatic weapons will be re-equipped with the Skysweepers and the operation crew at the demonstration were members of the 459th AAA Battalion from Fort Cronkhite.

Prior to the operation of the weapon, a short summary of the gun was given by Colonel C. D. Hudson, Sixth Army Ordnance Officer. Facts brought out by Colonel Hudson included the following:

The Skysweeper is the Army's largest automatic anti-aircraft artillery weapon. It fires a proximity fused shell weighing twelve and a half pounds which is automatically fed and rammed into the gun from two 11-round magazines, at a rate of 45-55 rounds per minute.

It is also the first fully integrated gun and fire control system consisting of gun, radar and computer on one carriage. Primarily designed for use as an anti-aircraft weapon, it may also be used against ground targets, such as tanks.

The radar of the Skysweeper is capable of sweeping the entire sky once every 40 seconds and of spotting and tracking enemy aircraft at a distance of 15 miles. When the plane approaches to within four miles of the weapon, it will aim and fire with a high degree of accuracy even if the target is invisible due to fog or other conditions.

Information picked up by the radar equipment is fed to an electro-mechanical computer which automatically plots range, speed, course, and the position of interception of a shell and the target. When planes are sighted, rotation of the radar sweep is stopped and the desired target is pin-pointed.

The entire unit is fully mobile, being towed by a cargo tractor. It can be emplaced and operating within five minutes on either rough or level terrain. After emplacement, the radar operator pushes a button which causes the radar scanner to rotate, scanning the skies in a continuous circular sweeping movement.

When planes appear on the picture tube, the operator depresses a foot pedal which stops rotation of the radar scanner. After making minute adjustments in range, azimuth and elevation, he releases the foot pedal for automatic operation. The radar then automatically continues to track the target and feeds target data to the computer, which plots future position of the target and aims the gun at this future position. Either the computer operator or the radar operator squeezes the trigger and the gun continues to fire automatically.

The Ordnance Corps provides to each on-site location where a battalion of Skysweepers are located an Ordnance Integrated Fire Control Team of one warrant officer and seven enlisted men for the sole purpose of maintaining the complex electronic portion of the weapon. This team is available on an on-call basis 24 hours per day and seven days a week in order to meet support requirements.

The demonstration was conducted by Mr. Eugene Schleuter, Post Ordnance Armament Maintenance Supervisor. Others assisting in arranging the demonstration were Capt. Herman O. Freeman, Sixth Army Ordnance Section, and Mr. Ross Markley, Post Ordnance Section.

New Positions

Two officers holding key positions here assumed each other's duties when their re-assignment orders became effective Monday.

Colonel Sanford J. Goodman, formerly assistant chief of staff, G-1, Headquarters Sixth Army, became the new deputy post commander of the Presidio of San Francisco, while Colonel Duncan S. Somerville, who was deputy post commander, took over the G-1 position at headquarters.

Colonel Goodman has been on the Presidio since 1949 and was executive officer of the G-4 section prior to his assignment to G-1. Colonel Somerville came to the Presidio last March shortly after his return from Korea where he served as assistant IX Corps artillery officer, chief of staff for the U.N. Truce delegation and artillery officer for the 8th Army.

Weekly World News AT A GLANCE

SOUTH KOREAN President Syngman Rhee, in defiance of the United Nations, ordered the release of approximately 25,000 anti-Communist prisoners of war in four U.N. prison compounds Thursday. At Tokyo, the United Nations command said: "Statements attributed to high officials of the Republic of Korea now make it clear that the action had been secretly planned and carefully co-ordinated at top levels in Korean Government and that outside assistance was furnished the POW's in their mass breakout. Republic of Korea army security units assigned as guards at the POW camps did little to prevent the breakouts and there is every evidence of actual collusion between the ROK guards and the prisoners." American guards tried to prevent the breakout and the U.N. Prisoner Command ordered several infantry units—presumably American—into a search for the POW's. Nearly 1,000 prisoners were recovered by midafternoon. Those who escaped are among 46,380 North Koreans and Chinese captured personnel who have said they don't want to go home in the event of an armistice. There was no report of trouble from the camps holding some 75,000 Communist prisoners of war who have said they desire to return home.

... ON THE FIGHTING FRONT, the Communists hurled 3,000 troops against Outpost Harry on the Korean central front Thursday but Allied soldiers forced them back after hours of bloody hand-to-hand combat. The assault broke off an explosive, four-day offensive. The attack discouraged hopes that the Reds intended to bring an end to heavy fighting—timed with reports that truce negotiators at Panmunjom have agreed on a cease-fire line. ... IN EAST BERLIN, a Russian armored division smashed bloody anti-Communist strike riots Wednesday, killing and wounding many East Germans. They then poured in reinforcements overnight to clamp down with an iron rule and seal off their occupation sector. The unorganized German outburst came after a Communist-run parade of 5,000 workers gently demanded lighter working schedules already promised by the government. Unarmed Germans numbering at least 50,000 battled all day Wednesday with a Soviet armored regiment and 10,000 Communist police before the armored division reached the eastern sector from Russian zonal bases and hammered the demonstrators into submission. The general strike spread to other Soviet zone cities. State railway workers walked out in sympathy with East Berliners and crippled zonal communications. ... FROM CZECHOSLOVAKIA, reports have come out of riots and other demonstrations by workers in protest to a currency change. Under a revaluation, fifty old Czech crowns were exchanged for only one new crown. Czech President Atonin Zapotky has conceded that "not all our problems have been solved with the currency reforms."

... YUGOSLAVIA'S independent Communist government has agreed to exchange ambassadors with Russia once again. The foreign office of President Tito announced it had approved a request for the exchange, made by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov in an apparent bid to improve relations which were broken when the Kremlin threw Yugoslavia out of the Cominform in 1948. ... IN ENGLAND, the Churchill Government promised to stand by the United Nations ban on shipment of strategic goods to Red China and denied that British ships transported Communist troops in Korean waters. Britain will enforce the embargo on strategic goods so long as the U.N. resolution of 18 May, 1951, is in force, the House of Commons was told. ... AT BUDAPEST, HUNGARY, one of Russia's top propagandists declared that the Soviet Union wants to reach agreement "even with those who cordially and long-standingly dislike us." The obvious reference to the United States was made in a conciliatory speech at a meeting of the Communist-dominated world peace council. Co-existence, negotiation and agreement with the West appear to be the theme of the week-long meeting to which western correspondents were invited. ... RUSSIA'S MOSCOW Radio said the Kremlin has sternly rebuked the top Red leaders in Lithuania and ordered drastic shakeups in the party and government in that captive Baltic state. The broadcast said the central committee of the Lithuanian Communist Party has decided to correct "serious shortcomings in the political work and control of the state and cultural upbuilding in the Lithuanian SSR." The three Baltic states—Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia—were absorbed into the Soviet Union in 1940 and little has been heard from them except through exiled Balts who campaign in the western world for a return of their homeland's independence. ... THE YOUTHFUL RULER OF CAMBODIA, King Norodom Sihanouk, fled to Thailand last weekend and announced he intended to remain in exile until France agrees to give Cambodia full independence within the French Union. Cambodia is a member of the French Union along with Indo-China, Viet Nam and Laos. His flight is reported to have created a crisis in his kingdom which may force France to depose him or set up a regency under his mother. ... AT A SOUTHERN FORMOSA air base, the first American jet warplanes for Nationalist China arrived for formal delivery Tuesday. Although the number of planes, F-84 Thunderjets, was not disclosed, an officer of the United States military assistance advisory group said these are only a forerunner of "many jet aircraft programmed for the Chinese Air Force." Nationalist Air Force officers have said they need 150 jet interceptors for reasonable protection. ... IN JAPAN, some 6,000 members of Japan's army-like National Safety Corps went on three days of maneuvers with tanks and warplanes. An attacking force of 5,000 men will work into position and assault a 1,000-man defending force in the largest of such exercises since the corps was organized in 1948. Japan's constitution prohibits maintaining military forces. ... SOUTH KOREA hastened to bring its combat strength up from sixteen to twenty divisions in order to evade any restrictions imposed by a truce. The defense ministry was acting on the basis that a cease-fire agreement would prohibit any building up beyond that in existence at the time of the truce. Many youths between 19 and 27 are receiving calls to arms. The draft notice included policemen, railroad workers, school teachers and students.

EM OK As P.O. Clerks

President Eisenhower signed a bill last week authorizing the Post Office Department to designate enlisted personnel of the armed forces as postal clerks.

Soldiers Get Fill

More than 738,000 dental patients have been treated by Army dentists serving in the Far East. As a result of these check-ups the dentists filled more than 431,000 teeth.

Army Chief of Staff; Adm. Robert B. Carney, Chief of Naval Operations; Adm. Arthur F. Radford, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff.

Success Story!

Immigrant to Defense Post: Life of Army Material Chief

By PFC. DICK SNOW, USA

(AFPS Washington Correspondent)

"If Americans could be made to realize how truly wonderful our country is, how much it offers to the most humble citizen, they would get much more excited about any threat to the liberties which they too often take for granted."

John Slezak, Assistant Secretary of the Army (Material), would be the first to deny it, but there are few who fit "the most humble citizen" label as well as the man who uttered the above words.

Mr. Slezak was born in Stara Tura, Czechoslovakia, April 18, 1896. His parents, Simon and Ann Trokan Slezak, were poor. At 12, Slezak was learning the tool and die-maker's trade in the famous Skoda Munitions Works.

Through the next few years, he traveled to Belgium, Austria, Hungary, and Germany, working a short time at the same trade in each country.

"That was the pattern in those days, I guess," Mr. Slezak reminisces. "That was the way to learn. There were few books of instruction. You learned by doing."

"I remember joining a metal workers' union just because it had a library—not a very big one—but a place where I could go to get and read books."

"One book proved to be an inspiration to me," Mr. Slezak says. "That book was Woodrow Wilson's 'New Freedom,' and it was written before Mr. Wilson became President."

Wilson's book cued the young Czech to look to America for his future. With less than $5 in his pockets in 1916 John Slezak made his way to the U.S. and his first job in a tool and die works in Racine, Wis. He applied for citizenship the same year.

When WWI broke out, Mr. Slezak became Pvt. Slezak in the Army. He was assigned to the Rock Island Arsenal, Ill., in charge of a small arms tooling division.

After the war Mr. Slezak wanted a college education "on which to base my future life" and he selected the University of Wisconsin for its course in mechanical engineering.

Lack of a high school education didn't stop him from pleading his case to the UW registrar. He was finally accepted and astounded everyone by coming through with flying colors.

From that point, his rise was rapid. He held various jobs in the tool-making industry and also found time to serve various tours with the Army. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Ordnance Corps Reserve in 1924. He became nationally known for his achievements in the field of employee relations.

Mr. Slezak is the first immigrant—now naturalized—to hold an office on the Dept. of Army level since James McHenry, an Irish immigrant, was the Secretary of War under President George Washington in 1796.

"Each day is a new thrill for me," Mr. Slezak says. "I'm still living a dream that I had years and years ago."

Army Tightens ROTC Program; Medical and Dental Commissions Cut

The Army plans to tighten some phases of Reserve Officers Training Corps program at both the senior college and junior college levels, it was announced in Washington recently.

Starting with the 1953-1954 academic year, the Army said, all senior ROTC units will be required to maintain a minimum annual enrollment of 100 students in the first year of instruction in military science and tactics. They will be required to turn out at least 25 commissioned officers each year.

The major effect of the new plan hits junior colleges and military institutions, since it was announced that new units would be set up only at institutions granting baccalaureate and higher degrees, and that at the nine military junior colleges and 33 military institutes students will not be permitted to enter the program until they have reached the college freshman equivalent.

In another adjustment of the program the Army plans to eliminate in the next academic year 48 medical and 18 dental ROTC units. It was said that the units did not produce enough officers and the Selective Service and the direct appointment process covered this field.

Former V Corps CG to Command U. S. Field Forces

Lt. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, 57, Fourth Army Commanding General at Ft. Sam Houston, Texas, will be named to succeed Gen. John R. Hodge as Chief, Army Field Forces, Ft. Monroe, Va. General Dahlquist will be Acting Field Forces Commanding General.

General Hodge retires on 30 June.

General Dahlquist served under General Eisenhower in Europe during World War II as CG of the crack 36th Inf. Division, which listed among its notable accomplishments the assault on Southern France, destruction of the bulk of the 19th German Army, First successful attack in military history of a treacherous area of the Vosges Mountains, and capture, among others, of Admiral Horthy, Regent of Hungary, Field Marshal Von Runstedt, and Reich Marshal Goering.

General Dahlquist served as V Corps Commander in Germany under General Matthew B. Ridgway, incoming Chief of Staff, before returning to the U. S. this spring.

2 French Officers Observe Training At Camp Irwin

Camp Irwin—Two French Army officers visited The Armored Combat Training Center last week to observe the methods of training used at this 1,000 square mile advanced tank training center. Lt. Col. Pierre Evrard and Major Bertrand de Nadaillac arrived late Thursday night and spent the following day viewing the various ranges and training areas and watching a tank-infantry team training problem conducted by the 325th Tank Battalion, Camp Irwin's resident instructor unit.

Lt. Col. Evrard is the Assistant Military Attache at the French Embassy in Washington, D.C., while Major de Nadaillac is Chief of the U. S. Army Section, G-2 (Intelligence), French Combined Staff. He is on a tour of various United States Army Installations seeking familiarization with American training methods.

The officers were accompanied by Madame Evrard, Lt. Col. Evrard's wife. They were guests at a luncheon Thursday noon given by Brig. Gen. John P. Willey, Commanding General of the Armored Combat Training Center, and his staff. Shortly after watching the tank-infantry training problem at Camp Irwin's Rock Pile training area, the visiting dignitaries left for Fort Bliss, Texas, the next stop on their cross-country junket of U. S. Army posts.

The trip is part of the Army's effort to familiarize NATO nations with its training doctrines and methods, eventually helping to weld the NATO European nations and the American Army into a similarly trained, hard-hitting force, capable of stemming any aggressive move into the Western European stronghold.

Cadet Is Honored

Colonel Norman C. Caum, Chief of the Washington Military District, presented ROTC Cadet Major James D. Riley the Association of the United States Medal in a recent awards ceremony at the University of Washington campus. The medal is awarded to the distinguished military student of the Senior ROTC class who has demonstrated all of the officer-like qualities of an infantry commander. Highlighting the program were exhibitions by Army and Air Force ROTC drill teams, color ceremonies by the three services and a Brigade review.

SON OF SFC RENEE SHEARING, Presidio WAC detachment, is shown as he says his first military Mass at the Chapel of Our Lady, Presidio of San Francisco, on 14 June. Rev. George Twigg-Porter, SJ, was ordained at St. Mary's Cathedral on 12 June. His mother, SFC Shearing, has been a member of the WAC for the past 10 years. She has served most recently in Japan and is now a member of the staff of the Presidio Service club. (Army photo by Brink.)

Army T.I.C. Topic

Sixth Army Discussion Topic, "The Military Police Corps and the Sixth Army Soldier," will be the basis for the Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units next week. Detailed information regarding the Armed Service Police Detachment and the duties and responsibilities of the Military Police Corps will be given, especially as they refer to the soldier stationed in the Sixth Army area.

The Armed Services Police Detachment was put into effect in the Sixth Army area on 15 March 1951, following the initial success of the plan when it was introduced in Honolulu in 1949. The Military District of Washington is the only other continental Army area in which the plan is in operation.

In San Francisco, the headquarters of the Armed Services Police Detachment is on Treasure Island, a Naval Base, but the commanding officer of the detachment is operationally responsible to the commanding general, Sixth Army. Each service supplies the ASPD with personnel and equipment and patrols are made up of representatives from any two services.

Red Cross Appeals for Special Assistance For Disaster Victims

There's one every 30 hours. And the response to the call is immediate.

Every 30 hours, somewhere, there is a disaster. Maybe major. Maybe minor.

And the American Red Cross responds in one, two, or 100 different ways, depending on the calamity.

Right now the work of the Red Cross has become exceeding.

Tornado and flood disasters this year have reached unimagined proportions as a glance at the newspapers will confirm.

Money is needed. The disaster fund is sinking.

An extraordinary appeal, not a campaign, but an appeal is being made to the lucky who are not running from floodwaters and shattered homes and buildings, to assist those who are.

Recent tornados in Massachusetts and Michigan are appalling. The Red Cross has not nearly finished its job in Waco, Texas. You read about Waco last month. And those floods in Montana, Louisiana and Georgia. Of course you want to help.

Here on the Presidio, contributions may be made at the office of Raymond Gilbreth, Red Cross Field director, Building 97. The extension is 4141.

Civilian News Notes

By EARL F. REINKE

The Presidio is a pretty safe place to work and serious accidents occurring on the job are rare. There are times, however, when employees are injured or require medical care as a result of a bona fide occupational disease. In such cases, Federal employees are entitled to necessary medical care and to compensation for loss of wages. This article outlines these benefits and the procedures in effect here at the Presidio in order for employees to claim them.

Benefits accruing to employees injured in line of duty or who have incurred a bona fide occupational disease are as follows:

Medical Care—Included are medical, surgical, and hospital services and supplies; also transportation if travel is necessary to secure them. Should employee's condition require a constant attendant, $75 a month is allowed for this care.

Money Benefits—Compensation for loss of wages is payable after a 3-day waiting period. No waiting period is required where permanent injury is sustained or where disability lasts longer than 21 days beyond any annual or sick leave used. The least received for a month of complete disability is $112.50, or the full wage, whichever is the less. The most which may be received is $525 a month. The amount of compensation is based upon two-thirds of the wage rate where there is no dependent, and three-fourths of the wage rate if there is a dependent. In temporary disabilities the extra allowance for a dependent is computed only on the first $420 of the monthly wage rate.

In the case of permanent injury, scheduled benefits or payments are allowed based upon loss of earning capacity. If the employee is permanently and totally disabled, compensation continues for life. Scheduled benefits are awards made for specific anatomical losses of a permanent nature, such as loss of an eye, arm, leg, and others. For example, compensation for 160 weeks is payable for loss of an eye, in addition to payments for any temporary disability. Employees who must withdraw from all employment as a result of injuries or occupational disease and who are eligible for Civil Service disability retirement benefits may choose the benefits most suitable to their particular circumstances. Individual circumstances will determine what plan is the best to follow, and no simple statement can be given which would apply in all cases.

In the case of fatal injuries, the employee's family is entitled to compensation. If the wife is the sole survivor she receives 45 per cent of the employee's monthly wage each month for the rest of her life, so long as she does not remarry. If there is a widow and children, the widow receives 40 per cent and each child 15 per cent. If children are the sole survivors, the first child receives 35 per cent and each additional child gets 15 per cent. Awards to children terminate upon death, marriage, or reaching 18 years of age. Others, such as dependent parents, brothers, or sisters, also may be awarded benefits. The monthly payment to all dependents may never exceed three-fourths of the employee's wage rate, or $525 per month.

Burial expenses not to exceed $400 are payable in the case of fatal injuries. Transportation of the body to its former residence in the United States is also provided where an employee dies away from the home station.

Procedures to be followed in order that the above benefits may be secured are as follows:

Responsibility of the employee—It is the responsibility of the employee to report all injuries as soon as possible, even though seemingly of a minor nature. Too often so-called minor injuries develop into serious conditions. Verbal report should be made immediately to the supervisor, who will furnish the employee with Compensation Form CA-1 upon which to make written report. If others are present at the time of the injury, the employee should get their names as witnesses.

Responsibility of the supervisor—Emergency—The supervisor, or anyone nearby, will call the Post Dispensary Ambulance (Extension, 3489, Presidio of San Francisco), state the exact location and apparent condition of the injured, and provide first aid while awaiting the ambulance. No attempt will be made to move the injured person, except from a source of danger, nor will alcoholic stimulants be given. Warmth in the form of blankets, coats, etc., will be provided to combat shock. Emergency treatment will be provided by the Post Dispensary. Form CA 16 or 17 will be completed and either sent with injured or dispatched after him as soon as possible.

Serious, but not emergency, injury—The supervisor, or anyone nearby, will use available transportation or call the Post Motor Pool (Extension 2012 or 2143), state the exact location of the injured, and provide first aid until arrival of the transportation. The Post Motor Pool will provide transportation without question as to immediate necessity. In the event of absolute inability to provide transportation at the time of the call, the Post Motor Pool will call upon the Military Police (Extension 2211 or 3912), who will provide the transportation immediately. The injured person will be taken directly to the Marine Hospital (14th Avenue and Lake Street). Form CA 16 or 17, Request for Treatment of Injury, will be completed and either sent with injured or dispatched after him as soon as possible.

Minor Injury—Included in this classification are all injuries requiring only one-time first aid treatment such as cuts, minor burns, scratches, bruises and abrasions, or other minor injuries of a like nature. Such injuries will be treated at the Post Dispensary. Injured Employees will take with them Form 19-44, Foreman's Record of Injury. If further treatment is necessary the person will be sent to the Marine Hospital. If sent to the Marine Hospital, Form CA 16 or 17 will be completed by the employee's supervisor and sent with the injured.

Immediately after an accident the supervisor will complete the following reports: "Supervisor's Report of Accident" Form SF-92 (3 copies to appropriate Safety Director); "Transcript of Operations Report of Motor Vehicle Accidents," Form SF-91A, when applicable (3 copies to Safety Director); Employee's Notice of Injury or Occupational Disease Form CA-1 (original and duplicate to Civilian Personnel Division.)

The information contained in this article is a summary of the provisions of the Federal Employees' Compensation Act and local personnel policy issuances.

MEDAL OF HONOR

The Medal of Honor has been awarded posthumously to Army Cpl. Lester Hammond, Jr., who sacrificed his life saving a patrol surrounded by the enemy near Kumwha, Korea. Cpl. William J. Liell, a member of the patrol, speaks for Cpl. Hammond:

"I was about eight yards to the right front of Cpl. Hammond in a little ravine where I had an unobstructed view of his actions. I could see him plainly. He was standing with his back against the cliff wall radioing artillery fire onto enemy positions. I saw him get hit by small arms and artillery fire and went out to help him. He refused help saying 'I'm all right... leave me here.' He stayed in that position for two hours adjusting artillery fire. It is my belief that by calling the fire in on himself he saved my life as well as the rest of the patrol. When I crawled out to give him some water I saw that he was dead. In his immediate area were 12 enemy dead and at least 25 in the area covered by the artillery fire."

PRESIDIO PROGRESS

The Presidio of San Francisco moved from 12th to seventh place in the annual nationwide National Fire Protection association contest to choose military installations with the best fire prevention records.

Winners were selected on the basis of reduction of fire losses, elimination of fire hazards, efficiency of fire department personnel and fire prevention inspections.

Notification of winners was sent by the association to the Secretary of the Army who in turn notified Army commanders.

The Certificate of Merit was received by Lt. General Joseph M. Swing, Sixth Army Commander, who turned it over to Lt. Colonel Daniel R. Moss, Post Engineer, for presentation to the fire department.

Colonel Duncan S. Somerville, former deputy post commander, added his words to those of General Swing and Col. Moss in praising George Geller, fire chief, and his personnel, for their efforts.

Arrangements have been completed to hold a second Blood Bank day this month for military and civilian personnel of the Presidio. Contributions will be received next Wednesday (24 June) from 0800 to 1200 at Building 562.

Donations during the Blood Bank day last week totaled 97, which was about 20 below the average number of monthly contributions for the post. This was in spite of the fact that the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank has relaxed regulations regarding those who have had malaria or have been in malaria regions so that Korean veterans can now donate.

The Department of Defense has made an urgent plea for more donors of Type O blood to be flown to Korea. To meet this plea, the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank and the Alameda-Contra Costa Blood Bank remained open during the weekend beyond their normal hours to accept contributions Saturday and Sunday.

Presidio personnel with Type O blood are urged to be among those donating next Wednesday.

Recent improvements by the Post Provost Marshal section to aid the flow of traffic on the Presidio have been the placement of a new caution sign and painting and replacing of traffic channel markers on the streets at six major locations.

The new caution sign was posted on Presidio Boulevard just above the Simmonds Loop warning of the dangerous intersection existing at the location.

The channel markers receiving a new coat of white paint and damaged markers being replaced are at the intersections where the flow of traffic is heaviest. A new coat of paint also is to be given the center line on Lincoln Boulevard.

Lt. John A. Grannis, classification and maintenance officer, Post Quartermaster section, has been promoted from second to first lieutenant, with date of rank of 20 May.

His new silver bars were pinned on in ceremonies held at the Post Quartermaster office with Major George F. Baker, assistant Post Quartermaster, making the presentation.

Lt. Grannis, who was recalled to active duty in 1952, has been at the Presidio since May 1952. He has a total of nine years and seven months service and was overseas in World War II, returning to this country in 1947.

When Captain Lulu R. Linder arrived here recently to take over her new assignment as Post library and theatre officer, she was re-united with two other WAC officers with whom she had served more than nine years ago.

Major Mary Frances Farrell and Major Helen K. Foreman both served with Captain Linder for 18 months in 1944-45 at Fort Des Moines, Iowa. Major Farrell is now with G-2 Headquarters Sixth Army and Major Foreman with Sixth Army Special Services.

Hawaiian ROTC Cadets Guests of Engineers

ROTC cadets from the University of Hawaii were quartered with the 30th Engineers at Fort Winfield Scott this week, while awaiting assignment.

The cadets were here for summer training as part of their junior year. They are going to Fort Lewis, Washington, for infantry training.

After six weeks of training, the cadets will be given 45 days leave. Most of the cadets are planning to see as much of the country as possible, as this is their first time away from Hawaii. A few of the cadets will seek jobs to support their stay.

The engineers of Fort Scott have been amazed at the multi-colored shirts worn by the men from Hawaii during off-duty hours. The shirts contain all the colors of the rainbow plus many more.

New Station Enters Service At Ft. Mason

A new amateur radio station has recently gone on the air as part of the Military Radio System (MARS)—Station AA6WAS, of Fort Mason, California, operating on the 10, 20, 40, and 80 meter amateur bands and on specified MARS frequencies.

Built by Port Signal Division, the new station enters service as one of the many links of amateur stations in the national defense communications system. In normal times it will be used to train military and civilian personnel, but in time of emergency or disaster it will supplement military communications nets.

Under the leadership of Signal Division and Lt. Col. R. W. Boyd, Oversea Supply Division, a Fort Mason Radio Club has been formed to promote the purposes of this station, and the club membership is open to all persons interested in amateur radio.

Recreation Societies Slate Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the American Recreation society and the National Recreation congress, will be held in Philadelphia from 27 September to 2 October this year. Those who desire to attend will be placed on detached service and all expenses will be borne by the individual, according to a Headquarters Sixth Army announcement.

Additional information may be obtained by writing to: American Recreation Society, Inc., Evans Building, Room 214, 1420 New York Avenue Northwest, Washington, 5, D.C.

To Receive $5 Prize!

Member of 30th Engineers in 1st Cost Consciousness Award

A corporal from the 30th Engineer battalion at Fort Scott was the winner in the first of a series of six local contests, via an article on the subject, "What Cost Consciousness Means to Me."

Cpl. Allen W. Van Soest is to be awarded $5.00 for his efforts. Colonel Sanford J. Goodman, deputy post commander, will present the award, according to Colonel Harrie E. Hoxie, Post S-4.

There will be five more $5 contests, each of 10 days duration, in which enlisted personnel are encouraged to submit entries, written or typed, of not more than 500 words, to Post S-4, Building M-9, Presidio of San Francisco.

At the end of this series on 31 July, a first and second winner will be picked from among the six to receive $10 and $5 respectively.

Then winning entries from throughout the Sixth Army area will be massed together and three top prizes awarded in the amounts of $35, $20, and $10.

Following is the winning entry: "It was a bleak and miserable night. On Broadway in New York the rain wouldn't feel like bits of steel cutting into your face. The friendly cafe or theatre would be just around the corner. All you had to do was step inside. Or in a small town or in the country, you could always find a warm fire and an easy chair.

"But with a bullet in your leg, things were different. A lot different. Pain kept stabbing through my leg incessantly. I looked down at the gaping hole and tried to forget. Think about something else. The rain . . . anything. Anything except the agonizing sensation that feels like it will tear off your leg.

"And you start thinking. Why am I here? What strange fate ruled that I should be hit? Wish that aid man would get here. If only someone would find me. At least, I can put the sterilized bandage from my first aid pack over the wound. I clutched desperately for the pack. Gone! Now I remember. Thompson borrowed it. Mumbled something about using his for a dust cloth and needed mine for an inspection. Never did return it.

"If only I could pull myself to that mound nearby. Then maybe someone would see me. It's no use. The wound sapped all of my strength. What happened to the medics? Minutes seemed like hours. If only I had a first aid pack. If only men could only learn to take care of their equipment. If, if . . . what's the use.

"No wonder they talked so much about conserving supplies back at camp. 'Mistreat equipment and you are wasting time, money and lives,' they said. I remember thinking they were just getting dramatic.

"Can't stand the pain much longer. Am I going to die in this quagmire? Thank God, here comes the medics now. Maybe infection won't set in . . . maybe."

9 Presidio Boy Scouts Going to Summer Camp

Nine Boy Scouts of Presidio Troop 77 will leave Sunday to spend two weeks at Camp Roy-aneh, the San Francisco Boy Scout summer camp on the Russian River near Guerneville. They will be accompanied by Cpl. William Gunsalus, scoutmaster of the local troop.

Boys making the trip will be Duncan Somerville, Bert Garber, Kenneth Kerker, Dean Phelan, Stephen Matosich, Peter Jegers, George Kuznecovs, Robert Gibbons and Thomas Coddington.

During the two weeks the boys will participate in Scout advancement work, canoe trips on the river, swimming, hiking and other camp activities.

Funds raised through the Scouts' monthly on-post paper drives were used to help the boys attend the camp. Scoutmaster Gunsalus expressed appreciation of the troop for the cooperation of post residents in these paper drives.

PACKAGED PARACHUTE that popped open from the tail of this F-94C Starfire jet fighter has been successfully tested by Lockheed Aircraft, Burbank, Calif., for braking action. The 16-foot diameter "parabake" can stop the 600 mph jet's runway roll in half the distance.

BOOK CORNER

VIEW FROM THE AIR by Hugh Fosburgh. Written in the disciplined style of the Hemingway school, this novel takes the crew of a bomber through 40 missions in the South Pacific over Truk and communicates much technical information about aerial combat.

PRINCE OF PLAYERS: EDWARD BOOTH by Eleanor Rugles. A very readable biography of the American actor—the responsibility of the youthful Edwin in caring for his brilliant but erratic actor-father, the effect of early associations, and Edwin's development as a personality and man of the theater.

THE LOTUS AND THE WIND by John Masters. Adventure and espionage in the Himalayas in the form of an important secret service assignment with the British in India.

TO THE BULLFIGHT, THE SPECTATOR'S GUIDE by John Marks. An introduction to bullfighting as practiced in Spain. The writer's admiration for the pageantry and drama of a sport which symbolizes for the Spanish the contest of a brave man against death does not blind him to the barbarity of its anachronism.

THE SHIPWRECKED by Grahame Greene. First published in 1935 (under the title "England made me")—about a worldling who had always believed that "to live was to leave behind; to be as free as a shipwrecked man."

Those Top Kicks Get Younger Every Day

Ft. Hood, Tex.—How young can a top-kick get?

Men of Co. C, 1st Tank Bn., are willing to bet he can be mighty young, at times. They claim the youngest first sergeant in the 1st Armored Division and possibly the whole Army.

M/Sgt. Roy D. Spargo was born in 1933 and entered the Army when he was 17. About a year later he held the exalted rank of master sergeant with the 72nd Tank Bn., 2nd Inf. Div.

Not a bad beginning for the ripe old age of 18.

He joined the 1st Tank Bn. and took over the first sergeant's post in time to celebrate his 19th birthday.

Who knows, maybe he'll command the Army when he comes of voting age.

Army's Big Howitzers Now In Use In Korea

Washington—The largest Army howitzer of WWII—and now second only to the A-Gun—is now in use in Korea, Army officials have revealed.

The big gun, a 240mm howitzer, fires a projectile weighing 360 lbs. The A-Gun is 280mm but the exact weight of the projectile that it fires is still a secret.

Besides being fairly mobile, the 240mm can be used on a railroad car or as a coastal defense weapon. It has an effective range of over 14 miles.

The gun is transported on two pneumatic-tired carriers—one for the howitzer and cradle, the other for the carriage. High speed tractors tow the carriers.

The gun, itself, is over 27 feet long and weighs slightly over 12 tons. It can be set in place by a crane in one hour or by winching in six hours.

It fires three rounds in the first four minutes, six in the first ten minutes, and can fire 20 per hour in prolonged fire.

Cinema Previews

"THE LAST POSSE," F* is the tale of a broken-down sheriff who is better at hitting the bottle than the trail. But he makes one last ride to bring justice to a man who has long ruled the territory with a lawless hand.

"STORY OF THREE LOVES," F*, is sprinkled freely with an array of stars who perform in three separate technicolor stories. There is a ballet dancer, a boy who grows up before his town, and a troupe of daring trapeze artists.

"FLAME OF CALCUTTA," F*, is laid in India, where, in the year 1760, a number of the provinces are threatened by a scheming usurper. A daring leader known only as The Flame arises, and leads the fight for freedom.

"SALOME," F*, is a vivid technical spectacle of the well-known Biblical story, with all the settings of the court of a Roman Emperor.

Oregon Extends WWII Vets' Bonus Deadline Filing to 31 Dec. 53

Washington—The Oregon State legislature has extended the deadline for applying for the Oregon World War II veterans' bonus until Dec. 31, 1953.

The previous deadline was Dec. 31, 1952, but the director of Oregon veterans' department estimated that 2,000 veterans or their next of kin had failed to apply in time to meet the original deadline.

Persons who applied after last Dec. 1 need not file again, the State officials said, because their claims are currently being processed. Eligible veterans or survivors who have not yet filed should write the Department of Veterans' Affairs, State Library building, Salem, Ore., for application forms.

The Oregon bonus is paid only for active service between Sept. 16, 1940 and June 30, 1946. To be entitled, the veteran must have been a bona fide Oregon resident for one year immediately prior to his WWII service, have served actively 90 days or more between the above dates, and have been honorably discharged.

The bonus pays $10 for each full month of domestic duty and 15 for each full month of foreign or sea duty, to a maximum of $600.

Survivors of veterans who died in service or following discharge who are entitled include unmarried widow, the children, and the parents, in that order.

6th Army Thinclads Win All-Service Title!

Meet Records Are Smashed as Sixth Army Trackmen Place in 16 Events

Powered by a multi-talented delegation of cinder experts drawn from five installations in the Sixth Army Area, this year's Area track and field team met contestants from five armies and jumped, raced and hurled its way to an 82½-point victory, garnering points in all but two of the meet's 18 events to carry away the 1953 All-Army Track and Field Championship at Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

The All-Army contestants, sparked by a steady 6 m.p.h. wind from behind, succeeded in wiping out the meet's standing records in all running events but one, the 120-yard hurdles, and set a new mark in the pole vault.

Sixth Army athletes won first-place victories in six events, runner-up positions in five, and third and fourth-place laurels in another five to collect the team's winning point total, which was a full 16 digits over Third Army's second-place 66½. Moreover, Sixth Army track and field performances assured berths for 14 of the delegation's crack cinder stars in the 18-man squad to represent the Army in the coming Inter-Service Track and Field Championships at Fort Jackson, South Carolina, 19-20 June.

Other Army positionings were, Second Army, third, with 36 points; Fourth Army, 31½; First Army, 26; Fifth Army, 21½, and the Military District of Washington, with 9. Above scores were compiled from unofficial totals based on individual performances.

As expected, much of the Sixth Army team strength lay in the point-gathering potentials of the hefty Fort Ord component. As it developed, of the eight Fort Ord delegates, four triumphed in at least one event, and the complete roster is slated for action in the Inter-Service meet. Ord winners included Charles Holloway, George Brown, Ollie Matson, Cliff Livingston, and Earl Putman.

High point man on the Sixth Army team was Charles Holloway, who won first-place in the hop-step-jump with a 44 feet 9½ inch leap, then repeated his victory in the 220 hurdles with a 23.6 sec. win.

Cinder-churning Olympic broad-jump ace George Brown satisfied everyone's expectations in his specialty, copping the title with a winning 25 feet 1¼ inches. Brown garnered further points with third-place honors in the 100-yard dash.

In the longer runs Brown's Olympic mate, speed-ball Ollie Matson, raced easily to win the 440-yarder in 49.7 sec., having taken a second-place to Fourth Army's Alex Littman's 21.5 sec. win in the 220.

Shot-put master burly Cliff Livingston tossed the weighty ball 49 feet 7 inches to triumph in that event, while the existing meet record for the 120 hurdles was smashed when Fort Lewis' husky Donald Brooks broke the tape in 14.9 sec.

Sixth Army runners-up included two placings by Fort Ord's big and blond Earl Putman, who hurled the discus and hammer. In the discus he ceded to Third Army's double-victor, Jim Cooke, also winner in the high jump, while in the hammer event Putman secured First Army's Cliff Blair, who racked up an Olympian 167 feet 10½ inches for the winning throw.

Fort Lewis' Richard Smith hurled the javelin to runner-up spot next to Third Army's Larry Goins, whose toss pierced the ground a lengthy 220 feet 3 inches away from the white line, and in the pole vault, B. L. Pickens, another Ord delegate, tied with Military District of Washington's James Williams for second to Second Army's Fletcher Gilders, who smashed another meet record with a jump of 12 feet 9 inches.

Other Sixth Army thinclads to bring in third and fourth place points for the team total included San Luis Obispo's Aaron Gordon, running third in the 880 next to Second Army's Henry Cryer, who clocked 1:53.7 in the event. Ord's long-distant specialist, Robert Zuniga, won third in the two-mile steeplechase, next to Fifth Army's Phil Coleman's 10:55.2 winning time and Fourth Army's runner-up Manuel Chavira.

In the high jump Ord's Dick Wells leaped fourth behind Third Army's Jim Cooke, whose six feet 3½ inches spelled victory after a small technical adjustment for bar sag. Fourth Army's William Sevrens jumped second with Fifth Army's Vern McGrew and Wayne Zahrt both tying for third place.

Talk About the Yanks! Softball Giants Heading for Three-Way Clash Over Lead

Action on the intramural softball diamonds slowed down considerably this week, with two automatic 7-0 scores being registered against retired teams and only one actual flesh-and-blood contest being held out of the scheduled three events.

The two forfeit wins went to HQ 6th Army and HQ Btry 9th AAA, which brings the 9th up to within one game of a first-place tie with the Hill Toppers and Presidio Officers.

On the buttered side of the bread, last Friday saw the 102 MRU boys batter the cellar-dwelling Harbor Defense crew to the ground and saddle them with a fat 18-11 loss.

The MRU opened strong, registering six markers in their first inning play and sounding one, five, one, three and two tallies in the successive brackets.

MRU hurler Ryan held the Harbor boys to 11 hits for the afternoon, with admirer infield defense to back him up throughout.

Real strength for the winners of course came up at the plate, with the team's heavies slamming a total of five home runs for the day. Bill Waldron, big-sticker for the 102nd and flash infield specialist, racked up three homers, while multi-tasked Ryan scored a fourth and batsman Urlick a fifth.

This afternoon more fireworks are expected locally when the MRU clashes with the marching Fort Scott Hill Toppers, and the Presidio Officers meet Harbor Defense.

With teams over the half-way mark to the close of the season and only eight more weeks of intramural play to go, it's going to be interesting to see which of the current league leaders will continue to vanquish opposition and head for the crown. High spot for the fans comes next Wednesday when the two toughest tangle over league eminence—that's the 19 June tussle between the Toppers and the Officers. More bombast is due on 3 July, when the up-and-coming 9th AAA group meets the Hill Toppers.

League standings to date:

Team	Won	Lost
Fort Scott Hill Toppers	7	1
Officers' Club	7	1
HQ Btry, 9th AAA	7	2
102 MRU	5	3
Det. A Guard	4	4
Harbor Defense	3	6
HQ Co, 6th Army	2	6

Most active cinder star for the opposition proved to be long-distance ace Warren Druetzler, running for the Second Army, who raced the mile in 4:16.6, and came up again with the first-place title in the three-miler, scoring a 15:5.7 victory over Third Army's Wilfred Shea and Leonard Maya.

Sixth Army trackmen chosen to represent the Army in the Inter-Service meet at Fort Jackson, South Carolina, were, George Brown, Clifford Livingston, B. L. Pickens, Ollie Matson, Earl Putman, Dick Wells, Robert Zuniga, Charles Holloway, from Fort Ord; Richard Smith, Donald Brooks, Jim Cooke, from Fort Lewis; Victor Brewer, of Camp Roberts; Aaron Gordon, of San Luis Obispo, and William Mack, of Madigan Army Hospital, Washington.

Athletes of all services who triumph in the Inter-Service competition will have the opportunity to compete individually in the AAU meet at Dayton, Ohio, later in the summer.

Where's My Pole?

The largest number of steelhead trout seen in nine years has been counted this year headed upstream in the south fork of the Eel River, Humboldt County, according to counts made by the California Department of Fish and Game.

Nearly 20,000 steelhead ascended the Benbow dam fishway on their way to upstream spawning grounds in April, almost equalling the high of 20,172 in 1944.

The Spring run represents an increase of 41 per cent over last year's count of 13,774.

505th MP's Pack New Softball League Roster

If talent on the softball diamond has any relation to an aptitude for picking novelty names, the newly-formed Sub-Post Softball League at Fort Baker will have a sizzling bunch of ballplayers to flaunt this end of the Golden Gate come late summer—with monikers like "The Pistol Packers," "Patrollers" and "Beacons" to quote a few.

As the names might suggest, the league is membered chiefly by segments of the 505th Military Police Training Companies in the Baker-Mendel areas, with a single alien representative from the newly instituted 740th AAA—a team rumored to be one of the pre-season sharpies.

The entries are distributed as follows: 505th MPTC A, Pistol Packers and Patrollers; 505th MPTC B, Cubs and Cardinals; 505th MPTC C, Mendel Pelicans and Beacons, the latter consisting of nine doughty MP cadremen, and the 740th AAA, the Bushers.

League representatives have not said yet whether they plan inter-league competition with clubs this side of the Bay.

Banquet Will Highlight Off-Course Activities In All-Sixth Golf

Preparations for the nearing Sixth Army Golf preliminaries, to be held at the Presidio Golf Club, 7-10 July, continue to keep Post Special Services busy.

Lt. Roland J. Daigle, office head, bears the heavy responsibility of seeing that the visitors are housed and fed up to the standards of Presidio hospitality, as well as grinding forth the many invitations and other sundry correspondences necessary to the running of an athletic event of so large a scope.

Lt. Daigle and non-com second-in-command, Sfc. DeWitt Williams, are currently drafting plans for a banquet in honor of the visitors and Post team, scheduled for the 17th of July, with Col. Sanford Goodman, Deputy Post Commander set in role of official host.

The National . . . SPORT SCENE

By Pvt. BRUCE LANSBURY

It looks as if Olympic high-jumper WALTER DAVIS might have to take an engineer along with him to the national A.A.U. meet in Dayton come 26 June. The champ has twice failed to better the world's record because the jump take-off area wasn't properly leveled. Everything seemed quite alright when Davis made an exhibition leap in New York's National Intercollegiate meet recently. A surveyor had been called in to see that things were in order. But there was one small detail over-looked—Davis takes off further from the crossbar than any other high-jumper. The spot from which he jumped was on the grass, a foot behind the area measured and leveled, and 5/16th's of an inch higher than the level of the pit. That had to be subtracted, leaving him 6 feet 10-1/16 inches! Last year Davis jumped 6 feet 11 1/2 inches, but one point of the take-off apron was found to be an inch higher than the rest of the area, so an inch was taken off his recorded leap. Davis figures he'd better do seven feet in the national A.A.U. just to be sure.

EDMUND P. HILLARY, Auckland beekeeper who scaled Mount Everest, will return to the Himalayas next year as the leader of a New Zealand mountain-climbing expedition, the New Zealand Alpine Club announced last week. According to Buckingham Palace sources, Hillary, along with COL. H. C. HUNT, leader of the triumphant British expedition, is to be knighted by his nation's queen.

Hillary, according to friends, had two life-long ambitions—to be first to conquer Mount Everest, and first to capture one of the "abominable snowmen," reputed to inhabit the icy slopes of the world's highest mountain. He said before he left Auckland to join the expedition he was convinced the "snowmen" were no myth, having seen photographs of the footprints of the creatures taken by previous expeditions.

Britain's Jaguar-jockeys TONY ROLT and DUNCAN HAMILTON were the winning team drivers in this year's big Le Mans 24-hour endurance auto race, setting a record-smashing 303 laps, 2533 miles, with an average speed of 106 m.p.h. last Sunday. The second-place Jaguar, piloted by STIRLING MOSS and PET WALKER, traveled 299 laps. Americans TOM FITCH and PHIL WALTERS raced to third place in an American-made Cunningham. Tragedy of the marathon was the death of American TOM COLE, British-born American driver from Saville, N. Y., who cracked up his four litre Ferrari on one of the 8.38-mile track's hazardous curves.

It's official! Britain's RANDY TURPIN has agreed to an August meeting in New York with the winner of tonight's spree between middleweight's CARL (Bobo) OLSON and PADDY YOUNG for the undisputed world crown. The agreement follows Turpin's 15-round decision last week over European contender CHARLES HUMEZ of France.

The Olson-Young fight, for the American crown, promises rounds of excitement for armchair viewers over TV channel KRON-TV at 7 p.m. tonight.

San Diego sailor TONY TRABERT whipped San Franciscan TOM BROWN last Sunday in Salt Lake City to win the National Hardcourts Men's Singles Championship. ANITA KANTER, of Santa Monica, California, breezed by JOAN MERCIADDES of Modesto to win the women's singles title.

In London, another local net-ace, ART LARSON, of San Leandro, California, was seeded seventh for the Wimbledon Tennis Championships, 22 June to 4 July. Topping the list were two 18-year-old whizz kids of tennis—KEN ROSEWALL of Australia and MAUREEN CONNOLLY of San Diego. Meanwhile, on Wednesday, Rosewall and three Americans, HUGH STEWART, JOHN AGER, and GARDNER MULLOY, advanced into the third round of the Queen's Club Lawn Tennis Tournament.

Big wrestling news occurred this week in San Francisco's Cow Palace, as World Heavyweight Champion LOU THESZ held challenger LOU NOMEILLINI to a draw for a successful defense of his title. A crowd of 16,487 patrons booed Thesz roundly for his rope-hugging antics during the fight in which the mammoths took a fall each. The gate drew approximately $53,000, of which part has been earmarked for the Golden Gate Exchange Club's Fun for a Day Fund.

In the race for the Pennant this week, Seattle still led the Pacific Coast League, 48 wins to 30 losers, with Hollywood a dogged second three games behind. In the American League the Yanks, finally stopped by the cellar-dwelling St. Louis Browns after 18 straight wins, headed the herd with a hefty 41 wins for 12 losses. Cleveland held on one more week with 30 for 52. In the Nationals, Milwaukee still triumphed with 39 for 57, while Brooklyn sneaked up only three wins behind.

505th MP Instructors Hammer 740th AAA For Season's Opener

The newly-formed Baker-Mendel Softball League opened its season strong on Tuesday of this week with the 505th MP Training Center Instructors, a team of no name, shellacking the 740th AAA Bushers to the tune of 14-3 in a loop-opener at Fort Baker.

Les Nuckolls, 505th moundster, turned in an excellent account of himself, with opposition pitcher Salamo Sua proving to be the strongest point in the losing line-up.

Big bats for the Instructors were Milt Garfield, who homered teammates Barton and O'Gara in for the tally, and Ralph Sommerer, who homered with one man on.

Euro-African Thinclads Win Air Force Meet

Jim Ford, ex-Drake star, scampared 100 yards in :09.6, and George Mattos, formerly of San Jose, cleared 14 feet, 4 inches in the pole vault last week to lead the Euro-African Conference in the First Air Force World Wide Track and Field Meet.

Ford also captured the 220-yard dash in :21.40. The Euro-African Conference won the meet with 82 1/4 points. The Pacific Conference was second with 51 5/6.

A total of 46 mountain lions were bountied during April, in addition to 689 lesser varmints which were taken by California State Fish and Game hunter-trappers.

Raiders Whip Coast Guard, Alameda, And Moffett Field in Series Sweep

The Presidio Red Raiders, having suffered two defeats last week to teams touted the toughest in the League, turned in their tracks this week and in return matches with the Coast Guard and Alameda Naval Air Station crews whipped them both to the tune of 6-4, 9-7, and as an extra dividend handed the Moffett Field Flyers a thorough 12-3 drubbing in their third victory of the season over that team.

The last-of-the-season upsets came after weeks of steady improvement on the part of Raider batting and infield work, and promises to earn the Presidians a respectable placing in end-season League standings.

In Monday's game against a weakening Coast Guard, hurler Bill Herriage fanned eight opponents, and coupled with infield defense to buckle the visitors to a scant four runs on ten hits for the entire nine brackets.

Opposition hurler Kalberer and supporting infield gave five runs on nine for eight innings, at which time relief pitcher Becker granted the Raider bats two hits in the last stanza.

Heavy-stickers for the Raiders included team manager Sal Fucile, only lately recuperated from a broken arm, and Wayne Taylor, with two for five, with Gene Jacobs, John Vozel and Herriage hitting two for four apiece.

The Coast Guard had one bright light in Bill Perrey, who blasted two for four.

In the Moffett Field game Tuesday fans saw a new pitcher at work for the home team, namely "Moose" Ahtipis, towering bonus star currently stationed at Fort Cronkhite and soon to complete his tour with the Army.

Ahtipis allowed six hits for the GETTING SET TO SLIDE is Raider baserunner Willie Williamson, as Moffett Field catcher Pugleasa kneels in ready position to take the throw from short-stop during third inning action in Tuesday's Presidio-Moffett tilt on home ground. Williamson was too late to be safe, but Raiders won anyway, to tie with Flyers in League's fourth place.

full go, fanning ten adversaries, and backed up by the hard running and sure fielding of a rejuvenated Presidio club pitched the Raiders into a fourth place tie with the Flyers.

In big bats, Bert Fowler's booming 390 foot homer and added double were augmented with heavy hitting by Williamson, Thayer, and Ahtipis.

Opposition hurler Gilmore allowed six hits, put six Raiders down via the strike-out, and handed 10 ducats to first-base.

It's a great pity as far as League play goes that the return match with Alameda on Wednesday happened to be only practice. As it is, the Alameda team, second only to the Coast Guard in League standings, has won consistently throughout the season, and unlike the Coast Guard, has not seemed to weaken to any extent in the last few weeks. The Raiders fought a first-class club in a hard-earned, strategically well-played game, and the fact that the game was practice does not diminish the significance of the Raider victory. When the Sixth Army ball tourney gets under way, it will be good to know the Raiders have victories like this under their belts. Service teams just don't run much bigger than Alameda or the Coast Guard.

Arkie Stanton, well out of his hard-luck streak, pitched the winner, allowing eight hits.

Big bats for the Presidians were Jacobs, Falls, Wayne Taylor, and Stanton, all with two for four.

Post Tennis Tilt Starts Today

Presidio Post Tennis Championship is scheduled to open today at 1500 hours, to continue through Sunday, for the purpose of picking a tennis team to represent this installation in the coming All-Sixth Army tournament at Camp Roberts, 27 July - 1 August.

Champion netmen expected to show well in the week-end action include Lt. D. E. Detata, tentative team-manager and 1950 Northern California Junior College Doubles Champion. Lt. Detata also served at the net for the U. of San Francisco, 1950-51, and has played with the Peninsula tennis team.

M/Sgt. Anas Velarde promises well, having played with the Oregon State College teams in 1940-41, and with the Camp Stoneman representation 1948-51.

Winners and runners-up in the week-end's action will be awarded trophies and are assured a berth on the Post team in the coming All-Sixth prelims.

The All-Sixth Championship tournament has been scheduled for the Madigan Army Hospital, Washington, 11-15 August.

HOW ABOUT IT ALLIE?

In the first World Series, back in 1903, Pirate Hurler Charles Phillippe pitched five complete games! In that initial classic, Phillippe hurled and won three out of the first four games, but Pittsburgh was beaten by the Red Sox who swept the last four games. Each team carried three pitchers.

HQ 30th Engineers Trounce Surveyors; 99th Outslugs 21st

Swing from the heels in sandlot style and you may come out on top of the 30th Engineers softball league!

At least, that is the technique the league-leading 30th Engineers HQ nine found successful as their barking bats turned back the Surveying team this week, 17-7.

Both teams exploded for five runs in the first inning. Headquarters grabbed the lead in the second with three more runs and turned the game into a rout with six more in the third frame.

Harris and Van Soest led the Headquarters batsmen each with three hits out of four appearances. Harris connected for a double and a triple. Moore, the Surveyors' left-fielder, had a perfect day at the plate, slamming two home runs for two times up.

Two double plays were made by the Headquarters team—not exactly the Tinker to Evers to Chance type, but center fielder Stachelski figured in both of the twin killings. His whiplike throw twice caught runners off second after the batter had fled out to center.

Harris was credited with the win, allowing only six hits, and fanning four of the opposition. The losing hurler, Molina, gave up 15 hits, 17 runs, struck out six, and walked three.

In other action this week, the 99th Engineers bunched 11 hits for 13 runs and defeated the 21st Engineers, 13-11.

The 21st led for three frames but in the fourth the 99th erupted on hits by Cotton, Francek, and Garachana to score four runs and take the lead 10-9. The 21st pushed one across in the fifth to tie the game but the 99th rallied for three more to win.

Jackstadt led the 21st batters with four hits in five appearances while Cotton and Francek hit two for four for the losers. Winning hurler, Garachana; loser, Cobb.

Homer Ties Record

Ralph Kiner tied a long-standing National League record last Sunday smashing a grand-slam homer against Brooklyn. It was the 12th such homer of Kiner's career. The Major League mark of 23 was set by Lou Gehrig with the Yankees. The homer brought Kiner's lifetime total to 307 to put him into a tie with Al Simmons for ninth among the all-time home-run leaders. Babe Ruth's 714 tops them all.

$1000 for Winner!

Foundation Giving Awards for Letters by Service Personnel

Washington—The Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pa., has established a new category of cash and George Washington Honor Medal Awards for "letters from service personnel," the Defense Department announces.

Subject of the new awards category will be: "What America Means To Me."

Servicemen and women, at home and abroad, may submit letters of not more than 500 words on what America, their hometown, or some other part or phase of America or American life means to them. Entrants will be judged on soundness of ideas and clear thinking, rather than literary form.

The project will be coordinated with Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge by the Office of Armed Forces Information and Education, headed by Maj. Gen. Harlan N. Hartness.

Gen. Hartness explained that the awards are designed to stimulate further interest in the responsibilities of young Americans serving in the United States Armed Forces.

The awards are offered to all Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard men and women on active duty, wherever stationed. Reservists and National Guardsmen are eligible to submit letters only while serving on active duty.

Entries will be accepted immediately. Closing date for this year is 15 Oct. 1953. The winners' names will be announced by the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, 22 Feb. 1954.

The Foundation will grant a principal award of $1,000 and an Honor Medal for the best letter in the opinion of the Freedoms Foundation awards jury. Twenty awards of $100 and George Washington Honor Medals, and 10 or more additional Honor Medals also will be given to this year's awards recipients.

Judging will be by the awards Jury Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, assisted by a panel of Congressional Medal of Honor winners. The latter will do preliminary screening of all letters received.

Letters submitted in nomination for the announced awards must be sent to Awards Editor, Armed Forces Radio Service, 1016 N. McCadden Place, Los Angeles 38, Calif., and received before midnight on 15 Oct. 1953, and bear the signature, rank, service number, and organization of the entrant. Letters received after that time will be entered in the 1954 competition.

368th Reserve Group Training at SFPOE

The 368th Transportation Port Command C, Reserve unit which trains weekends at Fort MacArthur, is now undergoing two weeks of extensive active duty training at the San Francisco Port of Embarkation.

Brigadier General Francis W. Rollins, director of the Veterans Administration hospital, San Fernando, is Commanding officer of the 368th.

He explained that his organization, if ever called to active duty, would have to establish a headquarters for the command, administration, and operations at a large overseas port. The organization would consist of Port battalions, truck battalions and other units necessary to the receiving and distributing of war supplies.

Stoneman Processing Is Praised by Mitchell Following Camp Visit

Camp Stoneman, Calif.—Assistant Secretary of the Army James P. Mitchell visited Camp Stoneman Friday for a brief tour of all the camp facilities. At the conclusion of his visit he announced he considered the processing at Camp Stoneman a "well done job."

Mr. Mitchell's party included Colonel E. L. Johnson, Deputy Chief of Staff, Sixth Army, and Lt. Col. Wallace Hanes, Department of the Army. They were greeted by Brig. Gen. Roy E. Lindquist, post commander, and an honor guard from the 375th Military Police.

After lunching at the Area "I" mess where he went through the mess line with overseas bound replacements, Mr. Mitchell and his party toured the post. He then reviewed the newly formed Camp Stoneman Honor Guard under the command of Lt. Russell Sullivan.

Honor Reservists

Nine officers of the Idaho Military District headquarters were presented the Army Forces Reserve Medal by Colonel Thomas M. Brinkley, district chief, at recent ceremonies. Those receiving the medal in recognition of ten years' service in the U. S. Army Reserve were: Lt. Col. W. D. Vincent, Lt. Col. Jack G. Parsons, Maj. Lonnie M. Kirkland, Jr., Capt. Lorrence O'Dell, Capt. Roscoe Sellers, Capt. William Henderson, Capt. Richard P. Callaghan, Maj. Howell A. Davis and Capt. Jack Wade.

Sixth Army Medical Heads Tour Roberts

Two Sixth Army Medical Corps officers made an inspection of the U. S. Army Hospital at Camp Roberts last week.

The visitors were Col. John R. Darragh, Medical Corps, and Lt. Col. L. L. Fetterson, Medical Service Corps. They were accompanied on the tour by Col. George McCoy, Commanding Officer of the Hospital, and Capt. Robert P. Mackey, administrative officer.

Purpose of the inspection is to make a study of the length of patients' stay in station hospitals.

New Jobs for Collins

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Chief of Staff, U. S. Army, who will complete his tour in that post in August, has been appointed by President Eisenhower as the U. S. representative on the NATO Military Committee, and on the Standing Group, which is the committee's executive agent. He will sit in on meetings of the Joint Chiefs of Staff whenever they are discussing NATO matters.

III Corps Commander Visits Training Center

Major General Hobart R. Gay, Commanding General of III Corps, paid a visit to the Armored Combat Training Center at Camp Irwin, California recently.

An inspection party consisting of General Gay, Brig. Gen. John P. Willey, CG of the Armored Combat Training Center, Col. Harry W. Johnson, Director of Instruction at the Armored School, Ft. Knox, Ky., and Col. Maurece E. Kaiser, CO of Camp Irwin's 16th Armored Cavalry Group, made a tour of thearrison area and one tactical training area.

An interesting sidelight of General Gay's visit was his reunion with Lt. Col. Robert W. Kane, Chief of Staff at the Armored Combat Training Center. Colonel Kane commanded a battalion of the 8th Regiment, 1st Cavalry Division, in Korea under General Gay who was Division Commander at that time.

Gen. Patton's Son Gets Award For Bravery

Captain George S. Patton, 29-year-old son of the late Gen. George S. Patton, who led the United States Third Army in some of World War II's biggest European battles, has been awarded a silver star for bravery in Korea.

The Eighth Army said last week that Captain Patton won the nation's third highest decoration for valor while commanding a company of Patton tanks—named for his father—in a recent action on the eastern front.

Colonel Ward Assumes Inspector General Duty At San Francisco Port

Colonel Frederick A. Ward, one of the World War II defenders of Corregidor, was today named as inspector general of the San Francisco Port of Embarkation. He succeeds Lt. Colonel Dixie Hall who is assigned to Fort Eustis, Va.

Colonel Ward, who came to San Francisco from Fort Eustis, where he was chief of staff of the Army transportation center, was superintendent of the Army Transport services in the Philippines, with headquarters in Manila, when World War II broke out.

He fought until the surrender of Corregidor in May 1942, and then spent 39 months as a prisoner of war in the Mukden prison camp.

Beginning his military career with the Massachusetts National Guard, Col. Ward served in the Mexican border campaign in 1916. The following year he enrolled in the Plattsburg, New York officer training camp and received a commission in the Quartermaster corps. In 1918 he sailed for the Philippines where he has spent most of his Army career.

His decorations include the Legion of Merit, the Purple Heart, the Distinguished Unit citation with two oak leaf clusters, the Mexican border and World War I and II medals and the Philippine defense and independence ribbons.

The Battle of Korea — A Battle of Bunkers

IT'S BACK TO THE WOODS for U. S. soldiers in Korea. Here an Army combat engineer turned lumberjack prepares to fell a tree which soon will be a part of the chain of pre-fabricated bunkers that now dot the Korean mountain sides. This tree soon will be on its way to the bunker "factory."

BUILDING BOOM—Army bunkers in Korea are built in rear areas, disassembled, and then moved to the front lines for re-assembly. Here two U. S. soldiers use a power saw to cut the logs to proper lengths and notch them for easy assembly. Every log is numbered here at the bunker "factory."

LOGS FOR DEFENSE—Pre-fabricated bunker logs, ready for fast re-assembly in areas to be fortified, are loaded aboard an armored personnel carrier for movement to the Korean front. The pre-fabricated bunker project is known as "Operation Abe Lincoln" to soldiers in Korea.

OPEN FOR INSPECTION—Pre-fabricated bunker construction at the front in Korea nears completion. The soldiers are dug in and the bunker has been re-assembled. Even before the job of camouflage is completed, the machinegun is in position. These bunkers offer maximum protection against Communist artillery and small arms fire.

Next Month's AER Fund Campaign To Help Maintain Army Tradition

One of the Army's oldest traditions is that the "Army takes care of its own." The major means for maintaining this tradition is the Army Emergency Relief and the Army Relief Society, for which a joint fund campaign will be held at the Presidio throughout the month of July.

This annual campaign is conducted once a year to seek a small voluntary contribution from every member of the Army for the support of both organizations. The drive is necessary since no government funds are appropriated to care for the emergency needs of members of the Army and their dependents.

Representatives of each unit and section of the Presidio will meet in the Presidio Theatre at 1300 hours on Monday (29 June) to receive orientation and drive material. Major Ella A. Wilton, Funds Custodian and chairman of the post drive, will be in charge.

Major Wilton and her committee have already made extensive plans for the campaign. Special events to raise money will be given at various times throughout the month at the service clubs and at the officers club.

First event schedule is a carnival and dance to be held at the Fort Cronkhite Service club next Wednesday night (1 July). The carnival will begin at 1800 with a variety of prizes to be given away at six concessions. Dancing will begin at 2000 and the girl receiving the most dance tickets will be given a prize. The floor show will feature a magician.

Organized for the purpose of rendering emergency financial assistance to members of the Army and their dependents,

Army Emergency Relief has disbursed since its inception in February 1942 over 24 million dollars through loans and grants to more than 200,000 individuals.

Last year the Presidio AER section made loans and grants totaling $9,595.00 to 74 military personnel and 13 dependents. During

C. G. Backs Drive

To All Members of the Army and Their Families:

The joint Army Emergency Relief—Army Relief Society fund campaign will be held at the Presidio of San Francisco during the period 1-31 July 1953.

In the traditional Army spirit of comradeship and cooperation, Army Emergency Relief stands ready at all times to provide financial assistance to Army personnel and their dependents in cases of emergency. In recent years, the expansion of the Army and the more frequent separation of soldiers from their families due to the hostilities in Korea have greatly increased the requirements for Army Emergency Relief aid. In 1952, $1,662,000 was disbursed for assistance to over 20,000 active members of the Army and their families.

Your wholehearted support of this fund campaign will be a great contribution to the common welfare of the Army, and will enable Army Emergency Relief to continue its fine work in the face of greatly increased demands. I urge your cooperation in making this campaign a success.

J. M. SWING
Lieutenant General, USA
Commanding

the first five months of this year, 29 loans to military personnel have totalled $3,560.00.

Financial assistance provided by AER is not charity in the usual sense because its funds are now being largely contributed by members of the Army. AER insures adequate and timely assistance to members of the Army and their families on a personal and fraternal basis.

This assistance may be provided whenever an emergency arises which is beyond the soldier's ability to meet and which requires prompt attention. Each case is carefully and sympathetically considered and financial assistance is given on the basis of need but not on the basis of convenience or desires.

Retirement Parade Ceremonies are Set Here For Tuesday

A retirement parade and retreat ceremony will be held on Tuesday, 30 June, on the Main parade grounds, beginning at 1630.

Several officers and enlisted men from the Sixth Army area will be retiring from active duty on that date.

Marching units to take part include the Sixth Army band, two companies from the 505th Military Police battalion, and one company each from Detachment A, 6002 ASU, Headquarters Company, 30th Engineers and the WAC detachment.

Color guard will be furnished by Detachment A, while the commander of troops and his staff will be from the 505th MP Bn.

To Sail Directly Home!

DOD Drafts Plans to Return Most POWs to US By Ship

Washington—American military personnel involved in future exchanges of prisoners of war will be returned to the U. S. by surface transportation except for those who are critically ill.

All persons will be handled in the same manner, the Defense Department emphasized, with the only cause for distinction being medical.

Ships carrying the released personnel will sail from Inchon, the Port of Seoul, directly for the U. S. Those considered physically unable to make the sea voyage will be evacuated immediately by air to Japan. After further examination and treatment, they will be transported by air to the U. S.

While it is believed that many of the individuals will require medical treatment because of the conditions in Communist POW camps, U. S. medical authorities think that almost all of the returned personnel can be moved by surface transportation. The sea voyage itself will assist in general rehabilitation and improvement.

Medical treatment will be given on shipboard for those who require it. Upon arrival in the U. S., those considered medical patients will be placed in regular medical establishments. Convalescent leaves of 30 days will be offered to those who desire and are able to take them, following which they will return to military hospitals nearest their homes.

Those eligible for separation from the Service will be discharged at the earliest practical date. Personnel desiring to continue their military careers will be reassigned.

Repatriated POWs from other UN components, including South Korea, will receive similar medical care and will be evacuated in accordance with their country's desires.

Yankee Ingenuity Turns Hen Tracks Into English

Kmag-Taegu, Korea — Korean language characters look to Americans like the tracks a hen makes scratching in the yard.

To send by teletype a message written in Korean has required a translation into English transmission and then re-translation back into Korean.

Advisors at the Korean Military Advisory Group (KMA) Hqs. decided that, hen-tracks or no, there had to be a way to transmit Korean characters directly.

Col. Han Dang Wook, commandant of the Korean Army Signal School, designed a keyboard with 24 Korean characters which is now used on some teletype machines that formerly had only American characters.

But the American teletype operators couldn't handle the strange and bewildered Korean. So the KMA advisors set up a school to train ROK and ROK-WAC teletype operators.

SFC. Hugo B. Atoms, Sutton's Bay, Mich., was put in charge of the three-week course. At its conclusion Korean teletype circuits started operating, relieving the heavy load on radio nets and speeding communications. But to American eyes, the messages are still hen tracks. (AFPS)

Old Twin Bunk Helps Put Guns Dead On Target

Hokkaido, Japan—Ingenious soldiers of the First Cavalry Division here have figured out a convenient way to direct field artillery fire—from bed.

It is the fire direction center mechanism, however, that occupies the bed, not the soldiers.

The idea came from Capt. William H. Fleshman of Leavenworth, Kans., who used the metal frames from a regular Army double bunk to house equipment for directing artillery fire in two compact units.

First, the double bunk was broken down into two cots. Where the mattress ordinarily would go, Fleshman built six-inch deep wooden boxes with plywood covers which open and close on a hinge, thus providing two work tables.

The box on one of the beds was wired as a telephone switchboard to receive calls from observation posts. With the top closed, the fire direction center workers can plot target ranges on maps spread on the plywood cover.

The box top on the second bed provides another plotting board, while supplies and accessories are kept inside the box.

By gathering the fire direction center paraphernalia into these two handy units, Fleshman solved several problems of time, space, equipment loss, and confusion.

When immediate action is necessary, the switchboard unit can be set up as a table in two or three minutes and walled in by sandbags for initial protection.

Or, if the situation calls for it, the legs on the bed-tables can be collapsed, and the entire unit lowered into a trench for better cover and concealment.

Blood Donations In Army Area Are Below Quota

Blood donations during May decreased from the amount collected during April 1953, and did not equal the quotas established by Headquarters Sixth Army.

Fort Lewis led the collection for May with 2,720 pints of blood and also led in the cumulative totals from 1 January, 1953, with 7,970 pints. And not too far behind is Camp Stoneman with a collection of 2,596 pints for second place, also a cumulative total of 7,142 pints. Fort Ord placed third for collection with 1,786 pints and cumulative total of 7,066 pints.

Revision of the annual quotas for Sixth Army installations will be made in the immediate future, giving full consideration to the reduction in civilian personnel strengths and to changes in military strengths which have occurred at Sixth Army installations. The revised quotas for calendar year 1953 will be published in the summary of blood collections for the month of June 1953.

Weekly World News AT A GLANCE

KOREAN FIGHTING went into its fourth year Thursday with only a few skirmishes on the central front, where 2,200 Chinese Reds fell Wednesday in a futile 6,000-man attack against United States and South Korean infantry. It was equally quiet elsewhere along the 155-mile front, which twists through hills and valleys only a few miles from where the North Korean Communists invaded three years ago. . . . SOUTH KOREA's President Syngman Rhee, speaking to thousands of supporters who poured into the streets of Seoul to demonstrate for national unity on the war's anniversary, called for an immediate military "showdown" with the Communists to achieve Korea's unification and a fight to the death if necessary. He demanded either changes in a truce plan or freedom "to decide our own fate by our own hands." Assistant United States Secretary of State Walter S. Robertson, President Eisenhower's special envoy, was to see Rhee on Friday to deliver a personal document from Secretary of State John Dulles. . . . IN EAST GERMANY, at least twenty-nine firing squad executions have been made following last week's bloody revolt of German workers. Western sources estimate as many as 20,000 workers have been jailed. To placate the rioting workmen, Prime Minister Otto Grotewohl promised to free many of the thousands arrested, increase social benefits and lighten the rearmament burden. His regime turned back to private hands forty nationalized factories and embarked on a new course of allowing public discussion in the factories of workers' complaints. . . . IN LONDON, Prime Minister Churchill declared the recent uprising in East Germany "demonstrated the urgent necessity of reuniting Germany through free elections." He wrote Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of the Bonn Republic he hoped the Russians might now "see their way" to negotiate on unifying Germany under terms laid down by the Western powers. His note placed it squarely up to the Russians to take the next step in paving the way for a "free, all-German government and eventually for the negotiation of a peace treaty." . . . IN PARIS, General Matthew B. Ridgway told the North Atlantic Council in his farewell appearance he regards action on unification of NATO's Central European Command "as a matter of urgent importance." The command is split among air, ground and naval chiefs. The general has proposed that it be placed under the single command of French Marshal Alfons Juin.

FRANCE continued to try to choose a new premier this week. President Auriol Wednesday called on Joseph Laniel, a deputy little known outside his own Independent Republican party, to have a try at ending the political crisis. The nomination was announced after former Premier Antoine Pinay, another independent, gave up his attempts to put together the nation's nineteenth post-war cabinet. France has been without a government since Premier Rene Mayer was ousted 21 May. . . . AT GENEVA, SWITZERLAND, a United Nations committee reported that forced labor as a means of political persecution was definitely established in the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and Romania. In four other countries—Hungary, Poland, South Africa and Malaya—the committee found laws permitting forced labor for political coercion also existed, but there was not sufficient evidence to establish whether or to what extent these laws were applied in practice. . . . IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA, the Trade Union Federation has ordered its affiliated organizations to send 4,000 of their best officials and workers into the coal mines to prevent further decline of the country's endangered coal production. The measure became necessary in view of the effects of recent strikes in the area, which resulted in disturbances, acts of sabotage and in the lowering of the workers' morale. . . . IN MOSCOW, the Soviet government told foreign residents in Russia—including Western diplomats—they can travel more freely about the country. Hereto even foreign diplomats have been limited in their movements, being permitted to visit only specified areas. . . . ARRIVING IN SCOTLAND on her first coronation visit to her realms and territories, Queen Elizabeth took part in a national service of thanksgiving. During the service, the ancient crown, sceptre and sword of Scotland was carried to the altar for the first time since before the union of Scotland and England in 1707.

EGYPT has been proclaimed a republic after 5,000 years as a monarchy. Major General Mohammed Naguib, Egyptian "strong man," was named its first President. The monarchy ended eight days less than one year after Naguib overthrew former King Farouk. The new system of government will be maintained for a three-year transition period after which the nation will decide in a plebiscite what form of republic it wishes and who shall be President. . . . DENMARK's most powerful political party, the Social Democrats, reversed its policy and virtually refused proposals for United States fighter planes to operate from Danish bases. Last year the United States offered to send two wings of fighter planes to strengthen Atlantic pact defenses. The proposal caused a heated political debate, but until this week the Social Democrats had given the idea their moral backing. Many Danes regard the stationing of foreign forces in Denmark as an infringement on the country's sovereignty. . . . CAMBODIA's Monarch, King Norodom Sihanouk returned to his country last weekend from self-imposed exile in Siam and became commander-in-chief of the independent Cambodian Army. His spokesman said the king has received reports France has prepared three battalions and has distributed arms to French residents. The spokesman also said "Cambodians are ready to die for independence. This means an independence war, but the King is first watching French movements and awaiting French initiative." . . . IN HAWAII, sugar workers returned to work, but Honolulu's waterfront remained shut down by mass walkouts protesting last week's convictions in a Communist conspiracy case. The protest strike began Friday after a Federal Court jury convicted Jack Hall, ILWU Hawaii leader, and six others of plotting to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the government. . . . IN KENYA, ten persons, including six white people, were believed dead following a Mau Mau attack on a farm house. Officials said fifteen of the anti-white terrorists burned the house and the white occupants were thought to have died in the blaze. The attackers also killed three African employees at the farm.

Recently Assigned

Lt. Colonel John D. Bowersock has taken over the duties of Commanding officer of the 46th Ordnance group.

He had been assistant Ordnance officer with Headquarters III Corps, Fort MacArthur, Calif., since September 1951.

Colonel Bowersock began his Army career in World War I when he served in France and Germany with the Quartermaster corps. In World War II he served in the United States, in Korea, he spent 14 months with the Third Division, and has been awarded the Bronze Star medal. Col. Bowersock has a total of 12 years of active duty.

Lt. Colonel Angus J. Werrell has recently been assigned to the Quartermaster section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

For the past three and one-half years, he had been director of the non-resident training division, the Quartermaster school, Fort Lee, Va.

Col. Werrell was with the 77th Infantry division, AEF, in World War I, and in World War II he spent a total of 51 months overseas with the South Atlantic forces in Brazil and later in Germany and France, in the former as constabulary Quartermaster, First district, and in the latter with the graves registration command in Paris.

Captain Floyd G. Craft has recently completed the 10-months Artillery officer advanced course at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

He is now assigned to plans and services division, G-1 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

In Korea, Capt. Craft served 15 months with the 17th Field Artillery battalion. And in World War II, he served 13 months in Hawaii with the 64th CA AAA, at the beginning of the war, and 21 months with the 45th Infantry division as it pushed from Africa to Sicily, Italy and Southern France.

Capt. Craft's decorations include the Silver Star Medal, the Air Medal with three clusters and the Purple Heart. He has been in the Army for the past 12 and one-half years.

WOJG Roy C. Sims, who has been in training at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland, for the past 18 months, is now Detachment Commander, 585th Ordnance Integrated Fire Control Repair detachment.

The team, which will repair radar equipment used by the various AAA units in the San Francisco area, is the second group to be assigned here, preceded by the 568th OISCRD.

WOJG Sims' career began some 14 years ago when he served with the Royal Canadian Air Force. This service, from 1939 to 1941, earned for him the King George Medal and the Canadian Volunteers award.

In World War II, he returned to this country, enlisted in the U. S. Air Force and saw service in both the European and South Pacific theatres. He wears the Aid Medal with Bronze Star and Cluster.

WOJG Sims enlisted in the Army in 1947, and received his warrant in November 1951. During this period he served with the PIO office at Fort Ord, California, and was editor of the Fort Ord "Panorama."

CWO Lester C. Deane, personnel officer for the 315th Engineers at Fort Worden, Wash., since October 1952, is now holding that same position with the group here at the Presidio.

An enlisted man in World War II, CWO Deane was with the original cadre of the 99th (Checkerboard) Division, from its activation in 1942 until its de-activation in 1945, and served with them for 13 months in the European theatre.

In his Korean service with the Second Division, CWO Deane was wounded and received the Purple Heart and the Combat Infantry Badge.

From 1946 until 1950, he was an ROTC instructor at Balboa High school, San Francisco, and for his services there was presented the Army Commendation ribbon by Lt. General Albert C. Wedemeyer, former Sixth Army commander. CWO Deane has been in the Army for the past 17 years.

Major Raymond V. Walling is the newly assigned TC supply officer, Post Transportation section.

His most recent assignment was as Transportation officer, Rhine Ordnance depot, Kaiserslautern, Germany, where he has been for the past two years.

Major Walling has a total of 11 years' service and in World War II, he served in the office of the chief of Transportation, the Pentagon.

Lt. Alvin McDowell is the commanding officer of the 315th Engineer group, which has been transferred here from Fort Worden, Wash. At Fort Worden, Lt. McDowell was executive officer at Headquarters and Headquarters Service company.

Lt. McDowell returned recently from 30th months' duty in the Philippine Islands where he was operations and supply officer for the 85th Engineer boat company of the 29th Engineer Base Topographic Bn.

In November, Lt. McDowell will complete five years of service with the Army.

Lt. Manuel R. Caldera has received his initial assignment as Motor officer, 315th Engineer group.

He was recently graduated from Officer Candidate school, Fort Belvoir, Va., his duty station since he entered the Army last year.

Lt. Caldera is a native of Long Beach, Calif.

Report from WASHINGTON

(By Armed Forces Press Service)

In recent Congressional action, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill which allows retired military personnel to let some of their retirement pay accumulate for payment later to their survivors.

On the Senate side, Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, introduced a bill to authorize the loan of two submarines to Italy, and another bill permitting personnel of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics to attend graduate schools for research and study to promote a more effective air research program.

A series of 10 short postgraduate courses will be conducted by the Army Medical Service during the fiscal year 1953-54, the office of the Army Surgeon General has revealed. The courses are designed to help medical officers keep abreast of recent medical advances.

A new course of instruction, the Associate Command and General Staff Officers Course, replaces two previous courses at the Command and General Staff College, Gen. John R. Hodge, Chief of Army Field Forces, said recently. The first class of the new course commences Aug. 24, 1953.

President Eisenhower has appointed two Defense Department officials to three-year terms on the Board of Governors for the American Red Cross. The two are: Dr. John A. Hannah, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower, and Dr. Melvin A. Casberg, assistant in charge of health and medical affairs. They succeed RADM Herbert L. Pugh, USN, and Maj. Gen. George E. Armstrong, USA, of the Navy's Bureau of Medicine and the Army Surgeon General, respectively.

An Ordinary Guy Does An Extraordinary Job

Nobody likes a policeman. He walks apart from the rest of the world because he's a symbol of authority, and it's human to resent authority.

Yet he is the power people turn to when they're in need—when they're in danger, in trouble, when they're hurt.

The Military Policeman is the Army counterpart of the familiar civilian brass-buttoned man in blue. To him come the varied tasks of the man on the beat—security, order, protection, help. To these jobs he must lend those traits which are an integral part of any good policeman's makeup—coolness, determination, intelligence, and sympathy.

This is the man who sees the soldier at his best—on leave and pass, out to have fun. He is the man, too, who sees the soldier at his worst—the trouble maker, the drunk, the thief.

He's the walking information booth, the man who gives directions, answers, the shoulder on which the tales of woe are poured. He listens patiently to the weak alibis, the threadbare excuses of the erring.

His hours are long and lonely. He patrols his area on crowded city streets. He walks into the sordid trouble spots and down the shadowy back alleys through the greying hours of the night.

He watches, listens, patrols.

A soldier in a wreck on the highway—the MP is there to help the hurt, to check damages, to cooperate with civilian police. The flash of a knife in a smoky bar—the MP arrives to give first aid, to arrest the wrongdoer.

A civilian cheats a soldier—the MP's job is to check it, to notify police, to help. Rows of warehouses stretch into the night—the MP is testing the locks. A sudden fire—the MP is helping fight it, directing traffic, standing by. A flood, a tornado—disaster is part of the job.

And they're always soldiers. Honor Guard? Call the MPs. Parade? Look for the white hats. Ceremony? The Military Police.

They're fighters, too. In the early days of the Korean campaign, MPs were often among the first to enter a shattered town and usually the last to leave in a retreat.

They battled guerrillas, rounded up snipers and spies, arrested saboteurs, fed refugees, guarded prisoners.

They died in roadblocks and surprise raids—all in a day's work.

The MP arrests, he does not punish. The tough drunk, the deserter, the thief, the brawler are held to face a military court.

Court Martials are held during the day. But after a long hard night on duty, who is a witness at the trial? The MP.

The Military Policeman is no burly bully, no shining paragon, no sinner, no saint. He's just an ordinary guy—doing an extraordinary job.

Committee Advises:

Atomic Offensive Capability Answer to Nation's Security

Washington—A powerful U. S. atomic offensive capability is a vital, major part of the nation's over-all defense system, a special civilian committee has advised Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

The Committee, appointed by former Defense Secretary Robert A. Lovett and headed by Dr. M. J. Kelly, president of Bell Telephone Laboratories, called for continued development of the atomic attack capability, and said that it must be reasonably invulnerable to an initial attack.

There can be no safety in the atomic age short of the elimination of war, the committee emphasized. They expressed concern over public support of a program which has been claimed to give nearly perfect protection against enemy air attack.

Any such defense seems completely impractical both economically and technically, the committee said, in the face of expected advances in the ability of the potential enemy to attack us.

The statement apparently referred to recommendations of a group of scientists for a vastly elaborate radar system coupled with a 100 per cent effective air defense system, costing many billions of dollars.

Dr. Kelly also recommended close attention to improving organization for handling the complex operations of continental defense against air attack.

Improvement of the present system for early warning of approaching hostile aircraft was given "particular attention" as well as equipment and procedure improvements necessary for intercepting and destroying hostile flights.

While pointing out the need for getting the most from our present defensive system, the committee noted that many of the long term problems of air defense can be answered only by continued support to a research and development program specifically established for this purpose.

The U. S. and Canada have a mutual defense problem, the committee also pointed out. "A close integration of the defense measures of these two countries" was highlighted as being a necessity. The connection between the defense of North America and that of other areas was noted, particularly as the early warning network expands.

The Defense Department was urged to direct a program to bring about widespread public understanding of the military aspects of continental defense.

San Francisco Birthday

Colonel Harrie E. Hoxie, Post S-4, will be one of the main speakers when San Francisco observes its 177th birthday Monday (29 June). He will speak at traditional services to be held at the Mission Dolores honoring Captain Jose Joaquin Moraga, founder of the first Presidio of what is now San Francisco. A luncheon for civic and military leaders will be held at the Presidio Officers club at noon Monday.

rounds in their tour of Presidio installations. Guarding the area and its buildings is a 24-hour job with the 505th, who this week are celebrating their first anniversary on the post.

Havin' A Birthday!

505th Military Police Have 1st Anniversary on Presidio

It has been a year since the 505th Military Police battalion arrived at the Presidio for duty.

While the battalion actually arrived here on 24 June, 1952, the anniversary is being observed today (26 June) with a birthday cake complete with one shiny candle!

Present strength of the outfit is 606, and this number includes both officers and enlisted men. Its reactivation took place on 25 July, 1951, at Camp Roberts, California, and they served there a year before coming to the Presidio.

Lt. Colonel Keene Saxon is the present commanding officer.

The Military Policeman, because he is what he is, can expect to be called upon to do just about anything.

Retreat and decoration ceremonies are a natural for him. Color guards are a must for any civic or military occasion. Last year a 505th Color guard went to the California State Fair as well as to numerous other functions.

As honor guards, they escorted a score of dignitaries to and from the Presidio, including Frank Pace, former secretary of the Army.

On Columbus day, 12 October, the 505th marched on Market street in a parade; they did the same for St. Patrick's day which was 17 March.

Their post duties make them responsible for the general security of the Presidio. This includes a variety of activities such as prisoner chasing, building security, traffic control, escort duty, honor guard duty, sedan jeep and motorcycle patrol, and cadre at the Military Police Training center, Fort Baker.

In addition, units of the battalion have served on several special missions. At Camp Desert Rock, they were responsible for maintaining security during the recent series of atomic bomb tests. Town patrol was furnished in Las Vegas, as well as highway and traffic patrol between Las Vegas and Camp Desert Rock.

Presently, at Hunter-Liggett

Military reservation, a detachment of the 505th is performing the duty of game warden.

From its arrival to December of last year, the battalion was responsible for post security at Camp Stoneman, as well as town patrol at Pittsburg and the surrounding territory.

When the Military Police Training center opened at Fort Baker on 23 December, 1952, some members of the 505th became cadre, and have since trained and graduated several hundred men as MP's.

The concentrated eight-weeks course includes basics of enforcement of military laws, control of traffic, protection of property, handling of prisoners of war, and the operation of check points.

Unit Physical Training To Be Taught at Bragg

Instruction course to train company grade officers and selected non-commissioned officers primarily designated to conduct unit physical training will be held at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. This Physical Training Instruction Course is not designed for those personnel who are responsible for developing and supervising unit training and athletic programs.

The prerequisites for officers are as follows: must be below the grade of major and under thirty-one years of age, be a member of the Regular Army or a reserve component officer in an active status or on active duty whose assignment, actual or anticipated, is to physical education duties, and pass the Army Physical Fitness Test with score of 250 points or better.

Enlisted men must be grade E-4 or above, under thirty-one, have a Standard score of 90 or higher on aptitude area III, and score 250 or better with the Army Physical Fitness Test.

The length of the course is three weeks.

"NOW WHAT DO I DO," says the driver trainee to Cpl. Norman W. LaVigne, right, supervising at the driver training course, Military Police Training Center. At the Center, future MPs learn how to get out of messes like this one, as well as perform services to individuals, control traffic and protect property. The Center, which has been in operation for the past six months, is manned by 505th MP Bn. personnel who are celebrating their first anniversary at the Presidio.

PRESIDIO PROGRESS

Additional units of the Wheery Housing project have been completed and released for occupancy, announces Capt. Duane Bagley, post billeting officer. Of these newly completed units, the Presidio has been allotted 15 for junior field grade officers.

Captain Bagley states that the housing project was to have been completed by 10 August, but that the current strike by construction laborers may postpone the completion date.

Captain Bagley assumed his duties as billeting officer upon his recent return from temporary duty at Camp Desert Rock. He was formerly assigned to the Post Special Services section.

Two Presidio cannons, dating back to 1783, will soon be moved by the Post Engineers from Fort Scott to the Lombard street entrance to the post. They will be placed on each side of the gate and will give an historic atmosphere for the many Presidio visitors using that entrance.

While no definite records of these two cannons could be located, they are believed to be some of those brought here shortly after the establishment of the Presidio.

Both cannons are engraved with elaborate crests and each is named—one, Agraciado, and the other, Grabiado. One bears the legend "No 1254, Sevilla, 1783, 3 October" and the other "No. 1274, Sevilla, 1783, 5 December."

They have been at the Kobbe avenue entrance to Fort Scott, east of the Funston approach to the Golden Gate Bridge.

The Post Education Center reports that the summer college session of three upper division courses, which began on 8 June, has met with enthusiasm and appreciation by the officers and enlisted personnel of the post.

Over 50 are enrolled in the psychology class, and the class in Twentieth Century Europe has an enrollment of over 40. It was necessary to limit the class in public speaking and group discussion to 30. Total enrollment for these classes included 78 officers and 42 enlisted personnel.

This college program, designed to raise the educational level of military personnel, has progressed to such an extent that in the future it is expected that it will be necessary to limit enrollments in each class.

Two officers of the post who have participated in the on-post college program received degrees this month and three additional officers will receive their degrees before the first of the year.

Helicopter Rescue!

30th Engineer Pilot Finds Boys Lost in Alaskan Woods

Three Fort Richardson youngsters who wandered into the wilderness last night in search of new adventures were back in the safety of their homes today.

The young trio, all boys, were found safe and unharmed by an Army helicopter team less than four hours after authorities were first notified they were missing.

In the meantime four search airplanes and a special battalion of men and patrol equipment had been alerted to join in the wide-spread search.

The youngsters were Richard Shank, 9, son of Sgt. and Mrs. William E. Shank, and Robert and Norman Cone, sons of Capt. and Mrs. Ralph N. Cone. Their ages are 8 and 10, respectively.

The helicopter that spotted the boys was piloted by Capt. Harry L. Jones, a member of the aviation section, 30th Engineer Topographical Battalion. Accompanying him was an observer, Cpl. Don Anderson.

Jones landed his craft after the trio was seen walking along a path about four miles east of the Post. He returned two of the three youngsters on the first trip, leaving Anderson with the other to await the return trip.

The boys had been playing together and apparently wandered too far and became lost. They were tired, but not afraid, rescuers reported.

Tokens of Love

Bridgeport, Conn.—The local civil defense plan to issue identification tags to school children has hit a snag. Officials discovered that boys and girls were exchanging the tags as tokens of affection.

Presidio Girl Scouts In 2-Day Encampment, Learn Outdoor Angles

It's fun and it's educational.

That's what the youngsters in the Presidio Girl Scout Troop No. 187 learned this week when they took part in a two-day outdoor encampment.

From Tuesday through Thursday morning, the 32 girls and their leaders camped in the Julius Kahn playground area here on the Presidio, and made like they were really in the wilderness.

They pitched their own tents, cooked their own food, and studied trail signs which might prove of valuable assistance to them in their later lives.

Of course all the time they were doing this they were working toward badges which would be awarded them for good Scouting practices and achievements.

There are six of these girls who are working especially hard—to earn their Pioneer badges, one of the advanced stations in Girl Scouting.

Mrs. George Masters is the leader in charge, assisted by Sgt. Ethel Moore, Presidio WAC detachment, Mrs. M. C. Christine, and Mrs. Herman O. Freeman.

Army T.I.C. Topic

"The War in Indochina," Armed Forces Talk No. 439, will be the basis for the Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units next week. Indochina is the key to Southeast Asia, and a bitter war has been raging there for six years to keep it from falling under Communist control.

If the Communist forces could take over in Indochina, they would be a step closer to their goal of dominating other countries of Southeast Asia—Burma, Thailand, Malaya, and Indonesia. And here's what Communist domination of Southeast Asia would mean: control of 67 million people who would become part of Communism's manpower reserve; control of half the tin and most of the rubber that the free world needs for its defenses; and control of the richest rice-producing areas in the world.

Recently, Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas visited Southeast Asia and described its importance this way: "Rice means power. China is hungry for rice. Japan is heavily dependent on rice, which must be imported. If the Communist forces had command of the food supplies of Asia, they would soon have the food-deficit countries at their mercy."

Recently an upsurge in the fighting has once again attracted world attention. The outcome of this struggle is of vital importance to Asia, the United States, and the entire free world.

Money Conscious?

Only one prize has been awarded in the series of six local contests for articles written on "What Cost Consciousness Means to Me." Five more $5 prizes will be awarded between now and 31 July. The right combination of not more than 500 words submitted to Post S-4 Building M-9, will do the trick.

And the winners may parley their earnings into greater cash returns. A first and second prize of $10 and $5 respectively, will be awarded among the winners of the individual contests. Furthermore, entries submitted to the Sixth Army contest will have chances for top prizes of $35, $20 and $10.

HISTORIC CHAPEL, built in 1884 at Fort Douglas, Utah, will be rededicated at ceremonies on 28 June. All denominations will be served in the chapel, which has just been completely renovated. While actually part of the University of Utah property deeded by Fort Douglas, the chapel is under Army jurisdiction on a year-to-year basis.

Rededication Set!

Historic Fort Douglas Chapel Again Opened for Worshippers

Rededication of the renovated Fort Douglas, Utah, Post chapel will take place on 28 June, according to an announcement made by Colonel William C. McFadden, Post Commander and Chief of the Utah Military district.

Open house and inspection of the newly decorated facilities will take place on 27 June from 1400 to 1700.

While the chapel has been in use since Easter by All Saints Episcopal mission, additional services for all denominations are planned, the colonel said.

First religious services at Fort Douglas, then Camp Douglas, were conducted in a tent which was a gift of the Presbyterian church of San Francisco in 1862.

The present chapel was erected in 1884, 69 years ago, at a cost of $4,500. It was not equipped with electricity until 1910, and was partially destroyed by fire in 1922.

In 1943, extensive improvements, including a new altar, pulpit, and communion rail, were installed, but these were all shipped to San Francisco in 1946, when the Ninth Service Command was transferred there.

Deeded to the University of Utah in 1948 as part of 304 acres acquired by the university from Fort Douglas, the chapel is now under U. S. Army jurisdiction on a year-to-year basis.

Americans Taste Korean Chow Once

One U. S. Army mess in Pusan is turning out the Korean national dish, kimchi, a notably pungent pickled vegetable combination, the National Geographic Society noted recently.

The kimchi is not prepared for Americans but for ROK troops who drive and repair trucks in a transportation battalion.

Some Americans have tasted kimchi once. Koreans eat it for breakfast, lunch and dinner. It comes in many varieties, most of which have a strong resemblance to sauerkraut.

Whatever the base, kimchi is enlivened with such things as leeks, onions, garlic, spices, hot peppers, ginger and dry salted shrimp. It ages for a few days and is ready to eat.

There is an advantage to the pungent odor, western troops say. It has a marked effect on the eater's breath and minimizes the danger of being ambushed by North Koreans if the wind is from the right direction. (AFPS)

SILVER STAR

On July 4, 1944 Pvt. Louis A. Gaybrant, U.S. Army, was serving with the 83rd Inf. Div. in Normandy. His platoon was pinned down by heavy enemy machinegun fire. Pvt. Gaybrant "maintained the fighting spirit of the platoon and successfully covered their withdrawal." He was awarded the Silver Star for "gallantry in action." On Dec. 18 of the same year he was awarded his second Silver Star as a result of action in Germany "for gallantry and disregard of personal safety." In Korea on Apr. 24, 1951, Gaybrant, then a Pfc., fearlessly exposed himself to enemy fire in order to call in effective machinegun fire on enemy attackers. In addition, with his rifle and grenade fire, he helped to stall each assaulting wave of enemy troops until he was ordered to leave. He was awarded the Silver Star for "Inspiring and heroic action."

To date Cpl. Gaybrant has received:
The Silver Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters.
Combat Infantry Badge with Star.
Purple Heart with three Oak Leaf Clusters.
Bronze Star.
Four Campaign Stars.

Bremerhaven Army Lift Sets New Weight Mark

Bremerhaven POE, Germany—The Army's giant floating crane established a new all-time lifting record here recently when it picked up the 192-ton Navy minesweeper, AMC 135.

The 135-foot vessel from the U. S. Naval Advanced Base here had been repaired and was lifted, complete with cradle, back into the water. The crane, one of the largest in the world, has a capacity of 250 tons and is operated by the Army Transportation Corps.

Extend Reductions

Washington — Reduced furlough fares on the nation's railroads for military personnel traveling in uniform at their own expense have been extended until Jan. 31, 1954. The reduction was to have expired on July 31st of this year.

This action will continue the tax-exempt round-trip fares for military personnel on furlough, at the rate of 2.025 cents per mile or less, good in coaches, which means a saving of up to one cent per mile and includes regular stopover and baggage privileges.

JWB-USO Volunteers Will Be Honored at Recognition Day Fete

Jewish Welfare board armed services committee will pay tribute to JWB-USO volunteers at a volunteers recognition day ceremony Sunday (June 28) from 1400 to 1600 at San Francisco Jewish community center, 3200 California street.

More than 35 local Jewish organizations will receive certificates of merit for their contribution in serving men and women in uniform stationed in this area and overseas. In addition to the organizational awards, more than 250 individual volunteers will be given certificates and USO and JWB pins during the ceremony.

Highlight of this second annual recognition day program will be a salute to Colonel Jesse C. Colman, chairman of the Sixth Army area, armed services division, JWB. Colman, who is retiring after 30 years of active leadership in the organization, will receive a gold medal award as the individual in the San Francisco community who has contributed most to members of the armed forces. Walter D. Heller has been chosen to replace Col. Colman.

Thursday, 2 July—"City of Bad Men," with Jeanne Crain and Dale Robertson.

Cinema Previews

"SHOOT FIRST," F*, concerns a harmless round of buckshot fired at a suspected poacher. This sets off a chain of events that leads to the smashing of a spy ring in England.

"LILI," F*, is a girl. A loveable, dramatic girl who develops the habit of discussing her problems with the puppets in a carnival. Just how wise can puppets get?

"CITY OF BAD MEN," F*, is the story of Carson City on the day of the Jim Corbett-Bob Fitzsimmons heavyweight championship fight. Three outlaw gangs are drawn into the city, each with the idea of stealing the $100,000 gate receipts.

"PHANTOM FROM SPACE," F*, concerns the report to police that murder has been committed by a headless man wearing a diver's suit. A nerve-racking search for the weird, elusive phantom from another planet ensues.

"GENTLEMEN PREFER BLONDES," M, is of course about Marilyn Monroe and Jane Russell. The story is that these two gals theorize that if diamonds are a girl's best friend, the rich boys who can buy them should be at least second best.

Army Reserve Major Rescues Trapped Pair, Gets National Acclaim

Major Walter Schau, US Army Reserve, executive officer of the 385th Evacuation hospital, USAR, stationed here at the Presidio, is the subject of an article appearing throughout the nation, regarding his daring rescue of two men trapped in the tractor section of a trailer.

The mishap, which occurred recently at Redding, California, was photographed by Major Schau's wife, Virginia, and as a result it has been printed in major newspapers throughout the country.

Major Schau has had wide experience in emergencies, having been commanding officer of the 593rd Ambulance company, which was attached to the Third army in World War II, and saw action in France, Germany and Belgium. He has been a member of the Reserves since the close of the war.

With U. S. 40th Div. in Korea—Something came out of nowhere, striking Cpl. Bertram White a stunning blow on his helmet.

He was knocked 15 feet. As his head cleared Cpl. White staggered to his feet and felt for his dented headgear. He found that he had received a direct hit by a dud mortar shell! Further examination showed that it was the entire shell, not just a fragment.

De Tata Aces Velarde for Post Net Championship; Squad Eyes All-Sixth

Stringing six straight winning sets of champion tennis to produce victories over three consecutive opponents, Lt. Douglas De Tata, of the 30th Engineers, Fort Scott, last week-end smashed his way to a first-place title in the 1953 Presidio Tennis Tournament, winning a champion's trophy and securing for himself top-spot in this year's Post delegation to the All-Sixth Army Preliminary Tennis Tournament, to be held at Camp Roberts, 27 July to 1 August.

De Tata defeated Sgt. Anas Velarde in the final match to become the champion. He had reached the finals by virtue of a semi-final victory over Pvt. Robert Williams. Velarde edged Colonel B. Meinert in his semi-final match.

Match scores were: (First round) Spangler d. Pyirros, 3-6, 9-7, 6-2; Moody d. Stowel, 6-3, 1-6, 6-3.

(Second round) Velarde d. Cusher, 6-0, 6-1; Meinert d. Spangler, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2; Williams d. Moody, 6-1, 6-2; De Tata d. Trueblood, 6-0, 6-1.

(Semi-finals) Velarde d. Meinert, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2; De Tata d. Williams, 6-1, 6-2, and in the final match De Tata triumphed over Velarde, 6-2, 6-2.

In addition to finding a Post Champion, the tourney was held to determine a team to represent

New evidence that the American game of baseball is a booming sport in Europe came recently from Rome with the announcement of plans for Belgian and Italian all-star teams to meet at Milan, 6 September, and Italian-Spanish all-star teams in Spain in August.

Pick Your All-Stars

Servicemen around the world are invited to send in their selections for the starting line-ups of the annual All-Star game to be played at Crosley Field, Cincinnati, July, 14.

The American and National League teams will be determined according to the number of ballots a player receives at his position. Ballots should be mailed to Sports Editor, Armed Forces Radio Service, 641 Washington Street, New York City, by July 7.

the Presidio at the Sixth Army Preliminaries at Camp Roberts. Tentative team members are: Lt. De Tata, Sgt. Velarde, Col. Meinert, Pvt. Williams, Pvt. Jim Pyirros, and Pvt. Tim Spangler, although section commitments may whittle the membership to three by the time travel deadline comes about.

De Tata's victory follows many seasons of active tennis play on California courts. The Post champion was previously 1950 Northern California Junior College Doubles Champion, and was active with the University of San Francisco netmen 1950-51.

Engineers Softball Sizzles; 30th HQ And 99th At Top

This week, the 99th Engineers defeated the 45th Boat Company 15-6 behind the 7-hit twirling of Sammy Cotton who also blasted a round tripper for the winners. Brinkmeyer was chalked up with the loss.

The 45th Boat Company rallied in the fifth when they loaded the bases. But a line drive smashed off the second baseman's shin bounded to the shortstop who stepped on second and flipped the ball to first for the double play.

Wednesday's contest saw the 21st engineers surge to an early lead over the Headquarters Club. The 21st scored one run in the first, three more in the second to lead 4-0 going into the third. In the third, the 21st scored one more run but in the bottom of that frame the Headquarters attack caught fire on hits by Wilson, Hollier, Herzog and Baker, and it was a 5-3 ballgame.

After six innings the count was tied at 6-6. The 21st failed to score in the top of the seventh, and in the bottom of the seventh Van Soest parlayed a double, an error in fielding and an overthrow to the plate, to produce the winning marker.

Harris won his third game in as many appearances for the Headquarters nine. He gave up only 6 hits, walked 7 and fanned 7. Cobb was the losing moundsman allowing 11 hits, 7 runs, fanned five and did not give out any free passes.

Golfer Yost Wins Roberts Tourney; Heads Post Team

The Camp Roberts Post Golf Tournament came to a close recently with the highly-rated long-hitting Dick Yost, three time winner of the Oregon State Medal Play Amateur championship, coming in for the winner's laurels. Yost shot 69 and 70 for a three under par 139 in the last day's rounds over the tricky Morro Bay course, totaling a slim 278, six under par, for the complete four rounds.

Eight strokes behind Yost came Leslie Howatt, carding 299 for four rounds, with Harold Freer, the only returning member of last year's Southern Division and Sixth Army championship team, finishing 306.

A group has been chosen from the six low medalists to represent Camp Roberts in the Sixth Army preliminary tournament to be held here at the Presidio Golf Course, 7-10 July. The team members are: Dick Yost, Harold Freer, William Pennington, Dave Costello, Leslie Howatt, Dave Samuelson, Bob Meuchel, and Dick Dotson.

Golf great Bobby Jones won his first title at the age of nine, the U. S. Open at 21. Although he was an amateur when he won the Open in 1923 and again in 1926, 1929, and 1930, Jones did not become U. S. Amateur titlist until 1924. He won four subsequent U. S. Amateur championships and scored his famous "grand slam" in 1930.

Dick Kokos and Rocco Ippolito, former members of the Army team, played "by popular demand" with the Browns against the Brooke Army Medical Center at San Antonio, Tex., the morning of April 4, and were responsible for the defeat of the soldiers, 3 to 2, in ten innings. Kokos made a game-saving catch in the ninth and Ippolito doubled in Kokos with the winning run in the tenth. Bobo Holloman pitched the first nine innings for the Browns.

Six Straight!

Raiders Blast to Loop Finish; Clobber Navy, Marine Crews

Primed to the gills with a three series victory sweep last week against teams topping the service rosters in League standings, the Presidio Red Raiders followed in a like fashion recently with three more victories against the Alameda Naval Air Station, Treasure Island Marines, and Gen. A. E. Anderson crew, to extend their end-of-the-season win streak to a full six games. In the game tallies, the season's quietus finds the Raider nine locked in fourth position with the Moffett Field Flyers.

Against Alameda, pitcher "Arkie" Stanton turned in a whirlwind finish to his season's performance, nailing the flyboys to eight hits, out of which the visitors drew seven runs, for the final 9-7 tally in favor of the Raiders.

Big inning for the Presidio team came in the sixth, when big guns like Jacobs, Falls and Taylor, all with two for four, belted out their contribution toward the six-run rally which spelled defeat for the Alameda visitors.

Against the Gen. Anderson crew on Monday, fresh talent appeared on the Raider diamond in the person of Ken Klopp, newly arrived pitcher from the East Coast, who held the visitors to a shut-out 13-0 loss. Klopp, prior to the Army, played Class A ball with the Reading, Pennsylvania, ball club and currently belongs to an Indianapolis Triple A team in the Cleveland Indian chain.

No mean batter aside from his mound duties Klopp posted a two for three against the sailors, with Vozel, Fowler, Hamaker and Stanton providing ample batting support.

On Tuesday of this week, the Raiders closed the Armed Force Bay Area season with a 5-4 victory over the Treasure Island

QUESTIONS

- Who holds the all-time National League home run crown?
- The only horse to finish in the money in all three triple crown races last year was: Blue Man, One Count or Hill Gale?
- What pole vaulter once cleared 28 feet?
- What was the fastest Major League game ever played?
- Glenn Cunningham broke four world records in 1934. What two American records does he still hold?

ANSWERS

- Mel Ott, who in 22 seasons with the New York Giants hit 511 homers.
- Blue Man. The White Oaks Stable star ran third in the Kentucky Derby, won the Preakness and finished second in the Belmont Stakes.
- Platt Adams, who established an official mark of 28 feet 2 inches at New York City in 1910. But the vault was for distance, not height.
- The game between the Giants and the Philies, Sept. 23, 1919, won by the Giants 6-1, in 51 minutes.
- The one-mile record made on a track with 220-yard laps—4:04.4, fastest ever run on an American track by an athlete, and the indoor 1500-meter record—3:48.4.

CARL (BOBO) OLSON of San Francisco won the American Middleweight Championship last Friday night when he took a 15-round decision from hard-punching PADDY YOUNG at Madison Square Garden. Official sources say that a fight has been arranged between Olson and RANDY TURPIN of England to determine the undisputed world crown.

In Syracuse, New York, last Sunday, the Navy's mighty Olympic gold medalists unleashed a burst of power in the final yards to retain their Intercollegiate Rowing Association regatta championship and to stretch to 20 their two-year streak of unbroken victories. The Navy's winning time for the three-mile course was 15 minutes 29.6 seconds, which nailed second-place Cornell, Washington, and Wisconsin crews.

Local golfer KEN VENTURI, 22, was named to the Walker Cup team this week by the United States Golf Association. He will join eight other top-ranking American amateurs who will meet England 4-5 September at Kittansett Club, Marion, Mass., in foursomes and singles matches. Venturi, present San Francisco City champion and Northern California Intercollegiate titleholder, was California State champion in 1951, and is the first San Franciscan to be honored with the selection since LAWSON LITTLE was winning the U. S. and British amateur titles. He is also the youngest member of the team.

WES SANTEE may be the country's new miracle man on the cinders if he continues the pace he set at the recent Compton relays. The fast-stepping stringbean ran the mile in 4:02.4, the fastest time ever turned in by an American. The 21-year-old U. of Kansas student hopes some day to crack the four-minute mile. In winning the Compton mile in record time, he also outdid GUNDER HAEGG's U. S. mark of 4:05.3, set at Cambridge, Mass., in 1943.

A mere 21 and playing only his second full season in the American League, MICKEY MANTLE, center fielder for the Yanks, insists that he has plenty to learn and is in no hurry to reach the heights. However, the Yanks are booming Mantle not merely for the batting championship of the league, which they say he is absolutely certain to win, but for the home run and RBI titles as well, for the rarely achieved triple crown—a feat duplicated by only one other Yankee, LOU GEHRIG. Larruping Lou did it in 1934 with .363, 49 homers and 165 RBIs.

At Wimbledon, England, on Tuesday, MAUREEN CONNOLLY and DORIS HART didn't allow opponents a game in winning their first and second round tennis matches. "Little Mo" won her opener over DORA KILLIAN, South Africa, in 21 minutes, while Doris allowed her opponent, JEANNETTE MORGAN of Britain, three minutes more before the coup de grace, in their second-round match.

In the Pennant races, Hollywood had deposed Seattle this week for the Pacific Coast League top-spot, netting 51 wins for 33 losers. Second-place Seattle scampered 50 for an 85 total. In the American League, New York led, in spite of recent upsets, to the tune of 46 wins, 15 losses, while Cleveland bagged second 35 for 61 games played. In the Nats, Milwaukee, championed by the kind of home-town support sports promoters dream of, led the bunch with 41 wins for 62 played. The artful Dodgers clung hard to the Milwaukee skirts with 38 and 24.

In Ann Arbor, Michigan, this week, a powerful Pacific Coast Conference track squad crushed the best of the Big Ten with an 82 1/6 to 49 5/6 victory in the 12th annual meeting between the two conferences. Paced by a magnificent crew from USC, which produced six firsts and 40 1/2 points, the West Coast athletes won 10 of the 16 events and tied in another. Stars of the day included SIM INESS, Olympic discus champion, who broke the meet record set by Stanford's BOB MATHIAS in 1951, with a 178 feet 5 1/2 inches throw—the relay team of VAN BRUNER, JIM CORBELLI, WILLIS THOMSON and JOEL McNULTY, who cracked the American college record of 1940 with a 57.3 sec. streak—JACK DAVIS, USC's hurdling demon, who was the only double winner, taking the high hurdles in 13.8 and the lows in 23.0—and lastly, PARRY O'BRIEN, the shot specialist from USC, who won with ease with a relatively short throw of 55 feet 9 inches, and added more West Coast points by placing second to Iness in the discus with a heave of 169 feet 8 inches.

Ord Footballers Face
Rugged 1953 Season;
Rams, 49ers Slated

It's strictly big league football for the Fort Ord Warriors in the 1953 season, as announcement was made last week of the scheduling of games with two professional football behemoths, the Los Angeles Rams and the San Francisco 49ers.

Final approval of the scheduling is expected momentarily from Bert Bell, Commissioner of the American and National Professional Football Leagues.

The game with the Rams, slated for 1 August at the Long Beach Municipal Stadium, will prove to be a form of homecoming for several former Ordsters including Vardese Carter, George Lagoria, and Dick "Night Train" Lane, who will be performing for the Los Angeles team.

Ralph Kiner of the Pirates led both teams in 1951 with home runs with 42.

Sixth Army Golf
Entrants Keep Coming

The Post Special Services office reports that entries are coming in thick and fast for the nearing Sixth Army Golf preliminaries to be held at the Presidio Golf Club, 7-10 July.

Groups from all over California have filed their entries, including competitors from as near as Fort Mason to as far as the Los Angeles Recruiting and Induction center.

Other installations who have sent their letters of entry include Camp Roberts, Yuma Test Station, Two-Rock Station, Camp Stoneman, San Luis Obispo, and a single entry in the Main Division from the Stanford University R.O.T.C. unit.

One day in 1882, for reasons unknown J. Saunders of New York started running and didn't stop until he had covered 127 miles, 275 yards. He ran for 22 hours and 49 minutes.

Army Thinclads Win All-Service Title;
Sixth Army Stars to Enter A.A.U.

A strong Army track and field team, with 14 cinder experts from installations within the Sixth Army Area, achieved seven first-place titles and 15 other placings to cull a winning 88-point total and run off with the 1953 Inter-Service Track and Field Championship held last Friday and Saturday at Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

The Navy moved to second place in the meet with 59 1/2 points, then the Marines, with 37. Lastly the Air Force flew low and last with 35 1/2.

The Inter-Service contestants succeeded in wiping out six of the meet's standing records.

Much credit for the Army's sweep goes to Second Army's hardy distance specialist 2nd Lt. Warren Druetzler, who won first-place laurels in all of the three events—the three-mile run, the two-mile steeplechase and the one-mile run—to emerge meet champion and winner of the Outstanding Athlete Award for this year.

First Army victory came on last Friday, with Druetzler's 14:44.6 record-smashing three-miler. He was followed by Fifth Army's Phil Coleman.

It was in the meet's second day that most of the Army's significant scoring began, with Fort Ord Olympic jump-ace George Brown taking his specialty with a 25 feet 2 1/4 inches leap, Sixth Army's Robert Cook in second place. Brown's jump bettered the previous 24 feet 6 1/2 inches meet record.

In the 880 Second Army's Henry Cryer took the run with a 1:52.8 clocking, four tenths of a second off the A.A.U. record, with Warren Druetzler copping his second and third wins the same day with a 10:3 win in the two-mile steeplechase, and a 4:19 clocking in the mile.

Other meet triumphs included sailor Sam Felton's record-breaking 180 feet 7 inches throw for the 16-pound hammer, with First Army's Cliff Blair coming second.

In the hop-skip-jump event, Navy's Jim Gerhardt made 48 feet 1 inch, ahead of second-place Moss Hunter of the Marines, and Sixth Army's Robert Cook.

Air Force's champion pole vaulter, George Mattos, leaped an easy 14 feet to take that event, ahead of Marine Robert Smith. In All-Army competition the week before, Mattos had leaped four inches over the Inter-Service jump.

Army's Jim Golliday saw victory in the big 100-yard dash, in spite of a pulled muscle suffered in previous All-Army competition. His 09.7 was a new record for the Inter-Service event, only one tenth of a second under his All-Army time. And even at that, Golliday thought it was a "poor showing."

In the 440 Marine Frank Riviera established a new meet time with 47.8, with 880 victor Henry Cryer seconding him, and Fort Ord's Olympic cinder flash, Ollie Matson, in third spot.

The Air Force flew high and mighty for the 440 low hurdles, with Fred Faucett running and jumping the course in 53.9. Harry Bright and William Schimmell came close behind for the Army.

In the 220 low hurdles, Art Barnard, another sailor, cracked the old record with 23.9, Ord's Charles Holloway in third spot. And minutes later, Ron Drummond, also Navy, hurled the discus

Softball Action!
Officers & Toppers Victors
In Week's League Contests

Fans saw two local softball behemoths of the intramural circuit close steadily this week, each adding another win to their list of triumphs. The marching Fort Scott Hill Toppers triumphed over 102 MRU, 10-5, while on Monday of this week the hurly-burly Officers nine trounced a cellar-dwelling but hard-fighting Harbor Defense crew to the tune of 9-5.

In last Friday's tussle, the Topper's favorite hurler Benson provided the MRU with all of 11 hits and struck out four of the opposing batters, while MRU's pitcher Ryan fanned a total of six and allowed only 10 hits.

Real strength for the Toppers lay as usual in their heavy bats. Rau heroed for the Fort Scott team with a homer, knocking teammate Knapp in for the tally, while stalwart Maichen poled a double.

In Monday's game Officer Holtz pitched to catcher Tuttle to hold the Harbor Defense team to five hits. Early-game pitching was provided by Delaney of the Officers.

For Harbor Defense, Ebert hurled to Gamble, to produce a battery of better quality than its infield 153 feet 6 3/4 inches, against Ord's Earl Putnam and Third Army's Jim Cooke, who tied for second place in the event.

On Saturday, the Marines found a victor in javelin expert Bill Miller, whose pierce was exactly 228 feet 2 1/2 inches from the throw-point, with Third Army's Larry Goins in second spot. For the shot-put, Jim Hollingsworth of the San Diego Naval Training Station rang up 51 feet 3 11/16 inches, with Army hurlers Cliff Livingston and Jim Cooke tying for second.

Navy stars Ken Wiesner and Tom Whitestone tied for a new record for the high jump with 6 feet 6 3/4 inches. Jim Cooke took a second in the event. Wiesner, a naval dentist and world indoor high jump record holder, broke his own record for the jump. He placed second in the Olympics last year.

and outfield support. Heavystickers for the Officers were Vincent, Hoskins, and Brandenburg, with a home run apiece.

Prime action occurs this afternoon on the Fort Scott diamond as the two league leaders, the Officers and Toppers, match bats and batteries to see who's going to head the League into home stretch loop play. Elsewhere this afternoon, Harbor Defense hosts the HQ Btry. 9 AAA—another team to beat—on diamond number one. If the 9th wins this one, they'll look pretty big on the League books.

Revised standings to date:

Team	Won	Lost
Officers Club	8	1
Fort Scott Hill Toppers	8	1
HQ Btry. 9th AAA	8	2
102 MRU	6	4
Det. A Guard	5	4
HQ Co. 6th Army	4	6
Harbor Defense	2	7

The 220 dash saw Air Force's flash Jim Ford go to a 21.8 sec. victory, with Fourth Army's Alex Litman snagging second. Navy's 120 high hurdlist Art Bernard flashed to victory in his specialty in 14.4 seconds, while a foursome of sailor colleagues took top honors in the 440 relay, finishing the course in 41.7 seconds. Army's squad ran second.

In the mile relay Army representation fared better, taking first place under the churning spikes of runners Conrad Jones, Harry Bright, Ollie Matson and Henry Cryer.

Sixth Army athletes to contend in the National A.A.U. Outdoor Track and Field Championships at Dayton, Ohio, 26-27 June, are Fort Ord Privates George Brown, Charles Holloway and Clifford Livingston, with Robert Cook of Fort Lewis.

THAT'S HOW THEY LOOK GIRLS, says Miss Mary Booth, director of the occupational therapy course at San Jose State college, as she exhibits the bars of Captain Gertrude J. Murray, procurement officer for the WMSC, Headquarters Sixth Army, to six SJS graduates just sworn into the WMSC. The new second lieutenants, all of whom majored in occupational therapy, include Myra Tucker, Helen R. Winters, Mary C. Chrobuck, Donna J. Day, Barbara A. Beitzel and Kathleen R. Scott. The group was sworn in by Capt.

Murray and received their bars from Dr. John T. Wahlquist, college president. The congratulatory address was given by Colonel Reuel E. Hewitt, Sixth Army surgeon, Presidio of San Francisco. The new WMSC officers will begin active duty in September with a nine-months OT clinical affiliation at an Army hospital, following which they will be qualified for assignment as professional OTs on the staff of an Army hospital. Army 'Robot' Has Science Fiction Ancestor

Washington—Science fiction is heavily populated with remarkable robots which invite the derision of the skeptical—but the Army's new mechanical brain, the revolutionary "robot psychologist," is the real-life step-child of science fiction.

It grew from an idea in a pulp magazine.

The Army's "brain behind the brain," Dr. Richard H. Gaylord, psychologist with the Personnel Research Branch of the Adjutant General's Office, is one of a dedicated army of science fiction fans.

His job involves devising the most efficient means of testing for the various skills Army men need. The task demands myriad computations, brain-wracking graph interpretation and painstaking analysis of many factors.

Gaylord has been an Army psychologist since the spring of 1945, and the time consumed in analyzing a test problem annoyed him for several years.

The problem yielded no easy solution, however, and the project bogged down until Gaylord relaxed at home one day with a science fiction magazine.

In the issue was an article on computing machines, written by one of the top men in electronic computer research. Gaylord forgot about relaxing and sat up straight—there was a description of an electronic gimcrack that was precisely what he had been looking for.

So Gaylord went to work. The brain was designed and the Army farmed the building job to General Electric. Early in September, 1952, the completed machine was delivered.

Army psychologists are enthusiastic about the brain's performance and potentialities. It is the first brain of its kind ever built—a brain to do the work of a psychologist—and "can enable us to see what nobody has been able to see before," Gaylord said.

The machine, in effect, does the work of eight clerks and one psychologist. It will do in about three minutes what a clerk operating a standard computer takes four days to do.

Up to now, the Army psychologists looking for the best testing methods couldn't handle more than 30 variables—now they can work easily with 50.

Gaylord said that early published accounts of the brain's work have been somewhat misleading. It does not test people.

It tests tests.

That is, it tracks down the basic factors that should be used in any particular test, makes sure the same thing isn't tested for twice and insures that nothing will be left out.

For example, until recently 32 different tests for physical fitness were in use at the United States Military Academy at West Point. After a quick look at the tests, the robot brain reduced the number to five basic tests—showing that previously the same factors had been measured over and over.

The work of isolating the factors in the physical fitness battery of tests had been carried on, along with many other testing projects, for about two years before The Adjutant General got the robot psychologist.

A psychologist working with the brain finished the problem in two weeks.

The brain, housed in the Wake Building in Washington, is an analog computer, operating something like a super slide rule, as opposed to a digital computer or souped-up adding machine, which, in effect, counts on its fingers. As an analog computer, the brain uses a sort of electrical shorthand, with the strength of voltage determining the number.

The machine has 744 dials—600 on an input panel, 144 on a multiplier panel—and a 50 push-button control panel.

The brain does not, and cannot, "think"—any more than any other complicated piece of machinery.

The brain's answer board, from which the psychologists record the machine's comment about the problems it is fed, is a green glass window that looks like a cross between a television screen and radar panel.

The brain's official name is "psychological matrix rotator," but Gaylord and his fellow workers still are trying to dream up something snappier.

Smith's Missile

White Sands, N. M.—M/Sgt. G. M. Smith, because he is the oldest member of the First Guided Missile Detachment serving here, has the distinction of being the first man in the Army to have a guided missile bear his name.

Training for 6,000!

National Guard's 49th Division Encamps at Hunter Liggett

Camp Roberts, Calif.—Hunter Liggett Military Reservation echoed to the roar of trucks and commands as 6000 men of the California National Guard's 49th Division moved in for its annual two-week encampment on 14 June. Hunter Liggett, a 235,000-acre maneuver area, is located approximately 40 miles north of Camp Roberts.

New Record For Blood Donations Sought at Roberts

Camp Roberts, Calif.—Sixty per cent of the record June goal set for the Blood Donor Center here has been achieved in the first half of the campaign, according to Major Chester T. Hino, director of the Center.

In three days this month, 1,191 pints of blood have been collected and there are still three days left in which to top the quota. An extra day has been added to the drive this month, since it was considered that the record quota of 2000 pints could not be processed in the usual five days.

If the quota is met, it will be the fourth time that Camp Roberts has set a new all-time record for blood collection on the base. Last month the blood bank accepted 1522 pints of the life-sustaining fluid.

High companies during the first three days of the campaign were Company A, 77th Armored Infantry Battalion, with 167 pints; Company B, 38th Armored Infantry Battalion, barely second with 166 pints, and Company B, 129th Armored Ordnance Maintenance Battalion, which gave 141 units.

An important reason for the drive's success according to Major Hino, is the drop in the rejection rate. Formerly 20 to 25 per cent of the potential donors were disqualified due to medical reasons, but this rate has dropped to 14 per cent during the present drive due to improved scheduling.

Sixth Army Activities Reserve Hospital Unit Stationed at Presidio

Sixth Army Headquarters has announced through the California Military District Headquarters the activation of the 820 Hospital Center, United States Army Reserve. The Headquarters, Hospital Center is stationed at the Presidio of San Francisco and is commanded by Colonel Manfred U. Prescott, MC, of San Francisco.

Colonel Prescott has been active in Reserve affairs many years, having begun his commissioned service as a 1st Lieutenant in 1925. He became a full Colonel in 1943. During World War II he served as Commanding Officer of the Station Hospital, Merced Army Air Base, California; Commanding Officer of the Regional Hospital, Truax Field Hospital, Madison, Wisconsin; and the Commanding Officer of the Regional Hospital, Scott Field, Illinois.

Previous to the assignment as Commanding Officer of the Hospital Center, he was Chief of the Medical Section, Sixth Army Mobilization Group and also the Chief Civilian consultant in Surgery to the Sixth Army Surgeon's office.

In civilian life, Colonel Prescott specializes in general surgery in San Francisco and practices at the St. Francis Hospital. He has been certified by the American Board of Surgery and is a Fellow, American College of Surgeons.

The 49th is made up of elements from the Bay Area and Central California's three major valleys: the Sacramento, San Joaquin and the Salinas. The 159th Infantry Regiment, oldest unit in the Division, hails from Alameda, the 184th Infantry from Sacramento and the 185th from Fresno.

Headquarters for Division Artillery is Stockton and the separate battalions of the 49th are spread over the state. The 149th Tank Battalion is from Salinas, the 249th Signal Battalion from San Francisco, the 49th Quartermaster Battalion, Concord; the 49th Reconnaissance Battalion, Richmond; the 579th Engineer Combat Battalion, Santa Rosa; the 749th Ordnance Battalion, Alameda; the 49th Military Police Company, San Jose, and the 126th Medical Battalion, also from San Francisco.

Major General C. D. O'Sullivan, commanding general of the 49th, asserted that the primary mission of the encampment would be to give drills which cannot be carried out in local armories throughout the year, with emphasis on squad tactics and the firing of crew-served weapons. "If you have well trained squads," General O'Sullivan pointed out, "it follows that you have a well trained Division."

General O'Sullivan expressed pleasure at the rapid shakedown the Division had accomplished at the start of the bivouac, saying the units were well ahead of last year's schedule. "Providing we were filled up to full strength immediately," said the general, "we could be ready for combat in six months."

40 Navy Officers In Basic Training At Camp Roberts

Camp Roberts, Calif.—Forty officers from the U. S. Naval Engineering School at Port Hueneme, Calif., invaded Camp Roberts on 22 June, for four days participating in and observation of infantry basic training and training techniques.

Escorted by representatives from the Training Section, 7th Armored Division, the group included in their itinerary for the first day weapons instructions, familiarization firing, cleaning and care of weapons and night patrolling. The second day's schedule included combat firing, small arms course, attack of a fortified position, infiltration course.

Third day's training and observation included the bayonet assault course, grenade training, attack course, combat firing, rocket launcher, and night combat firing. Fourth day's schedule included hasty fortification, mines and booby traps, combat in towns, squad in the attack, followed on Friday by mines and booby traps and perimeter defense.

This is the sixth group of naval officers from the school at Port Hueneme to participate in basic infantry training.

ELECTRICAL STIMULATOR being applied to the foot and leg muscles of Pfc. William Breeding, Ward 3, Letterman Army hospital, by Lt. Margaret Horschler, physical therapist, is observed with great interest by Miss Beatrice Wilson, MCSP, London, England, and Major Olena M. Cole, WMSC, Chief, PT Section, Physical Medicine service at Letterman. Miss Wilson, herself a council member of the Chartered Society of Physical Therapy in London, has built her own clinic which treats more than 5,000 cases a year. She is presently touring U. S. installations.

Built Own Clinic! British Physical Therapy Head Visits At Presidio, Letterman

The Women's Medical Specialist Corps at the Presidio entertained its British counterpart last week.

Miss Beatrice Wilson, MCSP, a council member of the Chartered Society of Physical Therapy, with headquarters in London, visited here and at Letterman Army hospital.

Miss Wilson, who has built her own clinic at Seven Oaks, Kent, came to the United States as an official delegate of the chartered society to the Congress of America PT association, which recently concluded in Dallas, Texas. She is now making a tour of hospitals and rehabilitation centers throughout the country before returning to England. It is her first visit to this country.

While not actually a member of the British Armed Forces, but as a civilian with officer status, Miss Wilson, in 1942, became first command advisor in physical therapy and occupational therapy for the Armed forces in the Middle East. While her headquarters was in Cairo, her units serviced not only Egypt, but Palestine and Syria as well.

Miss Wilson still holds the position of chairman of the Overseas PT Service group which provides the personnel for PT services in the British Army.

Asked about her impressions of the WMSC services here as compared with those of her country, Miss Wilson replied that while our ideas are the same, at present the training techniques are different, however, with a tendency to approximate, especially in the coordination of the three factions of physical therapy, occupational therapy and rehabilitation.

At her own clinic, which serves the area of three hospital group management committees, Miss Wilson employs 36 qualified Chartered physical therapists and one occupational therapist. Regular visits by consultants in physical medicine and orthopedics are conducted, since patients must always be referred to a PT clinic by a medical practitioner, she explained.

The group gives some 50,000 treatments a year, and are equipped with mobile units for home treatment.

Chartered Society of PT's number approximately 15,000 active membership in England.

National Guard Holds Governor's Day Parade

Camp Roberts, Calif.—Reviewed by Major General Frank H. Partridge, deputy commanding general, Sixth Army, the California National Guard's 49th Division recently held its annual Governor's Day parade at Hunter Liggett Military Reservation.

Massed in battalions, the marching troops were commanded by Major General Curtis D. O'Sullivan, division commander. Brigadier General Roy A. Green, assistant division commander, led the dismounted brigade and the armored vehicles were headed by Brigadier General Charles F. White, division artillery commander. Major General R. F. Sink, who succeeded General Partridge as commanding general of Camp Roberts, occupied a place of honor in the reviewing stand.

Other dignitaries in the reviewing stand were Colonel (ret.) Eugene D. Bennett, civilian aide to the Secretary of the Army, and Captain H. C. Perkins, Chief of Staff, 12th Coast Guard District, San Francisco.

Motor Safety Awards

Annual motor safety awards were presented Tuesday to 138 civilian vehicle drivers by the San Francisco Port of Embarkation at Oakland Army Base and Fort Mason ceremonies. Covering periods of one to ten years of operating government vehicles without accident, the awards represented a total of 510 years. Each driver received a lapel button or pin designating the number of years of accidentless driving credited to him and a National Safety Council certificate.

Roberts Soldiers Set New Record In Blood Drive

Camp Roberts, Calif.—Camp Roberts' soldiers broke the existing blood donation record here when they gave 2230 pints of the life-sustaining fluid during the June blood drive.

Due to the increase in the numbers of volunteer donors, six donation days were scheduled for the month instead of the usual five. Biggest day for the period was 23 June, when 419 pints were collected.

This record amount put Camp Roberts ahead of its monthly quota of 1680 pints which is assigned by Sixth Army Headquarters at the Presidio of San Francisco. This is one-twelfth of the yearly quota for the post; 20,160 pints.

An aid in the collection of the 278 gallons of blood was the unusually low rejection rate during the campaign. Only 12 per cent of the prospective donors were rejected, as contrasted with past rates which have ranged as high as 25 per cent. Another factor in the success of the drive, according to Major Chester T. Hino, director of the blood donor center, is the cooperation of the regimental and company commanders. They carried out extensive campaigns, Hino said, urging their men to donate blood.

Signal Corps Testing Airborne TV Recon

Ft. Monmouth, N. J. — Airborne television is now being used by the Army Signal Corps in connection with the development of TV for aerial reconnaissance.

The equipment used is small enough to fit into the cabin of a small plane which has a seating capacity of five persons. However, sharp, high quality pictures have been obtained. Direct TV transmission from aircraft is not new but many technical advancements such as reliability, simplicity, compactness and high-level performance have been made.

Work on airborne TV is described by officials as being in the interim stage, with further tests and development still ahead.

Bedside Radio Station For Hospital Patients Dedicated at Roberts

Camp Roberts, Calif.—Major General Robert F. Sink, commanding general 7th armored division, officially dedicated Radio Station KRAH, Camp Roberts' new bedside radio station, Saturday morning at the U. S. Army Hospital.

KRAH commenced operations immediately after the dedication and pipes programs over four channels to the bedside of the hospitalized servicemen. Three of these stations carry programs direct from civilian stations located in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Paso Robles. A 20-foot aerial installed by the post engineers picks up the programs from the civilian stations.

Channel four will feature home productions, under the supervision of Lt. Francis I. Curtin, hospital radio station supervisor. A staff of three enlisted personnel, Sgt. Raymond H. Christian, Pvt. Roger Larson, and Pvt. John Brown, will broadcast records, programs and interviews daily from 1000 to 2200. Music will be supplied from the library of 2000 Armed Forces Service records, which also include comedy and drama programs. In addition, interviews with patients, religious and educational programs, and entertainment by local talent will be taped for rebroadcast.

For the patients, individual, small, disc-shaped plastic speakers designed to slip under a pillow, will be available. A choice of channels will be at arm's length, for any of the four may be selected by merely pulling a string attached to the control box near the bed. Bedside radio is a common service for most Army hospitals, and will eliminate the necessity of patient's bringing their own sets. And it also provides an opportunity for individual selection of programs and requests for favorite records over the local channel. The hospital station can be heard only on the discs, and can not be picked up by radio sets.

Ft. Ord Libraries Win Award For Publicity Program

Fort Ord, Calif.—The Fort Ord libraries were given national recognition this week by receiving a first place award in the John Cotton Dana Publicity Awards contest at the American Library Association's 72nd annual conference, in session last week in Los Angeles.

Leading all Army libraries, Fort Ord received first place for "excellence in the scope and execution of its publicity program." Judging was done on a publicity scrapbook which had been compiled by the libraries here.

Scrapbooks were submitted as entries by 95 libraries in this year's competition, sponsored by the Wilson Library Bulletin of New York in cooperation with the American Library Association Public Relations Committee. Entries received from 33 states, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and Canada showed cross sections of the libraries' role in their own communities and the efforts made to fulfill that role. Thirteen overseas libraries were among the many entries submitted by Air Force and Army libraries.

The effectiveness of Fort Ord's publicity program is reflected in the wide-spread use of the local facilities. During the past year, 210,870 books were checked out by personnel here. There are presently 21,535 books on the shelves, over 4000 of which were added during the year. These figures do not include special reference libraries on the Post.

Sixth Army libraries were well represented at the conference which drew a total of nearly 3500 librarians from all over the world. In addition to Miss Margaret Thompson of Fort Ord, the following Sixth Army librarians attended some sessions: Virginia Galbraith, Camp Irwin; Margaret Morse, Fort Ord; Mary Jane Bustruck, Presidio of San Francisco; Helen Minaker, Corinne Clark, Margaret Meagher, Norma Springston, and Mrs. Edna Harris, Camp Roberts; Marian Kane, Camp San Luis Obispo; Helen Burgess, Camp Stoneman; Clara Brinkley, Yuma Test Station; Wendell B. Coon, Sixth Army Librarian, and Mrs. Elizabeth Bock, Assistant Sixth Army Librarian.

Miss Agnes Crawford, Chief of the Army Library Service and president of the Armed Forces Librarians Section, presided at the meeting of the Section on 25 June. Command Librarians from Continental U. S. Armies, and from Korea and Europe, were in attendance as well as the heads of Air Force and Navy library services, representatives from many Army post libraries, Air Force base libraries, and Navy shore installations. Guest speaker was Dr. Rufus B. von Kleinsmid, Chancellor of the University of Southern California.

Army War College Graduates Officers Of All Services

Carlisle Barracks, Pa.—The 1953 graduating class has been graduated from the Army War College here. It included 141 Army officers, four Air Force, two Navy, two Marine Corps, one State Department official, and one member of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The graduation address was delivered by Gen. John E. Hull, Army Vice Chief of Staff. It was the second graduation ceremony since the school moved from Ft. Leavenworth, Kans.

Issue More Policies!

VA Offers K-Vets Low Cost 5-Year Term Life Insurance

New York (AFPS)—The special post-Korea term life insurance policies are now held by nine times as many veterans as a year ago according to the VA.

These policies are the five-year non-convertible, non-participating type for which anyone is eligible who has served with the Armed Forces of the United States anywhere in the world since June 27, 1950, who was ordered to active service for a period of more than 30 days and who is entitled to the free indemnity protection of the law.

Eligible veterans must apply to the VA within 120 days after date of discharge or separation to receive policies.

These policies do not entitle the veteran to dividends nor may they be converted to any other type of insurance. But the cost is the lowest of any type of GI insurance administered by the VA.

The Servicemen's Indemnity and Insurance Acts of 1951, which set up this insurance, also provide for another kind of policy. This applies to the post-Korea veterans discharged on or after April 25, 1951 with service-connected disabilities that would entitle the veteran to 10 or more per cent disability compensation. Likewise, it does not pay any dividend. However, both term and permanent plans, with conversion rights are provided.

Army Announces Total Casualties Of World War II

A total of 936,259 battle casualties were incurred during WWII by the Army and the Army Air Forces, the Army reveals.

Counted as battle casualties were personnel killed in action, wounded or injured in action, captured and interned, or missing in action. The period included in the report was from Dec. 7, 1941, through Dec. 31, 1946, the date hostilities were declared officially terminated. About nine per cent of Army military personnel became battle casualties.

Deaths among battle casualties numbered 234,876. This figure includes 189,676 killed in direct enemy action and the remainder from other causes. Of the total of 124,079 Army personnel who were captured and interned, 111,426 were returned to military control.

The 3rd Inf. Div. suffered 25,977 casualties, the largest number of battle casualties of any Army combat division. The 101st Airborne Div. lost 9,328. The 3rd Armored Div. suffered 9,243 casualties.

Thirty-seven campaigns are identified in the compilation—16 in the Atlantic area and 21 in the Pacific. The most costly was the Rhineland which ran from Sept. 15, 1944 to Mar. 21, 1945. A total of 240,082 battle casualties were recorded. The China offensive of May 5 to Sept. 2, 1945 was the least costly with battle casualties reaching 74.

President Names General Schuyler As SHAPE C-S

Washington—Maj. Gen. Cortlandt Van Rensselaer Schuyler has been nominated by President Eisenhower to be chief of staff of SHAPE.

The President also asked the Senate to approve the promotion of Gen. Schuyler to the rank of lieutenant general for the new assignment. He will serve under Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, newly appointed head of Allied Powers, Europe.

Gen. Gruenther was named to the post succeeding Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, who has been selected to be Army Chief of Staff. Gen. Schuyler will now move into the SHAPE Chief of Staff assignment which has been filled by Gen. Gruenther.

Gen. Schuyler has commanded the 28th Infantry Div., in Germany since February 1953. Prior to that command, he served for two years at SHAPE as special assistant to the chief of staff.

A graduate of the United States Military Academy, Class of 1922, Gen. Schuyler also served as an instructor at the Academy. During WWII he was Chief of Staff of the Anti-Aircraft Command and later CG of the Anti-Aircraft Training Command at Camp Davis, N. C.

In 1944 Gen. Schuyler was named United States representative to the Allied Commission for Romania. In 1947 he became chief of the plans and policy group of the Army's General Staff.

The changeover of command from Gen. Ridgway to Gen. Gruenther is expected to take place sometime in July. Following the ceremony, Gen. Ridgway will fly to Washington to take up his new assignment as Army Chief of Staff.

At Liberty

Ft. McPherson, Ga.—Liberty didn't last long for a pair of AWOL soldiers from Ft. McPherson.

When 2nd Lt. Cleo C. Garrett went home on a weekend recently he met an old friend, Police Chief Bill Gaines. The chief mentioned to Lt. Garrett that he knew where two Ft. McPherson AWOLs were.

"They should not be at liberty," said the lieutenant. "With your help, they won't be at liberty long," the police chief replied.

A few moments later the men were arrested and no longer were at liberty.

Where did all this take place? It was in Liberty, S. C.

The Star-Presidian

Serving Those Who Serve A Nation!

Vol. 2, No. 5 PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA Friday, 3 July, 1953

SALUTE TO Colonel Vivian Z. Brown, Colonel Murray M. Montgomery and M/Sgt. Fritz Kern on the occasion of their retirement from the Army is given by Detachment A, as it passes in review at ceremonies held at the Presidio on 30 June. Other marching units included the Sixth Army band, two companies from the

Service Totals 98 Years!

2 Colonels, 1 Master Sergeant Retire at Presidio Ceremonies

A pair of Sixth Army staff officers and one master sergeant were honored by a military parade and review on the Presidio main parade ground Tuesday, on the occasion of their retirement from the Army.

They are Colonel Vivian Z. Brown, Sixth Army Dental surgeon, Colonel Murray M. Montgomery, Sixth Army Recruiting officer, and M/Sgt. Fritz Kern, member of the Sixth Army band.

Both officers have served for more than 35 years and Sgt. Kern for more than 28 years.

Colonel Brown entered the service in 1917 following his graduation from the North Pacific Dental college, Portland, Oregon. His service includes two tours in the Philippine Islands and in San Juan, Puerto Rico, in World War II. He served four years at Fort Lewis, Washington, before reporting to his assignment at the Presidio in 1949.

Commissioned a field artillery officer at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, in 1917, following his graduation from the University of Kentucky, Colonel Montgomery served both in this country and overseas. In 1942, he went to England as chief of administration for the services of supply in the European theatre, and later was assigned to General Dwight D. Eisenhower's staff. He served five years in Europe, and prior to his Presidio assignment, was commanding officer of the Southern Recruiting district.

Other enlisted men in the Sixth Army area who officially retired on 30 June were: M/Sgt. Edward V. Austin, 30 years; M/Sgt. Severino

Latest Promotions

Twelve captains of the Sixth Army area have been promoted to majors, all with a date of rank of 11 June 1953.

These new majors are: William G. Chisholm, 6th Inf. Div., Ft. Ord, Calif.; Robert M. Davis, 6th Inf. Div., Ft. Ord, Calif.; Andrew H. Engle, 6th Inf. Div., Ft. Ord, Calif.; Charles A. Hecq, 316th MP Det. CID, Cp. Roberts, Calif.

George E. Rogerson, Hq. III Corps, Ft. MacArthur, Calif.; Robert C. Stewart, Jr., Hq. 6th Army PSF, Calif.; William C. Tubbs, 231st Eng. Bn., Ft. Lewis, Wash., and Samuel H. Warren, 6021st ASU Pers. Ctr., Ft. Lewis, Wash.

U. S. Army Mercy Trains Chug Way To Korean Fame

Seoul—More than 200,000 United Nations and Republic of Korea casualties have been evacuated from the battle front by Army mercy trains since the early days of the Korean war.

Army hospital trains and their professional staffs have performed herculean service in transporting casualties from forward-area clearing stations to hospitals and airfields in Korea.

Despite the greater novelty of evacuation by helicopter or transport plane, the hospitals on rails have earned the respect of the fighting men.

The mercy trains provide rapid, safe, and comfortable transportation over all types of terrain and in all kinds of weather.

The unique advantage of hospital trains is that they make it possible for a patient to receive uninterrupted medical and nursing care during the long trip back from the front.

Shortly after the fighting began in Korea, the Army rushed 62 hospital ward cars to the combat theater.

A standard hospital train in Korea carries six ward cars and a kitchen car. Each ward car is equipped to carry 30 casualties and attending medical personnel. Ward car facilities are comparable to any standard hospital ward.

The trains, which operate as far forward as division areas, carry a medical staff of two doctors, six nurses, 20 enlisted medical attendants, two cooks and two mess stewards.

Weekly World News
AT A GLANCE

SOUTH KOREA'S Foreign Minister reported Thursday that President Syngman Rhee has rejected President Eisenhower's appeal that he abandon his revolt against armistice terms and seek the unification of Korea by peaceful means. Assistant Secretary of State Walter S. Robertson, President Eisenhower's personal truce envoy, had no comment to make after his seventh meeting with Rhee in Seoul Thursday, and no time was announced for any future meeting. American sources said Rhee and Robertson were deadlocked over Rhee's demand for a 90-day limit on the political conference which is to follow an armistice. The South Korean president is understood to have demanded a military alliance with the United States under which American troops would back up any move he decided to make for the Korean unification if the post-armistice political conference showed no sign of bringing about unification within 90 days. . . . ON THE FIGHTING FRONT, Chinese troops, launching a powerful new onslaught, again swept over the crest of Lookout Mountain Wednesday. The Communists retook the height shortly after it had been regained by the South Koreans. Nearby, heavy fighting rocked back and forth for two other heights—Finger Ridge and Virginia Hill—as Republic of Korea forces came to grips with waves of Reds in the Pukhan River bulge. On the western front, ROK troops recaptured one outpost in the Arrowhead Ridge complex guarding the Chorwon Valley main route to Seoul. . . . NORTHWEST OF CHORWON, 22 Sabres dropped 44 bombs on the tanks in a camouflaged valley four miles from Sibyon after setting a new record of 73 kills in one month. The Fifth Air Force topped by ten the previous record of 63 Russian-built jet fighters destroyed in September, 1952. . . . ALLIED TROOPS killed and wounded more than 36,000 Reds in June, the equivalent of about three Communist Divisions, the Eighth Army reported Thursday. But during the same time Allied lines withstood the heaviest shelling of the three-year war. Almost 1,500,000 rounds of artillery and mortar from Red guns, more than double the previous records of last October, were poured on United Nations troops.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA has made it a criminal offense for workers to stay away from their jobs four times without good reason. This is hoped by the government to curb absenteeism. Western diplomats believe growing absenteeism is the workers' answer to the repressive police measures which followed riots and strikes in Czechoslovakia last month. . . . THE HUNGARIAN Communist party announced Tuesday elimination of the post of Secretary General of the Central Committee and establishment of a three-man secretariat to rule the party. The move is regarded by political observers to be in line with that set by the Kremlin in shifting control of the Soviet Union and other Communist states from the shoulders of one man onto a committee of top Communists. Premier Matyas Rakosi did hold the post of Secretary General and is one of three named to the secretariat.

SOUTHERN JAPAN experienced major floods following 27 inches of rainfall in five days. Police listed 427 persons dead, 699 missing and 823 injured, while more than 1,083,000 others fled to high ground from homes washed away or inundated. American soldiers, sailors and airmen joined with Japanese police and safety forces to rescue victims of the flood. The Japanese Ministry of Construction estimated flood damage at more than $227,000,000 and said it would take five years to restore the stricken areas to normal.

FROM ENGLAND an announcement was made Tuesday of a Big Three Foreign Ministers' conference to be held about 10 July in Washington. Attending will be Secretary of State John Foster Dulles of the United States, Lord Salisbury, Acting Foreign Secretary of Britain, and Georges Bidault, Foreign Minister of France. The meeting is being held in view of the postponement of the Bermuda talks, which were to have brought together President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and French Premier Joseph Laniel. The talks were postponed when Churchill got doctors' orders to take a rest. An agenda for the meeting outlined by American, British and French diplomats gave stress to Korea, Germany and Indo-China. . . . EAST GERMANY'S high-ranking Soviet officers and civilians were recalled suddenly to Moscow presumably to be asked to explain why they had not warned Moscow in advance that a riot of two million unarmed German workers was brewing. The departure came a day before the Soviet ambassadors in Washington, London and Paris were hurriedly called home for consultations. In none of the capitals was there official explanation for the return of the ambassadors. However, observers noted that their trips followed Western cancellation of the projected Big Three meeting in Bermuda and scheduling of a substitute "preliminary" meeting of foreign ministers in Washington. . . . ITALY'S Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi's Centrist coalition, which won narrow majorities in last month's general elections, elected Christian Democrats to be presidents of the Chamber of Deputies and Senate as Italy's second postwar parliament met for the first time. The Premier's margins of victory in both houses were again slender, but he succeeded in gaining organizational control of the 590-member chamber and the 243-member Senate.

INDO-CHINESE allies of the French were the cause of new troubles for France, hard pressed by seven years of war with Communist-led rebels. French and North African troop reinforcements were sent into the kingdom of Cambodia as precaution against King Norodon Sihanouk's threat of open war against France for full independence. In the sister state of Viet Nam, 500 soldiers of a local politico-military sect deserted posts southwest of Saigon which they had been assigned to guard against Red-led Viet Minh rebels. . . . FRANCE'S longest political crisis since the liberation was ended when the National Assembly elected Joseph Laniel, an almost unknown politician, their 19th postwar Premier. Independent Laniel announced the selection of his cabinet which includes six former Premiers. Nine members of the outgoing Cabinet of ex-Premier Rene Mayer were included in the new government. Few changes were made in the important ministries. . . . RED CHINA'S Peiping radio admitted an unofficial trade agreement between Japan and Red China was a failure. On paper the agreement was worth $30,000,000, but actually only a small fraction of the amount was traded. Nevertheless, the trade pact due to expire 30 June was extended for another six months.

Soldier-Actors Share Oscars

On a spot where the great film lover, Rudolph Valentino, once recorded celluloid epics for the delight of American womanhood, a .30 caliber machine gun squad prepared to set up its weapon in a wooded area.

The soldier-actors dug into real earth, surrounded by fake foliage, inside the biggest film studio east of Hollywood, the Army Signal Corps training-film center, Long Island City, N. Y.

Today over 5,000 subjects, from field stripping the M-1 rifle to military justice, have been filmed since the Army took over the property in 1942, long after the embryonic Paramount Film Co. departed for Hollywood.

Authenticity is the key word in every production. A court-martial scene calls for still shots of actual military court rooms to give prop men and carpenters the right touch to the set. Soldiers are used for actors whenever possible but sometimes demanding roles require TV or movie talent. Recently a full infantry battalion at Ft. Benning, Ga., was used for some location shooting.

Signal Corps photographers filmed, often under combat conditions, a series for "The Big Picture" television series carried weekly by 125 stations. "The First 40 Days," a story of the bitter delaying action at the outset of the Korean War, won the 1951 Distinguished TV Achievement Award.

In 1948 when the emphasis shifted from wartime training films, "Diary of a Sergeant" won an Academy Award for its story of a veteran's rehabilitation. A fantasy about a serviceman who scorned safety "Once Too Often" rated a 1950 National Committee for Films safety award.

As if abreast of the fashion, foreign language films are handled. However, these are to show allied

Pays Tribute to Founders of City

Col. Harrie E. Hoxie, acting deputy post commander, Presidio of San Francisco, paid tribute to the early founders of San Francisco, Fray Francisco Palou, Lt. Jose Joaquin Moraga and Fray Junipero Serra, at a Founders' Day ceremony at Mission Dolores on Monday.

Traditional services were held at the Mission beginning with a High Mass. Father Terence Cronin, Franciscan representative, delivered the sermon.

The commemoration ceremony following the Mass was held in the cemetery adjoining the mission. In addition to Colonel Hoxie, other speakers honoring the city's founders were Dr. Albert Shumate, California Historical Society, and John J. Haster, Serra Club of San Francisco.

Miss Madeleine Rose of San Francisco reigns as "La Favorita" during the 177th year celebration. She is a descendant of the early Spanish families of Pacheco and Arguello.

The celebration also included a luncheon at the Presidio Officers' Club. Colonel Hoxie and Miss Rose cut a birthday cake with a sabre. Principal speaker was Pr. Edwin A. Beilharz, from the University of Santa Clara.

Music was furnished by the Sixth Army Band under the direction of Chief Warrant Officer Nathan A. Cammack, Jr.

Sponsors for the Founders' Day celebration are the California Historical Society and California Citizens Society.

Making a surprise assault on the legendary four-minute mile, lanky ROGER BANNISTER of England last Saturday ran it in 4:02—the third fastest of all time and only six-tenths of a second off GUNDER HAEGER's world record of 4:01.4. Bannister's effort came a few hours prior to WES SANTEE's A.A.U. performance of 4:07.6.

BEN HOGAN, United States open golf champion, walked onto the tough Carnoustie course last week and promptly demonstrated to a group of amazed onlookers why he will be favored to win the British open that begins 6 July. The little Texan, who had not seen Carnoustie before, posted a brilliant 69. There is no accepted par for Carnoustie, but by American standards the 7,200-yard course should play about 37, 37—74. The world's great golfers through the years have never broken 70 in championship play!

Meanwhile, MARLENE STEWART, a 19-year-old college student from Fonthill, Ontario, won the British women's amateur golf championship last week by defeating PHILOMENA GARVEY of Ireland, 7 and 6. She was the first Canadian to win in the sixty-year history of the tournament.

Former Red Sox red-hot TED WILLIAMS arrived in Japan from Korea on Wednesday for treatment of an ear and nose ailment that impaired his usefulness as a jet pilot. He had flown 38 missions before he was grounded earlier last month by the First Marine Air Wing. LOU BOUDREAU, manager of the Boston team, said he was convinced Williams could get back into the lineup if he is released from active duty before the end of the season, but since the ball star's tour of duty is not up till October, a Marine Corps spokesman said that it was unlikely that Williams would be released before then. Earlier in the week Williams had told reporters that he did not know yet whether he would return to baseball or enter the business world.

ARCHIE MOORE, light-heavyweight champion of the world who defended his crown with success recently against contender JOEY MAXIM, would be glad to accept a challenge from Utah's golden boy REX LAYNE, according to an announcement last week from Moore's manager CHARLEY JOHNSTON. The Utah heavyweight scored a fourth-round knockout last week over BILLY McCLURE of Los Angeles in a fight that followed Moore's decision over Maxim.

The United States was assured of the Wimbledon women's tennis championship for the tenth straight tournament when MAUREEN CONNOLLY and three other Americans, DORIS HART, SHIRLEY FRY and DOROTHY HEAD KNODE, swept into the semi-finals on Tuesday without the loss of a set. Americans have won the women's title in every tournament since DOROTHY ROUND last kept it in England in 1937.

For the pennant parade this week, Seattle was back on top of the Pacific Coast League, three games up on Hollywood, while Los Angeles displayed an anxious third spot. In the American League, New York held covetously to their top rung, though by mid-week they were eight games in the hole toward a losing streak. The Boston Red Sox came from behind on Tuesday to hand the Yanks their eighth defeat, trimming their lead to a scant five games over the dogged Indians. For the Nats, the Dodgers finally overcame the elusive Braves for first-place with 42 won, 26 lost. Milwaukee stayed a meager one game in arrears, while St. Louis trailed third with 40 for 69.

San Francisco sportswriter BILL LEISER reports on the "World Championship of Golf," to be held 30 July through 9 August, at the Tam O'Shanter Country Club in Chicago. Slated for the tournament are professionals and amateurs, men and women. Prizes are gargantuan, with the winner taking a straight $25,000, and the sixty leaders splitting $75,000 between them. Women professionals will split some $13,600 between them. It's no wonder entries are already submitted from Egypt, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, Argentina, Colombia, Scotland, Sweden, Holland, Germany, South Africa and Mexico!

Trainee Breaks Roberts
Bayonet Course Mark

Camp Roberts, Calif.—Army Private John Grenier, 20, of Richmond, Calif., has set a new record in running the bayonet assault course here.

Running, jumping and lunging under a 105 degree sun, Private Grenier streaked around the 440-yard obstacle course in three minutes flat, a minute and five seconds under the old record. The previous record had held up before the attempts of thousands of basic trainees within the past six months.

The bayonet assault course, designed to prepare the infantry soldier for close moving combat, has two ten foot log walls, a fifty foot cable crossing a ravine, a fifty foot screen of barbed wire, a rope crossing over a gully, and many bayonet thrusting dummies.

Toppers Vanquish Officers for Top;
9th Ack Ack Goes to Second Spot

Last Friday saw the long-awaited meeting between two giants of the intra-mural softball circuit—the Fort Scott Hill Toppers and the Presidio Officers' Club—up to last week co-leaders of loop standing and each boasting an eight-game win-streak. The Toppers, at their strongest for the season's career, banged out a surprising 10-3 starter over their foes, securing an unsullied first-place positioning for themselves and thrusting the Officers to an undignified third-place rung on the ladder.

The contest was witnessed by an unprecedented crowd of over one hundred, as fans of the two teams and "scouts" of other league nines braved a thirty-mile-an-hour wind, which drove clouds of dust into their faces and clothing, to see which of the behemoths would out-smash the other.

Particularly noticeable was the imported Tupper yell-section, which responded vigorously to each of their team's triumphs and yacked heartily at the efforts of the opposition, which did much for the Fort Scott morale and may have had something to do with the Officers' upset loss.

In a neighboring diamond, completely lost to the glamour of the Tupper-Officers brawl but actually no less important, the tough 9th Ack Ack crew, long a dark horse in League contention, surged upward unnoticed to draw a second-place slot by trouncing the Harbor Defense nine, 7-6.

Action in the Hill Topper victory first came in the top of the second rung, when Officer thunder-bat Vincent connected off opposition pitcher Benson for a home run—the misfortune being that there was no one on base.

Vincent's hit was no harbinger for later action by the Officers. In the third frame the Toppers opened for business with a magnificent eight-run tally, big bats Rau and Pierce sparking the onslaught. Batter Rau tripled with the bases loaded, which took the chuck out from under Topper wheels, and Pierce, another brawny for Fort Scott, connected with three for three for the afternoon, one a double.

Topper hurler Benson provided the score sheets with five strike outs, allowing the opposition a meager four hits, while Officers Holtz and Hoskins, co-moundsters for the day, split 13 free walks, six fannings, and nine hits for the adversaries.

Something should be said on behalf of the defeated Officers, whose performance last Friday was not up to usual standard in any department. The fielding seemed to lack the characteristic speed and flash. For the mound, hurler Holtz, previously a hard man to hit against, was certainly not up to par, allowing six walks in one inning alone. In batting, the Officers will have trouble finding a harder pitcher to deal with than Toppers' Benson. His speed and accuracy are perhaps one good reason the Officers' usual heavy-stickers froze on them Friday. In any event, with a good six weeks' action ahead of them, the Officers are hardly out of league running, and still have a chance to even the score against the Toppers in games won and lost against the softer teams of the loop.

In the 9th AAA-Harbor Defense tussle, the action was closest in the first, fourth and sixth innings, with the Harbor crew sustaining a one-run advantage to the sixth bracket, whereupon the 9th's Ack Ack batters opened up for two markers, and pitcher Rhoads froze the action for opposition batsmen for the balance of the game.

Big-stickers for the 9th included Cooper, Cason and Rhoads, all with doubles, and Griffin, who homered.

Rhoads on the mound allowed five hits and fanned four. Opposition hurler was Ebert.

This afternoon promises another fast and furious scramble with newly starred 9th Ack Ack meeting the Hill Toppers to determine top-man in the league once more. The game is scheduled for the main diamond behind the Presidio Theatre, at 1530 hours.

League standings to date:

Fort Scott Hill Toppers	9	1
9th AAA	9	2
Officers' Club	8	2

Records Smashed!

Army Team in National AAU;
Ord's Brown Cops Broadjump

Private George Brown, of Fort Ord, California multi-talented star of the victorious Sixth Army track and field team and subsequent point-earner for the triumphant Army constituent in the recent All-Service meet at Fort Jackson, South Carolina, capped off his season's achievements with a 25-foot, 10 3/4-inch winning broad-jump in the 65th national A.A.U. meet at Dayton, Ohio, last Saturday.

Brown, competing with other Army tracksters in the meet, helped garner a sixth-place 31-point total against athletes representing sporting clubs from every corner of the country.

Star of the A.A.U. meet was Walt (Buddy) Davis, 6 foot, 8-inch Texas A. and M. graduate, who smashed the world high jump record by a half inch with a thrilling last-try leap of 6 feet, 11 1/2 inches.

Davis' epic jump came shortly after Wes Santee of Kansas had failed in an expected try at the legendary four-minute mile, winning in the respectable time of 4:07.6, to shatter a 39-year old meet mark.

Other Army competitors to place in the meet included Second Army's Henry Cryer, victor in the All-Service 880, and second to Mal Whitfield's record-cracking A.A.U. time of 1:51.5 in that event. Officers' Ken Soble leaped second to George Brown in the broad-jump.

Warren Druetzler, First Army long-distance ace and triple All-Service winner, came second in the two-mile steeplechase next to New York's Horace Ashenfelter. The event recorded a new meet time of 10:20.5, bettering a 1931 clocking set by Joe McCluskey of Fordham, Phil Coleman, Fifth Army's cinder ace, came third in the event.

In the 440 hurdles Army's Harry Bright ran third to Morgan State's Culbreath, whose 52.5 equalled the 1927 meet record.

Other Army thinclads to compete were Robert Cook, fourth place in the hop-step-and-jump; Jim Cooke, fifth in the discus; Cliff Blair, fifth in the hammer throw; Larry Goins, fifth in the javelin, and Jim Cooke, fifth in the broad-jump.

All-Sixth Golf Prelims Start Tuesday; Presidio to Compete with Nine Teams

A large field of individual golfers and teams representing installations in the Southern Division of the Sixth Army Area slated to tee-off in the opening loops of the 72-hole Sixth Army Preliminary Golf tourney, scheduled for Tuesday, 7 July, on the Presidio Golf Course.

The preliminary flights will continue through 10 July, whereupon the winning and runner-up teams and first five low medalists in the Main Division play and two low medalists in Senior Division play will be selected to compete in the subsequent Sixth Army Golf Championship, to be run 14-17 July on the Presidio links.

The beginning of the big golf week here at the Presidio will come on Monday at 1300 hours, with a meeting for all contestants in the Post Gym, Bldg. 122. At this time, according to Special Services officials, loop foursomes will have been determined and last-minute instructions given.

The Presidio Golf team, with members selected from the Post tourney held here at the end of May, is headed by Colonel Charles Ransom of Letterman Army Hospital, who stroked his way through the 72-hole local to a nine-stroke victory over his nearest competitor, netting a slim 301 total for the four days' play. Runner-up was Lt. Joe Turner, also of Letterman, who cannot take part in the coming tourney because of previous work commitments.

A PRESIDIO GREETING for visiting Sixth Army golfers is displayed by Special Services artist Pfc. Bob Reynolds—one of many Presidians who have been busy lately with preparations for the coming tourney. The preliminary play begins next Tuesday, then with a small adjustment the sign may be used for the championship, 14-17 July. (Army Photo by Woods.)

Others of the Presidio delegation include Captain Rollin Kapp, third-place victor in the Post tourney; M/Sgt. George de Rosa, fourth placer; Captain Louis Butten; Captain Duane Bagley, and alternative Pvt. Ted Schwabenland. The Presidio group is expected to meet tough competition from entrants representing nine other Sixth Army Area installations.

Individual players expected to show well in the intra-base play are Pvt. Dick Yost and Harold Freer of the Camp Roberts contingent—both seasoned amateurs and well-known in Northern California and Oregon links contention.

Merle Fisher, long-hitting amateur from Fort Ord, is another golfer expected to turn in some prize cards during the four days on the Presidio course.

The Camp San Luis Obispo delegation is headed by linksman Cpl. Sam Randolph, three-time Peninsula State Park champion in 1948, '49 and '51 and first-man on the University of California at Berkeley squad in 1951.

Other stations represented in the Southern Division of the Sixth Army prelims are Camp Stoneman, Stanford R.O.T.C. unit, Yuma Test Station, Fort Mason, Two Rock Ranch Station, and Det. 9, Induction and Recruiting Center of Los Angeles.

The afternoon's action saw the Yellow Tops leading 6-2 up to the fifth bracket, whereupon the Hamilton bats erupted with seven runs for a three point edge.

Final pay-dirt came in the latter part of the last inning, with the instructors trailing by one run. The situation didn't worry a mighty-mite by the name of Pfc. Kenny. He stepped up to the plate with two men away and the bases loaded and summarily thwacked a double, bringing both runners in and saving the day for the MP's.

Later on in the week the Yellow Tops returned to home territory to prove themselves against the Cardinals of Company B, MPTC, 12-2. Goss hurled this time for the instructors, with Kerfers on the mound for the Cards. Heavy stickers for the victors were found in lanky Milt Garfield who thundere a triple and a double, Aspermy's three for three, and LeVigne's home-run.

Another league game found the Company A Pistol Packers licking the 740 AAA Bushers to the tune of 10-9.

Joseph J. McGinnity, "Iron Man" of the National League in the early 1900's, once hurled two games a day for five different days. He also set a record of 334 innings pitched in 1903.

The Seventh Did it! Red Raiders Whip Navy Crew; Suffer Against Reno Pioneers

The close of the Bay Area Armed Services Baseball League still finds the Presidio Red Raiders going strong, with three practice games under their belt for the week and future prospects in store for them in the coming All-Sixth competition.

Recent games for the Raiders saw them chalk up a 9-1 win over the Oriskany ship's crew last Friday.

Pitcher for the Raiders was Bob Hill, chalking up his third consecutive victory as he and "Lefty" Gaea combined to hurl the team to their seventh straight win. Both moundsters gave a single run on two hits, fanned four batters, and walked but two.

Hurler Swartz for Oriskany allowed four hits. A total of 14 walks brought his team's downfall.

Wayne Taylor, Gene Jacobs and John Vozel carried their customary big sticks for the Raider offensive.

A series of two practice games off home territory this week saw the Raiders lose a couple of toughies to the Reno Pioneers.

The first game, a 6-0 shut-out for Reno, saw Hamaker and Herriage on the mound giving an aggregate of 12 hits.

Opposition hurler Helman provided six hits for big bats Taylor, Fucile, Fowler and Klopp.

For the second game the Presidians did better, recording a 7-3 loss. Pitching chores for the Raiders this time were distributed between Arkie Stanton, Bob Hill and Hamaker. They served the Reno crew with 10 hits.

Reno pitcher Snider allowed seven to the visitors.

The Presidio team sees more action this afternoon against the San Francisco Police Department. The game will be held on Diamond Number One, behind the Presidio Theatre, at 1400 hours.

Wacs Continue on Loop Schedule; Fourth Place Tie With Hamilton Wafs

The Presidio Wac Softball team continued a heavy season last week against the Treasure Island Waves, losing the contest 26-2.

In Bay Area Armed Forces Women's Softball League standings so far the Presidiennees hold a fourth-place tie with the Hamilton Wafs. League-leaders are the Treasure Island Waves, runners-up the S. F. Marines. Alameda Waves trail third.

In game tallies so far, the Wacs show four wins to three losses.

U. S. Middleweight Champ

Carl "Bobo" Olson (left) demonstrates the finer points of putting the left hand to the opponent's head for Fuddy Young in their recent title match in New York's Madison Square Garden. Olson went on to take the American middleweight crown in a 15-round decision. He will now meet Randy Turpin of Great Britain for the world's title, vacated by Ray Robinson last December.

Engineers Softball Posts 30-16 Win In League Contest

By Cpl. Allen Van Soest

A line single by Engineer Lopez with teammate Christopher on base gave the 99th Engineers the one run they needed to whip the Surveyors 12-11 in last week's 30th Engineer loop-go and put the winners into a first-place tie with the idle Headquarters nine on the league ladder.

The doughty Surveyors battled the 99th all the way with little regard for the highly-rated and thus far undefeated powerhouse, and it was not until Brown had been forced out at second on a fielder's choice in the seventh that the 99th was sure of victory.

The first inning was the best for the victors as five runs were scored on seven hits, all singles. 99th hurler Garachana kept the opposition hits scattered and prevented them from putting together any big rally.

It was Garachana's second game without a loss. He allowed 13 hits and 11 runs. Surveyor hurler Molina twirled a 13-hitter for his second loss this season.

Early this week the Surveyors turned about and won their first victory of the season, sinking the 45th Boat Company by a grid-iron tally of 30-16.

In this one extra-base blows were as prevalent as singles are in most games. The Surveyors clouted five homers, one triple, four doubles and a grand total of 21 hits. Round-trippers were lashed by Collier, Brown, Lahr, Jones and Moore.

By the end of five frames, the Surveyors had a comfortable 14-2 lead behind the four-hit hurling of Molina. Then English replaced Molina on the mound and there began a wild merry-go-round spree that ended in a 16-16 tie at the bottom of the sixth.

As the teams moved into the seventh the Surveyors responded to an avid cheering section to produce 14 runs for the winning total.

Army's Good Deed! Military Equipment Is Lent For Boy Scout Encampment

Several thousand pieces of U. S. Army equipment will be used during the week-long encampment of the third National Boy Scout Jamboree, opening 17 July at the Irvine Ranch near Corona Del Mar, Calif.

The Army's cooperation in the jamboree is extended through Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, Commanding General, Sixth Army, and Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, Commanding General, III Corps, at Fort MacArthur. Authorization for the military to lend such equipment as needed to the Scouts for the Jamboree was granted by Public Law No. 363, passed by the 82d Congress.

Consisting mainly of tentage, vehicles, bedding, medical supplies and odds and ends necessary for an outdoor extravaganza of this sort, the equipment will be loaned to the Boy Scouts of America at no cost to the government. All borrowed equipment has been insured by the Scouts and the military will be reimbursed for any loss or damage.

Workmen are now in the process of pitching some 3,500 tents furnished by the Army over the 3,000-acre campsite to house field hospitals, press headquarters, latrines, and Jamboree personnel other than the Scouts themselves who will furnish their own pup tents.

Army vehicles to aid in the construction and maintenance of the gigantic Jamboree camp number approximately 100. Pick-ups and one-and-one-half ton trucks will be used generally to transport supplies throughout the area. Numerous ambulances, buses and sedans, a fire truck, and other miscellaneous vehicles will also be provided for Jamboree personnel. Some of these are already on hand at the campsite and the others are scheduled for 1 July delivery.

Since 1 April, a mounted automatic earth auger has been at the campsite drilling post holes, latrines and other cartage for various uses.

To assist in managing and controlling this equipment, a maintenance and accounting detachment from Fort MacArthur is stationed at the Jamboree headquarters. Commanded by Captain M. D. Fox, the unit consists of two officers and four enlisted men.

During the actual encampment three Army units will be present to lend the Scouts a helping hand. These include approximately 60 men from Fort MacArthur who will compose a Supply and Maintenance detachment, and two reserve units, the 355th Hospital Unit of Santa Ana and the 823d General Hospital Unit of San Diego. Both are under the command of Colonel Thomas E. Hanigan, Santa Ana, and will be used to staff the Jamboree Medical Clearing Station, a complete battalion-sized clearing station equipped with all necessary medical supplies and equipment including dental, x-ray and emergency operating facilities.

Two Army veterinary officers will be available to the Scouts during the Jamboree to assist in the inspection of food supplies and cooking facilities.

He has spent the past two years in Washington D. C., as executive officer distribution and procurement, G-1, Department of the Army.

In the Army for the past 21 years, Col. McFeely spent five years in the European-African-Middle East theatre in World War II and has the Bronze Star medal and Commendation ribbon.

Lt. Vernon F. Bollens is the new executive officer of the 315th Engineer group.

He joined the 315th at Fort Worden, Wash., and came with them when they transferred to the Presidio.

In the Army for the past 16 months, Lt. Bollens received his commission recently upon graduation from OCS at Fort Belvoir, Va. He is a native of San Francisco.

WOJG Frederick N. Morrison is the newly arrived commanding officer of the 359th Engineer Utilities detachment.

He was formerly battalion motor officer at Fort Worden, Wash., having served there since July 1952.

In Korea for 21 months with the 439th Engineer Construction Bn., 32nd Group, WOJG Morrison also served 34 months overseas in World War II. At that time he was with an amphibious unit that saw service in Africa, Sicily, Italy and Okinawa.

A veteran of 13 years' service, WOJG Morrison has been awarded the Navy Commendation Medal and the Meritorious citation for Korea.

Lt. Carl E. Bartelt has recently been assigned to the 315th Engineer group, PSF, following 13 months service with that group at Fort Worden, Washington, as a diver.

A member of the famous First Cavalry division in Korea, Lt. Bartelt served there during the initial period 1950-1951. He wears the Purple Heart, the Combat Infantry Badge, the Korean Service medal with five stars and the Japanese Occupation ribbon.

Lt. Bartelt has been in the Army for the past six years, and his other overseas service includes a year with the 581st Engineer Service platoon in Alaska.

Army T.I.C. Topic

"Decorations and Awards" will be the topic for Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units next week. This subject explains how the Army honors and rewards its soldiers and their units through a system of awards giving visible evidence of the Nation's recognition and gratitude for services in its defense.

The American soldier's first honor in recognition of his service was the Purple Heart, created during the Revolutionary War by General George Washington. It was then called the "Badge of Military Merit" and was not given for wounds, as it is now, but for acts of unusual gallantry and fidelity.

For a long time after the Medal of Honor was created in 1862 it was our only official decoration, because Washington's original Purple Heart, now given for wounds received in service, wasn't used again after the Revolution until 1932. Being our only decoration, the Medal of Honor could not represent supreme recognition as it does now. It had to be used to reward all types of bravery and achievement, some not connected with combat service.

Our present system of individual decorations, often referred to as the "Pyramid of Honor," is made up of 11 decorations, arranged in order of degree of valor or achievement, with the Medal of Honor at the top.

In addition to discussing individual decorations, the conferences will consider service medals, ribbons, badges, unit emblems, streamers, and campaign silver bands.

Notes to Presidio From Alaska

By Lt. James A. Mulken with the 30th Engineers in Alaska

King Salmon, Alaska—There are no paved streets, gutters, or sidewalks here and you walk nearly everywhere you go. When the wind blows it is dusty. When it doesn't there are millions of mosquitoes. When you walk it is always dusty... except when it rains—then it is muddy.

Various and Tundra—There are clams and mussels by the hundreds on the seashore and it feels like spring. But if you should dig a hole you can dig only eight to 22 inches and you hit permanently frozen ground. And the tundra... it looks solid and at first feels solid. But after you walk on it, it is like walking on a bathtub full of wet sponges. Sometimes it holds and sometimes it doesn't but either way it is wet at the bottom.

Gourmet's Note—Last night I went to dinner in Anchorage. I finally tasted "moose meat!" It's really very good. My host got one last winter and he figured that it cost him 25c a lb. Somewhat better than the usual price of meat around here (about $1.00 a lb. for hamburger).

As far as church groups go—Well, the only ordained minister in the area is the traveling priest, Father Grief whom I met in Holy Cross last year. They have built a new church in Dillingham, but that is 45 or 55 minutes away by air. Many of the 39th Engineers are well acquainted with Father Grief and his hospitality as the men are often dinner guests at his home when passing through Holy Cross.

FIRST COMMANDER of the San Francisco-East Bay Armed Services Police Detachment, Lt. Col. George A. MacEachern (right), pinned his brassard on Lt. Col. Charles A. Fanning as he relinquished command of the unit to the latter Friday at the detachment headquarters at Treasure Island. Colonel MacEachern has been ordered to Carlisle Barracks, Pa., to attend the Army War College. To Attend War College!

Organizer of Area AFPD Relinquishes His Command

Lt. Col. George A. MacEachern, Military Police Corps, organizer and first commander of the San Francisco-Metropolitan East Bay Armed Services Police Detachment, relinquished command of the unit to Lt. Col. Charles A. Fanning, Military Police Corps, in a brief ceremony Friday, at the detachment headquarters at Treasure Island.

Colonel MacEachern has been ordered to Carlisle Barracks, Pa., to attend the Army War College. Colonel Fanning has been serving as Provost Marshal of the Third Corps at Fort MacArthur, Calif., until last month.

A veteran of service in Europe, Colonel MacEachern reported to the Presidio of San Francisco in January, 1951 and assumed command of the Armed Services Police Detachment upon its activation on March 15, 1951. Colonel MacEachern is a graduate of the Military Police School and the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

During World War II, Colonel Fanning served as an infantry company commander in Tunisia with the 34th Infantry Division and later with the 97th Infantry Division on occupation duty in Japan. In 1951 he was ordered to Korea where he served as Provost Marshal of the First Corps prior to reporting for duty at Fort MacArthur in 1952. He is also a graduate of the Command and General Staff College.

Military Honors Given Three Retiring Officers

Camp Roberts, Calif.—A division review of more than 10,000 men in honor of three retiring field grade officers was held at Camp Roberts last Saturday.

Receiving military honors were Colonel Robert I. Stack, deputy post commander; Colonel John J. Powers, post quartermaster; and Colonel John C. Butner, commanding officer of the camp at its reactivation in 1950.

All three officers are veterans of 30 or more years service with the United States Army and have had combat experience in both world wars.

DPC Message

This year the Joint Army Emergency Relief and Army Relief Society Fund Campaign will be conducted from 1 July to 31 July 1953.

In 1952, the Presidio Army Emergency Relief made loans and grants totalling $9,595.00 to military personnel and their dependents.

We of the Army have always been proud of our great tradition of doing our utmost to take care of our own. There is nothing more comforting than the knowledge that we are all concerned with one another's welfare.

This great tradition has grown and been maintained in the Army largely because of the splendid work of the Army Emergency Relief and the Army Relief Society.

The 1953 Joint Fund Campaign offers an opportunity for Military Personnel to contribute towards our common welfare. I sincerely urge you to give these two fine organizations your earnest support.

505th Anniversary, Graduation Observed; School Record Set

Climaxing the observance of its first anniversary on the Presidio of San Francisco, the 505th Military Police battalion graduated another class from its Military Police Training center at Fort Baker on 27 June.

Appropriate to the occasion, the honor graduate of the class smashed all previous scholastic records attained at the school, and walked off with a 97.00 average.

He is Pvt. William W. Taylor, who entered the Army from Huntington Park, California, on 19 January 1953, immediately following his graduation from UCLA, where he majored in history. He

Fixed Duty Tours

Washington — A Pentagon spokesman stated this week, the Army is considering the adoption of a fixed tour of duty in the Far East to replace the rotation system, if the fighting stops in Korea. The official said the plan is based on a 16-month period of service in Korea and Japan. He added that it had been submitted to General Clark in Tokyo, but there had been no report yet from the Allied Commander.

Civilian News Notes

By EARL F. REINKE

Our attention was called recently to an informal memo which went around the G-3 Section of Sixth Army. It read as follows: "The personnel listed below are going to the Blood Bank. We would like to invite you to join us. It only takes a minute and doesn't hurt a bit. Refreshments will be served." (Signed) Jeannette B. Fitzgerald.

What were the results of Mrs. Fitzgerald's invitation? Twenty-six persons signed up, which was about one-third of all personnel, Military and civilian, in the section. It was the 23rd time Mrs. Fitzgerald gave a pint of blood, which may have had something to do with the response.

It is no secret that G-3's example is not being followed generally throughout the Presidio. Blood donations are far below what is needed. Commendable as the participation by certain individuals is, the overall record is disappointing.

The actual number of civilian donors for the five months, January through June, is as follows: January, 40; February, 17; March, 48; April, 140 and May, 131.

The fact that there are approximately 3,000 employees at the Presidio makes it plain that there is plenty of room for improvement. In contrast, last month over 1,500 employees left their desks and work benches to have a chest X-ray taken when the mobile unit of the TB Association visited the post. Civilian participation in the Armed Forces Blood Donor program can and should be improved. The next time your supervisor asks you to give blood think of Mrs. Fitzgerald before you give an excuse.

Col. Harrie E. Hoxie, acting deputy post commander, at a ceremony held at Post Headquarters 25 June, presented a Sixth Army Certificate of Achievement to Joseph R. Giannetta for outstanding performance of duty as Organization and Methods Examiner in the Comptroller Section, Presidio of San Francisco.

Mrs. Margaret W. Bouska, clerk (typist), Provost Marshal Section, Hq. Sixth Army, received a Sixth Army Certificate of Achievement for outstanding civilian service. The award was presented at a ceremony in the Provost Marshal Section on 29 May 1953 by Col. J. L. Driskell.

Samuel L. Siverts, Civil and Sanitation Engineer with the Engineer Section, Hq. Sixth Army, who retired after 18 years of Federal service, was presented a Sixth Army Certificate of Achievement by Colonel A. A. G. Kirchhoff, Chief Engineer, at a ceremony in the Engineer Section on 4 June 1953.

Mrs. Emily J. Shaw, clerk-typist with the U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Main Armed Forces Station, 30 Van Ness, received an award of a Superior Accomplishment Pay Increase for exemplary performance of duties. The award was presented to her by Lt. Colonel Ray O. Busch, Commanding Officer of the Recruiting Station, at a ceremony on 28 May 1953.

Dick I. Teschner, Sign Painter, Post Engineer Section, was the winner of a cash award of $25.00 for his suggestion of substituting waterproof cardboard for wood signs, which procedure has been adopted by the Post Engineers.

For some time both California Physicians Service Health Plan and the Kaiser Foundation Health Plan (formerly the Permanente Health Plan) have been available to Presidio civilian employees.

Membership in either of these plans is entirely voluntary, and employees should join only if they believe they will benefit from membership. Both California Physicians Service and Kaiser Foundation Plan are non-profit organizations which provide a program of health protection with prepaid medical, surgical and hospital benefits. The plans differ from each other in regards to rate of payment and types of benefits, and employees planning to become members should examine both plans carefully in order to choose the one which fits his own or his family's needs.

Of interest to the members of the Kaiser Foundation Health Plan is the construction of its ultra-modern $3,000,000 San Francisco Hospital now near completion on the city block bounded by Geary, O'Farrell and Lyon Streets and St. Joseph Avenue.

The obstetrics floor will have a built-in, soundproofed nursery behind each bed. A drawer-like arrangement for the bassinet will permit it to be pulled alongside the mother's bed through the wall from the nursery. The two top floors are planned for hotel type service for convalescent patients; facilities will include a buffet-style dining room and a variety of recreational services. There will be no multiple-bed wards in the hospital. Each room will have a maximum of two beds, with many single-occupancy rooms.

As a reminder to CPS members, service given a subscriber and dependents is allowed from any licensed physician, surgeon, or legally operated hospital anywhere in the world. However, if any services are necessary during your vacation, CPS requires notification of these services within a three-month period. Before going out-of-state, you might wish to take along Hospital Admission Notices and Doctor Billing Forms. These instructions and forms can be obtained from the Civilian Personnel Division.

Separate policies for Polio Insurance, which includes insurance for eight other diseases, and which pays up to $5,000 in the aggregate for each afflicted person in a family, is also available to PSF employees.

Further information regarding the above health insurance plans can be obtained from the health plan clerk, Civilian Personnel Division, Building 86, telephone extension 4481.

200 Pound Cake Comin'!

Fourth Anniversary of Service Club to be Observed 12 July

By Gloria Hetherington
Star-Presidian Feature Editor

"The construction of this enlisted men's Service club was financed by military personnel of World War II as a memorial to their comrades who gave their lives in that war."

The above dedication is a plaque.

The plaque hangs above the fireplace at the Presidio enlisted men's Service club.

Come 14 July, it will have hung there for four years, for that was the day back in 1949, when the Service club was officially opened and dedicated.

Anniversary observance this year will be held on 12 July, at which time awards will be made to organizations and individuals who have given so much of their time, talent and worldly goods to the club.

Guests will also watch a crack stage show and help consume a 200-pound anniversary cake, which will be cut in a combined effort by Army, Navy, Marine, Air Force and WAC representatives. Lt. Col. Eugene Bogard, Post Special Service officer, will preside.

Even the cake has a sort of an anniversary. For the fourth consecutive year, it will be baked by the Food Service school under the supervision of the same man, WOJG Robert Henneberg.

And six men will be placed on temporary duty—just to carry that cake over to the Service club!

Among the organizations to be honored are B'nai Brith, Jewish Welfare Board, Veterans of Foreign Wars, USO, senior hostesses who act as dance chaperones and various theatre groups who periodically present the Service club with complimentary tickets to stage presentations.

Festivities will begin at 2000 although the club will be open for inspections and the usual Sunday activities beginning at 1300.

Open daily from 1300 to 2200, the club offers such facilities as a library, snack bar, bowling alley, lounges, sun deck, television, music room and game room complete with pool, snooker, billiard and ping-pong tables.

Activities which are an integral part of the week-to-week programming include ballroom and square dancing, bingo, tournaments, stage shows and informal parties around the fireplace.

The Service club was designed under the supervision of the San Francisco District Corps of Engineers, and is of Spanish architecture to conform with other permanent buildings on the Post. Oversize plate glass windows that overlook the bay are encased in steel frames to support their

Cinema Previews

"AFFAIR WITH A STRANGER," F* deals with the struggle of a playwright to reach the bigtime. It plays serious havoc with his marriage and threatens to ruin both it and his career.

"THE JAZZ SINGER," F* presents a conflict between a boy who wants to be an entertainer and his father who wants him to follow a more serious career. There is a generous sprinkling of music, dancing and comedy relief.

"DANGEROUS CROSSING," F* is about a bride, who, on her honeymoon voyage suddenly finds her happiness dimmed by shadows of fear that create a steadily rising pitch of hysteria which is climaxed by attempted murder.

"THE CLOWN," F* features Red Skelton in the tragic-comedy role of a once great clown whose weakness for the bottle nearly drops him to skid row. His redemption is brought about by the unshakable faith of his small son.

"RIDE VAQUERO," F* is a rootin' tootin' western in which a rancher, unable to cope with the raids by rival gangs, hires one gang leader to fight against another and thus save his property in the showdown battle.

BOOK CORNER

AMAZON HEAD-HUNTERS by Lewis N. Collow. The author tells of three trips made to the borderland between Peru and Ecuador to study the Jivaro Indians. There are vivid descriptions of hunting, raids, techniques of head-taking and shrinking, native dances, feasts, and treks through the impenetrable jungle.

TORBEG by Grace Campbell. From the Continent came Bonnie Prince Charlie to reclaim his birthright, the Kingdom of Scotland, and with his arrival came the turbulence which put an end to the peace and happiness of the clansmen. An acceptable historical romance concerning the fortunes of young Finlay Grant and his bride Caroline.

HOTEL TALLEYRAND by Paul H. Bonner. A story of marked contrasts of sophistication and innocence involving the American personnel in the ECA office in Paris, particularly Walter Haines and his tragic love affair with a Communist agent.

"Presidio Players," New Drama Group, To Organize Here

It's going to be Wednesday (8 July) at 1930.

The place is the Presidio Service Club.

That's when "The Presidio Players," will be organized.

This new live-drama group, membership in which is open to both military and civilian personnel, will go right to work with readings for its first scheduled production, Lord Dunsany's "Fame and the Poet."

PFC Curtiss Hungerford, graduate Stanford University's department of speech and recently assigned to the Sixth Army band, will direct the first production.

Other staff members already engaged in supervisory activities include Miss Eileen Pierce and SFC Renee Shearing, advisors; PFC Shirley Keith, rehearsal secretary and publicity; PFC Richard C. Smith, stage manager; PFC Cecil Lee, lighting supervisor, and Miss Elizabeth de la Torre, wardrobe.

Application blanks are available for interested personnel at both the Service Club and the Officers Club, and will likewise be distributed to the various units on the post.

Further information may also be obtained by phoning the Service Club, Extension 2000.

Cigarette Prices Go Up One Cent Per Package

After holding the price firm on cigarettes for three months despite a wholesale cost increase of nearly a penny a pack, Post Exchanges increased their retail price one cent a pack, effective 1 July, 1953, Captain Tracy Williams, Bay Area Exchange officer, announced this week.

"The wholesale price of cigarettes increased in March," Capt. Williams said. "The civilian stores were forced to increase their retail price, but we were determined to keep to the old price as long as we possibly could and pass on the extra savings to our customers as another 'over-the-counter' dividend. Now we, too, must pass along this wholesale cost increase."

Capt. Williams noted that the savings to a PX customer on cigarettes are still substantial and are still in the same ratio to the civilian price as before.

Civilian participation in the Armed Forces Blood Donor program can and should be improved. The next time your supervisor asks you to give blood think of Mrs. Fitzgerald before you give an excuse.

Col. Harrie E. Hoxie, acting deputy post commander, at a ceremony held at Post Headquarters 25 June, presented a Sixth Army Certificate of Achievement to Joseph R. Giannetta for outstanding performance of duty as Organization and Methods Examiner in the Comptroller Section, Presidio of San Francisco.

Mrs. Margaret W. Bouska, clerk (typist), Provost Marshal Section, Hq. Sixth Army, received a Sixth Army Certificate of Achievement for outstanding civilian service. The award was presented at a ceremony in the Provost Marshal Section on 29 May 1953 by Col. J. L. Driskell.

Samuel L. Siverts, Civil and Sanitation Engineer with the Engineer Section, Hq. Sixth Army, who retired after 18 years of Federal service, was presented a Sixth Army Certificate of Achievement by Colonel A. A. G. Kirchhoff, Chief Engineer, at a ceremony in the Engineer Section on 4 June 1953.

Mrs. Emily J. Shew, clerk-typist with the U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Main Armed Forces Station, 30 Van Ness, received an award of a Superior Accomplishment Pay Increase for exemplary performance of duties. The award was presented to her by Lt. Colonel Ray O. Busch, Commanding Officer of the Recruiting Station, at a ceremony on 28 May 1953.

Dick I. Teschner, Sign Painter, Post Engineer Section, was the winner of a cash award of $25.00 for his suggestion of substituting waterproof cardboard for wood signs, which procedure has been adopted by the Post Engineers.

For some time both California Physicians Service Health Plan and the Kaiser Foundation Health Plan (formerly the Permanente Health Plan) have been available to Presidio civilian employees.

Membership in either of these plans is entirely voluntary, and employees should join only if they believe they will benefit from membership. Both California Physicians Service and Kaiser Foundation Plan are non-profit organizations which provide a program of health protection with prepaid medical, surgical and hospital benefits. The plans differ from each other in regards to rate of payment and types of benefits, and employees planning to become members should examine both plans carefully in order to choose the one which fits his own or his family's needs.

Of interest to the members of the Kaiser Foundation Health Plan is the construction of its ultra-modern $3,000,000 San Francisco Hospital now near completion on the city block bounded by Geary, O'Farrell and Lyon Streets and St. Joseph Avenue.

The obstetrics floor will have a built-in, soundproofed nursery behind each bed. A drawer-like arrangement for the bassinets will permit it to be pulled alongside the mother's bed through the wall from the nursery. The two top floors are planned for hotel type service for convalescent patients; facilities will include a buffet-style dining room and a variety of recreational services. There will be no multiple-bed wards in the hospital. Each room will have a maximum of two beds, with many single-occupancy rooms.

As a reminder to CPS members, service given a subscriber and dependents is allowed from any licensed physician, surgeon, or legally operated hospital anywhere in the world. However, if any services are necessary during your vacation, CPS requires notification of these services within a three-month period. Before going out-of-state, you might wish to take along Hospital Admission Notices and Doctor Billing Forms. These instructions and forms can be obtained from the Civilian Personnel Division.

Separate policies for Polio Insurance, which includes insurance for eight other diseases, and which pays up to $5,000 in the aggregate for each afflicted person in a family, is also available to PSF employees.

Further information regarding the above health insurance plans can be obtained from the health plan clerk, Civilian Personnel Division, Building 86, telephone extension 4481.

200 Pound Cake Comin'!

Fourth Anniversary of Service Club to be Observed 12 July

By Gloria Hetherington

Star-Presidian Feature Editor

"The construction of this enlisted men's Service club was financed by military personnel of World War II as a memorial to their comrades who gave their lives in that war."

The above dedication is a plaque.

The plaque hangs above the fireplace at the Presidio enlisted men's Service club.

Come 14 July, it will have hung there for four years, for that was the day back in 1949, when the Service club was officially opened and dedicated.

Anniversary observance this year will be held on 12 July, at which time awards will be made to organizations and individuals who have given so much of their time, talent and worldly goods to the club.

Guests will also watch a crack stage show and help consume a 200-pound anniversary cake, which will be cut in a combined effort by Army, Navy, Marine, Air Force and WAC representatives. Lt. Col. Eugene Bogard, Post Special Service officer, will preside.

Even the cake has a sort of an anniversary. For the fourth consecutive year, it will be baked by the Food Service school under the supervision of the same man, WOJG Robert Henneberg.

And six men will be placed on temporary duty—just to carry that cake over to the Service club!

Among the organizations to be honored are B'nai Brith, Jewish Welfare Board, Veterans of Foreign Wars, USO, senior hostesses who act as dance chaperones and various theatre groups who periodically present the Service club with complimentary tickets to stage presentations.

Festivities will begin at 2000 although the club will be open for inspections and the usual Sunday activities beginning at 1300.

Open daily from 1300 to 2200, the club offers such facilities as a library, snack bar, bowling alley, lounges, sun deck, television, music room and game room complete with pool, snooker, billiard and ping-pong tables.

Activities which are an integral part of the week-to-week programming include ballroom and square dancing, bingo, tournaments, stage shows and informal parties around the fireplace.

The Service club was designed under the supervision of the San Francisco District Corps of Engineers, and is of Spanish architecture to conform with other permanent buildings on the Post.

Over-size plate glass windows that overlook the bay are encased in steel frames to support their size. The mural over the fireplace depicts the original building of the Presidio, and was designed by Cpl. Lou J. Cameron, who was stationed here with the Post Engineers at the time.

Actors Wanted

The Little Theatre Group of Fort Cronkhite is still casting for players for its initial presentation, "Time of Your Life," by Saroyan.

Rehearsal meetings are held on Tuesdays at 2000 and any interested serviceman may contact either Miss Galt or Miss Horning at 58-353. Club hostesses will assume the feminine roles in the cast.

Cinema Previews

"AFFAIR WITH A STRANGER," F* deals with the struggle of a playwright to reach the bigtime. It plays serious havoc with his marriage and threatens to ruin both it and his career.

"THE JAZZ SINGER," F* presents a conflict between a boy who wants to be an entertainer and his father who wants him to follow a more serious career. There is a generous sprinkling of music, dancing and comedy relief.

"DANGEROUS CROSSING," F* is about a bride, who, on her honeymoon voyage suddenly finds her happiness dimmed by shadows of fear that create a steadily rising pitch of hysteria which is climaxed by attempted murder.

"THE CLOWN," F* features Red Skelton in the tragic-comedy role of a once great clown whose weakness for the bottle nearly drops him to skid row. His redemption is brought about by the unshakable faith of his small son.

"RIDE VAQUERO," F* is a roo'tin' tootin' western in which a rancher, unable to cope with the raids by rival gangs, hires one gang leader to fight against another and thus save his property in the showdown battle.

BOOK CORNER

AMAZON HEAD-HUNTERS by Lewis N. Cotlow. The author tells of three trips made to the borderland between Peru and Ecuador to study the Jivaro Indians. There are vivid descriptions of hunting, raids, techniques of head-taking and shrinking, native dances, feasts, and treks through the inimical jungle.

TORBEG by Grace Campbell. From the Continent came Bonnie Prince Charlie to reclaim his birthright, the Kingdom of Scotland, and with his arrival came the turbulence which put an end to the peace and happiness of the clansmen. An acceptable historical romance concerning the fortunes of young Finlay Grant and his bride Caroline.

HOTEL TALLEYRAND by Paul H. Bonner. A story of marked contrasts of sophistication and innocence involving the American personnel in the ECA office in Paris, particularly Walter Haines and his tragic love affair with a Communist agent.

Cigarette Prices Go Up One Cent Per Package

After holding the price firm on cigarettes for three months despite a wholesale cost increase of nearly a penny a pack, Post Exchanges increased their retail price one cent a pack, effective 1 July, 1953, Captain Tracy Williams, Bay Area Exchange officer, announced this week.

"The wholesale price of cigarettes increased in March," Capt. Williams said. "The civilian stores were forced to increase their retail price, but we were determined to keep to the old price as long as we possibly could and pass on the extra savings to our customers as another 'over-the-counter' dividend. Now we, too, must pass along this wholesale cost increase."

Capt. Williams noted that the savings to a PX customer on cigarettes are still substantial and are still in the same ratio to the civilian price as before.

A large field of individual golfers and teams representing installations in the Southern Division of the Sixth Army Area slated to tee-off in the opening loops of the 72-hole Sixth Army Preliminary Golf tourney, scheduled for Tuesday, 7 July, on the Presidio Golf Course.

The preliminary flights will continue through 10 July, whereupon the winning and runner-up teams and first five low medalists in the Main Division play and two low medalists in Senior Division play will be selected to compete in the subsequent Sixth Army Golf Championship, to be run 14-17 July on the Presidio links.

The beginning of the big golf week here at the Presidio will come on Monday at 1300 hours, with a meeting for all contestants in the Post Gym, Bldg. 122. At this time, according to Special Services officials, loop foursomes will have been determined and last-minute instructions given.

The Presidio Golf team, with members selected from the Post tourney held here at the end of May, is headed by Colonel Charles Ransom of Letterman Army Hospital, who stroked his way through the 72-hole local to a nine-stroke victory over his nearest competitor, netting a slim 301 total for the four days' play. Runner-up was Lt. Joe Turner, also of Letterman, who cannot take part in the coming tourney because of previous work commitments.

A PRESIDIO GREETING for visiting Sixth Army golfers is displayed by Special Services artist Pfc. Bob Reynolds—one of many Presidians who have been busy lately with preparations for the coming tourney. The preliminary play begins next Tuesday, then with a small adjustment the sign may be used for the championship, 14-17 July. (Army Photo by Woods.)

Others of the Presidio delegation include Captain Rollin Kapp, third-place victor in the Post tourney; M/Sgt. George de Rosa, fourth placer; Captain Louis Button; Captain Duane Bagley, and alternative Pvt. Ted Schwabenland. The Presidio group is expected to meet tough competition from entrants representing nine other Sixth Army Area installations.

Individual players expected to show well in the intra-base play are Pvt. Dick Yost and Harold Freer of the Camp Roberts contingent—both seasoned amateurs and well-known in Northern California and Oregon links contention.

Merle Fisher, long-hitting amateur from Fort Ord, is another golfer expected to turn in some prize cards during the four days on the Presidio course.

The Camp San Luis Obispo delegation is headed by linksmen Cpl. Sam Randolph, three-time Peninsula State Park champion in 1948, '49 and '51 and first-man on the University of California at Berkeley squad in 1951.

Other stations represented in the Southern Division of the Sixth Army prelims are Camp Stoneman, Stanford R.O.T.C. unit, Yuma Test Station, Fort Mason, Two Rock Ranch Station, and Det. 9, Induction and Recruiting Center of Los Angeles.

Concurrent golf preliminaries will be held at Fort Lewis, Washington, for teams and individuals representing installations in Washington, Idaho, Oregon, and Montana. The winning and runner-up teams and the five low medalists in the Main Division and two low medalists in the Senior Division there are slated for competition in the championship tournament at the Presidio.

Wednesday Softball

For more softball this week, on Wednesday a cellar-dwelling Harbor Defense nine proved it could be done and whipped the Det. A Guard 15-8. On the same afternoon, the 102 MRU outslugged the HQ Sixth Army crew 20-15. These games did not change league standings of teams involved.

At London, where a two-pound bet was accepted linking Iverina in a race at Newmarket and Golden Sparkle in a race at Ludlow track, the win and place combination paid off at odds of about 12,700 to 1!

Joseph J. McGinnity, "Iron Man" of the National League in the early 1900s, once hurled two games a day for five different days. He also set a record of 334 innings pitched in 1903.

The Seventh Did it!

Red Raiders Whip Navy Crew; Suffer Against Reno Pioneers

The close of the Bay Area Armed Services Baseball League still finds the Presidio Red Raiders going strong, with three practice games under their belt for the week and future prospects in store for them in the coming All-Sixth competition.

Recent games for the Raiders saw them chalk up a 9-1 win over the Oriskany ship's crew last Friday.

Pitcher for the Raiders was Bob Hill, chalking up his third consecutive victory as he and "Lefty" Gaea combined to hurl the team to their seventh straight win. Both moundsters gave a single run on two hits, fanned four batters, and walked but two.

Hurler Swartz for Oriskany allowed four hits. A total of 14 walks brought his team's downfall.

Wayne Taylor, Gene Jacobs and John Vozel carried their customary big sticks for the Raider offensive.

A series of two practice games off home territory this week saw the Raiders lose a couple of toughies to the Reno Pioneers.

The first game, a 6-0 shut-out for Reno, saw Hamaker and Herriage on the mound giving an aggregate of 12 hits.

Opposition hurler Helman provided six hits for big bats Taylor, Fucile, Fowler and Kloppe.

For the second game the Presidians did better, recording a 7-3 loss. Pitching chores for the Raiders this time were distributed between Arkie Stanton, Bob Hill and Hamaker. They served the Reno crew with 10 hits.

Reno pitcher Snider allowed seven to the visitors.

The Presidio team sees more action this afternoon against the San Francisco Police Department. The game will be held on Diamond Number One, behind the Presidio Theatre, at 1400 hours.

Wacs Continue on Loop Schedule; Fourth Place Tie With Hamilton Wafs

The Presidio Wac Softball team continued a heavy season last week against the Treasure Island Waves, losing the contest 26-2.

In Bay Area Armed Forces Women's Softball League standings so far the Presidians hold a fourth-place tie with the Hamilton Wafs. League-leaders are the Treasure Island Waves, runners-up the S. F. Marines. Alameda Waves trail third.

In game tallies so far, the Wacs show four wins to three losses.

U. S. Middleweight Champ

Carl "Bobo" Olson (left) demonstrates the finer points of putting the left hand to the opponent's head for Paddy Young in their recent title match in New York's Madison Square Garden. Olson went on to take the American middleweight crown in a 15-round decision. He will now meet Randy Turpin of Great Britain for the world's title, vacated by Ray Robinson last December.

Engineers Softball Posts 30-16 Win In League Contest

By Cpl. Allen Van Soest

A line single by Engineer Lopez with teammate Christopher on base gave the 99th Engineers the one run they needed to whip the Surveyors 12-11 in last week's 30th Engineer loop-go and put the winners into a first-place tie with the idle Headquarters nine on the league ladder.

The doughty Surveyors battled the 99th all the way with little regard for the highly-rated and thus far undefeated powerhouse, and it was not until Brown had been forced out at second on a fielder's choice in the seventh that the 99th was sure of victory.

The first inning was the best for the victors as five runs were scored on seven hits, all singles. 99th hurler Garachana kept the opposition hits scattered and prevented them from putting together any big rally.

It was Garachana's second game without a loss. He allowed 13 hits and 11 runs. Surveyor hurler Molina twirled a 13-hitter for his second loss this season.

Early this week the Surveyors turned about and won their first victory of the season, sinking the 45th Boat Company by a grid-iron tally of 30-16.

In this one extra-base blows were as prevalent as singles are in most games. The Surveyors clouted five homers, one triple, four doubles and a grand total of 21 hits. Round-trippers were lashed by Collier, Brown, Lahr, Jones and Moore.

By the end of five frames, the Surveyors had a comfortable 14-2 lead behind the four-hit hurling of Molina. Then English replaced Molina on the mound and there began a wild merry-go-round spree that ended in a 16-16 tie at the bottom of the sixth.

As the teams moved into the seventh the Surveyors responded to an avid cheering section to produce 14 runs for the winning total.

Army's Good Deed!

Military Equipment Is Lent For Boy Scout Encampment

Several thousand pieces of U. S. Army equipment will be used during the week-long encampment of the third National Boy Scout Jamboree, opening 17 July at the Irvine Ranch near Corona Del Mar, Calif.

The Army's cooperation in the jamboree is extended through Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing.

Commanding General, Sixth Army, and Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, Commanding General, III Corps, at Fort MacArthur. Authorization for the military to lend such equipment as needed to the Scouts for the Jamboree was granted by Public Law No. 363, passed by the 82d Congress.

Consisting mainly of tentage, vehicles, bedding, medical supplies and odds and ends necessary for an outdoor extravaganza of this sort, the equipment will be loaned to the Boy Scouts of America at no cost to the government. All borrowed equipment has been insured by the Scouts and the military will be reimbursed for any loss or damage.

Workmen are now in the process of pitching some 3,500 tents furnished by the Army over the 3,000-acre campsite to house field hospitals, press headquarters, latrines, and Jamboree personnel other than the Scouts themselves who will furnish their own pup tents.

Army vehicles to aid in the construction and maintenance of the gigantic Jamboree camp number approximately 100. Pick-ups and one-and-one-half ton trucks will be used generally to transport supplies throughout the area. Numerous ambulances, buses and sedans, a fire truck, and other miscellaneous vehicles will also be provided for Jamboree personnel. Some of these are already on hand at the campsite and the others are scheduled for 1 July delivery.

Since 1 April, a mounted automatic earth auger has been at the campsite drilling post holes, latrines and other cartage for various uses.

To assist in managing and controlling this equipment, a maintenance and accounting detachment from Fort MacArthur is stationed at the Jamboree headquarters. Commanded by Captain M. D. Fox, the unit consists of two officers and four enlisted men.

During the actual encampment three Army units will be present to lend the Scouts a helping hand. These include approximately 60 men from Fort MacArthur who will compose a Supply and Maintenance detachment, and two reserve units, the 355th Hospital Unit of Santa Ana and the 823d General Hospital Unit of San Diego. Both are under the command of Colonel Thomas E. Hanigan, Santa Ana, and will be used to staff the Jamboree Medical Clearing Station, a complete battalion-sized clearing station equipped with all necessary medical supplies and equipment including dental, x-ray and emergency operating facilities.

Two Army veterinary officers will be available to the Scouts during the Jamboree to assist in the inspection of food supplies and cooking facilities.

Recently Assigned

Colonel John McFeely is the new chief of the plans division, G-4 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

He has spent the past two years in Washington D. C., as executive officer of distribution and procurement, G-1, Department of the Army.

In the Army for the past 21 years, Col. McFeely spent five years in the European-African-Middle East theatre in World War II and has the Bronze Star medal and Commendation ribbon.

Lt. Vernon F. Bollens is the new executive officer of the 315th Engineer group.

He joined the 315th at Fort Worden, Wash., and came with them when they transferred to the Presidio.

In the Army for the past 16 months, Lt. Bollens received his commission recently upon graduation from OCS at Fort Belvoir, Va. He is a native of San Francisco.

WOJG Frederick N. Morrison is the newly arrived commanding officer of the 359th Engineer Utilities detachment.

He was formerly battalion motor officer at Fort Worden, Wash., having served there since July 1952.

In Korea for 21 months with the 439th Engineer Construction Bn., 32nd Group, WOJG Morrison also served 34 months overseas in World War II. At that time he was with an amphibious unit that saw service in Africa, Sicily, Italy and Okinawa.

A veteran of 13 years' service, WOJG Morrison has been awarded the Navy Commendation Medal and the Meritorious citation for Korea.

Lt. Carl E. Bartelt has recently been assigned to the 315th Engineer group, PSF, following 13 months service with that group at Fort Worden, Washington, as a diver.

A member of the famous First Cavalry division in Korea, Lt. Bartelt served there during the initial period 1950-1951. He wears the Purple Heart, the Combat Infantry Badge, the Korean Service medal with five stars and the Japanese Occupation ribbon.

Lt. Bartelt has been in the Army for the past six years, and his other overseas service includes a year with the 581st Engineer Service platoon in Alaska.

Army

T. I. C.

Topic

"Decorations and Awards" will be the topic for Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units next week. This subject explains how the Army honors and rewards its soldiers and their units through a system of awards giving visible evidence of the Nation's recognition and gratitude for services in its defense.

The American soldier's first honor in recognition of his service was the Purple Heart, created during the Revolutionary War by General George Washington. It was then called the "Badge of Military Merit" and was not given for wounds, as it is now, but for acts of unusual gallantry and fidelity.

For a long time after the Medal of Honor was created in 1862 it was our only official decoration, because Washington's original Purple Heart, now given for wounds received in service, wasn't used again after the Revolution until 1932. Being our only decoration, the Medal of Honor could not represent supreme recognition as it does now. It had to be used to reward all types of bravery and achievement, some not connected with combat service.

Our present system of individual decorations, often referred to as the "Pyramid of Honor," is made up of 11 decorations, arranged in order of degree of valor or achievement, with the Medal of Honor at the top.

In addition to discussing individual decorations, the conferences will consider service medals, ribbons, badges, unit emblems, streamers, and campaign silver bands.

Notes to Presidio From Alaska

By Lt. James A. Mulkern with the 30th Engineers in Alaska

King Salmon, Alaska—There are no paved streets, gutters, or sidewalks here and you walk nearly everywhere you go. When the wind blows it is dusty. When it doesn't there are millions of mosquitoes. When you walk it is always dusty . . . except when it rains—then it is muddy.

Various and Tundra—There are clams and mussels by the hundreds on the seashore and it feels like spring. But if you should dig a hole you can dig only eight to 22 inches and you hit permanently frozen ground. And the tundra . . . it looks solid and at first feels solid. But after you walk on it, it is like walking on a bathtub full of wet sponges. Sometimes it holds and sometimes it doesn't but either way it is wet at the bottom.

Gourmet's Note—Last night I went to dinner in Anchorage. I finally tasted "moose meat"! It's really very good. My host got one last winter and he figured that it cost him 25¢ a lb. Somewhat better than the usual price of meat around here (about $1.00 a lb. for hamburger).

As far as church groups go—Well, the only ordained minister in the area is the traveling priest, Father Grief whom I met in Holy Cross last year. They have built a new church in Dillingham, but that is 45 or 55 minutes away by air. Many of the 30th Engineers are well acquainted with Father Grief and his hospitality as the men are often dinner guests at his home when passing through Holy Cross.

Organizer of Area AFPD Relinquishes His Command

Lt. Col. George A. MacEachern, Military Police Corps, organizer and first commander of the San Francisco-Metropolitan East Bay Armed Services Police Detachment, relinquished command of the unit to Lt. Col. Charles A. Fanning, Military Police Corps, in a brief ceremony Friday, at the detachment headquarters at Treasure Island.

Colonel MacEachern has been ordered to Carlisle Barracks, Pa., to attend the Army War College. Colonel Fanning has been serving as Provost Marshal of the Third Corps at Fort MacArthur, Calif., until last month.

A veteran of service in Europe, Colonel MacEachern reported to the Presidio of San Francisco in January, 1951 and assumed command of the Armed Services Police Detachment upon its activation on March 15, 1951. Colonel MacEachern is a graduate of the Military Police School and the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

During World War II, Colonel Fanning served as an infantry company commander in Tunisia with the 34th Infantry Division and later with the 97th Infantry Division on occupation duty in Japan. In 1951 he was ordered to Korea where he served as Provost Marshal of the First Corps prior to reporting for duty at Fort MacArthur in 1952. He is also a graduate of the Command and General Staff College.

Military Honors Given Three Retiring Officers

Camp Roberts, Calif.—A division review of more than 10,000 men in honor of three retiring field grade officers was held at Camp Roberts last Saturday.

Receiving military honors were Colonel Robert I. Stack, deputy post commander; Colonel John J. Powers, post quartermaster; and Colonel John C. Butler, commanding officer of the camp at its reactivation in 1950.

All three officers are veterans of 30 or more years service with the United States Army and have had combat experience in both world wars.

Naturalization Change

Washington—Aliens serving in the Armed Forces of the United States may soon find it easier to become citizens. A bill which would speedup naturalization procedures for any alien immigrant or non-immigrant, who entered the country lawfully and who has at least 90 days of honorable service in uniform, has been approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee and recommended for passage. This would entitle men serving during the Korean period to the benefits given aliens in service during WWI and WWII.

DPC Message

This year the Joint Army Emergency Relief and Army Relief Society Fund Campaign will be conducted from 1 July to 31 July 1953.

In 1952, the Presidio Army Emergency Relief made loans and grants totalling $9,595.00 to military personnel and their dependents.

We of the Army have always been proud of our great tradition of doing our utmost to take care of our own. There is nothing more comforting than the knowledge that we are all concerned with one another's welfare.

This great tradition has grown and been maintained in the Army largely because of the splendid work of the Army Emergency Relief and the Army Relief Society.

The 1953 Joint Fund Campaign offers an opportunity for Military Personnel to contribute towards our common welfare. I sincerely urge you to give these two fine organizations your earnest support.

Weekly World News AT A GLANCE

SOUTH KOREA'S Foreign Minister reported Thursday that President Syngman Rhee has rejected President Eisenhower's appeal that he abandon his revolt against armistice terms and seek the unification of Korea by peaceful means. Assistant Secretary of State Walter S. Robertson, President Eisenhower's personal truce envoy, had no comment to make after his seventh meeting with Rhee in Seoul Thursday, and no time was announced for any future meeting. American sources said Rhee and Robertson were deadlocked over Rhee's demand for a 90-day limit on the political conference which is to follow an armistice. The South Korean president is understood to have demanded a military alliance with the United States under which American troops would back up any move he decided to make for the Korean unification if the post-armistice political conference showed no sign of bringing about unification within 90 days. . . . ON THE FIGHTING FRONT, Chinese troops, launching a powerful new onslaught, again swept over the crest of Lookout Mountain Wednesday. The Communists retook the height shortly after it had been regained by the South Koreans. Nearby, heavy fighting rocked back and forth for two other heights—Finger Ridge and Virginia Hill—as Republic of Korea forces came to grips with waves of Reds in the Pukhan River bulge. On the western front, ROK troops recaptured one outpost in the Arrowhead Ridge complex guarding the Chorwon Valley main route to Seoul. . . . NORTHWEST OF CHORWON, 22 Sabres dropped 44 bombs on the tanks in a camouflaged valley four miles from Sibyon after setting a new record of 73 kills in one month. The Fifth Air Force topped by ten the previous record of 63 Russian-built jet fighters destroyed in September, 1952. . . . ALLIED TROOPS killed and wounded more than 36,000 Reds in June, the equivalent of about three Communist Divisions, the Eighth Army reported Thursday. But during the same time Allied lines withstood the heaviest shelling of the three-year war. Almost 1,500,000 rounds of artillery and mortar from Red guns, more than double the previous records of last October, were poured on United Nations troops.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA has made it a criminal offense for workers to stay away from their jobs four times without good reason. This is hoped by the government to curb absenteeism. Western diplomats believe growing absenteeism is the workers' answer to the repressive police measures which followed riots and strikes in Czechoslovakia last month. . . . THE HUNGARIAN Communist party announced Tuesday elimination of the post of Secretary General of the Central Committee and establishment of a three-man secretariat to rule the party. The move is regarded by political observers to be in line with that set by the Kremlin in shifting control of the Soviet Union and other Communist states from the shoulders of one man onto a committee of top Communists. Premier Matyas Rakosi did hold the post of Secretary General and is one of three named to the secretariat.

SOUTHERN JAPAN experienced major floods following 27 inches of rainfall in five days. Police listed 427 persons dead, 699 missing and 823 injured, while more than 1,083,000 others fled to high ground from homes washed away or inundated. American soldiers, sailors and airmen joined with Japanese police and safety forces to rescue victims of the flood. The Japanese Ministry of Construction estimated flood damage at more than $227,000,000 and said it would take five years to restore the stricken areas to normal.

FROM ENGLAND an announcement was made Tuesday of a Big Three Foreign Ministers' conference to be held about 10 July in Washington. Attending will be Secretary of State John Foster Dulles of the United States, Lord Salisbury, Acting Foreign Secretary of Britain, and Georges Bidault, Foreign Minister of France. The meeting is being held in view of the postponement of the Bermuda talks, which were to have brought together President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and French Premier Joseph Laniel. The talks were postponed when Churchill got doctors' orders to take a rest. An agenda for the meeting outlined by American, British and French diplomats gave stress to Korea, Germany and Indo-China. . . . EAST GERMANY's high-ranking Soviet officers and civilians were recalled suddenly to Moscow presumably to be asked to explain why they had not warned Moscow in advance that a riot of two million unarmed German workers was brewing. The departure came a day before the Soviet ambassadors in Washington, London and Paris were hurriedly called home for consultations. In none of the capitals was there official explanation for the return of the ambassadors. However, observers noted that their trips followed Western cancellation of the projected Big Three meeting in Bermuda and scheduling of a substitute "preliminary" meeting of foreign ministers in Washington. . . . ITALY'S Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi's Centrist coalition, which won narrow majorities in last month's general elections, elected Christian Democrats to be presidents of the Chamber of Deputies and Senate as Italy's second postwar parliament met for the first time. The Premier's margins of victory in both houses were again slender, but he succeeded in gaining organizational control of the 590-member chamber and the 243-member Senate.

INDO-CHINESE allies of the French were the cause of new troubles for France, hard pressed by seven years of war with Communist-led rebels. French and North African troop reinforcements were sent into the kingdom of Cambodia as precaution against King Norodom Sihanouk's threat of open war against France for full independence. In the sister state of Viet Nam, 500 soldiers of a local politico-military sect deserted posts southwest of Saigon which they had been assigned to guard against Red-led Viet Minh rebels. . . . FRANCE'S longest political crisis since the liberation was ended when the National Assembly elected Joseph Laniel, an almost unknown politician, their 19th postwar Premier. Independent Laniel announced the selection of his cabinet which includes six former Premiers. Nine members of the outgoing Cabinet of ex-Premier Rene Mayer were included in the new government. Few changes were made in the important ministries. . . . RED CHINA'S Peiping radio admitted an unofficial trade agreement between Japan and Red China was a failure. On paper the agreement was worth $30,000,000, but actually only a small fraction of the amount was traded. Nevertheless, the trade pact due to expire 30 June was extended for another six months.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY SAN FRANCISCO! Miss Madeleine Rose, who reigned as "La Favorita" during the observance of the founding of San Francisco 177 years ago, was assisted by Colonel Harrie E. Hoxie, acting deputy post commander, in cutting the city's birthday

Films on 5,000 Subjects!

Soldier-Actors Share Oscars In Army 'How, Why' Films

By S/Sgt. HOYT GIMLIN, USAF
(AFPS Staff Writer)

On a spot where the great film lover, Rudolph Valentino, once recorded celluloid epics for the delight of American womanhood, a .30 caliber machine gun squad prepared to set up its weapon in a wooded area.

The soldier-actors dug into real earth, surrounded by fake foliage, inside the biggest film studio east of Hollywood, the Army Signal Corps training-film center, Long Island City, N. Y.

Today over 5,000 subjects, from field stripping the M-1 rifle to military justice, have been filmed since the Army took over the property in 1942, long after the embryonic Paramount Film Co. departed for Hollywood.

Authenticity is the key word in every production. A court-martial scene calls for still shots of actual military court rooms to give prop men and carpenters the right touch to the set. Soldiers are used for actors whenever possible but sometimes demanding roles require TV or movie talent. Recently a full infantry battalion at Ft. Benning, Ga., was used for some location shooting.

Signal Corps photographers filmed, often under combat conditions, a series for "The Big Picture" television series carried weekly by 125 stations. "The First 40 Days," a story of the bitter delaying action at the outset of the Korean War, won the 1951 Distinguished TV Achievement Award.

In 1948 when the emphasis shifted from wartime training films, "Diary of a Sergeant" won an Academy Award for its story of a veteran's rehabilitation. A fantasy about a serviceman who scorned safety "Once Too Often" rated a 1950 National Committee for Films safety award.

As if abreast of the fashion, foreign language films are handled. However, these are to show allied

Col. H. E. Hoxie Pays Tribute to Founders of City

Col. Harrie E. Hoxie, acting deputy post commander, Presidio of San Francisco, paid tribute to the early founders of San Francisco, Fray Francisco Palou, Lt. Jose Joaquin Moraga and Fray Junipero Serra, at a Founders' Day ceremony at Mission Dolores on Monday.

Traditional services were held at the Mission beginning with a High Mass. Father Terence Cronin, Franciscan representative, delivered the sermon.

The commemoration ceremony following the Mass was held in the cemetery adjoining the mission. In addition to Colonel Hoxie, other speakers honoring the city's founders were Dr. Albert Shumate, California Historical Society, and John J. Haster, Serra Club of San Francisco.

Miss Madeleine Rose of San Francisco reigns as "La Favorita" during the 177th year celebration. She is a descendant of the early Spanish families of Pacheco and Arguello.

The celebration also included a luncheon at the Presidio Officers' Club. Colonel Hoxie and Miss Rose cut a birthday cake with a sabre. Principal speaker was Dr. Edwin A. Beilharz, from the University of Santa Clara.

Music was furnished by the Sixth Army Band under the direction of Chief Warrant Officer Nathan A. Cammack, Jr. Sponsors for the Founders' Day celebration are the California Historical Society and California Citizens Society.

Making a surprise assault on the legendary four-minute mile, lanky ROGER BANNISTER of England last Saturday ran it in 4:02—the third fastest of all time and only six-tenths of a second off GUNDER HAEGG's world record of 4:01.4. Bannister's effort came a few hours prior to WES SANTEE's A.A.U. performance of 4:07.6.

BEN HOGAN, United States open golf champion, walked onto the tough Carnoustie course last week and promptly demonstrated to a group of amazed onlookers why he will be favored to win the British open that begins 6 July. The little Texan, who had not seen Carnoustie before, posted a brilliant 69. There is no accepted par for Carnoustie, but by American standards the 7,200-yard course should play about 37, 37—74. The world's great golfers through the years have never broken 70 in championship play!

Meanwhile, MARLENE STEWART, a 19-year-old college student from Fonthill, Ontario, won the British women's amateur golf championship last week by defeating PHILOMENA GARVEY of Ireland, 7 and 6. She was the first Canadian to win in the sixty-year history of the tournament.

Former Red Sox red-hot TED WILLIAMS arrived in Japan from Korea on Wednesday for treatment of an ear and nose ailment that impaired his usefulness as a jet pilot. He had flown 38 missions before he was grounded earlier last month by the First Marine Air Wing. LOU BOUDREAU, manager of the Boston team, said he was convinced Williams could get back into the lineup if he is released from active duty before the end of the season, but since the ball star's tour of duty is not up till October, a Marine Corps spokesman said that it was unlikely that Williams would be released before then. Earlier in the week Williams had told reporters that he did not know yet whether he would return to baseball or enter the business world.

ARCHIE MOORE, light-heavyweight champion of the world who defended his crown with success recently against contender JOEY MAXIM, would be glad to accept a challenge from Utah's golden boy REX LAYNE, according to an announcement last week from Moore's manager CHARLEY JOHNSTON. The Utah heavyweight scored a fourth-round knockout last week over BILLY MCCLURE of Los Angeles in a fight that followed Moore's decision over Maxim.

The United States was assured of the Wimbledon women's tennis championship for the tenth straight tournament when MAUREEN CONNOLLY and three other Americans, DORIS HART, SHIRLEY FRY and DOROTHY HEAD KNODE, swept into the semi-finals on Tuesday without the loss of a set. Americans have won the women's title in every tournament since DOROTHY ROUND last kept it in England in 1937.

For the pennant parade this week, Seattle was back on top of the Pacific Coast League, three games up on Hollywood, while Los Angeles displayed an anxious third spot. In the American League, New York held covetously to their top rung, though by mid-week they were eight games in the hole toward a losing streak. The Boston Red Sox came from behind on Tuesday to hand the Yanks their eighth defeat, trimming their lead to a scant five games over the dogged Indians. For the Nats, the Dodgers finally overcame the elusive Braves for first-place with 42 won, 26 lost. Milwaukee stayed a meager one game in arrears, while St. Louis trailed third with 40 for 69.

San Francisco sportswriter BILL LEISER reports on the "World Championship of Sports," to be held 30 July through 9 August, at the Tam O'Shanter Country Club in Chicago. Slated for the tournament are professionals and amateurs, men and women. Prizes are gargantuan, with the winner taking a straight $25,000, and the sixty leaders splitting $75,000 between them. Women professionals will split some $15,000 between them. It's no wonder entries are already submitted from Egypt, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, Argentina, Colombia, Scotland, Sweden, Holland, Germany, South Africa and Mexico!

SMITH SUCCESSFULLY DEFENDED HIS ALL-MARINE TITLE THIS YEAR BY VAULTING 13 FEET SIX INCHES.

Trainee Breaks Roberts Bayonet Course Mark

Camp Roberts, Calif.—Army Private John Grenier, 20, of Richmond, Calif., has set a new record in running the bayonet assault course here.

Running, jumping and lunging under a 105 degree sun, Private Grenier streaked around the 440-yard obstacle course in three minutes flat, a minute and five seconds under the old record. The previous record had held up before the attempts of thousands of basic trainees within the past six months.

The bayonet assault course, designed to prepare the infantry soldier for close moving combat, has two ten foot log walls, a fifty foot cable crossing a ravine, a fifty foot screen of barbed wire, a rope crossing over a gully, and many bayonet thrusting dummies.

Toppers Vanquish Officers for Top; 9th Ack Ack Goes to Second Spot

Last Friday saw the long-awaited meeting between two giants of the intra-mural softball circuit—the Fort Scott Hill Toppers and the Presidio Officers' Club—up to last week co-leaders of loop standing and each boasting an eight-game win-streak. The Toppers, at their strongest for the season's career, banged out a surprising 10-3 starter over their foes, securing an unsullied first-place positioning for themselves and thrusting the Officers to an undignified third-place rung on the ladder.

The contest was witnessed by an unprecedented crowd of over one hundred, as fans of the two teams and "scouts" of other league nines braved a thirty-mile-an-hour wind, which drove clouds of dust into their faces and clothing, to see which of the behemoths would out-smash the other.

Particularly noticeable was the imported Topper yell-section, which responded vigorously to each of their team's triumphs and yacked heartily at the efforts of the opposition, which did much for the Fort Scott morale and may have had something to do with the Officers' upset loss.

In a neighboring diamond, completely lost to the glamour of the Topper-Officer brawl but actually no less important, the tough 9th Ack Ack crew, long a dark horse in League contention, surged upward unnoticed to draw a second-place slot by trouncing the Harbor Defense nine, 7-6.

Action in the Hill Topper victory first came in the top of the second rung, when Officer thunder-bat Vincent connected off opposition pitcher Benson for a home run—the misfortune being that there was no one on base.

Vincent's hit was no harbinger for later action by the Officers. In the third frame the Toppers opened for business with a magnificent eight-run tally, big bats Rau and Pierce sparking the onslaught. Batter Rau tripled with the bases loaded, which took the chuck out from under Topper wheels, and Pierce, another brawny for Fort Scott, connected with three for three for the afternoon, one a double.

Topper hurler Benson provided the score sheets with five strike outs, allowing the opposition a meager four hits, while Officers Holtz and Hoskins, co-moundsters for the day, split 13 free walks, six fannings, and nine hits for the adversaries.

Something should be said on behalf of the defeated Officers, whose performance last Friday was not up to usual standard in any department. The fielding seemed to lack the characteristic speed and flash. For the mound, hurler Holtz, previously a hard man to hit against, was certainly not up to par, allowing six walks in one inning alone. In batting, the Officers will have trouble finding a harder pitcher to deal with than Toppers' Benson. His speed and accuracy are perhaps one good reason the Officers' usual heavy-stickers froze on them Friday. In any event, with a good six weeks' action ahead of them, the Officers are hardly out of league running, and still have a chance to even the score against the Toppers in games won and lost against the softer teams of the loop.

In the 9th AAA-Harbor Defense tussle, the action was closest in the first, fourth and sixth innings, with the Harbor crew sustaining a one-run advantage to the sixth bracket, whereupon the 9th's Ack Ack batters opened up for two markers, and pitcher Rhoads froze the action for opposition batsmen for the balance of the game.

Big-stickers for the 9th included Cooper, Cason and Rhoads, all with doubles, and Griffin, who homered.

Rhoads on the mound allowed five hits and fanned four. Opposition hurler was Ebert.

This afternoon promises another fast and furious scramble with newly starred 9th Ack Ack meeting the Hill Toppers to determine top-man in the league once more. The game is scheduled for the main diamond behind the Presidio Theatre, at 1530 hours.

League standings to date:
Team	Won	Lost
Fort Scott Hill Toppers	9	1
9th AAA	8	2
Officers' Club	8	2
102 MRU	7	4
Det. A Guard	5	5
HQ Co. 6th Army	4	7
Harbor Defense	3	7

Records Smashed!

Army Team in National AAU; Ord's Brown Cops Broadjump

Private George Brown, of Fort Ord, California multi-talented star of the victorious Sixth Army track and field team and subsequent point-earner for the triumphant Army constituent in the recent All-Service meet at Fort Jackson, South Carolina, capped off his season's achievements with a 25-feet, 10 3/4-inch winning broad-jump in the 65th national A.A.U. meet at Dayton, Ohio, last Saturday.

Brown, competing with other Army tracksters in the meet, helped garner a sixth-place 31-point total against athletes representing sporting clubs from every corner of the country.

Star of the A.A.U. meet was Walt (Buddy) Davis, 6 foot, 8-inch Texas A. and M. graduate, who smashed the world high jump record by a half inch with a thrilling last-try leap of 6 feet, 11 1/2 inches.

Davis' epic jump came shortly after Wes Santee of Kansas had failed in an expected try at the legendary four-minute mile, winning in the respectable time of 4:07.6, to shatter a 39-year old meet mark.

Other Army competitors to place in the meet included Second Army's Henry Cryer, victor in the All-Service 880, and second to Mal Whitfield's record-cracking A.A.U. time of 1:51.5 in that event. Army's Ken Soble leaped second to George Brown in the broad-jump.

Warren Druetzler, First Army long-distance ace and triple All-Service winner, came second in the two-mile steeplechase next to New York's Horace Ashenfelter. The event recorded a new meet time of 10:20.5, bettering a 1931 clocking set by Joe McCluskey of Fordham, Phil Coleman, Fifth Army's cinder ace, came third in the event.

In the 440 hurdles Army's Harry Bright ran third to Morgan State's Culbreath, whose :52.5 equalled the 1927 meet record.

Other Army thinclads to compete were Robert Cook, fourth place in the hop-step-and-jump; Jim Cooke, fifth in the discus; Cliff Blair, fifth in the hammer throw; Larry Goins, fifth in the javelin, and Jim Cooke, fifth in the broad-jump.

ELECTRICAL STIMULATOR being applied to the foot and leg muscles of Pfc. William Breeding, Ward 3, Letterman Army hospital, by Lt. Margaret Horchler, physical therapist, is observed with great interest by Miss Beatrice Wilson, MCSP, London, England, and Major Olena M. Cole, WMSC, Chief, PT Section, Physical Medicine service at Letterman. Miss Wilson, herself a council member of the Chartered Society of Physical Therapy in London, has built her own clinic which treats more than 5,000 cases a year. She is presently touring U. S. installations.

British Physical Therapy Head Visits At Presidio, Letterman

The Women's Medical Specialist Corps at the Presidio entertained its British counterpart last week.

Miss Beatrice Wilson, MCSP, a council member of the Chartered Society of Physical Therapy, with headquarters in London, visited here and at Letterman Army hospital.

Miss Wilson, who has built her own clinic at Seven Oaks, Kent, came to the United States as an official delegate of the chartered society to the Congress of America PT association, which recently concluded in Dallas, Texas. She is now making a tour of hospitals and rehabilitation centers throughout the country before returning to England. It is her first visit to this country.

While not actually a member of the British Armed Forces, but as a civilian with officer status, Miss Wilson, in 1942, became first command advisor in physical therapy and occupational therapy for the Armed forces in the Middle East. While her headquarters was in Cairo, her units serviced not only Egypt, but Palestine and Syria as well.

Miss Wilson still holds the position of chairman of the Overseas PT Service group which provides the personnel for PT services in the British Army.

Asked about her impressions of the WMSC services here as compared with those of her country, Miss Wilson replied that while our ideas are the same, at present the training techniques are different, however, with a tendency to approximate, especially in the co-ordination of the three factions of physical therapy, occupational therapy and rehabilitation.

At her own clinic, which serves the area of three hospital group management committees, Miss Wilson employs 36 qualified Chartered physical therapists and one occupational therapist. Regular visits by consultants in physical medicine and orthopedics are conducted, since patients must always be referred to a PT clinic by a medical practitioner, she explained.

The group gives some 50,000 treatments a year, and are equipped with mobile units for home treatment.

Chartered Society of PT's number approximately 15,000 active membership in England.

National Guard Holds Governor's Day Parade

Camp Roberts, Calif.—Reviewed by Major General Frank H. Partridge, deputy commanding general, Sixth Army, the California National Guard's 49th Division recently held its annual Governor's Day parade at Hunter Liggett Military Reservation.

Massed in battalions, the marching troops were commanded by Major General Curtis D. O'Sullivan, division commander. Brigadier General Roy A. Green, assistant division commander, led the dismounted brigade and the armored vehicles were headed by Brigadier General Charles F. White, division artillery commander. Major General R. F. Sink, who succeeded General Partridge as commanding general of Camp Roberts, occupied a place of honor in the reviewing stand.

Other dignitaries in the reviewing stand were Colonel (ret.) Eugene D. Bennett, civilian aide to the Secretary of the Army, and Captain H. C. Perkins, Chief of Staff, 12th Coast Guard District, San Francisco.

Motor Safety Awards

Annual motor safety awards were presented Tuesday to 138 civilian vehicle drivers by the San Francisco Port of Embarkation at Oakland Army Base and Fort Mason ceremonies. Covering periods of one to ten years of operating government vehicles without accident, the awards represented a total of 510 years. Each driver received a lapel button or pin designating the number of years of accidentless driving credited to him and a National Safety Council certificate.

Bedside Radio Station For Hospital Patients Dedicated at Roberts

Camp Roberts, Calif.—Major General Robert F. Sink, commanding general 7th armored division, officially dedicated Radio Station KRAH, Camp Roberts' new bedside radio station, Saturday morning at the U. S. Army Hospital.

KRAH commenced operations immediately after the dedication and pipes programs over four channels to the bedside of the hospitalized servicemen. Three of these stations carry programs direct from civilian stations located in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Paso Robles. A 20-foot aerial installed by the post engineers picks up the programs from the civilian stations.

Channel four will feature home productions, under the supervision of Lt. Francis I. Curtin, hospital radio station supervisor. A staff of three enlisted personnel, Sgt. Raymond H. Christian, Pvt. Roger Larson, and Pvt. John Brown, will broadcast records, programs and interviews daily from 1000 to 2200. Music will be supplied from the library of 2000 Armed Forces Service records, which also include comedy and drama programs. In addition, interviews with patients, religious and educational programs, and entertainment by local talent will be taped for rebroadcast.

For the patients, individual, small, disc-shaped plastic speakers designed to slip under a pillow, will be available. A choice of channels will be at arm's length, for any of the four may be selected by merely pulling a string attached to the control box near the bed. Bedside radio is a common service for most Army hospitals, and will eliminate the necessity of patient's bringing their own sets. And it also provides an opportunity for individual selection of programs and requests for favorite records over the local channel. The hospital station can be heard only on the discs, and can not be picked up by radio sets.

Ft. Ord Libraries Win Award For Publicity Program

Fort Ord, Calif.—The Fort Ord libraries were given national recognition this week by receiving a first place award in the John Cotton Dana Publicity Awards contest at the American Library Association's 72nd annual conference, in session last week in Los Angeles.

Leading all Army libraries, Fort Ord received first place for "excellence in the scope and execution of its publicity program." Judging was done on a publicity scrapbook which had been compiled by the libraries here.

Scrapbooks were submitted as entries by 95 libraries in this year's competition, sponsored by the Wilson Library Bulletin of New York in cooperation with the American Library Association Public Relations Committee. Entries received from 33 states, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and Canada showed cross sections of the libraries' role in their own communities and the efforts made to fulfill that role. Thirteen overseas libraries were among the many entries submitted by Air Force and Army libraries.

The effectiveness of Fort Ord's publicity program is reflected in the wide-spread use of the local facilities. During the past year, 210,870 books were checked out by personnel here. There are presently 21,535 books on the shelves, over 4000 of which were added during the year. These figures do not include special reference libraries on the Post.

Sixth Army libraries were well represented at the conference which drew a total of nearly 3500 librarians from all over the world. In addition to Miss Margaret Thompson of Fort Ord, the following Sixth Army librarians attended some sessions: Virginia Galbraith, Camp Irwin; Margaret Morse, Fort Ord; Mary Jane Bustruck, Presidio of San Francisco; Helen Minaker, Corinne Clark, Margaret Meagher, Norma Springston, and Mrs. Edna Harris, Camp Roberts; Marian Kane, Camp San Luis Obispo; Helen Burgess, Camp Stoneman; Clara Brinkley, Yuma Test Station; Wendell B. Coon, Sixth Army Librarian, and Mrs. Elizabeth Bock, Assistant Sixth Army Librarian.

Miss Agnes Crawford, Chief of the Army Library Service and president of the Armed Forces Librarians Section, presided at the meeting of the Section on 25 June. Command Librarians from Continental U. S. Armies, and from Korea and Europe, were in attendance as well as the heads of Air Force and Navy library services, representatives from many Army post libraries, Air Force base libraries, and Navy shore installations. Guest speaker was Dr. Rufus B. von Kleinsmid, Chancellor of the University of Southern California.

Army War College Graduates Officers Of All Services

Carlisle Barracks, Pa.—The 1953 graduating class has been graduated from the Army War College here. It included 141 Army officers, four Air Force, two Navy, two Marine Corps, one State Department official, and one member of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The graduation address was delivered by Gen. John E. Hull, Army Vice Chief of Staff. It was the second graduation ceremony since the school moved from Ft. Leavenworth, Kans.

VA Offers K-Vets Low Cost 5-Year Term Life Insurance

New York (AFPS)—The special post-Korea term life insurance policies are now held by nine times as many veterans as a year ago according to the VA.

These policies are the five-year non-convertible, non-participating type for which anyone is eligible who has served with the Armed Forces of the United States anywhere in the world since June 27, 1950, who was ordered to active service for a period of more than 30 days and who is entitled to the free indemnity protection of the law.

Eligible veterans must apply to the VA within 120 days after date of discharge or separation to receive policies.

These policies do not entitle the veteran to dividends nor may they be converted to any other type of insurance. But the cost is the lowest of any type of GI insurance administered by the VA.

The Servicemen's Indemnity and Insurance Acts of 1951, which set up this insurance, also provide for another kind of policy. This applies to the post-Korea veterans discharged on or after April 25, 1951 with service-connected disabilities that would entitle the veteran to 10 or more per cent disability compensation. Likewise, it does not pay any dividend. However, both term and permanent plans, with conversion rights are provided.

A total of 936,259 battle casualties were incurred during WWII by the Army and the Army Air Forces, the Army reveals.

Counted as battle casualties were personnel killed in action, wounded or injured in action, captured and interned, or missing in action. The period included in the report was from Dec. 7, 1941, through Dec. 31, 1946, the date hostilities were declared officially terminated. About nine per cent of Army military personnel became battle casualties.

Deaths among battle casualties numbered 234,876. This figure includes 189,676 killed in direct enemy action and the remainder from other causes. Of the total of 124,079 Army personnel who were captured and interned, 111,426 were returned to military control.

The 3rd Inf. Div. suffered 25,977 casualties, the largest number of battle casualties of any Army combat division. The 101st Airborne Div. lost 9,328. The 3rd Armored Div. suffered 9,243 casualties.

Thirty-seven campaigns are identified in the compilation—16 in the Atlantic area and 21 in the Pacific. The most costly was the Rhineland which ran from Sept. 15, 1944 to Mar. 21, 1945. A total of 240,082 battle casualties were recorded. The China offensive of May 5 to Sept. 2, 1945 was the least costly with battle casualties reaching 74.

Serving Those Who Serve A Nation!

Vol. 2, No. 5 PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA Friday, 3 July, 1953

SALUTE TO Colonel Vivian Z. Brown, Colonel Murray M. Montgomery and M/Sgt. Fritz Kern on the occasion of their retirement from the Army is given by Detachment A, as it passes in review at ceremonies held at the Presidio on 30 June. Other marching units included the Sixth Army band, two companies from the 505th Military Police battalion and one company each from the 6002 ASU, Headquarters company, 30th Engineers and the WAC detachment. Detachment A furnished the color guard and the 505th MP Bn. the commander of troops and his staff. (Army photo by Malnasian.)

Service Totals 98 Years!

2 Colonels, 1 Master Sergeant Retire at Presidio Ceremonies

A pair of Sixth Army staff officers and one master sergeant were honored by a military parade and review on the Presidio main parade ground Tuesday, on the occasion of their retirement from the Army.

They are Colonel Vivian Z. Brown, Sixth Army Dental surgeon, Colonel Murray M. Montgomery, Sixth Army Recruiting officer, and M/Sgt. Fritz Kern, member of the Sixth Army band. Both officers have served for more than 35 years and Sgt. Kern for more than 28 years.

Colonel Brown entered the service in 1917 following his graduation from the North Pacific Dental college, Portland, Oregon. His service includes two tours in the Philippine Islands and in San Juan, Puerto Rico, in World War II. He served four years at Fort Lewis, Washington, before reporting to his assignment at the Presidio in 1949.

Commissioned a field artillery officer at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, in 1917, following his graduation from the University of Kentucky, Colonel Montgomery served both in this country and overseas. In 1942, he went to England as chief of administration for the services of supply in the European theatre, and later was assigned to General Dwight D. Eisenhower's staff. He served five years in Europe, and prior to his Presidio assignment, was commanding officer of the Southern Recruiting district.

Other enlisted men in the Sixth Army area who officially retired on 30 June were: M/Sgt. Edward V. Austin, 30 years; M/Sgt. Severino Ayo, 26 years; Sfc. Henry Pusel, 24 years; M/Sgt. Harlon M. Gardner, 24 years; M/Sgt. George J. Virtgutz, 22 years; M/Sgt. Abraham Neiman, 21 years, and Sfc. Joseph A. Heiser, 20 years.

Latest Promotions

Twelve captains of the Sixth Army area have been promoted to majors, all with a date of rank of 11 June 1953.

These new majors are: William G. Chisholm, 6th Inf. Div., Ft. Ord, Calif.; Robert M. Davis, 6th Inf. Div., Ft. Ord, Calif.; Andrew H. Engle, 6th Inf. Div., Ft. Ord, Calif.; Charles A. Heeq, 316th MP Det. CID, Cp. Roberts, Calif.

George E. Rogerson, Hq. III Corps, Ft. MacArthur, Calif.; Robert C. Stewart, Jr., Hq. 6th Army PSF, Calif.; William C. Tubbs, 231st Eng. Bn., Ft. Lewis, Wash., and Samuel H. Warren, 6021st ASU Pers. Ctr., Ft. Lewis, Wash.

U. S. Army Mercy Trains Chug Way To Korean Fame

Seoul—More than 200,000 United Nations and Republic of Korea casualties have been evacuated from the battle front by Army mercy trains since the early days of the Korean war.

Army hospital trains and their professional staffs have performed herculean service in transporting casualties from forward-area clearing stations to hospitals and airfields in Korea.

Despite the greater novelty of evacuation by helicopter or transport plane, the hospitals on rails have earned the respect of the fighting men.

The mercy trains provide rapid, safe, and comfortable transportation over all types of terrain and in all kinds of weather.

The unique advantage of hospital trains is that they make it possible for a patient to receive uninterrupted medical and nursing care during the long trip back from the front.

Shortly after the fighting began in Korea, the Army rushed 62 hospital ward cars to the combat theater.

A standard hospital train in Korea carries six ward cars and a kitchen car. Each ward car is equipped to carry 30 casualties and attending medical personnel. Ward car facilities are comparable to any standard hospital ward.

The trains, which operate as far forward as division areas, carry a medical staff of two doctors, six nurses, 20 enlisted medical attendants, two cooks and two mess stewards.

Raiders Sizzle in 10-Game Streak; Wallop SF Cops, Airmen, Marines

The Presidio Red Raiders charged over three Bay Area teams this week to carry their post-League season's tally to 10 wins for two losses.

Last Friday found the Presidians pitted against the San Francisco Police Department, when Raider bats erupted sufficiently for a squeaker triumph at 11-10.

Bill Herriage, seasoned Raider moundsman, managed to hold the coppers to nine hits for seven innings, but he seemed to lack his customary control. In the closing two frames teammate Arkie Stanton came to assist and summarily closed the door on further hitting by the opposition.

At bat Herriage fared better, powering his teammates with three hits for four times up. The artillery of Bert Fowler, Snuffy Taylor, Sal Fucile and Ken Klopp gave the added impetus to Raider scoring to produce the final victory.

Fucile, only recently recovered from a broken arm, made it obvious that his batting technique had returned to its full potential by smacking a homer over the left field boundary.

Between them, pitchers Herriage and Stanton racked up eight strikeouts, allowing 10 hits.

Opposition moundsman Martinez and Jones served the Raiders with seven strikeouts, six walks and 14 hits. Dynamic hitter for the visitors was Sarraile who recorded three for six, one a home-run.

In Monday's victory against the Parks Air Force crew Raider fans found themselves a deserving hero in Arkie Stanton, moundsman for the day.

Arkie pitched what looked like a no-hit ball-game for eight and two-thirds innings, whereupon he was unluckily touched for a lone hit by opposition catcher Scholz to destroy the perfect game.

Stanton, at his best since he came into the Presidio field, demonstrated the kind of hurling that made him the exclusive property of the Pittsburgh Pirates prior to his induction, exhibiting complete control over the ball and a shrewd understanding of over-all mound strategy. For the record, he fanned six of his adversaries and walked four.

The game hung precariously for a few moments of the fifth inning, when three unearned runs by the Parks flyboys tied the teams at 3-3.

In the bottom of the fifth bracket Raider strongman Sal Fucile duplicated his achievement of Friday and thrashed out a well-timed round-tripper, bringing one man off the base and thrusting the Raiders ahead. A subsequent marker for the home-team clinched the final 6-3 score.

Arkie Stanton

Other big bats for the Raiders included Ed Williamson and "Ham" Hamaker, with two hits apiece.

In Wednesday's game against the San Francisco Marines Raider pitcher Hamaker served on the mound for a total of six strikeouts, limiting the leathernecks to five hits.

Drama was provided during the fifth bracket when thunder-bat Snuffy Taylor was struck on the wrist by a pitched ball and had to be whisked to Letterman Hospital in an ambulance.

In spite of it, his team overcame a 4-2 lead by the Marines to win handily, 9-4.

A strategic single by Ray Ardito in the eighth inning served the Raiders with three more markers.

Cardinals Outpole Patrolers, 10-7, In 505th Softball

Over the Bay in the Baker-Mendel Softball League things were going strong this week. Loop bigs had tied the standings into a three-way tie for first place, with two clubs holding second spot.

In the first game of the week the MPTC Company B Cardinals had nailed the Company A Patrolers to a 10-7 loss.

Hurler for the Cards was Korfurst, who allowed the opposition batsmen only six hits for the afternoon.

Heavy on the wood for the Cards was Nelson, whose strategically-timed round-tripper in the sixth brought two RBIs to count.

For the Patrolers Kramer hurled, while the big stick was Susic, a professional ballplayer who poled a grand aggregate of one triple, a double and a couple of singles to spark the loser's rallies. Team-mate Ziten tripled.

League standings to date find the 505th Yellow Tops, Cardinals and Pistol Packers in a three-way knot for first place, each with 2-0 game scores.

For runner-up spot the Beacons and the Cubs still have to fight it out, while the Patrolers and the 740th AAA dwell cellar-ward, for the time being at least.

Their First Game!

Uniformless MP's Grab 6-5 Win Over Semi-Pro Luckies

By PVT. BRUCE LANSBURY

This week the MP's did it again. They seem to have a peculiar facility for the role of Cinderellas in service sports.

Hard on the heels of the 505th's spectacular upset win over the giants of Air Force softball last week comes the story of another upset—this time in hard-ball.

It begins with Sgt. Dick Barton, a platoon NCO of Able Company in the MP training center across the Bay at Fort Baker.

Barton and a few of his boys had been getting the yen to play some real live hard-ball for a change, so from the personnel of Able Company they made up the rudiments of a ball team, nine men of various talents with a common determination—to play baseball. Barton was designated manager, and a fellow platoon sergeant by the name of Peterson took over the coaching chores.

The only hitch that developed was the lack of a suitable club for them to start against. Sgt. Barton unperturbedly called up Post Special Services and got the number of a man in San Francisco who deals in ball-clubs. In no time the MP's had their first engagement—a game with a semi-pro outfit called Georgia's Lucky Nine.

The two teams met on the Funston Playing Field. Georgia's boys sported the colorful uniforms a major leaguer wouldn't be ashamed of, while the MP's were bedecked in the less exotic, though no less functional, paraphernalia of fatigues and combat boots.

Characteristically, the MP's ran off with the game, pushing it into 10 close-fought innings and finally vanquishing Georgia's unfortunates to a squeaking 6-5.

Hard workers for the MP's proved to be three ball-players of professional skill by the names of Bayer, Susic and Benson.

Donald Bayer, currently a property of the Chicago White Sox, saw plenty of professional action right up to the time of his induction into the Army. On the mound for the MP's, he pitched a sizzler, culling a grand total of 16 strike-outs.

Teammate Phil Susic is also a White Sox boy. For the MP's he distinguished himself at bat, banging out five hits for six times up. Fellow-professional DenHiss Benson poled four for four.

Best play of the day proved to be Benson's home run in the 10th bracket, which sufficed to drive Susic in for the winning marker.

Tripple-Tie Ahead!

9th AAA Topple Toppers; 3 Bigs Hustle for Lead

Top-spot in the intra-mural softball league changed hands for the second time in two weeks last Friday as the Headquarters Company of the 9th AAA finally achieved the league top-spot in a dramatically close 4-3 win over the striding Fort Scott Hill Toppers.

The game took place only a few days after a historic Topper-Officer brawl which temporarily put the Fort Scott boys on top and relegated the brass to a third-place rung on the league ladder.

The afternoon saw close action by both teams with the few runs of the game being registered in three innings. At the top of the second bracket Topper hitting earned two runs, an edge over the single marker by the 9th.

In the third frame the Ack Ack nine nabbed a second marker to tie the two teams.

Finally in the sixth inning the Ack Ack pulled ahead with two markers against the Toppers' one, which gave them the final victory margin.

Winning action by the 9th saw big-bat Hunter triple, bringing in the tying run.

Steinbronn then blasted a single to bring Hunter stealing home for the victory tally.

Steinbronn, Hunter, Cooper and Rhoads carried the most effective bats for the 9th AAA.

The day produced some dynamic pitching by moundsman of both teams. Champion Rhoads, the 9th's greatest single asset, considering his batting ability, allowed the opposition only four hits—some sort of record in view of the Toppers' record at the plate. He gave no walks and fanned a total of four.

The Toppers' Benson, Rhoads' only rival in the league for consistently expert hurling, allowed

SOLDIER'S MEDAL FOR VALOR is presented three members of "C" Battery, 740th AAA Battalion, Fort Baker, for their heroic rescue of two injured civilians aboard the fishing boat "Muskie," early this year. Decorated men include 1. to r.: Lt. Conrad X. Mizer, Battery Commander; PFC Larry L. Keith and PFC

6 Men Decorated!

Soldiers Medal, Other Awards Given at Fort Baker Ceremony

Three Soldiers Medals as well as a Bronze Star Medal, an Air Medal and a Purple Heart were awarded members of the 30th Antiaircraft Artillery group recently, in a decoration ceremony at which Brigadier General Edward J. McGraw, commanding general of the WAAC, presented the awards.

When volunteers were requested to aid two stricken and injured civilians aboard a fishing boat off Fort Funston last February, the three men of C Battery who unhesitatingly volunteered were awarded the Soldiers Medal for valor.

Lt. Conrad X. Mizer, battery commander; Pfc. Larry L. Keith and Pfc. Johnny A. Butcher twice entered the water near the fishing boat "Muskie" which had gone aground on a sand bar and was being broken up by heavy seas some 150 yards offshore, and rescued the men.

The Bronze Star Medal was awarded to Sfc. Thayne L. Skeen, now of Headquarters battery, 30th Group, for meritorious service against the enemy in Korea from 2 March to 6 February of this year.

Award of the Air Medal was made to Sfc. Edwin W. Smith for distinguishing himself while participating in 20 aerial flights over Korea from airstrips to target areas behind enemy lines during the period 29 November to 18 December 1952.

Sgt. Smith flew as an observer on an unarmed aircraft which penetrated enemy areas of ground activity to locate and direct close support aircraft strikes against enemy targets. He is now with Headquarters battery, 740th.

The Purple Heart was awarded to Pfc. Floyd C. Condit, C Battery, 740th, for wounds received in Korea in the vicinity of Flash OP No. 4 on 23 January of this year.

Defense Wins Awards

A distinguished service certificate for the Defense Department has been accepted by Secretary Charles E. Wilson. The award was in recognition of the department's efforts to hire physically-handicapped workers. It was presented by the President's Committee on Employment of the Physically Handicapped.

Blood Bank Boosters!

Approximately 250 officers and men of the 459th Antiaircraft Artillery Battalion, stationed at Fort Cronkhite, Marin County, have volunteered to donate blood en masse today, when the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank's mobile unit arrives at the Cronkhite Service Club. According to battalion officers, 75 per cent of the unit's personnel are veterans of the fighting in Korea and about 40 per cent of the Korean veterans have themselves been wounded in action. Included in the battalion are men who have served in virtually all of the major combat units in Korea.

Doctor Draft Expects Need for 12,250

The doctor draft law has been extended until July 1, 1955. President Eisenhower has signed the extension which requires medical doctors and dentists under 51 years of age to register with their local Selective Service boards.

Defense Department officials recently estimated that 12,250 doctors will be needed in the next two years. The July-August doctor draft call is 542.

144th Arty. Sought

California's Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan has launched an effort to round up the 700 members of California's 144th Field Artillery of World War I, the Nation's only completely volunteer outfit in that war. Jordan said he was asked by six members of the group to locate the others so a permanent corporate organization can be formed.

Outlines Procedures!

Sixth Army Memo Details Regulations on EM Transfer

Current regulations governing requests for transfer of enlisted personnel are the subject of Memorandum Number 257, dated 6 July 1953, issued this week by Headquarters Sixth Army.

Such requests are to be prepared in accordance with AR 615-200 and may originate with the individual or be initiated by his or her commander. The memorandum lists data needed in forwarding indorsements in addition to that required by paragraph 6b of the regulation.

Those submitting requests based on compassionate reasons must provide evidence to substantiate reasons for transfer. Such evidence will normally include affidavits from individuals who have personal knowledge of the circumstances; physician's certificate in cases when physical disability of the applicant or a member of his family is the basis for request, and data as to financial ability of relations equally responsible for support of dependents, when financial support is involved and is basis for request.

In cases where evidence submitted by the individual is insufficient and may need verification, the commander concerned will contact the local Red Cross representative. If there is no local Red Cross representative, the request will be sent to the American Red Cross Field Director, Presidio of San Francisco, Calif.

Information obtained by the Red Cross will be forwarded to Sixth Army Headquarters as an inclosure to the reassignment request and its contents will not be disclosed. The applications and supporting document prepared in duplicate will be sent to headquarters, ATTN: AMAGP-2.

With certain exceptions, requests for transfer which indicate the primary benefit is for the convenience of the individual or his family, and not the government, will be disapproved and returned by the first administrative headquarters in which received. Such disapprovals are final.

NATIONAL RECOGNITION was given the Fort Ord libraries with the winning of the John Cotton Dana Publicity Award, which Maj. Gen. Robert B. McClure, 6th Infantry Division Commander, presents to Mrs. Margaret Thompson, chief librarian. Fort Ord led all Army libraries for outstanding library publicity in the contest recently held at the conference of the American Library Association in Los Angeles, Calif.

The Price of Eggs!

Not only the price of eggs but the whole meal is going up!

According to official pronouncement, the price of meals served in the Officers regular mess and field mess will be increased as follows: breakfast, $.55; dinner, $.85, and supper, $.85.

Postpone School Plan

Washington—The Army has postponed for one school year a plan to concentrate its Reserve officer training in schools granting baccalaureate and higher degrees. The new announcement said that military junior colleges and military institutes may continue for one year only, 1953-54, to enroll their high school students for the first year of ROTC training. In addition, military junior colleges may enroll students who have completed the second year of ROTC for the third year course.

Recently Assigned

Lt. Colonel David J. Reina, who recently returned from Korea, is the new chief of the AG personnel management branch, Headquarters Sixth Army.

While in Korea, Col. Reina served twenty months as executive officer to the Army AG and as AG of the Eighth Army Advance Echelon.

During World War II, he spent 30 months at the CBI theatre headquarters in India, in Burma, and in the European theatre. His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal, the Korean Presidential Unit citation and five Korean combat stars, as well as service and combat ribbons.

A native of Dardanelles, Turkey, Col. Reina has been a U. S. Army officer for the past 12 years.

Lt. Colonel Frank P. Cassidy is the newly assigned S-3 officer, 30th Engineer Base Topographic Battalion, Fort Scott.

For the past four years, he has been with the Inter-American Geodetic survey in Colombia, South America, as officer in charge of the geodetic program.

During World War II Col. Cassidy spent 18 months in the European theatre and 36 months in the Pacific theatre. From 1947 to 1949, he assumed the duties of chief of mapping intelligence with Headquarters Fifth Army in Chicago.

Prior to his assignment on the Presidio, Col. Cassidy was decorated with the "Orden de Boyaca" for operations with the Colombian government.

Captain Jane L. Harrison is the newly assigned commanding officer of the Presidio WAC detachment.

For the past seven months, she had been CO of the WAC detachment at Fort Lawton, Washington.

In the service since September 1942, Capt. Harrison attended OCS at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, and in World War II she served eight months in the Mediterranean theatre.

Lt. Earle R. Rice has received his first duty assignment as mess officer, Presidio Officers mess.

Lt. Rice recently completed an eight-months course at the Food Advisors school, Fort Lee, Virginia.

In the Army for the past 20 months, Lt. Rice attended OCS at Fort Riley, Kansas.

90-Day Active Service Rule to Be Applied On Cal-Vet Loan Plan

A total of 90 days active duty service is now an additional requirement for applicants for a "Cal-Vet" farm or home financing loan.

According to D. J. Callaghan, state director of veterans' affairs, the new law also excludes from benefits those who served only on temporary active duty for training, processing or physical examination.

California law also requires the veteran applying to have either been born in or have entered military service from the state of California.

Psychological Warfare Course for Officers

Psychological Warfare educational program for officers has been established within the Graduate School of Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., to provide an intensive one semester course for which college credit may be awarded.

The next class is scheduled to start in September 1953 followed by another in January 1954. Spaces are available for the September class but applications will not be considered unless processed through Headquarters Sixth Army not later than 15 July 1953.

First AER Fund Returns Reflect Full Participation

First reports of the Presidio's annual campaign, to raise funds for the Army Emergency Relief and the Army Relief Society reflect 100 per cent participation by the reporting units, Major Ella A. Wilton, chairman, announced this week.

These first reports in the month-long drive which began 1 July and will continue through 31 July were from officers of twelve sections. Officers of the post made their contributions at the beginning of the drive, while enlisted personnel will volunteer their donations on the final day of the campaign.

Several special events have already been held to raise funds for the drive. First of these was a carpool and dance held on the opening day (1 July) at the Fort Cronkite Service club. Tuesday of this week a similar carnival and dance was held at the Fort Baker Service club.

Presidio Officers' mess is featuring a "Las Vegas Nite" tomorrow (11 July) with all profits going to the fund. Officers and their wives will don blue jeans and plaid shirts or other informal Western attire to play games of skill, eat chuck wagon style, dance and see floor shows at 2000 and 0100. Door tickets will be $1 per person and no reservations are necessary.

Plans are being made for other AER benefits during the month and details will be announced later.

Bargain Threatened

Excellent service and satisfactory prices are a difficult combination to find these days, but both are features of the service available to enlisted personnel and officers at the Quartermaster Shoe Repair Shop in Building 266, Main Post. "The service is excellent," states Capt. Sam Brandt of Post Quartermaster Section, "but if this activity does not receive enough patronage, the QM will be forced to close the shop."

DA Increases Phone Charges for Class B Service at Presidio

Department of the Army, Washington, notified the Presidio telephone system Monday that rates for Class B unofficial telephone service for those living in quarters on the post were increased effective 1 July, 1953. First bills reflecting the raise will be received by users after the first of August.

For those on the post with single-party, flat rate service, the charge has been increased from $3 per month, plus $.45 tax, to $4 per month, plus $.60 tax. For those with two-party or limited service, the rate goes from $2.25, plus $.34 tax, to $3, plus $.45 tax, per month.

The single-party, flat rate service is used by Presidio residents who may make any number of toll-free charges a month. The two-party service applies to those living at Forts Baker, Barry and Cronkhite where calls are limited to the other sub-posts and the Presidio.

Charges for additional phones in quarters (bridge stations) remain the same, as well as those having a business rate—the post exchanges, messes, laundries, beauty parlors and gas stations.

Army T.I.C. Topic

Subjects discussed during Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units during the past three months will be covered in a quiz to be given during next week's conferences.

Topics considered since the first of April included the air defense of the United States, casualty reporting, Inter-American Defense, the Mutual Security program, Police of the Armed Forces, activities of Sixth Army Military Police and history of the Army. Recent events in Korea and other major news of the year will be covered in the quiz.

Sources for this material were Armed Forces TALKS, Troop Topics, Sixth Army Discussion Topics and weekly news summaries.

In addition to testing the knowledge of the subjects, the quiz will serve also as a review of the various topics.

Post Hospitality For Boy Scouts Jamboree Bound

Presidio will be host to over one thousand Boy Scouts from Hawaii and the Midwest when the youths stop in San Francisco on their way to or from the third National Boy Scout Jamboree, opening 17 July at the Irvine Ranch near Corona Del Mar, Calif.

Post plans for assisting in their entertainment were made by Lt. Col. Roger L. Bilewicz, Boy Scout Institutional Representative of the Presidio, and the San Francisco Boy Scout Council. This hospitality is in keeping with the Army's interest in youth activities.

First contingent will be a group of 95 boys arriving next Sunday from Hawaii aboard the President Wilson. Three buses from the Presidio will meet them at the pier and transport them to YMCA where they will stay before going on south.

After the Jamboree has ended 39 of these Scouts from Hawaii will return to the Presidio and will be fed and billeted on the post for a week while they tour the Bay Area.

The other groups will all have dinner at the Sixth Army Food Service School when they come to the Presidio to visit Fort Point and other historic sites during their sightseeing tour of San Francisco.

Monday the post will be visited by 42 boys from Bloomington, Ind., followed on Tuesday by 59 from Rapid City, S. D. Guests on Friday will be 300 youths from Minneapolis, Minn.

Following the Jamboree, 200 Scouts from St. Paul, Minn., and 300 from Dayton, Ohio, will be here on 27 and 28 July.

Lutheran Communion

Lutheran Communion will be celebrated immediately following the 1100 worship service at the Fort Scott chapel Sunday (12 July). Chaplain (Captain) Henry O. Kitterman, 459th AAA AW Bn., will officiate.

Six Major Attacks Launched By Reds During Korean War

Seoul — Chinese and North Korean Communist armies in Korea have launched six major offensives in futile efforts to destroy United Nations and Republic of Korea forces or drive them off the peninsula.

On June 25, 1950, the Russian-trained North Korean army began its war of aggression by launching an attack across the 38th parallel.

On November 28, 1950, the Chinese Communist forces struck in strength in the Chongchon River sector.

On Dec. 31, 1950, enemy forces initiated an attack which carried them south of the 38th parallel.

On Feb. 11, 1951, Communist troops attacked in the Wonju area.

On April 22, 1951, the Communists launched their first spring offensive with a general assault across the Imjin River and in the area north of Inje.

On May 16, 1951, the enemy launched its second unsuccessful spring offensive—the last major offensive of the now stalemated war.

It's Good for a Year!

That ticket you purchase from United Air Lines is now valid for one year from the date of commencement of flight, the district office in San Francisco has announced.

Previously this rule applied only to United's Honolulu service, but will now include all flights. At present United and TWA are the only two airlines offering the one-year service on tickets.

Soldier of Month

First winner in a new competition for "Soldier of the Month" honors at the San Francisco Port of Embarkation is Pfc. Newell Strayer, 21, a drummer in the 22nd Army band at Fort Mason.

Selection as the Port's top soldier for June brought Pfc. Strayer a three-day pass, a $10 cash award and a certificate of achievement which was presented him by Major General Ralph I. Glasgow, Port Commander, at a retreat parade at Fort Mason on 2 July. Pfc. Strayer enlisted in the Army in June 1952, while in his third year at San Jose State college.

At the beginning of WWI the Aviation Section of the Army had 131 officers and slightly more than 1000 enlisted men. However, only 78 of the officers were fliers.

Presidio Service Club Anniversary Program on Sunday

Observance of the fourth anniversary of the Presidio Enlisted Men's Service club will take place Sunday (12 July) beginning at 2000.

At that time, guests will witness the awarding of honors to individuals and organizations who have worked untiringly in the interest of the Service club.

Presentation of a stage show, the Braden Follies, will follow. Then there will be eatin', not the least of which will be a 200-pound cake especially baked for the occasion by the Sixth Army Food Service school.

Actual date of the original dedication was 14 July 1949, so the observance will continue on into the week, to be climaxed on Thursday (16 July) with an anniversary formal ball at which awards will be given to the dance hostesses who have been most faithful in attendance at the club functions. A floor show will also be presented.

The club will open at 1300, the usual hour, on Sunday.

Teen-Age Activities

Friday, 10 July—Election of Board of Governors to serve from July through September. All TAC members have been requested to attend this meeting, which will be followed by refreshments.

Saturday, 11 July—Free movies, featurettes and cartoons in technicolor, beginning at 2045.

Friday, 11 July—Summer dance at Teen Age Club, with music by a Sixth Army orchestra. Boys may wear sport shirts, but no blue denim or jeans. Dancing from 2000 to 2245. Refreshments will be served.

BOOK CORNER

I. WILLIE SUTTON by Quentin J. Reynolds. Apparently chastened and repentant, a much publicized bank robber and jail breaker confides the story of his derelictions in the hope that small boys will stop worshipping him as a modern Robin Hood.

CARAVAN TO XANADU by Edison Marshall. Marco Polo, brightest symbol of adventure of the 13th century, is brought to life in this intimate record of the hardships, deadly hatred, and passionate devotion that brought him triumphant to the palace of the Khan.

WAIT, SON, OCTOBER IS NEAR by John Bell Clayton. The world of Tucker English was composed of so many wonderful, magical things—the fresh, young world of a ten year old—but ugliness threatened, and he tried to solve his dilemma by a tragic act of mutilation. Not for sentimentalists.

A WINDOW ON RED SQUARE by Frank Rounds, Jr. An American attaché gives candid glimpses of today's Russians—not the politicians, but the people themselves—glimpses which will satisfy widespread curiosity about the Russian "man-on-the-street" and his problems with prices, housing, appearance, and the "social whirl."

THE BIG WATER by Mark Derby. The story moves from the cities of Malaya to the jungles of Borneo in this tale of intrigue and adventure. It has all the elements of suspense—treason, mystery, terror and, of course, love. For the mature reader.

D.E.H.—Presidio Libraries

EVEN JANE RUSSELL displayed serious interest in the intricate workings of the new 70mm combat camera as explained by Sgt. Chester A. Thurston, 6300 ASU Signal Service Bn. The Sixth Army Signal Photo Laboratory, Presidio of San Francisco, presented a complete display of equipment, some of which is not even generally issued, at the International Photographic Exhibition held at the Civic Auditorium during the past week. Their other equipment such as speed graphics, enlarging equipment, and a dark-room set-up were high points of interest to the hundreds who attended the showing of top-notch photography from all over the world. For amateur photographers who brought their equipment and wanted to give it a whirl, the 459th AAA Battalion of the 30th AAA Group, Fort Cronkhite, staged a realistic battle scene at intervals throughout the day and evening and posed whenever requested. SEASON'S HEAVIEST HITERS on behalf of the Presidio Red Raider baseball club line their bats in a V for victory sign after a workout this week. Left to right, they are, "Snuffy" Taylor, Gene Jacobs and Sal Fucile. Fucile, manager of the club, has been busy

The Presidio Red Raiders charged over three Bay Area teams this week to carry their post-League season's tally to 10 wins for two losses.

Last Friday found the Presidians pitted against the San Francisco Police Department, when Raider bats erupted sufficiently for a squeaker triumph at 11-10.

Bill Herriage, seasoned Raider moundsman, managed to hold the coppers to nine hits for seven innings, but he seemed to lack his customary control. In the closing two frames teammate Arkie Stanton came to assist and summarily closed the door on further hitting by the opposition.

At bat Herriage fared better, powering his teammates with three hits for four times up. The artillery of Bert Fowler, Snuffy Taylor, Sal Fucile and Ken Klopp gave the added impetus to Raider scoring to produce the final victory.

Fucile, only recently recovered from a broken arm, made it obvious that his batting technique had returned to its full potential by smacking a homer over the left field boundary.

Between them, pitchers Herriage and Stanton racked up eight strikeouts, allowing 10 hits.

Opposition moundsmen Martinez and Jones served the Raiders with seven strikeouts, six walks and 14 hits. Dynamic hitter for the visitors was Sarraile who recorded three for six, one a home-run.

In Monday's victory against the Parks Air Force crew Raider fans found themselves a deserving hero in Arkie Stanton, moundsman for the day.

Arkie pitched what looked like a no-hit ball-game for eight and two-thirds innings, whereupon he was unluckily touched for a lone hit by opposition catcher Scholz, to destroy the perfect game.

Stanton, at his best since he came into the Presidio field, demonstrated the kind of hurling that made him the exclusive property of the Pittsburgh Pirates prior to his induction, exhibiting complete control over the ball and a shrewd understanding of over-all mound strategy. For the record, he fanned six of his adversaries and walked four.

The game hung precariously for a few moments of the fifth inning, when three unearned runs by the Parks flyboys tied the teams at 3-3.

In the bottom of the fifth bracket Raider strongman Sal Fucile duplicated his achievement of Friday and thrashed out a well-timed round-tripper, bringing one man off the bags and thrusting the Raiders ahead. A subsequent marker for the home-team cinched the final 6-3 score.

Arkie Stanton

Other big bats for the Raiders included Ed Williamson and "Ham" Hamaker, with two hits apiece.

In Wednesday's game against the San Francisco Marines Raider pitcher Hamaker served on the mound for a total of six strikeouts, limiting the leathernecks to five hits.

Drama was provided during the fifth bracket when thunder-bat Snuffy Taylor was struck on the wrist by a pitched ball and had to be whisked to Letterman Hospital in an ambulance.

In spite of it, his team overcame a 4-2 lead by the Marines to win handily, 9-4.

A strategic single by Ray Ardito in the eighth inning served the Raiders with three more markers.

Cardinals Outpole Patrolers, 10-7, In 505th Softball

Over the Bay in the Baker-Mendel Softball League things were going strong this week. Loop bigs had tied the standings into a three-way tie for first place, with two clubs holding second spot.

In the first game of the week the MPTC Company B Cardinals had nailed the Company A Patrolers to a 10-7 loss.

Hurler for the Cards was Korfurst, who allowed the opposition batsmen only six hits for the afternoon.

Heavy on the wood for the Cards was Nelson, whose strategically-timed round-tripper in the sixth brought two RBIs to count.

For the Patrolers Kramer hurled, while the big stick was Susie, a professional ballplayer who poled a grand aggregate of one triple, a double and a couple of singles to spark the loser's rallies. Teammate Ziten tripled.

League standings to date find the 505th Yellow Tops, Cardinals and Pistol Packers in a three-way knot for first place, each with 2-0 game scores.

For runner-up spot the Beacons and the Cubs still have to fight it out, while the Patrolers and the 740th AAA dwell cellar-ward, for the time being at least.

Their First Game!

Uniformless MP's Grab 6-5 Win Over Semi-Pro Luckies

By PVT. BRUCE LANSBURY

This week the MP's did it again.

They seem to have a peculiar facility for the role of Cinderellas in service sports.

Hard on the heels of the 505th's spectacular upset win over the giants of Air Force softball last week comes the story of another upset—this time in hard-ball.

It begins with Sgt. Dick Barton, a platoon NCO of Able Company in the MP training center across the Bay at Fort Baker.

Barton and a few of his boys had been getting the yen to play some real live hard-ball for a change, so from the personnel of Able Company they made up the rudiments of a ball team, nine men of various talents with a common determination—to play baseball. Barton was designated manager, and a fellow platoon sergeant by the name of Peterson took over the coaching chores.

The only hitch that developed was the lack of a suitable club for them to start against. Sgt. Barton unperturbedly called up Post Special Services and got the number of a man in San Francisco who deals in ball-clubs. In no time the MP's had their first engagement—a game with a semi-pro outfit called Georgia's Lucky Nine.

The two teams met on the Funston Playing Field. Georgia's boys sported the colorful uniforms a major leaguer wouldn't be ashamed of, while the MP's were bedecked in the less exotic, though no less functional, paraphernalia of fatigues and combat boots.

Characteristically, the MP's ran off with the game, pushing it into 10 close-fought innings and finally vanquishing Georgia's unfortunates to a squeaking 6-5.

Hard workers for the MP's proved to be three ball-players of professional skill by the names of Bayer, Susie and Benson.

Donald Bayer, currently a property of the Chicago White Sox, saw plenty of professional action right up to the time of his induction into the Army. On the mound for the MP's, he pitched a sizzler, culling a grand total of 16 strike-outs.

Teammate Phil Susie is also a White Sox boy. For the MP's he distinguished himself at bat, banging out five hits for six times up. Fellow-professional Denhis Benson poled four for four.

Best play of the day proved to be Benson's home run in the 10th bracket, which sufficed to drive Susie in for the winning marker.

Tripple-Tie Ahead!

9th AAA Topple Toppers; 3 Bigs Hustle for Lead

Top-spot in the intra-mural softball league changed hands for the second time in two weeks last Friday as the Headquarters Company of the 9th AAA finally achieved the league top-spot in a dramatically close 4-3 win over the striding Fort Scott Hill Toppers.

The game took place only a few days after a historic Topper-Officer brawl which temporarily put the Fort Scott boys on top and relegated the brass to a third-place rung on the league ladder.

The afternoon saw close action by both teams with the few runs of the game being registered in three innings. At the top of the second bracket Topper hitting earned two runs, an edge over the single marker by the 9th.

In the third frame the Ack Ack nine nabbed a second marker to tie the two teams.

Finally in the sixth inning the Ack Ack pulled ahead with two markers, against the Toppers' one, which gave them the final victory margin.

Winning action by the 9th saw big-bat Hunter triple, bringing in the tying run.

Steinbrohn then blasted a single to bring Hunter stealing home for the victory tally.

Steinbrohn, Hunter, Cooper and Rhoan carried the most effective bats for the 9th AAA.

The day produced some dynamic pitching by moundsers of both teams. Champion Rhoan, the 9th's greatest single asset, considering his batting ability, allowed the opposition only four hits—some sort of record in view of the Toppers' record at the plate. He gave no walks and fanned a total of four.

The Toppers' Benson, Rhoan's only rival in the league for consistently expert hurling, allowed the 9th's smashers seven hits. Like Rhoan, he fanned four and gave no walks.

On the same day, the Officers, apparently recovered from their Topper lambasting of the preceding Friday, walloped the underdog HQ 6th Army nine to a 4-1 defeat.

Wednesday of this week saw a meeting between the Hill Toppers and Det. A, the Toppers streaking to a 7-1 victory which sufficed to keep them abreast of the 9th AAA in league standing.

Crucial hitting was produced by Topper Webb, who tripled in the fifth bracket with bases loaded, insuring his team's ample-margin victory.

The projected Officers Club-102 MRU meeting did not come off as scheduled on Wednesday, which places the Officers in a temporary second spot. When and if the brass procure an MRU victory in make-up play within the next few days, there is likely to be a three-way tie for top place in the league.

League standing to date:
Team	Won	Lost
9th AAA	10	2
Hill Toppers	10	2
Officers Club	9	2
102 MRU	8	4
Det. A Guard	5	6
HQ 6th Army	4	8
Harbor Defense	4	8

SOLDIER'S MEDAL FOR VALOR is presented three members of "C" Battery, 740th AAA Battalion, Fort Baker, for their heroic rescue of two injured civilians aboard the fishing boat "Muskie," early this year. Decorated men include l. to r.: Lt. Conrad X. Mizer, Battery Commander; PFC Larry L. Keith and PFC

6 Men Decorated!

Soldiers Medal, Other Awards Given at Fort Baker Ceremony

Three Soldiers Medals as well as a Bronze Star Medal, an Air Medal and a Purple Heart were awarded members of the 30th Antiaircraft Artillery group recently, in a decoration ceremony at which Brigadier General Edward J. McGraw, commanding general of the WAAC, presented the awards.

When volunteers were requested to aid two stricken and injured civilians aboard a fishing boat off Fort Funston last February, the three men of C Battery who unhesitatingly volunteered were awarded the Soldiers Medal for valor.

Lt. Conrad X. Mizer, battery commander; Pfc. Larry L. Keith and Pfc. Johnny A. Butcher twice entered the water near the fishing boat "Muskie" which had gone aground on a sand bar and was being broken up by heavy seas some 150 yards offshore, and rescued the men.

The Bronze Star Medal was awarded to Sfc. Thayne L. Skeen, now of Headquarters battery, 30th Group, for meritorious service against the enemy in Korea from 2 March to 6 February of this year.

Award of the Air Medal was made to Sfc. Edwin W. Smith for distinguishing himself while participating in 20 aerial flights over Korea from airstrips to target areas behind enemy lines during the period 29 November to 18 December 1952. Sgt. Smith flew as an observer on an unarmed aircraft which penetrated enemy areas of ground activity to locate and direct close support aircraft strikes against enemy targets. He is now with Headquarters battery, 740th.

The Purple Heart was awarded to Pfc. Floyd C. Condit, C Battery, 740th, for wounds received in Korea in the vicinity of Flash OP No. 4 on 23 January of this year.

Defense Wins Awards

A distinguished service certificate for the Defense Department has been accepted by Secretary Charles E. Wilson. The award was in recognition of the department's efforts to hire physically-handicapped workers. It was presented by the President's Committee on Employment of the Physically Handicapped.

Blood Bank Boosters!

Approximately 250 officers and men of the 459th Antiaircraft Artillery Battalion, stationed at Fort Cronkhite, Marin County, have volunteered to donate blood en masse today, when the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank's mobile unit arrives at the Cronkhite Service Club. According to battalion officers, 75 per cent of the unit's personnel are veterans of the fighting in Korea and about 40 per cent of the Korean veterans have themselves been wounded in action. Included in the battalion are men who have served in virtually all of the major combat units in Korea.

Doctor Draft Expects Need for 12,250

The doctor draft law has been extended until July 1, 1955. President Eisenhower has signed the extension which requires medical doctors and dentists under 51 years of age to register with their local Selective Service boards.

Defense Department officials recently estimated that 12,250 doctors will be needed in the next two years. The July-August doctor draft call is 542.

144th Arty. Sought

California's Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan has launched an effort to round up the 700 members of California's 144th Field Artillery of World War I, the Nation's only completely volunteer outfit in that war. Jordan said he was asked by six members of the group to locate the others so a permanent corporate organization can be formed.

Outlines Procedures!

Sixth Army Memo Details Regulations on EM Transfer

Current regulations governing requests for transfer of enlisted personnel are the subject of Memorandum Number 257, dated 6 July 1953, issued this week by Headquarters Sixth Army.

Such requests are to be prepared in accordance with AR 615-200 and may originate with the individual or be initiated by his or her commander. The memorandum lists data needed in forwarding in-dorsements in addition to that required by paragraph 6b of the regulation.

Those submitting requests based on compassionate reasons must provide evidence to substantiate reasons for transfer. Such evidence will normally include: affidavits from individuals who have personal knowledge of the circumstances; physician's certificate in cases when physical disability of the applicant or a member of his family is the basis for request, and data as to financial ability of relations equally responsible for support of dependents, when financial support is involved and is basis for request.

The exceptions are applicable for reassignment to reserve components, recruiting duty and requests based on compassionate circumstances. Regardless of any intermediate disapproval recommendations, such applications will be forwarded to Sixth Army Headquarters.

Personnel in pipeline status may not apply for transfer, but application may be submitted after assignment to a permanent organization.

Enlisted personnel are discouraged from reporting to Sixth Army Headquarters seeking special assignments, hand-carrying transfer requests, and inquiring about applications previously submitted. The memorandum points out that such practices cause an unnecessary administrative burden.

In cases where evidence submitted by the individual is insufficient and may need verification, the commander concerned will contact the local Red Cross representative. If there is no local Red Cross representative, the request will be sent to the American Red Cross Field Director, Presidio of San Francisco, Calif.

Information obtained by the Red Cross will be forwarded to Sixth Army Headquarters as an inclosure to the reassignment request and its contents will not be disclosed. The applications and supporting document prepared in duplicate will be sent to headquarters, ATTN: AMAGP-2.

With certain exceptions, requests for transfer which indicate the primary benefit is for the convenience of the individual or his family, and not the government, will be disapproved and returned by the first administrative headquarters in which received. Such disapprovals are final.

The Price of Eggs!

Not only the price of eggs but the whole meal is going up!

According to official pronouncement, the price of meals served in the Officers regular mess and field mess will be increased as follows: breakfast, $.55; dinner, $.85, and supper, $.85.

Postpone School Plan

Washington—The Army has postponed for one school year a plan to concentrate its Reserve officer training in schools granting baccalaureate and higher degrees. The new announcement said that military junior colleges and military institutes may continue for one year only, 1953-54, to enroll their high school students for the first year of ROTC training. In addition, military junior colleges may enroll students who have completed the second year of ROTC for the third year course.

NATIONAL RECOGNITION was given the Fort Ord libraries with the winning of the John Cotton Dana Publicity Award, which Maj. Gen. Robert B. McClure, 6th Infantry Division Commander, presents to Mrs. Margaret Thompson, chief librarian. Fort Ord led all Army libraries for outstanding library publicity in the contest recently held at the conference of the American Library Association in Los Angeles, Calif.

Recently Assigned

Lt. Colonel David J. Reina, who recently returned from Korea, is the new chief of the AG personnel management branch, Headquarters Sixth Army.

While in Korea, Col. Reina served twenty months as executive officer to the Army AG and as AG of the Eighth Army Advance Echelon.

During World War II, he spent 30 months at the CBI theatre headquarters in India, in Burma, and in the European theatre. His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal, the Korean Presidential Unit citation and five Korean combat stars, as well as service and combat ribbons.

A native of Dardanelles, Turkey, Col. Reina has been a U. S. Army officer for the past 12 years.

Lt. Colonel Frank P. Cassidy is the newly assigned S-3 officer, 30th Engineer Base Topographic Battalion, Fort Scott.

For the past four years, he has been with the Inter-American Geodetic survey in Colombia, South America, as officer in charge of the geodetic program.

During World War II Col. Cassidy spent 18 months in the European theatre and 36 months in the Pacific theatre. From 1947 to 1949, he assumed the duties of chief of mapping intelligence with Headquarters Fifth Army in Chicago.

Prior to his assignment on the Presidio, Col. Cassidy was decorated with the "Orden de Boyaca" for operations with the Colombian government.

Captain Robert C. McTierney, supply management officer with the 46th Ordnance group at Camp Irwin for the past six months, has retained his position with that group here at the Presidio.

He entered on active duty in October 1940 and served until April 1947, at which time he reverted to a Reserve status until his recall in April 1951.

During World War II, Capt. McTierney served a total of 60 months overseas in the Asiatic-Pacific theatre. At the Infantry Training center, Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, he served as chief of testing and inspections, office of director of training. Prior to his Camp Irwin assignment, he attended the Ordnance school at Aberdeen Proving ground, Maryland.

90-Day Active Service Rule to Be Applied On Cal-Vet Loan Plan

A total of 90 days active duty service is now an additional requirement for applicants for a "Cal-Vet" farm or home financing loan.

According to D. J. Callaghan, state director of veterans' affairs, the new law also excludes from benefits those who served only on temporary active duty for training, processing or physical examination.

California law also requires the veteran applying to have either been born in or have entered military service from the state of California.

Psychological Warfare Course for Officers

Psychological Warfare educational program for officers has been established within the Graduate School of Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., to provide an intensive one semester course for which college credit may be awarded.

The next class is scheduled to start in September 1953 followed by another in January 1954. Spaces are available for the September class but applications will not be considered unless processed through Headquarters Sixth Army not later than 15 July 1953.

First AER Fund Returns Reflect Full Participation

First reports of the Presidio's annual campaign to raise funds for the Army Emergency Relief and the Army Relief Society reflect 100 per cent participation by the reporting units, Major Ella A. Wilton, chairman, announced this week.

These first reports in the month-long drive which began 1 July and will continue through 31 July were from officers of twelve sections. Officers of the post made their contributions at the beginning of the drive, while enlisted personnel will volunteer their donations on the final day of the campaign.

Several special events have already been held to raise funds for the drive. First of these was a carnival and dance held on the opening day (1 July) at the Fort Cronkhite Service club. Tuesday of this week a similar carnival and dance was held at the Fort Baker Service club.

Presidio Officers' mess is featuring a "Las Vegas Nite" tomorrow (11 July) with all profits going to the fund. Officers and their wives will don blue jeans and plaid shirts or other informal Western attire to play games of skill, eat chuck wagon style, dance and see floor shows at 2000 and 0100. Door tickets will be $1 per person and no reservations are necessary.

Plans are being made for other AER benefits during the month and details will be announced later.

Bargain Threatened

Excellent service and satisfactory prices are a difficult combination to find these days, but both are features of the service available to enlisted personnel and officers at the Quartermaster Shoe Repair Shop in Building 266, Main Post. "The service is excellent," states Capt. Sam Brandt of Post Quartermaster Section, "but if this activity does not receive enough patronage, the QM will be forced to close the shop."

DA Increases Phone Charges for Class B Service at Presidio

Department of the Army, Washington, notified the Presidio telephone system Monday that rates for Class B unofficial telephone service for those living in quarters on the post were increased effective 1 July 1953. First bills reflecting the raise will be received by users after the first of August.

For those on the post with single-party, flat rate service, the charge has been increased from $3 per month, plus $.45 tax, to $4 per month, plus $.60 tax. For those with two-party or limited service, the rate goes from $2.25, plus $.34 tax, to $3, plus $.45 tax, per month.

The single-party, flat rate service is used by Presidio residents who may make any number of toll-free charges a month. The two-party service applies to those living at Forts Baker, Barry and Cronkhite where calls are limited to the other sub-posts and the Presidio.

Charges for additional phones in quarters (bridge stations) remain the same, as well as those having a business rate—the post exchanges, messes, laundries, beauty parlors and gas stations.

Army T.I.C. Topic

Subjects discussed during Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units during the past three months will be covered in a quiz to be given during next week's conferences.

Topics considered since the first of April included the air defense of the United States, casualty reporting, Inter-American Defense, the Mutual Security program, Police of the Armed Forces, activities of Sixth Army Military Police and history of the Army. Recent events in Korea and other major news of the year will be covered in the quiz.

Sources for this material were Armed Forces TALKS, Troop Topics, Sixth Army Discussion Topics and weekly news summaries.

In addition to testing the knowledge of the subjects, the quiz will serve also as a review of the various topics.

Post Hospitality For Boy Scouts Jamboree Bound

Presidio will be host to over one thousand Boy Scouts from Hawaii and the Midwest when the youths stop in San Francisco on their way to or from the third National Boy Scout Jamboree, opening 17 July at the Irvine Ranch near Corona Del Mar, Calif.

Post plans for assisting in their entertainment were made by Lt. Col. Roger L. Bilewicz, Boy Scout Institutional Representative of the Presidio, and the San Francisco Boy Scout Council. This hospitality is in keeping with the Army's interest in youth activities.

First contingent will be a group of 95 boys arriving next Sunday from Hawaii aboard the President Wilson. Three buses from the Presidio will meet them at the pier and transport them to YMCA where they will stay before going on south.

After the Jamboree has ended 39 of these Scouts from Hawaii will return to the Presidio and will be fed and billeted on the post for a week while they tour the Bay Area.

The other groups will all have dinner at the Sixth Army Food Service School when they come to the Presidio to visit Fort Point and other historic sites during their sightseeing tour of San Francisco.

Monday the post will be visited by 42 boys from Bloomington, Ind., followed on Tuesday by 59 from Rapid City, S. D. Guests on Friday will be 300 youths from Minneapolis, Minn.

Following the Jamboree, 200 Scouts from St. Paul, Minn., and 300 from Dayton, Ohio, will be here on 27 and 28 July.

Lutheran Communion

Lutheran Communion will be celebrated immediately following the 1100 worship service at the Fort Scott chapel Sunday (12 July). Chaplain (Captain) Henry O. Kitterman, 459th AAA AW Bn., will officiate.

Six Major Attacks Launched By Reds During Korean War

Seoul — Chinese and North Korean Communist armies in Korea have launched six major offensives in futile efforts to destroy United Nations and Republic of Korea forces or drive them off the peninsula.

On June 25, 1950, the Russian-trained North Korean army began its war of aggression by launching an attack across the 38th parallel.

On November 28, 1950, the Chinese Communist forces struck in strength in the Chongchon River sector.

On Dec. 31, 1950, enemy forces initiated an attack which carried them south of the 38th parallel.

On Feb. 11, 1951, Communist troops attacked in the Wonju area.

On April 22, 1951, the Communists launched their first spring offensive with a general assault across the Imjin River and in the area north of Inje.

On May 16, 1951, the enemy launched its second unsuccessful spring offensive—the last major offensive of the now stalemated war.

It's Good for a Year!

That ticket you purchase from United Air Lines is now valid for one year from the date of commencement of flight, the district office in San Francisco has announced.

Previously this rule applied only to United's Honolulu service, but will now include all flights. At present United and TWA are the only two airlines offering the one-year service on tickets.

Soldier of Month

First winner in a new competition for "Soldier of the Month" honors at the San Francisco Port of Embarkation is Pfc. Newell Strayer, 21, a drummer in the 22nd Army band at Fort Mason.

Selection as the Port's top soldier for June brought Pfc. Strayer a three-day pass, a $10 cash award and a certificate of achievement which was presented him by Major General Ralph I. Glasgow, Port Commander, at a retreat parade at Fort Mason on 2 July. Pfc. Strayer enlisted in the Army in June 1952, while in his third year at San Jose State college.

At the beginning of WWI the Aviation Section of the Army had 131 officers and slightly more than 1000 enlisted men. However, only 78 of the officers were fliers.

Presidio Service Club Anniversary Program on Sunday

Observance of the fourth anniversary of the Presidio Enlisted Men's Service club will take place Sunday (12 July) beginning at 2000.

At that time, guests will witness the awarding of honors to individuals and organizations who have worked untiringly in the interest of the Service club.

Presentation of a stage show, The Braden Follies, will follow. Then there will be eatin', not the least of which will be a 200-pound cake especially baked for the occasion by the Sixth Army Food Service school.

Actual date of the original dedication was 14 July 1949, so the observance will continue on into the week, to be climaxed on Thursday (16 July) with an anniversary formal ball at which awards will be given to the dance hostesses who have been most faithful in attendance at the club functions. A floor show will also be presented.

The club will open at 1300, the usual hour, on Sunday.

Teen-Age Activities

Friday, 10 July—Election of Board of Governors to serve from July through September. All TAC members have been requested to attend this meeting, which will be followed by refreshments.

Saturday, 11 July—Free movies, featurettes and cartoons in technicolor, beginning at 2045.

Friday, 17 July—Summer dance at Teen Age Club, with music by a Sixth Army orchestra. Boys may wear sport shirts, but no blue denim or levis. Dancing from 2000 to 2245. Refreshments will be served.

BOOK CORNER

I WILLIE SUTTON by Quentin J. Reynolds. Apparently chastened and repentant, a much publicized bank robber and jail breaker confides the story of his derelictions in the hope that small boys will stop worshipping him as a modern Robin Hood.

CARAVAN TO XANADU by Edison Marshall. Marco Polo, brightest symbol of adventure of the 13th century, is brought to life in this intimate record of the hardships, deadly hatred, and passionate devotion that brought him triumphant to the palace of the Khan.

WAIT, SON, OCTOBER IS NEAR by John Bell Clayton. The world of Tucker English was composed of so many wonderful, magical things—the fresh, young world of a ten year old—but ugliness threatened, and he tried to solve his dilemma by a tragic act of mutilation. Not for sentimentalists.

A WINDOW ON RED SQUARE by Frank Rounds, Jr. An American attache gives candid glimpses of today's Russians—not the politicians, but the people themselves—glimpses which will satisfy widespread curiosity about the Russian "man-on-the-street" and his problems with prices, housing, appearance, and the "social whirl."

THE BIG WATER by Mark Derby. The story moves from the cities of Malaya to the jungles of Borneo in this tale of intrigue and adventure. It has all the elements of suspense—treason, mystery, terror and, of course, love. For the mature reader.

D.E.H.—Presidio Libraries

EVEN JANE RUSSELL displayed serious interest in the intricate workings of the new 70mm combat camera as explained by Sgt. Chester A. Thurston, 6300 ASU Signal Service Bn. The Sixth Army Signal Photo Laboratory, Presidio of San Francisco, presented a complete display of equipment, some of which is not even generally issued, at the International Photographic Exhibition held at the Civic Auditorium during the past week. Their other equipment such as speed graphics, enlarging equipment, and a dark-room set-up were high points of interest to the hundreds who attended the showing of top-notch photography from all over the world. For amateur photographers who brought their equipment and wanted to give it a whirl, the 459th AAA Battalion of the 30th AAA Group, Fort Cronkhite, staged a realistic battle scene at intervals throughout the day and evening and posed whenever requested. Superman Or Bum? Red China Soldier Neither, U. S. Finds

Seoul—The Chinese Communist soldier is not the myth many have made of him.

He is not a superman, nor is he always a fighting demon. Neither is he a dyed-in-the-wool intellectual professing the Marxist doctrine.

The average Communist soldier is a simple peasant about five feet seven inches tall and weighing approximately 140 pounds.

In all probability, he is a farmer in his mid-twenties. He cannot read or write—for the majority of Reds have but three to five years of schooling.

He gripes about incessant night marches, bad treatment from his officers, lack of adequate clothing and medical care, the frequent United Nations air attacks, and the lack of Red air support.

His chief concern is not for the ideological principles involved in the struggle or the absurd Communist charge of "imperialistic aggression." His main interest is in staying alive and being able to obtain his daily quota of grain, rice, fried flour, and millet.

The Red soldier in Korea leads an austere and disciplined life fraught with hardship. He has little, if any, contact with the civilian populace and rarely is he provided amusement to break the monotony of his existence.

In his army, leave is unheard of and there are no chaplains. There is no post exchange to furnish him the little luxuries of life and often even the essentials are denied him.

As a private, he draws the equivalent of approximately 30 cents a month—hardly enough to pay for his tobacco, toilet articles and party fees.

While the average American soldier receives the best clothing and equipment that his country's ingenuity can provide, the Communist soldier is issued the familiar cotton-padded uniform, a pair of rubber-soled shoes with canvas tops, a blanket and a water-resistant cloak. Slung over his back is a haversack in which he is likely to have a mess kit, canteen and metal bowl with lid and chopsticks.

Although he receives hot meals while in the rear areas, in combat his food usually is cold, for it has been cooked under the cover of darkness the preceding night. Meat seldom is served to the lowly soldier.

In training, he spends as much time listening to political propaganda as he does learning to use his weapons.

Each battalion has its political commissar who specializes in propaganda and Communist indoctrination.

At the squad level, every two men are responsible for a third man. Thus, in theory, every man is watched. No freedom of thought or action exists under the Communist regime.

In action, he carries a bandolier containing a three-day ration of rice, his ammunition and rifle and—depending on his mission—hand grenades.

In the early days of the war he and his companions fought with an assortment of weapons originating from as many as 11 different countries. Now, most of them are armed with Russian-made weapons.

This, in brief, is a composite picture of the average Chinese Communist—the soldier who is trained to combat efficiency and then uselessly sacrificed in human sea attacks on the battlefield. (ANF)

PREPARING WOUNDED FOR STRETCHERS is a lesson learned by students at the ROK Army Medical Field Service School, one of the many training establishments of the United States Military Advisory Group's (KMAAG) vast revitalization program for the South Korean Army. With the ROK's suffering more

casualties than all United Nations forces combined, this lesson has been grimly applied. Under the guidance of KMAAG, the ROK Army has grown from a disorganized, ill-equipped force of 25,000 men to a trained force of more than 400,000 in 16 well-equipped divisions. (US Army photo by Patti.)

Tiny United States Army Task Force Stemmed First Red Attack In Korea

Kumamoto, Japan — The soldiers' barracks were dark and quiet that night.

Only a half hour ago, the charge of quarters had finished bed check. Some of the soldiers were snoring peacefully, but others of the American 21st Infantry Regiment still were tossing fitfully in their bunks.

Anxiety pervaded the squad rooms. Only three days before, President Truman had committed U. S. air and naval forces to the new war in Korea. Despite this, the North Korean Communist hordes were storming south.

To these soldiers, it was obvious the Reds would not be stopped unless trained units of tankers, artillerymen, and infantrymen were placed in their path. There was only one place from which combat men could move quickly into Korea. That place was Japan.

They were certain orders soon would arrive that would change their duties from the peaceful pursuits of an occupation force to those of combat troops with the world's toughest job.

Every man's brain was throbbing with the same thought—"Will I be among the first to go?"

Suddenly, the doors of the barracks buildings began to burst open, one after another. Lights flicked on as the shrill notes of sergeants' whistles reverberated through the squad rooms to be followed by shouted commands:

"All right, men, out of the sack! This is it! Start packin' your combat gear for Korea. And stand by for more dope from the 'Old Man.'"

It was 12 minutes past midnight, July 1, 1950.

The soldiers rolled out of their bunks and began to reach for fighting equipment, personal belongings, and barracks bags. With swift, trained movements they rolled up shelter halves and stuffed combat uniforms and mess kits into their battle packs.

"No need to take souvenirs," remarked a corporal as he tossed aside a heavy brass ash tray. "We'll probably be back in a couple of weeks."

"Yeh, or sooner," replied his bunk mate. "As soon as those Reds run up against the best outfit in the U. S. Army, they'll scoot back where they came from."

Similar scenes were unfolding in other barracks in the area of the 21st Regiment. Four hundred and six soldiers from that unit—a part of the 24th Infantry Division—had been picked as the first American troops to meet the enemy in Korea.

This was the understrength unit known as Task Force Smith. Its mission—to stop the North Korean Communist onslaught across the 38th parallel, as far north of Pusan as possible. The group—named for its commander, Lieutenant Colonel Charles Bradford Smith of Lambertville, N. J.—had been chosen because it had reached a peak in its combat training.

By 3 a.m., the task force was climbing into trucks for the trip to the air strip. It was about 85 miles north, at Ashiya, Japan. At 6 a.m. the men started to board planes for the historic flight into an unknown future.

The first planes to take off made the one hour and one-half flight to Pusan, found the weather too bad to land, and returned to Ashiya. Later that morning, they took off again and before noon landed on an air strip 13 miles from Pusan.

Trains carried Task Force Smith north from the busy port of Pusan. They wound around hills, dived into valleys and rolled through tunnels at the snail-pace speed of from 10 to 30 miles an hour. They stopped in tiny towns and switched to sidings where they waited for southbound trains to pass. There are few double tracks in the Korean rail system.

Pushing through endless lines of Korean refugees, they began the last lap of their trip to battle with the new enemy. Ragged, weeping people swarmed over the roads in bewildered, aimless wandering—fleeing from the Communist aggressor who had overrun their homes and cities.

At P'Yongtaek, 134 Artillerymen from the 52nd Field Artillery Battalion of the 24th Division joined the task force. They also recently had arrived from Japan to help stem the Communist forces' drive.

Finally, on July 4—when the truck convoy was drawing close to Osan—Smith ordered the unit to stop and dig in to await the enemy. It had taken two days for the group to cover the 185 miles from Pusan. Soldiers crouched in their foxholes for four and one-half hours. Then suddenly—early on July 5—a long column of Russian-made T-34 tanks loomed in the distance. As they rumbled to a point 500 yards away, Smith shouted: "Fire!"

A battery of six 105-millimeter howitzers snapped into action. Shells rained down on the enemy for one hour and destroyed six tanks.

Other armored monsters thundered into the infantry's positions and pushed through to the artillery. A column of enemy six miles long—two divisions of about 10,000 men each—followed the tanks.

In the fierce seven-hour battle that followed, the Reds almost surrounded the tiny task force. But the powerful handful of Americans peppered the enemy with machine gun, mortar and artillery fire. Trucks caught fire and their flames lit up the sky. Dead and wounded fell on all sides, their bodies littering the road and surrounding land. In the frantic melee, some enemy soldiers fled in panic to nearby rice paddies.

The heroic Americans fought a gallant fight against seemingly impossible odds. They inflicted heavy casualties on the Communists with only two 4.2-inch mortar platoons, one platoon of 75-millimeter recoilless rifles and six 2.36-inch bazooka teams, besides the battery of 105's.

When ammunition was almost spent and communications and vehicles knocked out, Smith led the 250 men left in his unit out of the trap.

The gallant fight at Osan not only slowed the Communist forces' drive—which probably would have reached Pusan within a few days—but it also provided time for other United Nations troops to move into combat positions.

Later General of the Army Douglas MacArthur credited Task Force Smith with denying the enemy its chance for quick victory. Casualties had been light. (ANF)

For most of the day, the task force met little or no resistance. As night fell, the armored column—which normally would have stopped, set up a defense perimeter and bivouacked for the night—was ordered to proceed with lights.

Firing could be heard in the distance. Out went the lights. Suddenly an enemy T-34 tank appeared to the right of the road and opened fire. The column moved over to the side of the road and halted. Troop-laden trucks soon were empty as infantry and artillerymen deployed for action. Tanks buttoned up and nosed forward for the kill.

Tanks Put 'Blitz' In Any War, Korea Experience Proves

Seoul—Patton-like dashes by American tanks were few and far between in Korea during the past three years of fighting.

One the boys like to remember, however, is the 102-mile lightning dash by Task Force 777.

It all started on Sept. 26, 1950, when Task Force 777 jumped off from Poun, 132 road miles south of Seoul, to link up with the Inchon invasion forces attacking southward.

For most of the day, the task force met little or no resistance. As night fell, the armored column—which normally would have stopped, set up a defense perimeter and bivouacked for the night—was ordered to proceed with lights.

Firing could be heard in the distance. Out went the lights. Suddenly an enemy T-34 tank appeared to the right of the road and opened fire. The column moved over to the side of the road and halted. Troop-laden trucks soon were empty as infantry and artillerymen deployed for action. Tanks buttoned up and nosed forward for the kill.

The first T-34 and another joining the fray started to rake the column with cannon and machine-gun fire. "It was like parading our trucks in a shooting gallery," said one of the truck drivers as he vividly recalled the lurking iron monsters spewing death at his column.

By this time, a bazooka team had accounted for one of the T-34's. As the other moved out to the road, one courageous truck driver gunned his two-and-a-half forward to block the advance of the on-rushing monster. But the T-34 kept right on coming and seconds after the truck driver had leaped clear of his vehicle, it lay flattened on the ground.

Further down the line, a 75-millimeter recoilless rifle stopped the tank but failed to silence its belching 85-millimeter gun. A bazooka team promptly moved in for the kill. A can of gasoline poured over the engine finished the job.

While this action was taking place, the roar of tank engines could be heard from the north. Soon eight more enemy tanks were in the thick of it. A close range tank battle knocked out one T-34, but the other seven rumbled on down the column shooting as they went.

But their success was short-lived. A 105-millimeter howitzer had been readied for action. At point-blank range, four high explosive, anti-tank rounds slammed into enemy steel, nearly blowing the turret off one of the T-34's.

For the next hour, tanks, artillery and bazooka teams were busily engaged in stopping the remaining tanks. After what seemed like hours, the smoke of the battle cleared. U. S. tankers, infantry and artillerymen emerged victorious to count their kill. Seven enemy tanks had met their Waterloo. Three had withdrawn.

Later that morning, a few miles up the road, Seventh Infantry Division soldiers attacking south from Seoul greeted the advancing column with—"What the hell are you doing here?" The link-up had been made.

The spectacular 102-mile armored thrust was made in 21 hours. It had cost the task force two tanks, and 15 vehicles. Casualties had been light. (ANF)

Optimism Shown as Western Leaders Seek To Resolve Critical Truce Ties

(Hope for an early truce in Korea, after more than three years of fighting, dangled by several slender threads this week. Despite avowed opposition by Old Patriot Syngman Rhee, a current of optimism surged strongly throughout the Western press. Statisticians, historians, and analysts burned the midnight oil to bring facts, figures and estimates up to date. This week, in an effort to meet the renewed interest and bring soldier readers a complete picture, The Star-Presidian has leaned heavily on the expert research material provided by the Army Features Service. . . . 4 Are Bronze Stars!

8 Decorations To Be Awarded At Presidio Ceremony Tuesday

Awards to four members of the 505th Military Police battalion, one each to a member of the 11th TC Car company and G-4 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army, as well as to two former military personnel, will be presented at a decoration ceremony and retreat parade set for Tuesday (14 July) on the Main Parade ground. The hour will be 1615.

The Bronze Star Medals will be awarded to Sgt. Robert J. Kamers and Cpl. Harvey D. K. Murphy, both members of the 505th MP Bn., and Mr. (Lt.) Jerome F. Marks, and Mr. (Lt.) John L. Richard.

The Army Commendation ribbon with Metal Pendant will be awarded to Lt. Robert C. Orr, 505th MP Bn., and Cpl. James R. Payne, 11th TC Car Co. Major Harold R. Spangler, G-4, Headquarters Sixth Army, will receive a Certificate of Achievement, and the Purple Heart will be awarded to Sgt. George J. Ekparian, 505th MP Bn.

Sgt. Kamers will be decorated for his action on 7 March of this year, when as a member of United Nations Command Prisoner of War camp One B, he managed to quell a prisoner uprising and prevented injury or possible death to the commander and several United Nations personnel within the compound when the incident occurred.

Cpl. Murphy distinguished himself by meritorious service from 23 September 1951 to 25 February 1953 as a member of the 772nd MP Bn. in Korea. He was a railway security guard responsible for preventing pilferage of UN supplies and also supervised rail yard security, at Yonchon, North Korea.

As platoon leader with the 5th Regimental Combat team in Korea from 1 June 1952 to 10 February 1953, Lt. Marks distinguished himself in leadership and ability to evaluate situations while on patrols.

Serving admirably in three separate posts with the 8th Field Artillery Bn. in Korea from May 1952 to February 1953, won for Lt. Richard the Bronze Star medal. He served consecutively as ammunition train commander, forward observer and as assistant communications officer.

The other awards will also be made for meritorious service in connection with the Korean campaign.

Marching units will include the Sixth Army band, two companies from the 505th Military Police battalion which will also furnish the commander of troops and staff, and one company each from Detachment A, 6002 ASU, Headquarters company, 30th Engineers and the WAC detachment. Detachment A will furnish the color guard.

Promotion Quotas For July In Army Are Cut Sharply

Taking a sharp dip after months of steady climbing uphill, promotion quotas for the month of July throughout the Army totaled only 51,300 for the top four enlisted grades.

This is compared with 105,450 for the month of June and 99,500 for May.

Broken down, the July figure includes, E-7, 750; E-6, 2,750; E-5, 12,800; and E-4, 35,000.

Sixth Army quotas for the current month are always restricted until the last day of the month, but the June figures included E-7, 46; E-6, 342; E-5, 1,216; E-4, 2,001; and E-3, 2-814

4-Man Units May Prove Top Infantry Replacement Plan

Washington — Individual infantry replacements may be on the way out, it was disclosed by the Department of Army recently.

Instead, four-man teams will be assigned as overseas replacements. The first such shipment of the four-man teams will take place in the near future, the Army has revealed.

The Army said that men, who remain throughout the replacement system with other soldiers with whom they have completed basic training, maintain a higher esprit de corps and become more readily adjusted to their first overseas assignment.

The four-man group plan was tested last October at Ft. Dix, N. J. Personnel of the 9th Infantry Training Division were utilized in tests to improve morale and administrative control of overseas enlisted replacements.

Under the program, EM with the same MOS will be formed into four-man teams during the 12th week of basic training and will complete the remaining four weeks as a group.

After basic training and furloughs, the teams will gather at POEs and be assembled into carrier companies. After arrival overseas, the members of each team will be kept together as long as is practicable.

Full-scale adoption by other branches of the Army may take place later if the infantry replacement plan proves successful. (AFPS)

Army Sets Course For Civil Defense In Mass Feeding

The Army will hold a three-day course to train key Civil Defense workers in the techniques of emergency mass feeding in the event of a major disaster, it was announced today at Headquarters Sixth Army.

Approximately 60 selected Civil Defense representatives from western states will attend classes at the Sixth Army Food Service Schools at the Presidio of San Francisco and Fort Lewis, Wash., July 22 through 24. Chosen by Civil Defense authorities, many of the students are managers of school and industrial cafeterias or are engaged in restaurant work.

Army instructors will describe and demonstrate emergency water purification, waste disposal, prevention of food contamination and food poisoning, layouts for mass feeding, selection of food, field expedients, safety, fire building, sanitation and improvisation of measuring instruments and lighting.

Upon completion of the work, the students will be qualified to serve as instructors for other Civil Defense personnel.

The instruction is part of a national program directed by the Department of the Army.

Weekly World News
AT A GLANCE

AT PANMUNJOM, Communist and Allied liaison officers met Thursday "for administrative purposes only," amidst reports that the U. N. would ask for a meeting of the full truce delegations to resume negotiations for an armistice. The meeting was called by General Mark Clark, who flew to Seoul for a last-minute conference with South Korean President Syngman Rhee. After a 22-minute talk with Clark, U. S. Special Envoy Walter Robertson and Ambassadors Ellis Briggs and Robert Murphy, Rhee called his top Cabinet Ministers into secret conferences. An American Embassy spokesman said he could give no information on what the American delegation told Rhee. He could not—or would not—confirm the Korean reports that formal notice was served on the Korean leaders that the U. N. would wait no longer before signing an armistice with the Communists. . . . ON THE FIGHTING FRONT, Communist forces smashed against the U. N. front line in four heavy attacks Wednesday night and Thursday and were thrown back in defeat by American and South Korean defenders. The new fighting raged on outposts Berlin and East Berlin in the far west near the truce talks village, on Porkchop Hill and Arrowhead Ridge north of Yonchon in the west-central sector, and on Kim Il Sung next to Heartbreak Ridge in the east. With the Reds throwing between 4,000 and 6,000 men into the four attacks, it was the heaviest fighting since the big Red Pukhan River attack on the central front two weeks ago.

COMMUNIST EAST GERMANY announced Thursday the release of an "overwhelming majority" of the workers arrested during the 17 June uprising in East Berlin. This move followed the reopening of the Berlin-East-West sector border which the Reds closed 17 June. Both Red moves were believed to have been forced by the demands of approximately 100,000 sitdown strikers in East Berlin and the Soviet occupation zone Wednesday. Russia reportedly moved a division of 200 tanks into East Berlin Wednesday to handle the spreading strike situation. By limiting their protest action to strikes, the workers trapped the Communists in their own propaganda net. In a campaign to win favor after the disorders of last month the East German government declared the right to strike was guaranteed in the constitution and even encouraged workers to air grievances in a series of mass meetings attended by apologetic Communist officials.

FOOD SHORTAGES are affecting millions in Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia and Poland, according to reports reaching diplomatic sources in Vienna. The food crisis and unrest throughout the Russian satellite bloc appeared to be the major reason for a rash of conciliatory gestures by Communist governments. . . . EAST GERMANY and HUNGARY have announced drastic changes in their policy of communication, industrialization and collectivization. They are proclaiming a policy of less police supervision, more free enterprise and more food and goods for the consumer. Hungary ordered a reduction in crop delivery obligations of farmers who have suffered crop damages. In Hungarian cities, milk, butter, fat and meat are reported virtually unobtainable in state-run stores and then only at prices the average worker cannot afford. Refugees reaching Vienna said thousands of families recently were without substantial food for days. . . . ROMANIA has increased food rations from its reserves and ordered an amnesty for prisoners. Unconfirmed reports said hungry workers and peasants have stormed Romanian food depots. . . . CZECHOSLOVAKIA made more concessions to keep workers on the job by revoking a decree making it a criminal offense for workers to remain away from their jobs four times without good reason. The law was issued only a week ago because of wide-spread absenteeism, which followed the suppression of a workers' uprising at Pilsen last month. . . . BULGARIA announced on Sunday a decree along the lines of the law annulled by Czechoslovakia. Imprisonment and heavy fines were provided for workers and apprentices who leave their jobs or training without permission. . . . POLAND and Bulgaria so far have failed to modify policy to meet the wave of unrest and rebellion. Poland officially denied last week end that there had been riots and martial law, as there have been in East Germany.

FROM MOSCOW, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said that the Communist party has "crushed all its enemies" who tried to undermine the unity of the party and the confidence of its members in the "victory of socialism." The newspaper also warned in an editorial that any leader who neglects Communist theory is unworthy of the title and "life sooner or later will rid itself of him." Although no specific culprits were listed, the frequent references to party unity seemed to indicate the editorial was another blast in the recent campaign against party and government officials who place considerations of "nationalism" above a concept of Communism embracing all the diverse nationalities which make up the Soviet Union. This drive has resulted in the replacement, or purge, of numerous government and party officials in various of the republics making up the Soviet Union. . . . FRENCH PREMIER Joseph Laniel won his first major test in the Parliament Wednesday, pushing through the same program of higher taxes and government economies that brought downfall to his predecessor, Premier Rene Mayer. The Assembly approved higher levies on gasoline, beverage alcohol, passports and legal services, and gave the cabinet power to effect economies in government administration subject to legislative veto.

IN INDO-CHINA, Vietnam's chief of state and his government threw their support behind France's offer of greater independence for the three associated states of Indo-China—Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos. This support came as a surprise in view of the disappointment expressed last week by individuals in the governments of the three associated states. When France's offer for more freedom was announced, the first reaction was that it didn't go far enough toward granting their demands. Most Indo-Chinese—including the Cambodians—felt that France's offer at least would lead to solid negotiations. . . . PEIPING RED RADIO said Tuesday that Britain and Red China signed an $84,000,000 import-export trade agreement Monday. The broadcast said Britain will sell China: metal and metal products, machines, electrical appliances, chemical materials, tools, instruments, medicine, surgical equipment, communications and transport equipment and other products. The broadcast said China will sell Britain: vegetable oil and oil seeds, animal products, egg products, mineral products, tea, silk handicraft and other items.

All Quotas Met!

Blood Donations at Stoneman
Total 9,500 in Six Months

(Editor's Note: Information for The Star-Presidian article on the blood donor program in the issue of 26 June was obtained from a letter by Headquarters Sixth Army to commanders of installations and activities of the Sixth Army, dated 23 June 1953. The decrease noted was for the month of May when donations did not equal the monthly total required to meet the entire Sixth Army quota for that month. Although the area-wide collections were below the quota, the three installations with the largest number of donations—Fort Lewis, Camp Stoneman and Fort Ord—all exceeded their quotas for the month.)

Camp Stoneman, Calif.—Camp Stoneman met its blood donation quota for June, 1953, to bring to more than 9,500 pints the blood contributed from this post during the first half of 1953, according to local Blood Bank officials. The quota set for the year is 19,000 pints.

Although newspaper publicity indicated recently that some other posts are unable to meet previously assigned Blood Bank requirements, owing to personnel changes or for other reasons, Camp Stoneman officers say the quota of 19,000 pints for the year is not excessive. "We can meet that quota or any other reasonable request for badly needed blood," was the response to a query regarding the possibility of a reduction in the amount to be donated.

American Red Cross officials at the Blood Bank were gratified at the Camp Stoneman response. They said the presence here of a large percentage of Korean veterans among the Army and Air Force made solicitation of the vital fluid relatively easy. Such veterans contribute generously, having seen first hand the desperate need for whole blood on the battlefields and in the hospitals overseas, it was added. The American Red Cross is vitally interested in the current drive for blood, since it supplies all nurses, blood custodians and supplies as well as the transportation and processing for blood collected.

Dear Sir:
A recent news story in your paper indicated that Sixth Army wasn't fulfilling its blood donation quota for 1953, and the quotas were about to be revised downward.
We at camp Stoneman are fulfilling our quota and have no desire to have it reduced in any way. In that regard, we would appreciate your publishing the inclosed story.
Yours very truly,

SPORT SCENE

In Carnoustie, Scotland, this week, defending champion of the British Open, BOBBY LOCKE, led the field for two qualifying rounds with a sparkling 136. The chunky South African set a course record on Monday, when he fired 65, five under par. Neophyte to the course, BEN HOGAN, ran into some nasty Scottish weather and bad putting but easily qualified with 145, nine shots below the medalist. Other Americans to qualify were LLOYD MANGRUM, 1946 U. S. Open Champion; FRANK STRANAHAN, who led the four U. S. qualifiers with 144; and DON FAIRFIELD, of Jacksonville, Illinois.

Back in the United States, a blond belter from Franklin, Michigan, WALTER BURKEMO by name, downed FELICE TORZA, 2 and 1, for the 35th Professional Golfers Association Championship.

In international tennis, VIC SEIXAS of Philadelphia went on to win the coveted world amateur title for the United States at the Wimbledon finals in England last week. Playing flawless tennis, Big Vic ran through KURT NIELSEN of Denmark to take the crown. For the women at Wimbledon, MAUREEN CONNOLLY of San Diego, Calif., fought the brilliant tennis of DORIS HART of Coral Gables, Fla., to take the title. Some measure of compensation for Miss Hart came when she coupled with SHIRLEY FRY, another American miss, against Maureen Connolly and JULIE SAMPSON of Pasadena to win an all-American doubles final. In the mixed doubles, Miss Hart teamed with men's champ Vic Seixas to win in two sets against Shirley Fry and ENRIQUE MOREA of Argentina. The men's doubles title went to two Australian 18-year-olds, LEWIS HOAD and KEN ROSEWALL. They defeated countrymen REX HARTWIG and MERVYN ROSE in four sets.

Late releases last Sunday from the national A.A.U. track and field exercises reported that the U. S. Army 2,900-meter relay team had set an unofficial American record with a 6:58.9 clocking. The old record was 7:01, set in 1949 by the New York Athletic Club. The 1,500-meter anchor leg was run by LT. WARREN DRUETZLER, of Camp Lee, Va. HENRY CRYER of Camp Pickett, Va., running the 800-meter third leg, cracked the race open to give Druetzler a lead that couldn't be overcome. HARRY BRIGHT of Fort Jackson, S. C., ran the 400-meter first leg, and Fort Ord's ubiquitous Olympian GEORGE BROWN the 200-meter leg.

In the Pennant Parade this week, Seattle was clinging tenaciously to its Pacific Coast League lead with 61 games won to 40 lost. They edged a gaining Hollywood nine by a slim one-game margin, while Los Angeles trailed third with 55 for 102. In the American League New York, in spite of the upsets, still proved to be tops with 52 winners and 25 losers. Cleveland seconded with 46 for 76, with Chicago trailing them one game. The American League's cellar-dwelling St. Louis Browns served themselves a dubious victory this week in their 6-3 loss to the Indians with a record 20-straight losses at home. The 1906 Red Sox lost 19 straight at home for the previous major league record. In the Nationals, Brooklyn led with 48 and 28, setting a more rewarding record for the league by hitting homers in 21 consecutive games. Play-dirt came in their game with the Pirates when they hit six home runs to win the double, 5-4, 9-5. In the second game Preacher Roe terminated a drought of his own when he slammed his first homer as a 10-year major league player.

ROYAL VALE, the great thoroughbred invader from the East, was given his last major prep for the $100,000 guaranteed-to-winner Gold Cup at Hollywood Park on Tuesday morning, when he ran the mile in 1:38, jockey JACK WESTROPE up. The Gold Cup race is to be run tomorrow. Most everybody concedes that Royal Vale is the horse to beat, despite his high weight of 128 pounds.

45th Boat Crew
Out of Cellar;
12-3 Win With 21 st

In 30th Engineer softball this week the cellar-dwelling 45th Boat Company broke into the win column and out of the cellar by throttling the 21st Engineers 12-3 in timely power hitting and six-hit pitching by Brinkmeyer.

For five innings, 21st's lean and lanky Cobb had been hurling toward a shut-out, methodically setting down opposition batters one-two-three with never more than four men facing him in one inning.

But in the sixth frame, Cobb lost his control and his support simultaneously. Chicca led off with a walk, Lapham was safe on a miscue and Hernandez walked to load the sacks. One run scored as Brinkmeyer reached first on an error. Then, with the bases still jammed, Weekworth cracked a grand-slam homerun.

That was all for pitcher Cobb. The 45th went on to tally 10 runs and added two more insurance markers in the seventh.

Weekworth led both teams in the hitting department plus recording a perfect day on the mound. In addition to the round-tripper, Weekworth blasted a double and a single and walked in the seventh.

TUESDAY'S FIRST ROUND WINNER, Sgt. George De Rosa, displays a mighty form in his first drive for the second round of the Sixth Army Golf preliminary competition at the Presidio Golf Club on Wednesday morning. De Rosa carded a 74 for his lowest on Tuesday, birdying on three holes, to beat out Cpl. Sam Randolph of San Luis Obispo, second-place golfer. (Army photo by Igelsrud.)

For First Two Rounds of Prelims

A field of 52 golfers and teams representing seven installations in the Southern Division of the Sixth Army massed on the Presidio Golf Club's first tee this Tuesday for the 1953 All-Sixth Army preliminaries. Teams and individuals competing in the four-day medal play hailed from California, Nevada, Utah and Arizona.

After the first two days of play the Presidio golf team, sparked by a long-hitting veteran of previous Sixth Army competition, led the field with a total of 792 points, 23 strokes less than their nearest rival, Fort Ord, in Main Division play.

First round medalist was M/Sgt. George De Rosa, 1950 Post champion. De Rosa carded 74 in Tuesday's effort, birdying holes 11, 13 and 16 on the Presidio links back nine.

Second to De Rosa in Tuesday's play was San Luis Obispo's Wisconsin ace Cpl. Sam Randolph with 75. Third-placers carding 77 for the first day's round were Presidio's Captains Rollin Kapp and Louis Button, and Camp Roberts' Harold Freer.

Major Henry Glaister of the Stanford R.O.T.C. unit carded a fourth-place 78.

Fifth placers were Pvt. Dick Yost, Camp Roberts veteran of Oregon and California links, and Presidio's Captain Duane Bagley. Both finished with 79.

The Presidio's 395 aggregate for the first round led Camp Roberts' second-place 416, Fort Ord's 420, and Camp Stoneman's 434.

San Luis Obispo, Fort MacArthur and Fort Mason followed with 435, 454 and 459, respectively. Team scores were computed from the cards of the five lowest golfers on each team.

Wednesday's results saw Camp Roberts' Dick Yost whittle his strokes to a slim 72 total, with teammate Harold Freer at 73. Their club's first tee this Tuesday for the 1953 All-Sixth Army preliminaries. Teams and individuals competing in the four-day medal play hailed from California, Nevada, Utah and Arizona.

Obispo's Sam Randolph stroked a fourth-place 75, with Ord's Merle Fisher and Stoneman's John Welpler each at 76.

Other leaders on Wednesday included Presidio's Louis Button and Duane Bagley, Stanford's Henry Glaister, and MacArthur's Jack Berry, all with 78. Presidio's Rollin Kapp carded a seventh-place 79.

Team standings by the end of Wednesday's play found the Presidio still holding its lead at 792 points. Ord (815) had replaced Camp Roberts (818) for second place. San Luis Obispo (851) had replaced Stoneman (853) in fourth.

In Senior Division golf Colonel George Reed of the Los Angeles Recruiting Station led his two rivals in the prelims with 187 for the two days' play.

Colonel Henning G. Carlson, of Camp Stoneman, seconded with 191, while Colonel Wiley H. O'Mohundro of Two Rock Ranch was third with 192.

The withdrawal of Presidio's Colonel Charles Ransom, this year's Post champion in the Letterman Hospital representation, from Sixth Army competition caused no small consternation to the Presidio Camp. The withdrawal came seconds before tee-off time due to unforeseen commitments.

On Tuesday morning team alternate Ted Schwabenland stepped into Ransom's vacancy, while another on-the-spot vacancy was filled by Sixth Army's athletic supervisor WOJG Urban Araujo. Thus the team ranks were filled moments before tee-off.

The last round of the Sixth Army preliminaries is scheduled at the Presidio links this afternoon, at which time a winning and runner team and the five individual low medalists in Main Division play will have been determined.

These winners, together with the two low medalists in local Senior Division golf, plus similar medalists and teams produced by the Northern Division prelims at Fort Lewis, Washington, also finishing this afternoon, will compete for the Sixth Army Championship on the Presidio links beginning next Tuesday.

Winners in the Championship will go on for All-Army play, scheduled for Monterey's world-famed Pebble Beach Course later in the summer.

Baseball Stars to Visit
GI's in Overseas Show

Arrangements are being completed for a post-season baseball excursion this year to Germany, the Riviera and North Africa for the purpose of entertaining U. S. servicemen overseas, according to word from Washington.

Manager Jimmie Dykes, Coach Tom Oliver, Trainer Packey Schwartz, Shortstop Eddie Joost, Outfielder Elmer Valo and Pitcher Bob Newson, all of the Philadelphia Athletics, have signified their willingness to make the trip.

Superman Or Bum? Red China Soldier Neither, U. S. Finds

Seoul—The Chinese Communist soldier is not the myth many have made of him.

He is not a superman, nor is he always a fighting demon. Neither is he a dyed-in-the-wool intellectual professing the Marxist doctrine.

The average Communist soldier is a simple peasant about five feet seven inches tall and weighing approximately 140 pounds.

In all probability, he is a farmer in his mid-twenties. He cannot read or write—for the majority of Reds have but three to five years of schooling.

He gripes about incessant night marches, bad treatment from his officers, lack of adequate clothing and medical care, the frequent United Nations air attacks, and the lack of Red air support.

His chief concern is not for the ideological principles involved in the struggle or the absurd Communist charge of "imperialistic aggression." His main interest is in staying alive and being able to obtain his daily quota of grain, rice, fried flour, and millet.

The Red soldier in Korea leads an austere and disciplined life fraught with hardship. He has little, if any, contact with the civilian populace and rarely is he provided amusement to break the monotony of his existence.

In his army, leave is unheard of and there are no chaplains. There is no post exchange to furnish him the little luxuries of life and often even the essentials are denied him.

As a private, he draws the equivalent of approximately 30 cents a month—hardly enough to pay for his tobacco, toilet articles and party fees.

While the average American soldier receives the best clothing and equipment that his country's ingenuity can provide, the Communist soldier is issued the familiar cotton-padded uniform, a pair of rubber-soled shoes with canvas tops, a blanket and a water-resistant cloak. Slung over his back is a haversack in which he is likely to have a mess kit, canteen and metal bowl with lid and chopsticks.

Although he receives hot meals while in the rear areas, in combat his food usually is cold, for it has been cooked under the cover of darkness the preceding night. Meat seldom is served to the lowly soldier.

In training, he spends as much time listening to political propaganda as he does learning to use his weapons.

Each battalion has its political commissar who specializes in propaganda and Communist indoctrination.

At the squad level, every two men are responsible for a third man. Thus, in theory, every man is watched. No freedom of thought or action exists under the Communist regime.

In action, he carries a bandolier containing a three-day ration of rice, his ammunition and rifle and—depending on his mission—hand grenades.

In the early days of the war he and his companions fought with an assortment of weapons originating from as many as 11 different countries. Now, most of them are armed with Russian-made weapons.

This, in brief, is a composite picture of the average Chinese Communist—the soldier who is trained to combat efficiency and then uselessly sacrificed in human sea attacks on the battlefield. (ANF)

PREPARING WOUNDED FOR STRETCHERS is a lesson learned by students at the ROK Army Medical Field Service School, one of the many training establishments of the United States Military Advisory Group's (KMAG) vast revitalization program for the South Korean Army. With the ROK's suffering more

casualties than all United Nations forces combined, this lesson has been grimly applied. Under the guidance of KMAG, the ROK Army has grown from a disorganized, ill-equipped force of 25,000 men to a trained force of more than 400,000 in 16 well-equipped divisions. (US Army photo by Patti.)

Kumamoto, Japan — The soldiers' barracks were dark and quiet that night.

Only a half hour ago, the charge of quarters had finished bed check. Some of the soldiers were snoring peacefully, but others of the American 21st Infantry Regiment still were tossing fitfully in their bunks.

Anxiety pervaded the squad rooms. Only three days before, President Truman had committed U. S. air and naval forces to the new war in Korea. Despite this, the North Korean Communist hordes were storming south.

To these soldiers, it was obvious the Reds would not be stopped unless trained units of tankers, artillerymen, and infantrymen were placed in their path. There was only one place from which combat men could move quickly into Korea. That place was Japan.

They were certain orders soon would arrive that would change their duties from the peaceful pursuits of an occupation force to those of combat troops with the world's toughest job.

Every man's brain was throbbing with the same thought—"Will I be among the first to go?" Suddenly, the doors of the barracks buildings began to burst open, one after another. Lights flicked on as the shrill notes of sergeants' whistles reverberated through the squad rooms to be followed by shouted commands:

"All right, men, out of the sack! This is it! Start packin' your combat gear for Korea. And stand by for more dope from the 'Old Man.'"

It was 12 minutes past midnight, July 1, 1950.

The soldiers rolled out of their bunks and began to reach for fighting equipment, personal belongings, and barracks bags. With swift, trained movements they rolled up shelter halves and stuffed combat uniforms and mess kits into their battle packs.

"No need to take souvenirs," remarked a corporal as he tossed aside a heavy brass ash tray. "We'll probably be back in a couple of weeks."

"Yeh, or sooner," replied his bunk mate. "As soon as those Reds run up against the best outfit in the U. S. Army, they'll scoot back where they came from."

Similar scenes were unfolding in other barracks in the area of the 21st Regiment. Four hundred and six soldiers from that unit—a part of the 24th Infantry Division—had been picked as the first American troops to meet the enemy in Korea.

This was the understrength unit known as Task Force Smith. Its mission—to stop the North Korean Communist onslaught across the 38th parallel, as far north of Pusan as possible. The group—named for its commander, Lieutenant Colonel Charles Bradford Smith of Lambertville, N. J.—had been chosen because it had reached a peak in its combat training.

By 3 a.m., the task force was climbing into trucks for the trip to the air strip. It was about 85 miles north, at Ashiya, Japan. At 6 a.m. the men started to board planes for the historic flight into an unknown future.

The first planes to take off made the one hour and one-half flight to Pusan, found the weather too bad to land, and returned to Ashiya. Later that morning, they took off again and before noon landed on an air strip 13 miles from Pusan.

Trains carried Task Force Smith north from the busy port of Pusan. They wound around hills, dived into valleys and rolled through tunnels at the snail-pace speed of from 10 to 30 miles an hour. They stopped in tiny towns and switched to sidings where they waited for southbound trains to pass. There are few double tracks in the Korean rail system.

Pushing through endless lines of Korean refugees, they began the last lap of their trip to battle with the new enemy. Ragged, weeping people swarmed over the roads in bewildered, aimless wandering—fleeing from the Communist aggressor who had overrun their homes and cities.

At P'Yongtaek, 134 Artillerymen from the 52nd Field Artillery Battalion of the 24th Division joined the task force. They also recently had arrived from Japan to help stem the Communist forces' drive.

The soldiers rolled out of their bunks and began to reach for fighting equipment, personal belongings, and barracks bags. With swift, trained movements they rolled up shelter halves and stuffed combat uniforms and mess kits into their battle packs.

"No need to take souvenirs," remarked a corporal as he tossed aside a heavy brass ash tray. "We'll probably be back in a couple of weeks."

Tanks Put 'Blitz' In Any War, Korea Experience Proves

Seoul—Patton-like dashes by American tanks were few and far between in Korea during the past three years of fighting.

One the boys like to remember, however, is the 102-mile lightning dash by Task Force 777.

It all started on Sept. 26, 1950, when Task Force 777 jumped off from Poun, 132 road miles south of Seoul, to link up with the Inchon invasion forces attacking southward.

For most of the day, the task force met little or no resistance. As night fell, the armored column—which normally would have stopped, set up a defense perimeter and bivouacked for the night—was ordered to proceed with lights.

Firing could be heard in the distance. Out went the lights. Suddenly an enemy T-34 tank appeared to the right of the road and opened fire. The column moved over to the side of the road and halted. Troop-laden trucks soon were empty as infantry and artillerymen deployed for action. Tanks buttoned up and nosed forward for the kill.

The first T-34 and another joining the fray started to rake the column with cannon and machine-gun fire. "It was like parading our trucks in a shooting gallery," said one of the truck drivers as he vividly recalled the lurking iron monsters spewing death at his column.

By this time, a bazooka team had accounted for one of the T-34's. As the other moved out to the road, one courageous truck driver gunned his two-and-a-half forward to block the advance of the on-rushing monster. But the T-34 kept right on coming and seconds after the truck driver had leaped clear of his vehicle, it lay flattened on the ground.

Further down the line, a 75-millimeter recoilless rifle stopped the tank but failed to silence its belching 85-millimeter gun. A bazooka team promptly moved in for the kill. A can of gasoline poured over the engine finished the job.

While this action was taking place, the roar of tank engines could be heard from the north. Soon eight more enemy tanks were in the thick of it. A close range tank battle knocked out one T-34, but the other seven rumbled on down the column shooting as they went.

But their success was short-lived. A 105-millimeter howitzer had been readied for action. At point-blank range, four high explosive, anti-tank rounds slammed into enemy steel, nearly blowing the turret off one of the T-34's.

For the next hour, tanks, artillery and bazooka teams were busily engaged in stopping the remaining tanks. After what seemed like hours, the smoke of the battle cleared. U. S. tankers, infantry and artillerymen emerged victorious to count their kill. Seven enemy tanks had met their Waterloo. Three had withdrawn.

Later that morning, a few miles up the road, Seventh Infantry Division soldiers attacking south from Seoul greeted the advancing column with—"What the hell are you doing here?" The link-up had been made.

The spectacular 102-mile armored thrust was made in 21 hours. It had cost the task force two tanks, and 15 vehicles. Casualties had been light. (ANF)

AMERICAN OFFICERS of the United States Military Advisory Group (KMAG) check results of a salvo from guns of four tanks, manned by ROK Army tankers, on the firing range of the Infantry School of the Korean Army Training Center. Starting "almost from scratch," military experts such as these were faced with the necessary job of providing the ROK Army with everything it needed—trained men, weapons and good leaders—before building one of the greatest armies of the Orient. (US Army photo by Vanier.)

(Hope for an early truce in Korea, after more than three years of fighting, dangled by several slender threads this week. Despite avowed opposition by Old Patriot Syngman Rhee, a current of optimism surged strongly throughout the Western press. Statisticians, historians, and analysts burned the midnight oil to bring facts, figures and estimates up to date. This week, in an effort to meet the renewed interest and bring soldier readers a complete picture, The Star-Press has leaned heavily on the expert research material provided by the Army Features Service. . . . 1950:
June 27—President Truman orders U.S. air and naval forces to help repel North Korean invaders.
June 28—Seoul, Korean capital, abandoned to the northern invaders.

June 30—President Truman authorizes General MacArthur to send ground forces to Korea.
July 1—First U.S. Army combat unit lands in Korea.

July 5—U.S. Army troops fight first engagement in Korea.

July 7—U.N. Security Council authorizes use of U.N. flag in Korea.

July 8 — General MacArthur named Commander in Chief, United Nations Command.
July 10—U.S. tanks in first action; first Red atrocities reported against Americans.

July 12—U.S. troops fall back across Kum River near Taejon; Lieutenant General Walton H. Walker takes command of all U.S. forces in Korea.

July 18 — U.S. reinforcements land in Korea.

July 20—Taejon lost to enemy; Major General William F. Dean reported missing.

July 24—Reds in western Korea push to southern coast and attack toward Pusan.
July 31 — First reinforcements direct from United States land in Korea.

Aug. 3—U.S. troops fall back to Nakdong River line; Reds thrust to within 40 miles of Pusan.

Aug. 7 — U.S. forces launch strong counter-offensive toward Chinju, west of Pusan.

Aug. 29 — First British troops arrive in Korea from Hong Kong.

Sept. 1 — Reds establish 17 bridgeheads across Nakdong River and push to within 30 miles of Pusan.
Sept. 7—Reds reported seven miles from Taegu.

Sept. 14—Red drive on Taegu stalled.

Sept. 15—U.N. invasion fleet hit Inchon.

Sept. 16—After six weeks behind Pusan perimeter, Eighth Army jumps off in all-out offensive.

Sept. 26 — Seoul liberated by Tenth Corps invasion forces; Eighth Army Task Force links up with Inchon invasion forces south of Suwon.

Prelude to Chaos!

War began in Korea over three years ago and the world is still striving for an elusive peace. Peace was shattered when on the 25 June at four o'clock (Korean time) on Sunday morning, the Russian-trained Communist Army of North Korea crossed the 38th parallel to invade the Republic of Korea. Since the Republic of Korea was not a member of the United Nations, the United States Government immediately brought the aggression to the attention of the United Nations Security Council. On the afternoon of 25 June, the Security Council called upon the North Korean authorities to withdraw their armed forces and asked all U. N. members to refrain from giving assistance to the North Koreans. On 27 June, the Security Council recommended that the U. N. members act to repel the armed attack and restore international peace and security in Korea. Here in chronological order, are the steps that were taken and the significant events that occurred during three years of the Korean war.

Sept. 30—U. N. forces regain nearly all territory south of 37th parallel.

Oct. 1—ROK Third Division pushes across 38th parallel and speeds up east coast.

Oct. 9—U.S. First Cavalry Division crosses 38th parallel.

Oct. 10—ROK Capital and Third Divisions capture port of Wonsan.

Oct. 19—U. N. forces capture North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

Oct. 20—U.S. 187th Parachute Infantry Regimental Combat Team jumps at Sukchon and Suncheon, 25 miles north of Pyongyang.

Oct. 26—ROK Sixth Division reaches Yalu River at Chosan; U. N. forces capture first Chinese Communist soldiers in Korea.

Nov. 1—U.N. pilots opposed for first time by speedy Russian-built MIG-15 jet fighters.

Nov. 2—First Cavalry Division (Infantry) suffers severe casualties when hit by strong contingent of Chinese horsemen at Unsan.

Nov. 21—U.S. Seventh Infantry Division occupies Hyesanjin on banks of Yalu.

Nov. 24 — U.N. forces launch "end-of-war" offensive; ROK troops enter Chongjin, 60 miles from Siberian border.

Nov. 25 — Communists launch violent counter-offensive, forcing U.N. troops to begin long withdrawal.

Nov. 27—U.S. Marine and Army units hit by six Chinese divisions in the Chosin Reservoir area.

Dec. 5 — U.N. forces abandon North Korean capital.

Dec. 9 — Special relief force makes contact with U.S. Marines cut off in Chosin Reservoir area.

Dec. 11 — U.N. forces begin evacuation of Hungnam, Songjin and Wonsan.

Dec. 23—General Walker killed in jeep accident.

Dec. 24—Last of 105,000 soldiers evacuated from Hungnam beach-head safely aboard ship.

Dec. 26 — Lieutenant General Matthew B. Ridgway arrives to 4 Are Bronze Stars!

8 Decorations To Be Awarded At Presidio Ceremony Tuesday

Awards to four members of the 505th Military Police battalion, one each to a member of the 11th TC Car company and G-4 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army, as well as to two former military personnel, will be presented at a decoration ceremony and retreat parade set for Tuesday (14 July) on the Main Parade ground. The hour will be 1615.

The Bronze Star Medals will be awarded to Sgt. Robert J. Kamers and Cpl. Harvey D. K. Murphy, both members of the 505th MP Bn., and Mr. (Lt.) Jerome F. Marks, and Mr. (Lt.) John L. Richard.

The Army Commendation ribbon with Metal Pendant will be awarded to Lt. Robert C. Orr, 505th MP Bn., and Cpl. James R. Payne, 11th TC Car Co. Major Harold R. Spangler, G-4, Headquarters Sixth Army, will receive a Certificate of Achievement, and the Purple Heart will be awarded to Sgt. George J. Ekparian, 505th MP Bn.

Sgt. Kamers will be decorated for his action on 7 March of this year, when as a member of United Nations Command Prisoner of War camp One B, he managed to quell a prisoner uprising and prevented injury or possible death to the commander and several United Nations personnel within the compound when the incident occurred.

Cpl. Murphy distinguished himself by meritorious service from 23 September 1951 to 25 February 1953 as a member of the 772nd MP Bn. in Korea. He was a railway security guard responsible for preventing pilferage of UN supplies and also supervised rail yard security, at Yonchon, North Korea.

As platoon leader with the 5th Regimental Combat team in Korea from 1 June 1952 to 10 February 1953, Lt. Marks distinguished himself in leadership and ability to evaluate situations while on patrols.

Serving admirably in three separate posts with the 8th Field Artillery Bn. in Korea from May 1952 to February 1953, won for Lt. Richard the Bronze Star medal. He served consecutively as ammunition train commander, forward observer and as assistant communications officer.

The other awards will also be made for meritorious service in connection with the Korean campaign.

Marching units will include the Sixth Army band, two companies from the 505th Military Police battalion which will also furnish the commander of troops and staff, and one company each from Detachment A, 6002 ASU, Headquarters company, 30th Engineers and the WAC detachment. Detachment A will furnish the color guard.

Promotion Quotas For July In Army Are Cut Sharply

Taking a sharp dip after months of steady climbing uphill, promotion quotas for the month of July throughout the Army totaled only 51,300 for the top four enlisted grades.

This is compared with 105,450 for the month of June and 99,500 for May.

Broken down, the July figure includes, E-7, 750; E-6, 2,750; E-5, 12,800; and E-4, 35,000.

Sixth Army quotas for the current month are always restricted until the last day of the month, but the June figures included E-7, 46; E-6, 342; E-5, 1,216; E-4, 2,001; and E-3, 2,818.

4-Man Units May Prove Top Infantry Replacement Plan

Washington—Individual infantry replacements may be on the way out, it was disclosed by the Department of Army recently.

Instead, four-man teams will be assigned as overseas replacements. The first such shipment of the four-man teams will take place in the near future, the Army has revealed.

The Army said that men, who remain throughout the replacement system with other soldiers with whom they have completed basic training, maintain a higher esprit de corps and become more readily adjusted to their first overseas assignment.

The four-man group plan was tested last October at Ft. Dix, N. J. Personnel of the 9th Infantry Training Division were utilized in tests to improve morale and administrative control of overseas enlisted replacements.

Under the program, EM with the same MOS will be formed into four-man teams during the 12th week of basic training and will complete the remaining four weeks as a group.

After basic training and furloughs, the teams will gather at POEs and be assembled into carrier companies. After arrival overseas, the members of each team will be kept together as long as is practicable.

Full-scale adoption by other branches of the Army may take place later if the infantry replacement plan proves successful. (AFPS)

Army Sets Course For Civil Defense In Mass Feeding

The Army will hold a three-day course to train key Civil Defense workers in the techniques of emergency mass feeding in the event of a major disaster, it was announced today at Headquarters Sixth Army.

Approximately 60 selected Civil Defense representatives from western states will attend classes at the Sixth Army Food Service Schools at the Presidio of San Francisco and Fort Lewis, Wash., July 22 through 24. Chosen by Civil Defense authorities, many of the students are managers of school and industrial cafeterias or are engaged in restaurant work.

Army instructors will describe and demonstrate emergency water purification, waste disposal, prevention of food contamination and food poisoning, layouts for mass feeding, selection of food, field expedients, safety, fire building, sanitation and improvisation of measuring instruments and lighting.

Upon completion of the work, the students will be qualified to serve as instructors for other Civil Defense personnel.

The instruction is part of a national program directed by the Department of the Army.

Weekly World News
AT A GLANCE

AT PANMUNJOM, Communist and Allied liaison officers met Thursday "for administrative purposes only," amidst reports that the U. N. would ask for a meeting of the full truce delegations to resume negotiations for an armistice. The meeting was called by General Mark Clark, who flew to Seoul for a last-minute conference with South Korean President Syngman Rhee. After a 22-minute talk with Clark, U. S. Special Envoy Walter Robertson and Ambassadors Ellis Briggs and Robert Murphy, Rhee called his top Cabinet Ministers into secret conferences. An American Embassy spokesman said he could give no information on what the American delegation told Rhee. He could not—or would not—confirm the Korean reports that formal notice was served on the Korean leaders that the U. N. would wait no longer before signing an armistice with the Communists. . . . ON THE FIGHTING FRONT, Communist forces smashed against the U. N. front line in four heavy attacks Wednesday night and Thursday and were thrown back in defeat by American and South Korean defenders. The new fighting raged on outposts Berlin and East Berlin in the far west near the truce talks village, on Porkchop Hill and Arrowhead Ridge north of Yonchon in the west-central sector, and on Kim Il Sung next to Heartbreak Ridge in the east. With the Reds throwing between 4,000 and 6,000 men into the four attacks, it was the heaviest fighting since the big Red Pukhan River attack on the central front two weeks ago.

COMMUNIST EAST GERMANY announced Thursday the release of an "overwhelming majority" of the workers arrested during the 17 June uprising in East Berlin. This move followed the reopening of the Berlin-East-West sector border which the Reds closed 17 June. Both Red moves were believed to have been forced by the demands of approximately 100,000 sitdown strikers in East Berlin and the Soviet occupation zone Wednesday. Russia reportedly moved a division of 200 tanks into East Berlin Wednesday to handle the spreading strike situation. By limiting their protest action to strikes, the workers trapped the Communists in their own propaganda net. In a campaign to win favor after the disorders of last month the East German government declared the right to strike was guaranteed in the constitution and even encouraged workers to air grievances in a series of mass meetings attended by apologetic Communist officials.

FOOD SHORTAGES are affecting millions in Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia and Poland, according to reports reaching diplomatic sources in Vienna. The food crisis and unrest throughout the Russian satellite bloc appeared to be the major reason for a rash of conciliatory gestures by Communist governments. . . . EAST GERMANY and HUNGARY have announced drastic changes in their policy of communication, industrialization and collectivization. They are proclaiming a policy of less police supervision, more free enterprise and more food and goods for the consumer. Hungary ordered a reduction in crop delivery obligations of farmers who have suffered crop damages. In Hungarian cities, milk, butter, fat and meat are reported virtually unobtainable in state-run stores and then only at prices the average worker cannot afford. Refugees reaching Vienna said thousands of families recently were without substantial food for days. . . . ROMANIA has increased food rations from its reserves and ordered an amnesty for prisoners. Unconfirmed reports said hungry workers and peasants have stormed Romanian food depots. . . . CZECHOSLOVAKIA made more concessions to keep workers on the job by revoking a decree making it a criminal offense for workers to remain away from their jobs four times without good reason. The law was issued only a week ago because of wide-spread absenteeism, which followed the suppression of a workers' uprising at Pilsen last month. . . . BULGARIA announced on Sunday a decree along the lines of the law annulled by Czechoslovakia. Imprisonment and heavy fines were provided for workers and apprentices who leave their jobs or training without permission. . . . POLAND and Bulgaria so far have failed to modify policy to meet the wave of unrest and rebellion. Poland officially denied last week end that there had been riots and martial law, as there have been in East Germany.

FROM MOSCOW, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said that the Communist party has "crushed all its enemies" who tried to undermine the unity of the party and the confidence of its members in the "victory of socialism." The newspaper also warned in an editorial that any leader who neglects Communist theory is unworthy of the title and "life sooner or later will rid itself of him." Although no specific culprits were listed, the frequent references to party unity seemed to indicate the editorial was another blast in the recent campaign against party and government officials who place considerations of "nationalism" above a concept of Communism embracing all the diverse nationalities which make up the Soviet Union. This drive has resulted in the replacement, or purge, of numerous government and party officials in various of the republics making up the Soviet Union. . . . FRENCH PREMIER Joseph Laniel won his first major test in the Parliament Wednesday, pushing through the same program of higher taxes and government economies that brought downfall to his predecessor, Premier Rene Mayer. The Assembly approved higher levies on gasoline, beverage alcohol, passports and legal services, and gave the cabinet power to effect economies in government administration subject to legislative veto.

IN INDO-CHINA, Vietnam's chief of state and his government threw their support behind France's offer of greater independence for the three associated states of Indo-China—Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos. This support came as a surprise in view of the disappointment expressed last week by individuals in the governments of the three associated states. When France's offer for more freedom was announced, the first reaction was that it didn't go far enough toward granting their demands. Most Indo-Chinese—including the Cambodians—felt that France's offer at least would lead to solid negotiations. . . . PEIPING RED RADIO said Tuesday that Britain and Red China signed an $84,000,000 import-export trade agreement Monday. The broadcast said Britain will sell China: metal and metal products, machines, electrical appliances, chemical materials, tools, instruments, medicine, surgical equipment, communications and transport equipment and other products. The broadcast said China will sell Britain: vegetable oil and oil seeds, animal products, egg products, mineral products, tea, silk handicraft and other items.

All Quotas Met!

Blood Donations at Stoneman
Total 9,500 in Six Months

(Editor's Note: Information for The Star-Presidian article on the blood donor program in the issue of 26 June was obtained from a letter by Headquarters Sixth Army to commanders of installations and activities of the Sixth Army, dated 23 June 1953. The decrease noted was for the month of May when donations did not equal the monthly total required to meet the entire Sixth Army quota for that month. Although the area-wide collections were below the quota, the three installations with the largest number of donations—Fort Lewis, Camp Stoneman and Fort Ord—all exceeded their quotas for the month.)

Camp Stoneman, Calif.—Camp Stoneman met its blood donation quota for June, 1953, to bring to more than 9,500 pints the blood contributed from this post during the first half of 1953, according to local Blood Bank officials. The quota set for the year is 19,000 pints.

Although newspaper publicity indicated recently that some other posts are unable to meet previously assigned Blood Bank requirements, owing to personnel changes or for other reasons, Camp Stoneman officers say the quota of 19,000 pints for the year is not excessive.

"We can meet that quota or any other reasonable request for badly needed blood," was the response to a query regarding the possibility of a reduction in the amount to be donated.

American Red Cross officials at the Blood Bank were gratified at the Camp Stoneman response. They said the presence here of a large percentage of Korean veterans among the Army and Air Force made solicitation of the vital fluid relatively easy. Such veterans contribute generously, having seen first hand the desperate need for whole blood on the battlefields and in the hospitals overseas, it was added.

Dear Sir:

A recent news story in your paper indicated that Sixth Army wasn't fulfilling its blood donation quota for 1953, and the quotas were about to be revised downward.

We at camp Stoneman are fulfilling our quota and have no desire to have it reduced in any way. In that regard, we would appreciate your publishing the inclosed story.

In Carnoustie, Scotland, this week, defending champion of the British Open, BOBBY LOCKE, led the field for two qualifying rounds with a sparkling 136. The chunky South African set a course record on Monday, when he fired 65, five under par. Neophyte to the course, BEN HOGAN, ran into some nasty Scottish weather and bad putting but easily qualified with 145, nine shots below the medalist. Other Americans to qualify were LLOYD MANGRUM, 1946 U. S. Open Champion; FRANK STRANAHAN, who led the four U. S. qualifiers with 144; and DON FAIRFIELD, of Jacksonville, Illinois.

Back in the United States, a blond belter from Franklin, Michigan, WALTER BURKEMO by name, downed FELICE TORZA, 2 and 1, for the 35th Professional Golfers Association Championship.

In international tennis, VIC SEIXAS of Philadelphia went on to win the coveted world amateur title for the United States at the Wimbledon finals in England last week. Playing flawless tennis, Big Vic ran through KURT NIELSEN of Denmark to take the crown. For the women at Wimbledon, MAUREEN CONNOLLY of San Diego, Calif., fought the brilliant tennis of DORIS HART of Coral Gables, Fla., to take the title. Some measure of compensation for Miss Hart came when she coupled with SHIRLEY FRY, another American miss, against Maureen Connolly and JULIE SAMPSON of Pasadena to win an all-American doubles final. In the mixed doubles, Miss Hart teamed with men's champ Vic Seixas to win in two sets against Shirley Fry and ENRIQUE MOREA of Argentina. The men's doubles title went to two Australian 18-year-olds, LEWIS HOAD and KEN ROSEWALL. They defeated countrymen REX HARTWIG and MERVYN ROSE in four sets.

Late releases last Sunday from the national A.A.U. track and field exercises reported that the U. S. Army 2,900-meter relay team had set an unofficial American record with a 6:58.9 clocking. The old record was 7:01, set in 1949 by the New York Athletic Club. The 1,500-meter anchor leg was run by LT. WARREN DRUETZLER, of Camp Lee, Va. HENRY CRYER of Camp Picket, Va., running the 800-meter third leg, cracked the race open to give Druetzler a lead that couldn't be overcome. HARRY BRIGHT of Fort Jackson, S. C., ran the 400-meter first leg, and Fort Ord's ubiquitous Olympian GEORGE BROWN the 200-meter leg.

In the Pennant Parade this week, Seattle was clinging tenaciously to its Pacific Coast League lead with 61 games won to 40 lost. They edged a gaining Hollywood nine by a slim one-game margin, while Los Angeles trailed third with 55 for 102. In the American League New York, in spite of the upsets, still proved to be tops with 52 winners and 25 losers. Cleveland seconded with 46 for 76, with Chicago trailing them one game. The American League's cellar-dwelling St. Louis Browns served themselves a dubious victory this week in their 6-3 loss to the Indians with a record 20-straight losses at home. The 1906 Red Sox lost 19 straight at home for the previous major league record. In the Nationals, Brooklyn led with 48 and 28, setting a more rewarding record for the league by hitting homers in 21 consecutive games. Pay-dirt came in their game with the Pirates when they hit six home runs to win the double, 5-4, 9-5. In the second game Preacher Roe terminated a drought of his own when he slammed his first homer as a 10-year major league player.

ROYAL VALE, the great thoroughbred invader from the East, was given his last major prep for the $100,000 guaranteed-to-winner Gold Cup at Hollywood Park on Tuesday morning, when he ran the mile in 1:38, jockey JACK WESTROPE up. The Gold Cup race is to be run tomorrow. Most everybody concedes that Royal Vale is the horse to beat, despite his high weight of 128 pounds.

45th Boat Crew
12-3 Win With 21st

In 30th Engineer softball this week the cellar-dwelling 45th Boat Company broke into the win column and out of the cellar by throttling the 21st Engineers 12-3 on timely power hitting and six-hit pitching by Brinkmeyer.

For five innings, 21st's lean and lanky Cobb had been hurling toward a shut-out, methodically setting down opposition batsmen one-two-three with never more than four men facing him in one inning.

But in the sixth frame, Cobb lost his control and his support simultaneously. Chicca led off with a walk, Lapham was safe on a miscue and Hernandez walked to load the sacks. One run scored as Brinkmeyer reached first on an error. Then, with the bases still jammed, Weakworth cracked a grand-slam homerun.

That was all for pitcher Cobb. The 45th went on to tally 10 runs and added two more insurance markers in the seventh.

Weakworth led both teams in the hitting department plus recording a perfect day on the mound. In addition to the round-tripper, Weakworth blasted a double and a single and walked in the seventh.

TUESDAY'S FIRST ROUND WINNER, Sgt. George De Rosa, displays a mighty form in his first drive for the second round of the Sixth Army Golf preliminary competition at the Presidio Golf Club on Wednesday morning. FIRST ROUND WINNERS of the Sixth Army Preliminary Golf tournament turn out to be the Presidio Post Golf Team. They are shown here lined up at the tee-off point just before going out on their second round Wednesday morning. Presidio Linksmen Lead Sixth Army

A field of 52 golfers and teams representing seven installations in the Southern Division of the Sixth Army massed on the Presidio Golf Club's first tee this Tuesday for the 1953 All-Sixth Army preliminaries. Teams and individuals competing in the four-day medal play hailed from California, Nevada, Utah and Arizona.

After the first two days of play the Presidio golf team, sparked by a long-hitting veteran of previous Sixth Army competition, led the field with a total of 792 points, 23 strokes less than their nearest rival, Fort Ord, in Main Division play.

First round medalist was M/Sgt. George De Rosa, 1950 Post champion. De Rosa carded 74 in Tuesday's effort, birdying holes 11, 13 and 16 on the Presidio links back nine.

Second to De Rosa in Tuesday's play was San Luis Obispo's Wisconsin ace Cpl. Sam Randolph with 75.

Third-placers carding 77 for the first day's round were Presidio's Captains Rollin Kapp and Louis Button, and Camp Roberts' Harold Freer.

Major Henry Glaister of the Stanford R.O.T.C. unit carded a fourth-place 78.

Fifth placers were Pvt. Dick Yost, Camp Roberts veteran of Oregon and California links, and Presidio's Captain Duane Bagley. Both finished with 79.

The Presidio's 395 aggregate for the first round led Camp Roberts' second-place 416, Fort Ord's 420, and Camp Stoneman's 434.

San Luis Obispo, Fort MacArthur and Fort Mason followed with 435, 454 and 459, respectively. Team scores were computed from the cards of the five lowest golfers on each team.

Wednesday's results saw Camp Roberts' Dick Yost whittle his strokes to a slim 72 total, with teammate Harold Freer at 73. Their performance seemed to reflect a day's closer acquaintance with the course.

Fort Ord's Major Barney McKellop surged to a second-place tie with Freer for that round, while Presidio's De Rosa clung to his respectable 74, along with Dugway Proving Grounds' Kiyoshi Murata.

Obispo's Sam Randolph stroked a fourth-place 75, with Ord's Merle Fisher and Stoneman's John Welber each at 76.

Other leaders on Wednesday included Presidio's Louis Button and Duane Bagley, Stanford's Henry Glaister, and MacArthur's Jack Berry, all with 78. Presidio's Rollin Kapp carded a seventh-place 79.

Team standings by the end of Wednesday's play found the Presidio still holding its lead at 792 points. Ord (815) had replaced Camp Roberts (818) for second place. San Luis Obispo (851) had replaced Stoneman (853) in fourth.

In Senior Division golf Colonel George Reed of the Los Angeles Recruiting Station led his two rivals in the prelims with 187 for the two days' play.

Colonel Henning G. Carlson, of Camp Stoneman, seconded with 191, while Colonel Wiley H. O'Mo-hundro of Two Rock Ranch was third with 192.

The withdrawal of Presidio's Colonel Charles Ransom, this year's Post champion in the Letterman Hospital representation, from Sixth Army competition caused no small consternation to the Presidio Camp. The withdrawal came seconds before tee-off time due to unforeseen commitments.

On Tuesday morning team alternate Ted Schwabenland stepped into Ransom's vacancy, while another on-the-spot vacancy was filled by Sixth Army's athletic supervisor WOJG Urban Araujo. Thus the team ranks were filled moments before tee-off.

The last round of the Sixth Army preliminaries is scheduled at the Presidio links this afternoon, at which time a winning and runner team and the five individual low medalists in Main Division play will have been determined.

These winners, together with the two low medalists in local Senior Division golf, plus similar medalists and teams produced by the Northern Division prelims at Fort Lewis, Washington, also finishing this afternoon, will compete for the Sixth Army Championship on the Presidio links beginning next Tuesday.

Winners in the Championship will go on for All-Army play, scheduled for Monterey's world-famed Pebble Beach Course later in the summer.

Baseball Stars to Visit
GI's in Overseas Show

Arrangements are being completed for a post-season baseball excursion this year to Germany, the Riviera and North Africa for the purpose of entertaining U. S. servicemen overseas, according to word from Washington.

Manager Jimmie Dykes, Coach Tom Oliver, Trainer Packey Schwartz, Shortstop Eddie Joost, Outfielder Elmer Valo and Pitcher Bob Newson, all of the Philadelphia Athletics, have signified their willingness to make the trip.

FOR HEROIC ACHIEVEMENT during their Korean service, the above group of men, all members of the 505th Military Police battalion, were decorated at an award ceremony held on the Main Parade ground of the Presidio on 14 July. Major General Frank H. Partridge, Sixth Army deputy commanding general (far left), presented the awards to, l. to r.: Sgt. Robert J. Kamers, Bronze Star Medal; Cpl. Harvey D. K. Murphy, Bronze Star Medal; Sgt. George J. Ekparian, Purple Heart, and Lt. Robert C. Orr, Army Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant. In addition Bronze Star Medals were presented to two former lieutenants, Mr. Jerome F. Marks and Mr. John L. Richard, as well as an Army Commendation Ribbon to Cpl. James R. Payne, 11th TC Car Co., and a Certificate of Achievement to Major Harold R. Spangler, G-4 section, Sixth Army. In-Service Training!

Army Medical Centers Plan Postgraduate Short Courses

Announcement was made this week by Sixth Army Headquarters of a series of ten postgraduate short courses to be held during the current fiscal year as an in-service training program to afford medical officers and civilian physicians and surgeons the opportunity to receive the excellent training available in Army installations and activities.

First course will be a Seminar in Urology at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C., 7-9 Sept. Other courses to be given at this center will be as follows: Symposium on Circulation and Hemostasis, 5-9 Oct.; Symposium on Physical and Mental Health Standards, 16-17 April, and Recent Advances in Medicine and Surgery, 19-30 April.

Courses to be offered at Fitzsimmons Army Hospital, Denver, Colo., will be Symposium on Pulmonary Diseases, 21-25 Sept., and Clinical Electrocardiography and Recent Advances in Cardiovascular Diseases, 9-14 Nov.

Forensic Pathology and Pathology of Oral Regions will be the courses at the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, Washington, D. C., to be given 2-6 Nov. and 3-12 March, respectively.

Brooke Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston, Tex., will have a Clinical Laboratory Course, 15-19 March, and a course in Rehabilitation Techniques in Neuromuscular Diseases and Disabilities will be given at Letterman Army Hospital, San Francisco, Calif., 5-10 April.

These courses are designed for personnel in three priorities. Medical officers of the Armed Forces on active duty and full-time Civil Service physicians at Army installations are grouped in Priority I. Medical officers of the Armed Forces not on active duty comprise Priority II, while Priority III includes civilian physicians from other agencies and other civilian physicians or surgeons in communities near the installation conducting the course.

Qualifications levels will be as follows: Level I—Board Certified and/or Board qualified chiefs or assistant chiefs of services at hospitals and/or officers well advanced in the study of their specialty; Level II—officers partially qualified in the specialty, officers with a special interest in the specialty, ward officers and dispensary surgeons responsible for medical treatment in the specialty.

Medical officers in their last year of residency training (third or fourth year residents) may attend the short courses upon approval of application by their hospital commander and the Professional Education and Training Committee, Office of the Surgeon General, Department of the Army. All other residents may attend only those courses conducted at the hospital to which they are assigned for training.

Applications from Army medical officers on active duty and full-time Civil Service physicians at Army installations should be forwarded through channels to the Office of the Surgeon General, Department of the Army, Washington 25, D. C., ATTN.: Personnel Division.

Reserve medical officers desiring to attend should forward their applications through channels to the Army Area Commander under whose jurisdiction the officer is assigned. National Guard applications will be made under their current regulations and forwarded to the National Guard Bureau, Washington, D. C.

Applications from other departments of the Armed Forces will be forwarded through regularly established channels.

Physicians from Federal agencies and other civilian physicians and surgeons should send their applications to the appropriate hospital or installation commander of the installation offering the course.

Space may be reserved for medical officers in Priorities I and II, but no commitment of spaces for those in Priority III will be made until the selections for the other two priority officers have been completed.

Poplin Shirt Rule

All enlisted men who entered the Army on or after July 1, 1953, are authorized an issue of three poplin khaki shirts as part of their regular initial issue according to DA Circular No. 50. These shirts will be worn only with the winter OD uniform or the summer tropical worsted uniform with trousers AND coat. The regular cotton khaki shirt can be worn as an outer garment, but not the new poplin shirt.

Greener Grass!

19 New MOS Opened in Aviation, Atomic Weapons

Washington—The Army has established 19 new Military Occupational Specialties, mostly in army aviation and atomic weapons career fields.

The 19 new MOS are listed in change 4 of SR 615-25-15. In the field of Aircraft Maintenance, the Army has set up an MOS for a master sergeant who will function as a cargo helicopter pilot. The Army has said that most sergeants occupying that particular MOS (1997) will function in the role of co-pilot.

Also in the Aircraft Maintenance category, MOS were established for positions in ground crews. The official names of the spots opened up are Aircraft Repair Foreman (1556), Helicopter Maintenance Supervisor (1995), Airplane Repairman (3009), Aircraft Powertrain and Engine Repairman (3557), Rotor and Propeller Repairman (3558), Aircraft Instrument and Electrical Systems Repairman (3559), Helicopter Repairman (3996), and Aircraft Maintenance Crewman (5550).

The new Atomic weapons MOS are Electronic Assembly Specialist (1036), Nuclear Assembly Specialist (1046), and Electrical Assembly Crewman (4016). These are in the Armament Maintenance career field.

In the field of Electronics Maintenance, four new MOS for fixed stations were added. They were: Transmitter Repairman (1420), Terminal Repairman (1421), Receiver Repairman (1422), and Radio Attendant (1423). Also added to Electronics Maintenance was Medical Equipment Repairman (3229).

The remaining two new MOS were for Soils Technician (3160) and Target Airplane Mechanic (3994). They were in the Engineer and Construction and the Artillery career fields respectively. (AFPS)

New Hospital Car

The latest in Army railroad equipment, a hospital car and kitchen car, were brought to the Presidio by the Transportation Section of Headquarters Sixth Army Wednesday to orient hospital personnel in its use. The cars will be sided on the tracks of the lower post until this weekend. Colonel C. L. Whittle, Transportation Officer, said personnel who might be called upon for duty in such type cars would be familiarized in its operations by trained technicians. Thursday morning the cars were displayed to press and magazine reporters of San Francisco.

Protected by Law

Army and Air Force officers listed as captured or missing in action in the Korean War have had their temporary commissions extended in their present rank until released from active duty. Without this action by President Eisenhower a previous executive order covering these officers would have expired July 1.

Sixth Army Lists EM Courses for Language School

Quotas available for training enlisted men at the Army Language School during the current fiscal year were announced this week by Headquarters Sixth Army. Enlisted personnel in an assigned status who desire to volunteer for language training will forward application through channels.

Courses to be offered between now and next June include Albanian, Arabic, Bulgarian, Chinese Mandarin, Czech, Japanese, Korean, Persian, Rumanian, Russian and Turkish. First classes began 2 July and the final courses for the year are slated to begin 24 June.

Enlisted men are encouraged to apply for training in two or more languages in order of preference. Personnel undergoing basic training in training divisions, replacement training centers or units of the General Reserve will be given an opportunity to apply for this training.

Attendance at the Army Language School is not a prerequisite for assignment as a linguist. Those possessing fluency in one or more foreign languages who desire assignment to linguist duties may apply for such assignment under the provision of AR 615-200.

Medical Consultants

Seventeen top civilian physicians have been selected by DA to serve as senior civilian consultants to the Surgeon General of the Army. These specialists head a field of over 1,600 physicians throughout the country now being considered for appointment as consultants to surgeon generals of various Army areas and for Army hospitals.

28 YEARS AND ONE MONTH to the day of taking his own Army oath, Colonel Reuel E. Hewitt, Sixth Army surgeon, Presidio of San Francisco, on 9 July administered the oath of the Army Nurse corps Reserve to Dorothy Jean Williams. The new Lt. Williams will report to the Medical Field Service school, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, for women's company officer class training which begins on 5 August. Upon graduation she will be assigned to an Army specialized treatment center. A graduate of Mary Fletcher hospital school of nursing, Burlington, Vermont, class of 1947, Lt. Williams has been working as a medical staff nurse at Fort Miley Veterans' hospital, San Francisco, for the past three years. She is a member of the California State Nurses association. Weekly World News AT A GLANCE

ON THE KOREAN FIGHTING FRONT, 45,000 Allied troops, supported by fighter-bombers, tanks and massed artillery, counterattacked along the Korean central front bulge Thursday in the largest Allied attack in two years. First reports were that one mile had been gained in the push to retake ground lost to Reds early this week when nearly 100,000 Communist troops smashed their way forward on the central and western fronts to penetrate the allied defense line for three miles on a 20-mile sector. The western end of the bulge was hinged on Sniper Ridge just northeast of Kumhwa. The eastern end of the bulge is some 20 miles away along the Pukhan, but dispatches told of attack against the U. S. 45th Division in the Heartbreak Ridge sector, 40 miles east of Sniper. . . . AT PANMUNJOM, U. N. Command and Communist negotiators met less than a half hour Thursday and recessed until Saturday at 1400. There was no word immediately on the reason for the one-day recess and the unusual starting time of the next session. Meetings have been held daily since the current series of talks began, and have always begun at 1100. The negotiations are still secret and no announcement could be expected. General Mark Clark arrived in Korea Thursday from Tokyo and accused the Communists of violating secrecy of the armistice negotiation. He said that the Communist radio report Wednesday of an American "walk-out" from the talks had "violated the executive nature of the truce sessions." In spite of the secrecy surrounding the conference, it has been apparent since the talks resumed 10 July that the Red delegates have been pressing for ironclad U. S. guarantees that Rhee would abide by a truce.

IN NORTH BURMA, representatives of 12,000 Chinese Nationalist guerrillas defied a United Nations resolution calling for their withdrawal to ease tension so close to Red China. Burmese government spokesman in Rangoon Sunday acknowledged Chinese Communist troops from Yunnan have filtered into North Burma, ostensibly to "protect" Burmese from the Nationalist guerrillas. . . . CALCUTTA's local government Thursday banned gathering of more than five persons and prohibited the carrying of weapons of any kind as a result of riots Wednesday when police opened fire on mobs demonstrating against increased streetcar fares of less than a quarter of a cent.

FOREIGN MINISTERS OF FRANCE, GREAT BRITAIN AND UNITED STATES concluded a five-day meeting this week in Washington discussing global issues. At the end of the meeting they announced they will seek a conference with Russia this autumn in an effort to reach an accord on German and Austrian problems. The Western diplomats proposed that the Big Four Foreign Ministers arrange nation-wide elections in divided Germany, set up a single government there and conclude an Austrian peace settlement. Formal invitations for the meeting were presented Wednesday to the Russian embassies in Washington, London and Paris. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, acting British Foreign Secretary Lord Salisbury and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault also announced a wide measure of agreement on Far Eastern affairs, including a pledge to strike back if the Communists renew their aggression in Korea after an armistice, and an implied threat to act if the Soviets use a Korean truce to start fresh aggression elsewhere in Asia.

WEST BERLINERS in a small border sector twice this week sold fresh fruit, potatoes and milk to thousands of hungry Communist zone residents at special cut-rate prices. East Berliners, whose Communist masters denied them free food offered by President Eisenhower, rushed across the border in such numbers that the special mobile stores sold out in the first hours and fresh supplies had to be rushed to them. The sale in the American sector on the edge of the East-West border was designed to show the United States at least one way food could be gotten to East Germany. Communist police did not interfere, apparently out of fear of touching off another riot like that of 17 June.

THE SOVIET UNION dramatically fired Lavrenti P. Beria, long head of the vast network of secret police and the most dreaded man in the Communist empire, as deputy premier in Moscow. He was removed from the Communist Party, branded a traitor to the Soviet Union and handed over to the Soviet Supreme Court for trial as a traitor. Beria, head of the Soviet blood purge police under Stalin, was believed to have been made the chief scapegoat of all the ills, economic and political, afflicting the USSR itself and its satellite nations. Premier Georgi M. Malenkov in person formally laid the treason charges against Beria before the Soviets. Throughout the Soviet Union, Red propagandists attacked Beria through radio, newspapers and mass indignation meetings, denouncing him as an "international imperialist agent and an enemy of the Communist Party and Soviet people," and charging that he tried "to undermine the Soviet state in the interest of foreign capital."

IN PARIS, seven persons were killed and 130 others wounded during a clash between police and a group of about 2,000 North Africans participating in a Bastille Day workers' parade, sponsored by the Communists. The fighting occurred as an unexpected cloud-burst drenched the marchers and spectators near the end of the demonstration and the North African group scattered for shelter, bursting through police lines.

THE SUEZ CANAL ZONE city of Ismailia was surrounded by British troops and tanks when the British threw up a roadblock after the Egyptians ignored a warning to return a British Air Force enlisted man reportedly kidnapped by the Egyptians. The Cairo press denied officials knew anything about the missing airman, who disappeared in Ismailian native quarters, and warned that Egyptians were ready to sacrifice their lives to oust the British from the Canal Zone. The British prepared air and sea evacuations of civilians in case of violence. . . . LEBANON's pro-western nationalists and moderate independents made the strongest showing in the first round of the country's parliamentary elections. Balloting for the forty-four seat one-house legislature was in Beirut and Mount Lebanon Sunday. The remaining 23 deputies will be picked in other sections on the next two Sundays. Women voted for the first time and men were fined the equivalent of $15 if they failed to ballot.

Gears in Motion On Defense Dept. Reorganization

Washington—The functions of three Defense Department organizations which were disestablished by President Eisenhower's reorganization plan have been transferred to four Special Assistants to the Defense Secretary.

The organizations which were eliminated were the Munitions Board, the Research and Development Board and the Defense Supply Management Agency. Transfer action was taken by Acting Defense Secretary Roger M. Kyes "pending the appointment of officials to new positions." The new positions will include six new Assistant Defense Secretaries.

Named as Special Assistants were Willard F. Rockwell, Walter G. Whitman, Frank R. Creedon and Joseph W. Fowler.

Mr. Rockwell took over the functions formerly performed by the Munitions Board and its chairman; Mr. Whitman, former Chairman of the Research and Development Board, was given the functions he previously had handled, as well as those of the board proper; Mr. Creedon, former Director of Installations, was handed the functions formerly performed by that office; and Mr. Fowler, former Director of the Defense Supply Management Agency, took on the functions of that office. (AFPS)

Budget Cuts to Release Many Reserve Officers

Washington—Several thousand Reserve officers will be released from active duty in the next 12 months as a result of budget cuts.

The exact number who will be affected has not been calculated but it will involve officers of the Army, Navy and Air Force. The Navy said it would make its reductions in supporting activities ashore but would not cut manning levels in the active fleets.

The AF has already announced plans to release 4,500 officers and may increase that number. The Army simply stated that it expects to release a substantial number of Reserve officers but did not elaborate. (AFPS)

Cost Consciousness Essay

(Editor's Note: The following is the winning entry in the Presidio's latest essay contest on the subject "What Cost Consciousness Means to Me," written by Pvt. William Bruce Lansbury, Star Presidian Sports Editor.)

Much emphasis has been laid lately upon cost consciousness—its application in the Armed Services and in civilian jobs connected with this country's defense.

What are the advantages of cost consciousness to the country and its citizens? How does it apply in government and the life of the individual?

Cost consciousness is by definition an awareness of monetary value. In its broader sense it is thriftiness—the awareness of both the intrinsic and nominal value of an object and our management of it in their light.

Thrift is a prerequisite to sound government, and a political body that countenances waste must ultimately govern a weak country. It destroys its own potential in war and peace. The responsibility of conservation belongs to the citizens of the country and to their representatives in government. Therefore cost consciousness becomes the duty of all who wish to defend their country.

Cost consciousness is no theoretical bogey, but a workable system of thrift. To be practicable, this awareness of worth is applied to the smallest and the largest—from the federal frank on government envelopes to a billion-dollar machine of war. Without this broad application it makes no sense.

For people who work in offices, as I do, it is sometimes hard to discern the ultimate effects of cost consciousness in term of dollars and cents.

In Korea, the slow leak of strategic materials due to poor conservation becomes immediately apparent in terms of lives and materiel. In an office, where there is not the same dramatic urgency to that ratio between supplies and survival, the relation still remains but in a lesser degree.

Thus, where in the office our weapons against waste may be nothing more decisive than the saving on carbon paper, pencils, paper, and typewriter ribbons, our responsibility to conservation is no less important. Our struggle to save office materials is essentially as vital to the plan of no-waste as the same struggle on the battle fronts, where it is fought in terms of clothing, first-aid, guns and ammunition.

At present I am working in the office of The Star-Presidian, a Service weekly of considerable merit. Our paper has been judged good on several grounds—in quality of style, subject-matter and make-up. But more important to our present purpose, it has had to pass the tests of a stringent economy.

Ours is a hard-fought, somewhat quixotic, perennial joust against the evils of waste—waged in terms of such things as the utilization of scraps of paper, revitalized glue pots, and redeemed paper clips.

And in our office, as in others, our achievements in conservation are not always immediately apparent.

But when the fiscal year closes, and we learn that after months of watching waste and being conscious of cost we have undercut the paper's annual allowance by $700, the achievement becomes happily evident in terms of dollars and cents and so, too, does the meaning of cost consciousness.

DOD's 'Who's Who' Officers Mess Course Meet at Quantico For Informal Talks

Washington—"Defense Progress—A Team Responsibility" will be the main topic when 107 civilian and military leaders, composing a theoretical "Who's Who" in the Defense Department, gather at the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., for a three-day meeting, July 23-26.

The meeting was called by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson. It will serve to allow those in high positions of responsibility to discuss common problems in an informal atmosphere.

It is not intended that formal programs or major decisions will be made at this conference, Mr. Wilson says.

Participants will include the Under-Secretaries and Assistant Secretaries of Defense, Army, Navy and Air Force, both the incoming and retiring Joint Chiefs of Staff, and other top-ranking civilian and military personnel in the Defense establishment.

The leaders will be housed in BOQs at Quantico. They will work, eat, engage in sports, and live together during the three-day period. (AFPS)

Officers Mess Course Starts at Fort Lee Early Next Month

Qualified officers will be trained in the administration and operation of unit and consolidated messes at the Mess Administration Course to be conducted as a pilot course at the Quartermaster School, Fort Lee, Virginia, Headquarters Sixth Army announces. Courses conducted at the Army Area Food Service schools will not be affected.

Both officers and warrant officers must have a Food Handler's Certificate as a prerequisite for the course. Officers must be below the grade of major as a commissioned officer of the Regular Army or as an active member of a reserve component whose assignment, actual or anticipated, is to food service advisory duties. Warrant officers must have actual or anticipated assignment to food service advisory duties.

Six four-week courses have been scheduled for the current fiscal year, the first beginning 12 August. Scope of the course will include food program, nutrition and menu planning, applied cookery and baking, meat cutting, field messing, mess management and garrison mess operations.

Third Essay Winner!

"Star Presidian" Sports Editor Cost Consciousness Winner

By Gloria Hetherington
Star-Presidian Feature Editor

Pvt. William Bruce Lansbury, sports editor of the "Star Presidian," has been chosen winner in the third "Cost Consciousness" award period from 3 through 13 July. He will be awarded the first prize of $5.00.

Two more contests of 10 days each will follow. Previous winners include Cpl. Allan W. Van Soest, 30th Engineers, and Pfc. Lynn P. Brooks, 740th AAA Gun battalion. An essay on "What Cost Consciousness Means to Me" is all that is necessary to enter. Both a Presidio and Sixth Army area contest will follow.

Pvt. Lansbury joined the staff of the "Star Presidian" in April. Previous to coming to the Presidio, he took his basic training at Fort Ord.

To a young man born in London, raised on rugby and cricket, the advent of baseball, football and the other myriad of American sports probably posed some problems.

But to be presented with two perfectly blank pages, 11 by 16 inches in size, each needing to be filled with 160 inches of snappy sports copy, and told to "go to it," THAT was a challenge!

With no previous experience in sports writing, let alone familiarization with the hundreds of words that sports writers use to emphasize their special kind of talk, such a project could take months.

Yet within three weeks' time, Pvt. Lansbury was able to turn pages six and seven of the "Star Presidian" into the most excellent type of copy, surpassing anything that had previously been done with them.

Pvt. Lansbury came with his family to America in 1940, and he is now in the process of receiving his citizenship papers. He and his twin brother, Edgar, attended several private schools on scholarships, and eventually came to Los Angeles, where their sister, Angela Lansbury, has become a motion picture star, appearing in such films as "Gaslight," "The Portrait of Dorian Grey," and "The Red Danube."

For the past five years, Pvt. Lansbury has attended UCLA, majoring in English. He has but four credits to go to receive his degree. While in college he was secretary to a local minister.

His mother is actress Moyna MacGill, presently in a stage production of the hit, "The Moon Is Blue," which is being given at the Windham Playhouse, Windham, New Hampshire. Edgar is also with the company and is in charge of the settings. He was recently discharged from the Army, after having served in Korea and in this country. Another sister, Isolde, still resides in London, where she is the wife of a newspaperman.

Pvt. Lansbury and his twin have appeared both in television and in the movies, in the former on the Red Skelton show. He and his wife are now presently residing in San Francisco.

Pvt. Lansbury's prize-winning essay appears on page two.

Gen. Taylor Dedicates New Eighth Army HQ

General Maxwell D. Taylor formally opened the new headquarters of his Eighth Army last week with the hope that the people of Korea would remember the 75,000 men—Korean and Allied—who had fought and died in Korea. He unveiled a plaque dedicating the new headquarters area in Yongsan, 33 miles northwest of Pusan. The plaque "symbolizes the unity between the United States and the Republic of Korea," he said.

Continue TAG Courses In Manpower Controls For Fiscal Year

Senior officers and comparable grade civilians of the Army (GS-9 through GS-14) will continue to be trained in the principles and techniques of manpower controls and related fields of manpower management engineering at The Adjutant General's School, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

Prerequisites for the course include actual or anticipated assignment as Manpower Control Officer; broad Army experience, primarily in the field of operations or logistics, including a familiarity with staff and training problems, and two years of college level training, or comparable experience, preferably in the fields of engineering or personnel or business administration.

Five classes have been scheduled for six weeks each during the current fiscal year. Application for the course will be submitted to Sixth Army Headquarters, ATTN: AMGCT-2, so as to arrive not later than 45 days prior to the class reporting dates.

40-hr. Driver Course For Army Personnel Sent to All Areas

Washington—In a campaign to educate Army personnel on highway safety, the Chief of Transportation, with the cooperation of the Office, Chief of Army Field Forces, has sent a packaged 40-hour driver education course to all Army areas.

The program is an adaptation to military needs of the course conducted by the American Automobile Association during the past year in all Army areas. Its initiation is optional with the various Army commanders.

However, Army safety officials in the Pentagon have received comments indicating enthusiastic reception of the AAA's Driver Education Instructor Course, recently completed.

Because of budget problems the AAA could not continue the courses, hence the Chief of Transportation prepared this new program.

The 40-hour course, as approved by OCAFF, consists of five parts, including the introduction, evaluation of the driver student, education of the driver, testing the driver and the role of the motor transport supervisor.

MP Trainees Take Lessons in Safe Driving Techniques

In conjunction with the driver training sessions of the Military Police Training Center at Fort Baker, a safety demonstration by Yellow Cab of Pacific Coast was given members of Training Company "C", 505th MP battalion, on 11 July.

The lesson was divided into a cab demonstration and a lecture on the merits of safe driving. The former was given by Rex A. Mofsey, safety engineering department, and the latter by John Brooke, safety engineer, both of San Francisco Cab Co.

Those demonstrations have been staged for military personnel at Fort Ord, Hunters Point, Hamilton Air Force Base, and the Presidio as well as for civilian schools, police departments and the state highway patrol.

Trainees drove a cab with a detonator attached to the front bumper, and, at a certain speed, the detonator, which was wired to the speedometer, fired a blank cartridge containing yellow chalk which marked the pavement. The shot was the signal for the driver to apply the brake and at contact a second chalk marker hit the pavement. Distance between the two chalk marks indicated the reaction time of the driver.

Elaborating on the dangers of speed driving, Mr. Brooke told the students that as an experiment, he was given permission to drive the Oakland Bay bridge as fast as he could possibly drive and still be reasonably safe. He attained speeds of up to 85 MPH, with his average speed at 55 MPH. The second time across, he went along with the traffic. Difference in the two timed tests was only 55 seconds!

He listed the average driving speeds in city traffic as follows: San Francisco, 28 to 30 MPH; Oakland, 27 to 33 MPH, and Los Angeles, 38 to 42 MPH. These speeds were clocked by traffic meters strung cross city streets at various locations.

Lt. Colonel Roger L. Bilewicz, Post safety director, was in charge of arrangements for the program. An assistant was Frank Harrington, Post safety inspector.

For Better Service

Civilian News Notes

President Eisenhower last week signed legislation which revised the "use or lose" feature of the Annual and Sick Leave Act of 1951. Although official instructions and regulations concerning the new law will not be received locally for some time, the main provisions include the following:

Federal employees will be permitted to accumulate annual leave and to build up reserve balances of unused annual leave which can be carried over from one year to the next with the carryover limited to 30 days. Annual leave forfeited as of 30 June 1953 will be restored.

Employees who on January 1, 1953, carried over to this year more than 30 days, will be able to carry over up to those amounts to 1954 and to future years. In no case, however, will it be possible to carry over to a future year more than they carried over to this calendar year. The law also provides that agencies such as the Department of the Army require employees to take leave in excess of the 30 day maximum accumulation, within a reasonable length of time. The DA policy outlining how this reduction will be accomplished will be forthcoming. Employees will be given full information in this regard as soon as possible.

A further limitation with regard to accumulations of annual leave is found in that portion of the law which restricts the payment of terminal leave. No employee can be paid terminal leave in excess of the amounts carried over to this year. For example, an employee carried over 60 days to this year; he earns 13 days additional, a total of 73, and he retires on 30 June. He would have to use or lose the 13 days he has earned this year. He can be paid terminal leave (cash) only for 60 days. In situations of this kind supervisors will be encouraged to approve requests for leave on the part of employees about to retire or resign to use up the excess accumulation of leave.

The new law will also change the beginning and end of the leave year from late in December to early in January, thus permitting the use of accumulated annual leave over the Christmas and New Year holidays. The exact dates are determined, as in the past, by pay periods. Thus the date used in computing maximum allowable leave accumulations will be moved from the end of the last complete bi-weekly pay period in the calendar year (for example December 21) to the beginning of the first complete bi-weekly pay period in the calendar year (for example January 6).

Lump-sum payments for unused annual leave which are to be paid employees upon separation, or if desired upon entrance into the Armed Forces, will not exceed 30 days, or the accumulated leave balance as of the beginning of the 1953 leave year. This limitation is effective after 31 August, 1953.

The new law includes a number of changes in the administration of leave balances and refunds where employees are rehired in the federal service following separation. These changes are quite technical and employees who contemplate reemployment in another federal agency after leaving the Presidio should inquire into these restrictions at or prior to the time they are separated.

Alaskan Notes

By Lt. James A. Mulkern

June 28, Sunday—Up at 3 a.m. so that I could be in the air by 3:30, official sunrise being about 3 a.m. I was to haul gas to the Bay of Islands camp. It took three trips to deliver the 678 lbs. of gasoline. On returning to King Salmon, it was 7:30 and time to start my day's work.

So with M/Sgt. Creakman as passenger, we started a round of the camps to collect data for the monthly reports. First to Pilot Point. A few moose took only casual interest in our arrival. Unfortunately, they weren't expecting us that early at camp and Sgt. Creakman had to walk most of the two miles from the Bay. That delayed us so that it was nearly 1½ hours before we were on our way again.

The tide was out again at Wide Bay. Since I had no business ashore, Sfc. Schmeiding—whose feet were already wet—carried Sgt. Creakman ashore. While he was busy, I putted around the Bay waiting for the tide to come in, so that I could move in closer. After considerable time and even more maneuvering of the plane, I got to within 10 feet of the shore line. About then Sgt. Creakman arrived and taking his nerve in hand took several long steps to get out to the float of the plane. All would have gone well but just as he stepped into the plane he slipped and fell into the water.

With one thoroughly drenched sergeant, we flew up the coast to Kukak Bay. Since it took us over an hour, he was almost dry upon arrival. After picking up the data for the report, we departed for the Bay of Islands.

We had to climb almost vertically to clear the 7,600-foot Mt. Dennison. After circling for 10 minutes, riding thermals to gain altitude and being thoroughly shaken up by the strong turbulence, we reached 9,500 feet. We could look almost straight down on the 6,000-foot pass which we decided to cross.

Creakman was a little green by this time. Five minutes later we were still not across the pass and had dropped 2,000 feet. I was starting to feel a little green myself. Another five minutes and we were just barely across the far side of the pass and our altitude was not more than 6,500 feet. Both of us were sprouting hairs like popping corn.

From there on it was all strictly downhill to the Bay of Islands. There we landed and picked up the report, then back to King Salmon. My last flight of the day was to take a passenger and 355 pounds of cargo to Pilot Point. I picked up another passenger for the return trip.

Slate Three Classes For Exchange Officers

Three classes of the Exchange Officers' Course have been scheduled during the fiscal year by the Headquarters Army and Air Force Exchange Service. These classes will be on a five-week basis, consisting of a four-week program at the headquarters followed by a one-week program at the appropriate regional office.

Eligible to attend are recently appointed exchange officers after three months exchange experience, former exchange officers ordered to active duty, exchange officers returning from overseas service for service in the continental United States, and any other domestic exchange officer who has not attended the orientation training program during the past fiscal year.

Week-Long Camp!

14 Presidio Youths Attend National Boy Scout Jamboree

Fourteen Boy Scouts and Explorers of the Presidio left Tuesday night by chartered bus to attend the third National Boy Scout Jamboree which opened this morning at the Irvine Ranch near Corona Del Mar, Calif., where 50,000 Boy Scouts from all sections of the country will camp for a week.

With other Scouts from the San Francisco Council, the Presidio boys were scheduled to arrive in Hollywood Wednesday morning where they were to have breakfast and then tour one of the major film studios before continuing their trip. Thursday was to be devoted to setting up camp before the actual start of the Jamboree.

Cpl. William Gunsalus, Presidio Scoutmaster, is also the Scoutmaster of the Jamboree Troop with whom the post Scouts are making the trip. Among the Presidio members who will be leaders are Charles Parshall, who will be senior patrol leader of the troop, while Robert Shuey is one of the patrol leaders and Richard Shuey a crew leader.

Other Presidio youths attending are Carl Ferraris, Stuart Mitchell, Frank Bowen, Earl Fillinger, Richard Bauchspies, Henry Thomas, William Perkins, Duncan Somerville, Bert Carner, William Todd and Clark Christine. When they arrive at Camp Irvine they will be joined by Lionel Ingram who is transferring to the Presidio troop from New York.

The Jamboree will climax extensive planning and activity by the local Scouts and Explorers. Included in the activities was pre-Jamboree training camp last month in Golden Gate Park. During this camp the boys prepared some of the same type of meals they will cook over charcoal fires during the Jamboree.

One of the highlights of the Jamboree will be the trading and swapping of patches and other souvenirs among the boys from different sections of the country. With this purpose in mind, the Presidio Scouts have been making cable car neckerchief slides to use in their bargaining.

It will take four days for the 100 special trains and hundreds of buses to unload the 50,000 Scouts and their gear arriving for the Jamboree. When the last Scout has set up his tent, there will be about 32,500 tents pitched throughout the 3,000-acre campsite.

The Jamboree City will have its own post office, fire department, health department and telephone exchange. Its population will exceed more than half the counties in the United States.

Several thousand pieces of U. S. Army equipment will be used during the week-long encampment in keeping with the Army's interest in youth activities. Consisting mainly of tentage, vehicles, bedding, medical supplies and odds and ends necessary for an outdoor extravaganza of this sort, the equipment is loaned to the Boy Scouts at no cost to the government.

Three Army units will be present to lend the Scouts a helping hand. These include approximately 60 men from Fort MacArthur who will compose a Supply and Maintenance Detachment, and two reserve units to be used to staff the Jamboree Medical Clearing station.

Army Engineers Develop New All-Weather Cable

Ft. Belvoir, Va. — Engineer Research and Development Laboratories here announce they have developed an electric power cable that will unroll freely at temperatures as low as 65 degrees below zero.

Standard commercial cable tends to break and snap in extreme cold. The new military cable also operates successfully under tropic and temperate conditions.

A Hint to the Wise

During the forthcoming dry season when brush and grass fires present a dangerous hazard, PLAY SAFE! Heed the warning of Fire Chief Geller, Presidio Fire Department.

"Remember that most fires are caused by carelessly disposed cigarettes," said the Chief. "Exercise care in the disposal of your smoking material. Don't toss smoldering butts from cars. Make sure they're out. The average discarded cigarette is an inch long and will burn a full minute. In that time it can cause a great deal of destruction. Also make sure your match is out; break it in two before throwing it away."

"Be on the lookout for fires caused by other people's carelessness. When you discover a fire report it without delay. Phone 117."

"Campers should never leave a fire unattended, even for a brief time. Make sure your fire is dead before leaving it; if necessary cover it with loose earth."

In conclusion the Fire Chief reminds everyone that it is much easier to prevent a fire than it is to put one out.

Check Records

All military pay records of Presidio enlisted personnel are being checked with individual service records by the Post Finance Office in cooperation with Personnel Officers. This check is being made to make certain the two records are in agreement and to avoid any errors or omissions, states Lt. Col. Benjamin H. Johnston, Finance Officer. Completion of the check is expected prior to 31 July pay day.

Recently Assigned

Major Phillip A. Sauer, the new executive officer of the 46th Ordnance group, served with them at Camp Irwin for 14 months as supply management officer.

A veteran of 26 years with the Army, Major Sauer served in the China-Burma-India theatre in World War II as commanding officer of the 115th Ordnance MM company, which gave support to the Northern Combat Area command.

Captain Frank W. Smith, assistant maintenance officer for the 46th Ordnance, held the same position with the group at Camp Irwin for six months.

Prior to that he spent a total of seven years in Germany, during and following World War II. He was in Berlin at the time of the Berlin Blockade as Depot commanding officer and shop officer, Berlin Post Ordnance.

From 1939 to 1941, Capt. Smith, who has been in the Army for the past 14 years, was with the coast artillery in Panama.

Lt. Clemons L. Horst Jr., is with the 46th Ordnance group as a company commander, after spending six months with the group at Camp Irwin as executive officer of Headquarters company.

Lt. Horst entered the Army in February 1951, and attended OCS at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland, where he obtained his commission.

Lt. C. L. Horst Jr.

Captain Hugh R. Watson has a six-year record of service with the 46th Ordnance group of which he is now operations officer.

He was one of the original members of the outfit when it was formed and stayed with it until its de-activation overseas. Upon its reactivation, which he helped organize, he returned as its only original member, and spent a year at Camp Irwin as its executive officer prior to being transferred to the Presidio with the group.

Capt. Watson served with the 46th on Okinawa and in Japan from October 1948 to July 1950, and prior to that was with the 87th Infantry division in Europe from October 1943 to November 1945.

In the Army for the past 12 years, Capt. Watson wears the Bronze Star Medal, the Purple Heart, the Combat Infantry badge and the Presidential Unit citation.

New Commander for Washington Milt. Dist.

Colonel Norman C. Caum has assumed command of the Washington Military District with headquarters at Seattle, Wash., succeeding Colonel William P. Hayes, who is retiring. Colonel Caum was assigned to the district last December as Senior Army Instructor and has been Acting Chief since April.

Prior to his assignment to the Washington Military District, Colonel Caum was stationed in the Far East Command as Special Services Officer for the United Nations Command and assisted in forming the Japanese National Security Forces. Among his many other assignments during his 35 years of service was that of Regimental Commander of the 242 Infantry Regiment, 42nd Division, in Europe during World War II.

Talent Galore!

Overflow Crowd Celebrates Fourth Year for Service Club

The Presidio Service club was four years old Sunday, 12 June.

To celebrate the occasion an over-flow crowd of some 500 guests were present for the festivities, while honored civilians and officials from Post and Army Special Services were on hand to usher in the club's fifth year of service to the troops.

Entertainment for the evening was furnished by a crack musical combo of instrumentalists from the Sixth Army Band and an eleven-act musical review.

Starting the evening, Lt. Colonel Eugene D. Bogard, Post Special Services Officer, introduced Major Leslie C. Wood, Acting Special Services Officer for Sixth Army, who gave a short review of the high quality of service attained by the Club in its four years of existence.

Colonel Bogard then presented awards to civilians who had been of outstanding help to the Club's activities in the past year. He was assisted by Miss Elizabeth de la Torre, program directress for the club.

Those civilians honored were Mrs. Hilda Braden, director of "Braden's Follies," a musical review which visits the club frequently; Mrs. Ruby Colton, Chairman of the Jewish Welfare Board committee, which brings the club the popular "Night in Reno" parties every month, and Mrs. Nita Goggin, the person responsible for the decorations of the club. Mrs. Goggin was not present to accept the award.

Others honored were Miss Elizabeth Holloway, director of the Holloway players, who have presented such popular plays as "Dear Frances" and "Kiss and Tell"; Mrs. Frances Irwin, chairman of the 15th Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, whose group is responsible for the monthly cake party at the Service Club, at which time the VFW ladies turn out 50-odd cakes of all varieties and sizes; Miss Vera Newcum, director of the San Francisco U.S.O., and her assistant, Miss Margaret Thomson, who sponsor parties with special decorations and bring hostesses out for the Friday night dances. Miss Newcum was not present to accept her award.

Miss Bessie Osborn, Miss Susan Sueda and Mrs. Magnil Schneider were honored for their part in obtaining girls for the weekly post dances. They not only chaperoned their groups, but were instrumental in obtaining new hostesses and in helping to keep records of their attendance.

Colonel Bogard closed the presentation with a word of thanks to these ladies on behalf of the Presidio Service Club.

Following the presentations guests were entertained by "Braden's Follies," a musical review of eleven short acts.

Particularly good were the High Toners, a Negro quartet of talent who sang popular and religious works. High point for them was the Biblical "Shadrack, Michah and Abednego."

Among the high points of the evening was "Music Confusion," by Bill Mundy and Murray Korda. The confusion commences when Sixth Army Bandman Mundy, an accomplished pianist, takes over the fiddle chores of Korda, while Murray, accustomed to the violin, accompanies him on the keys.

After the entertainment the evening came to an official climax with the cutting of the anniversary cake, a mammoth pastry requiring six men to carry it to the stage.

On hand to take part in the cutting were Colonel Bogard and veteran representatives from the four armed services—Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines.

Latest Presidio Phone Book Has Commercial Look

New Presidio telephone directories are now in the process of being delivered both on the post and at sub-posts.

Patterned after a regular city directory for easier use and quick availability of numbers, the new book is entirely alphabetical with no attempt made to separate the numbers as to posts.

The official or business section is listed on the yellow pages, while personnel are listed in the white section. The single blue page lists the key telephone numbers for every installation in the entire Sixth Army area.

There is considerable cross-referencing in the official section. As an example, the Commissary store is listed as "Commissary," "Post Commissary," under "Post Quartermaster," and under "Quartermaster, Presidio."

Cinema Previews

"MAIN STREET TO BROADWAY," F*, follows the struggle of a young playwright for success, and is used to bring on to the screen many of the top names of the Broadway stage today.

"PLUNDER OF THE SUN," F*, concerns a young man who, hard pressed to pay his hotel bill in Havana, agrees to smuggle a small package into Mexico. He thereby becomes involved in a plot to locate and steal a long-buried treasure.

"MIGHTY JOE YOUNG," F*, is a freakish yarn about a giant ape. This bad ape scares people and makes life miserable all around. Sort of a "King Kong" thing.

"THE SWORD AND THE ROSE," F*, is a technicolor lovely that takes place in the 16th century, when Henry VIII was in power. His younger sister, Mary Tudor, falls in love with a commoner, and they have many problems in their attempts to be together.

"ARROWHEAD," F*, rehashes that old plot about the Indian who struggled so hard in the early days to keep his hunting grounds from the white man. In this one the Army cavalry is putting down an Apache uprising, and it calls for much wit and muscle work.

"AFFAIRS OF DOBIE GILLIS," F*, is just a slaphappy comedy about a college boy who loves all his fellow men — and women, and has a fatal attraction for bad luck!

Fifth for Herriage!

Red Raiders Clobber Marines; Drop Two to Camp Stoneman

The Presidio Red Raider baseball team continued their season this week with an 8-6 victory over the San Francisco Marines and two losses to the Camp Stoneman nine, away from home.

Against the Marines, Big Bill Herriage hurled to his fifth straight mound victory for the Raiders, closing the leatherneck bats down to five hits, fanning 10 of the opposition.

The game saw the Raiders losing 5-3 up through the seventh bracket of play, whereupon the big bats broke through with four markers to cinch the victory. A subsequent run in the eighth capped the scoring.

Heavy stickers for the Raiders were Fucile, three for three, and Williamson, Klopp and Hamaker, all two for three.

The game brought Williamson's batting tally to a tie with belting Gene Jacobs for the top spot in team batting. Both boys have a .360 percentage on the wood.

Bag-grabbing Snuffy Taylor showed fans how fast he could run in the seventh frame when he stole home for the winning run of the game.

Opposition hurler Stewart pitched a seven-hitter and fanned 10 of the Raiders.

Particularly gratifying to Herriage was the fact that Red Sox scout Charlie Walgreen was on hand to watch him pitch the winner. Bill is currently the property of Walgreen's bosses, and it's nice to let the front office hear about the good ones.

In the games against Stoneman Herriage and Klopp evinced their usual mastery at bat—but not quite enough for the opposition.

The first game came last Saturday morning, and the boys had to lie around all day and wait for an eight o'clock night-cap, which may have set the Raiders up for the loss. The game scores read 8-6 for the first, 5-3 for the second.

Next home action for the Red Raiders comes on Saturday and Sunday when they meet the San Luis Obispo nine on the Presidio diamond for a two-game series.

Marine Hurls 13 Wins

Jack Thomas of the Quantico Marines posted his 13th win in 14 starts on the mound with a recent 7-2 victory over Ft. Eustis. He has gone the route eleven times and now holds 121 strikeouts in 130 innings.

Engineer HQ Nine Grabs League Top In 99th Victory

By Cpl. Allan Van Soest

Two undefeated teams clashed on the 30th Engineer softball diamond last week to determine who was to lead the pack into the season's second round.

The strong Headquarters team trounced the 99th Engineers, 9-3, to continue the loop play with an unsullied record.

The afternoon saw the 99th jump to an early three-run lead in the first stanza by singles of Stoller, Francek and Reza, team heavystickers.

But that was all. Headquarters' hurler Harris settled down to his usual competency and blanked the opposition for the rest of the game.

Heavy bats for the HQ nine included Van Soest's double and Jerry Wilson's towering triple in the second bracket.

Wilson also distinguished himself with some agile fielding. In the fifth frame, a sizzling right field drive by Francek with two men on seemed about to threaten the HQ's lead, but for Wilson's heroic dash for the fly and his over-the-shoulder one-handed stab for the last out of the inning.

Harris, winning moundsman, gave up three runs, five hits and fanned five. Opposing hurler Garbana surrendered nine runs, 13 hits, and fanned three.

For another game this week, the Surveyors defeated the 21st Engineers 13-7.

The winners went to victory behind the steady, eight-hit hurling of Molina, while Surveyor big-bats led the game in the first three innings with a hefty 13-run margin. The 21st was unable to rally against the tight pitching and fielding of the opposition.

The Druids were great admirers of holly. It was their belief that its ever-green leaves were never deserted by the sun, and were therefore sacred.

Sixth Army's Brown Among AAU Athletes Visiting European Meets

Sixth Army's George Brown, A.A.U. broadjump winner and recent Inter-Service champ, has been slated for a tour of Norway, Italy, Austria and Germany this summer. Brown is one of a number of service athletes picked from A.A.U. contestants to represent the national sports body at various European meets this summer.

Performing on the same junket as Brown are Army's Henry Cryer, Warren Dreutzler and Larry Gpins.

Army stars Harry Bright and Ron Soble are in the representation touring Scotland and England, while Jim Golliday will visit Finland, Sweden and The Netherlands.

Yellow Tops Grab Two Wins; Cards Sizzle in Second Spot

Highlighting action in the Baker-Mendel softball league this week were two victories by the unbeaten 505th MPTC cadre nine, the Yellow Tops.

First work-out for the instructors turned into a 14-12 slugfest victory on Friday against a doughty team of Mendel cadre, the Beacons.

Taut seventh-inning action saw the Beacons shining brightly with a three-run lead into the last scheduled bracket of play.

Then at the bottom of the seventh, a last-minute homer by Yellow Top Astermy slammed two men off the bags for the count and brought the game into the extra innings.

In the eighth frame Yellow Top big bats slugged out the decisive tally for a two-run victory margin.

Moundsman for the Yellow Tops was Goss, who proved himself just as capable at bat when he poled a homer in the fifth inning.

Beginning this week the Yellow Tops banged a 9-2 rout over the 505th Pistol Packers. Hurler Goss served his second victory of the week, while heavy-sticker Milt Garfield distinguished himself with a strategic third-inning homer.

The Pistol Packers, freshly whipped by the Yellow Tops, this week avenged themselves on the Company B Cubs with a 10-6 tally. Hurler Hedlund served mound for the reinstated Baker

Out of the Cellar!

Underdog HQ 6th Army Slaps 6-3 Defeat on 9th Ack Ack

The luckless Headquarters Sixth Army softballers climbed out of the cellar this week—but with a vengeance!

Besmudged and grimy and perhaps a trifle ornery at having been relegated to the subterranean depths of the intramural softball league for so long, the HQ crew peeked from the basement with big plans.

Maybe a less inspired team might have gone about it in a daintier fashion—by first knocking the pins out from under some of the lesser teams of the circuit and gaining prestige and loop standing that way.

Instead, they chose to clobber the freshly-crowned behemoth Headquarters 9th AAA to a round 6-3.

Which seems to contradict common sense, when we remember that the 9th AAA has met and vanquished the best and toughest teams of the league all the way down the line—that the 6th Army crew have found only defeat at their hands.

Team members agree that no one man was responsible for the upset. The nine players just suddenly clicked into a unified action.

The battery combination of hurler Schook and catcher Gall suddenly paid off and determinedly clamped a four-hitter on the biggest guns of the league.

In the infield, first-sacker Woodbury, short-stop Wagner, third and second-sackers Palanfki and Mallan, all combined talents and wove a tight defensive skein around opposition bats to allow only two errors for the afternoon.

For pay-dirt the newly-graced bats of Schook, Woodbury and Palanfki served with the heaviest artillery, all three men getting two hits for three times at bat.

While the game doesn't do much for the 6th Army team's league standing, it's a cinch from the morale standpoint. And the end of the season isn't too near for them to be a threat for a league crown. If the 9th AAA can topple, so can the Toppers and the Officers.

In another game last Friday the Fort Scott Hill Toppers vanquished the benighted Harbor Defense boys 11-8.

Hurler Benson star-pitched for the victors, serving six strikeouts and only two walks.

The Toppers came from the rear in the second bracket, the sailors leading 5-1. They were sparked by the heavy sticks of Webb and Benson who poled a homer apiece.

News of the 9th Ack Ack's defeat caused some wry smiles in the Topper camp this week—themselves the recent victims of the Triple A's big guns. The game's outcome put the Fort Scott team effortlessly into the loop's first spot.

Meanwhile the Topper factions are confident that they will keep their own slate clean for the rest of the season—against all comers.

Which seems sort of a dangerous contention in these days of upsets.

In more softball action this Wednesday, a repentant 9th AAA whacked the 102 MRU 4-3.

The game saw home runs by Ack Ack boys Oliver James and William Hunter, with Beadle on the mound.

boys, clamping the opposition to a meager three hits for the afternoon.

Whereupon the Beacons, themselves freshly stained from their Yellow Top defeat, also sat upon the poor Cubs to the tune of a roundhouse 16-1. In this tilt Sfc. Stan Halstead, in civilian life a pro ballplayer, tagged a significant grand slammer in the third to slip the chuck out from under Beacon wheels.

In one more game on Tuesday of this week the Company B Cards shut the door on the Able Company Patrolers at 10-6. Hurler Karfust pegged for the winners, handing two walks and only three hits for the day. He fanned a total of seven batsmen.

Presidio Golfers Top So. Div. Field; De Rosia Medalist

The final round of the Southern Division Sixth Army Golf preliminaries were completed last Friday, with Presidio golfers taking top team honors from a field of seven teams and 52 individuals with a 1596-point total for the 72-hole, four-round contest at the Presidio Golf Club.

Camp Roberts' delegation earned runner-up place and a chance at the Sixth Army Golf Championship, currently being contested with 1620 points. Fort Ord barely missed the boat with 1646.

Top individual golfer for the Southern Division this year proved to be Presidio's long-hitting veteran of Sixth Army golf, M/Sgt. George De Rosia, who carded 74-74-71-74 for a 293 total. De Rosia outstroked Camp Roberts' top entry, smooth-swinging linksman Dick Yost, and San Luis Obispo's Sam Randolph, both of whom totaled 300 for the four days.

Yost, a stranger to the course, carded 79-72-77-72, while his San Luis rival shot 75-75-73-77.

Third-place golfer was the Stanford R.O.T.C. representative, Major Henry G. Glaister, who ended with 308, shooting a more consistent 78-78-78-77.

Other golfers to turn in the ten lowest scores were Fort Ord's dual threat Major Barney McKellop 309, and Pvt. Merle Fisher, 310; Captain Rollin Kapp, Presidio, 311; Charles Beville, San Luis Obispo, 312; Captain Louis Button, Presidio, 314, and Dugway Proving Grounds' Kiyoshi Murata, 315.

In Senior Division play last week, Lt. Colonel Henning G. Carlson, of Camp Stoneman, an underdog in the two early rounds, came on to outstroke Two Rock Ranch's Colonel Wiley H. O'Mohundro, with 374 to 381. Lt. Colonel George Reed of the Los Angeles Recruiting Station bagged third spot among the Seniors with 384.

As the two low medalists for their division Carlson and O'Mohundro are currently entered in the Championships.

Bell With All-Stars

Ft. Monmouth, N. J.—Pvt. Ed Bell, University of Pennsylvania 1952 All-American end, has been invited to play with the College All-Stars against the Detroit Lions in Chicago's annual charity game August 14 at Soldiers Field. Bell, 22, a native of Philadelphia, starred both on offense and defense at right end for the Quakers for three years.

Jack Dempsey's last fight was July 29, 1940, against one Ellis Bashara, in Charlotte, N. C., won by Jack on a second-round knockout. Jack "retired" twice; for four years following his second defeat by Tunney in 1927 and then again in 1932 for eight years.

Top Area Golfers Face Tough Links Test in Sixth Army Title Tourney

Following last week's Southern Division preliminaries, the 1953 Sixth Army Golf Championship went underway this Tuesday at the Presidio Golf Club.

Teams representing four Army Area installations teed-off this week. They included the winning and runner-up contingents from both the Northern and Southern Divisions.

First-place Presidio and second Camp Roberts for the South met the triumphant Northern Division first and second teams of Fort Lewis and Fort Lawton.

Installations represented by low medalists from both divisions who were not members on any of the top four teams included Fort Ord, Stanford R.O.T.C., Madigan Army Hospital, and the Alaskan Communications System Headquarters in Seattle.

For the Presidio, last week's low medalist M/Sgt. George De Rosia led the team.

Returning for the second week's play were Captains Rollin W. Kapp, Louis Button, and Duane Bagley; WOJG Urban Araujo and Pvt. Ted Schwabenland.

And for the second time in two weeks, team positioning on the Post delegation was shuffled with the recent returns of Lt. Colonel Peter Peters and Pvt. Clifford Humble—both local golfers of some reputation.

As the team opened its first round this Tuesday, De Rosia, Button, Kapp, Bagley, Peters and Humble took to the greens, with Araujo and Schwabenland designated as team alternates.

On the Camp Roberts contingent, preliminary second-place medalist Pvt. Richard L. Yost led his delegation into action.

With Yost was Pfc. Harold Freer, and Pvts. Leslie Howatt, David Samuelson, Robert Meuchel, and Raymond Costello.

Individual medalists in the Southern Division to go on to the championship rounds were Fort Ord's Major Barney McKellop, number four man in the final preliminary tallies, and Major Henry B. Glaister, of the Stanford R.O.T.C. unit, third-placer in the preliminaries.

Representing Fort Lewis in the championship rounds was a team headed by past U. S. Public Links Champion, Lt. Ken Towns.

Towns had toured the northern links' par 72 with a slim 67-69-74-67 for the preliminary rounds, a wide margin victory over his nearest rival on the Lewis team, Sgt. Walter Jankowski.

With Towns and Jankowski were Lt. David Burns, Lt. John Blair, Lt. Harry Macy, and Lt. Jack C. O'Donnell.

Among the Fort Lawton delegates, low-scorer Sfc. Robert Feragen came onto the Presidio green the favorite, with Pfc. Peter Laxalt, Capt. Arthur Brooks, M/Sgt. Lloyd Bryant, and Cpl. Robert Brennan following in order of their cards.

Individual medalists to survive the prelims independent of team membership were Madigan Hospital's Capt. Charles Hawkins and Pfc. James C. Blanchard of the Alaska Communications System Headquarters in Seattle.

In Senior Division play for the south, Lt. Colonel Henning G. Carlson of Camp Stoneman and Colonel Wiley O'Mohundro, Two Rock Ranch, survived to determine a championship victor. The Northern Division supplied no Senior entries.

Roberts Leads in Team Tallies for First Two Rounds

A strong Camp Roberts delegation swept the field with a slim 778-point total in the opening two rounds of the Sixth Army Golf Championship here Tuesday and Wednesday to grab the lead by a fat 24-point margin over second-place Presidio's 802.

Trailing were Fort Lewis, with 807, and Fort Lawton, 921.

Sparking the powerhouse Roberts team into the lead and the most likely prospect so far for individual champion of the Sixth Army Area was Oregonian champ, smooth-hitting Pvt. Dick Yost.

Yost toured the local links on Tuesday 36-36, to complete with par 72. He then carded an even slimmer 4-under par 69 for the second round, to virtually blank out the possibility of anybody overtaking his position in the tourney.

At the end of two days Yost's closest rival was Fort Lewis' Post titlist and past U. S. Public Links champion, Ken Towns, whose 76, 75 reflected a growing acquaintance with the Presidio course.

For the Presidio, last week's team winners for the Southern Division, the dependable George De Rosia, continued to head the roster, turning in his consistently good cards, 78 for Tuesday and 76 for Wednesday, a few points ahead of teammates Peter Peters and Louis Button.

For the Fort Lawton group, prime disappointment came with the performance of their top golfer, Bob Feragen, on Wednesday.

In the first day's round he turned in a respectable 77. Then for the second day inexplicably blew up, eventually registering a fat 97 for the round. Reportedly he was having some difficulty with his drives, usually his strong point.

Low medalist scores for Wednesday were Yost (69), Towns (75), De Rosia (76), Barney McKellop (79), Henry Glaister (81), Peter Laxalt (82), Charles Hawkins (82), and Jim Blanchard (85).

In the Senior Division the unchallenged duo of Lt. Colonel Henning Carlson and Colonel Wiley O'Mohundro carded an improved 87 and 90 for the second day of play.

Individual team standings for Wednesday's play were as follows: Camp Roberts: Yost, 69; Freer, 77; Howatt, 77; Samuelson, 87; Meuchel, 85; Costello, 79.

Presidio: De Rosia, 76; Kapp, 79; Bagley, 82; Button, 78; Peters, 77; Humble, 84.

Fort Lawton: Brooks, 94; Bryant, 94; Feragen, 97; Brennan, 100; Laxalt, 82.

Low Medalists on Wednesday without team affiliation were McKellop, 79; Glaister, 81; Hawkins, 82; Blanchard, 85.

Giants' Frick Accepts Japan's Baseball Invite For Non-Profit Tour

Service personnel in Japan may see a U. S. major league baseball team in action this fall if, (1) Commissioner Ford Frick okays the New York Giants' request and (2) the other clubs agree to waive the rule that forbids more than three players from a single team to play in a post-season exhibition game.

New York Giants' president, Horace Stoneham, said he had tentatively accepted an invitation from Shodi Yasuda, president of the newspaper "Yomiuri" and owner of a Tokyo team.

Homegrown United Nations!

Mac Sergeant Boasts Family With Four Nation Background

Fort MacArthur, Calif.—Sergeant Alexander Filatiev is forming his own United Nations.

It isn't that the former displaced person doesn't like the present UN setup, it's just that his family of four represents as many nations.

Filatiev is an instructor of Russian at the Army Language School in Monterey, Calif., and a member of the 6210th Replacement Training Center now in two-weeks reserve summer camp here.

He was born in Russia, his wife in Yugoslavia, their first child in Germany, and the second in the United States. However, Filatiev feels that if any more children come along, then the U. S. will hold the majority vote in his private UN because he plans to spend the rest of his life in the U. S. A.

However, at present Yugoslavia holds the ruling hand and Sgt. Filatiev admits this with a wry smile. It is evident that the feminine influence makes itself felt in this family as well as in other American homes because when asked who holds the veto power in the Filatiev UN, the sergeant quickly replied, "my wife."

Though his military background is broad enough to include considerable World War II combat time, Sgt. Filatiev is undergoing basic training with his reserve unit to familiarize himself with techniques and doctrines of the United States Army.

When he was still a child during the Russian Revolution, Filatiev's family was forced to flee its homeland. Later, he made his home in Yugoslavia and attended the military academy of that country. After graduation Filatiev rose to the rank of first lieutenant in the Yugoslav Army.

At the outbreak of World War II, Filatiev was captured by the Italians and imprisoned for four weeks before making good his escape by bribing a guard with a bottle of cognac.

He returned to his home in Yugoslavia since that country's military had been quelled by the Fascist powers, and there he was married. However, in 1944 Filatiev was forced into slave labor by the Germans and assigned to work in a chemical factory in Vienna. Again he made his escape and fled to West Germany where he remained until the liberation.

The Filatievs, with their first child, came to the United States in 1949 under the displaced persons program.

A sense of moral obligation growing out of gratitude for his new homeland led Filatiev to enlist in the Army reserve.

The family expects to receive its final citizenship papers by the middle of next year.

Journalists Pay Visit To Processing Center At Camp Stoneman

Camp Stoneman, Calif. — Some forty-one Bay Area and Contra Costa county newspaper and radio executives toured this Army processing center near Pittsburg Wednesday at the invitation of Brig. Gen. Roy E. Lindquist.

The men and women, who represented local newspapers, radio and television stations, were shown how the Army performs one of its most important functions—the replacement, separation, and reassignment of military personnel just returning from or being assigned to the Far East.

Their visit began with a luncheon at the post officers' club, where the journalists were briefed on the functions which take place at the camp and met the men who supervise these functions. After the luncheon, a tour of the post's installations was conducted.

Purpose of the tour was to give a better understanding of the post activities so that the American public, as well as the people of the surrounding communities, would have a better knowledge of how some of their taxes are being spent in support of military operations.

Course for Meat Cutters

Announcement is made of the Meat Plant Management Course, to be conducted at The Quartermaster School, Fort Lee, Virginia. The purpose is to train qualified selected enlisted personnel to supervise the operation of a central meat cutting plant or field butchery unit.

Prerequisites include grade E-5 or above, must have Food Handler's Certificate, must be qualified as meat cutter and standard score of 100 or higher in aptitude area III. There will be six, eight-week courses, starting 14 Sept. 1953.

505th Standard Is Dedicated at Chapel Ceremony

Dedication of the Standard of the 505th Military Police battalion took place Sunday (12 July) at the Post Chapel.

Plans are underway for other units to have their flags dedicated if they so desire. Arrangements may be made by calling the chaplain's office, Ext. 2521.

Lt. Colonel Keene Saxon, commanding officer of the 505th, and Chaplain (Colonel) Edward T. Donahue, Sixth Army chaplain, were in charge of arrangements for the affair, which was attended by approximately 300 persons, most of them 505th personnel.

Lt. William R. Wahrer, 505th S-3 Section, presented a brief history of the 505th which was activated as such at Camp Breckenridge, Kentucky, on 7 May 1943. It served in the European theatre in World War II, taking part in the Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace, and Central Europe campaigns.

The battalion was inactivated on 20 June 1948, and was re-activated on 25 July 1951 at Camp Roberts, Calif. It served there for a year before arriving at the Presidio in June 1952. The 505th was awarded an official crest by Department of the Army on 10 May 1953, and it is now in the process of being manufactured.

An address on "The Meaning and Significance of the Flag" was given by Chaplain (Major) Charles O. Dutton, 505th Battalion Chaplain. Captain Earl J. Martin, S-3, 505th, presented the flag to be hung in the Chapel to Chaplain Donahue.

The invocation, scriptures and benediction were all given by Chaplain (Captain) Kenneth G. Irwin, Post Chaplain, Presidio of San Francisco. Lt. Colonel Roger L. Biliewicz represented the deputy post commander at the services.

Order Is Welcomed

Camp Roberts, Calif.—"No more double-time," is the welcome order given the men of the training companies of the 7th Armored Division. Due to the extreme summer heat they will not double time to and from classes in the field. The order was issued by Major General Robert F. Sink, commanding general, 7th Armored Division, in an effort to prevent heat afflictions to trainees.

Freedom's Arsenal!

Army Plans 6-Year Program In New Equipment, Weapons

Washington—The Army has an awe-inspiring program of new weapons and equipment to be carried out during the next six years, budget hearings before the House Appropriations Committee have revealed.

All of the new devices are still in the development or pre-production stages, but Army spokesmen consider them extremely promising for future use.

Among the new developments are the BAT (Battalion Anti-Tank) recoilless rifle which is expected to out-perform present anti-tank weapons; an entire new family of long-range artillery pieces, headed by a 156 mm. howitzer which can traverse 360 degrees instead of the 155's present 60.

Other developments include the ONTOS, better known to Army officials as "The Thing," a vehicle chassis that can carry just about any of the Army's heavy weapons; and a new launcher-gun developed for the Air Force which can penetrate a bomber and fires at a low muzzle velocity rate.

One of the innovations—a new lightweight rifle—may eventually replace the M-1 Garand rifle. Actually, the Army reveals that the choice for the rifle has narrowed down to the T-44 and the Belgian FN. The selected rifle model could also replace the submachine gun, the carbine and the BAR.

The Transportation Corps is testing a five-ton version of the WWII DUKW; a five-ton six by six truck with both plastic and steel bodies; and a 10-ton truck-tractor as a tank transporter.

A complete laundry, consisting of the washer, extractor, water heater, and drying unit, is one of the support vehicles the Quartermaster Corps has developed.

New Corps of Engineer equipment includes a snow packer for northern air bases and their runways; armored bulldozers; and a new fighting light, an 18-inch spotlight for armored vehicles.

The Engineers will also have a 600 foot two-lane floating bridge; a 60-foot bridge launched from an armored vehicle under fire without exposing any of the crew; a steam outboard motor which eliminates the noisy "putt-putts" during night assaults; and dry-gap bridging equipment for tanks.

The Signal Corps will get some of its newer developments into production. Lightweight field telephones, new teletypewriters and fire directional control setups are among them.

The testimony also unveiled a family of anti-tank mines, both metallic and non-metallic, which provide thorough destruction of an enemy tank. Conversely, new mine-detecting devices will blossom forth.

Nylon fatigues are also being tested by the Army QM Corps. Longer wear is the byword in this case.

The subject of body-armor—one of the real "finds" of the Korean conflict—also comes in for attention. Freedom of movement will highlight new items of body armor.

Two new types of ammunition have also been disclosed. The M-26 hand grenade, two-thirds as light as present models, can be thrown further and more accurately, with a greater killing potential.

The other type is an enlarged version of a shotgun shell—a canister of small steel balls. This ammunition can be fired from 57 and 105 mm. weapons and is specially effective in hindering advance of a mass of enemy troops. (AFPS)

Sacto Signal Depot Sets Astounding 6th Army Safety Record

Sacramento Signal depot has attained 1,000,000 injury-free man-hours of on-the-job production as of 1 July, the Sixth Army Safety branch announced this week.

The depot fell short of its mark in 1952, when a disabling injury occurred with the count at 852,000 hours.

Sacramento Signal depot is among 17 stations in the Sixth Army area which regularly submit a summary of accident experience record to the Headquarters.

THAT BIG GUN, the 105 MM Howitzer, is about to be fired by Utah National Guardsmen of the 222nd Field Artillery battalion of Ogden, Utah. Major General Frank H. Partridge (far left), Sixth Army deputy commanding general, Presidio of San Francisco, was on hand during the training maneuvers at Camp Williams, Utah National Guard summer camp. Others in the picture included, l. to r.: Captain Bert Hoggan, Sgt. W. E. Wilkerson, Cpl. Wayne K. Paulsen and Pfc. Stanley Brown. Approximately 1,700 men took part in the maneuvers. Utah has the largest NG, in proportion to its population, of any state in the union, statistics disclosed.

10 Employees Honored!

Post Exchanges Will Observe 58th Anniversary on 25 July

"Protect your PX privilege."

That is the warning sounded on the 58th anniversary of the founding of Post Exchanges, by Major General Edward H. White, chief of the Army and Air Force Exchange service.

While the actual anniversary date is Saturday (25 July) local observance is being held here at the Presidio this afternoon with the awarding of pins to career employees of the Exchange service.

Captain Tracy Williams, Bay Area Exchange officer, will pay tribute to the following employees whose combined service totals 112 years: William A. Bodinson, 20 years service; Alice B. Reynolds and William Zolan, 15 years service, and Mary C. Finley, Betty J. Lester, Rowena Love, Ruth L. McCormick, Nixola Phillips, Harry Tabolow and Ethel Tanner, all with 10 years of service.

"These awards, in recognition of career employees in the PX system, are taking place throughout the nation," Captain Williams explained. "The awards for this year alone represent an aggregate of more than 6,000 years of employment in the Exchange service."

Locally, there are 23 retail outlets in the Bay Area Exchange system, including four on the Presidio as well as those at Forts Scott, Baker and Mason, Oakland Army Base, and the outlying AAA batteries. Other concessions include barber shops, shoe repair shops, dry cleaning plants and others.

Enlarging on the theme of "protect your PX privilege," General White explained that, currently, campaigns for the curtailment of the exchange privilege are being waged, on the grounds that it is being abused.

This criticism is coming from a small segment of civilian retailers, he said, and added that the majority of merchants are friendly to the exchange system and understand its purpose.

"Military personnel can assist in quelling this criticism in three ways," said General White, "(1) when shopping, always show proper ID card when not in uniform, (2) refuse to resell Exchange-purchased merchandise, (3) refrain from antagonizing civilian merchants by boasting of PX prices in their presence."

In the early days, roving merchants called "sutlers" were the first vestige of a PX for the Army of 1895. But these men were unscrupulous and cheated and overcharged the soldiers until they decided to band together and form canteens themselves.

Members each put in a dollar or two and the total was used to buy merchandise wholesale, and these items were then resold to the membership. Any profit was put into a general recreation fund.

The system was so successful it came to the attention of the War Department who decided to make it an official operation. On 25 July, 1895, with the publication of Post Exchange regulations as part of General Order No. 46, post exchanges were born and became an official part of the Army.

The term "PX" probably originated the next day!

New Campaign Listed

The 10th campaign in the Korean War has been announced by the Army. It is Korean Summer—Fall 1953. The closing date for the ninth campaign (third Korean Winter) was Apr. 31, 1953. The 10th campaign began May 1, and will continue to a date to be announced later.

Draft Chief Here!

Major General Lewis B. Hershey, Director of Selective Service, will address the opening session of a two-week Selective Service training conference at the Presidio on Monday, 27 July.

Attending the conference will be eighteen Armed Forces Reserve and National Guard officers from California, Arizona, Utah, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Wyoming and Hawaii. Col. R. E. Porter, USAF, and Major W. T. Armstrong, USMC, of the Selective Service regional office in San Francisco will be in charge of the conference.

Accompanying General Hershey to the conference will be Col. Dee Ingold from Selective Service headquarters, Washington D. C., and Major General E. H. Jones, Adjutant General for California.

Armored School To Give Special Leader Courses

Establishment of a Special Tank Leader course and a Special Armored Reconnaissance Leader course for enlisted men at the Armored School has been announced. Both courses will have six classes with a capacity of 100 each during the current fiscal year.

The Special Tank Leader course will train selected personnel to be technically qualified and have the leadership training necessary to assist the platoon sergeant in controlling and coordinating training and tactical employment of a tank crew and to command a tank in all phases of offensive and defensive operations.

Prerequisites for these courses are: selected graduates of Armor Leaders course in training divisions or personnel who have completed at least 24 weeks tank training and have been selected to fill a non-commissioned officer's position in a tank unit, minimum physical profile serial 222111 and a standard score of 90 or higher on aptitude area VIII.

Those selected for the Special Armored Reconnaissance Leader course will be trained to be technically qualified and have the leadership training necessary to serve as gunner, driver, or vehicle commander in employment of vehicles organic to a reconnaissance platoon in all types of security, reconnaissance, and combat missions.

MOS for which the courses will train are Tank Leader (R-1795), grade E-5, and Armored Reconnaissance Leader (R-1733), grade E-5.

Second Army Chief

Lieutenant General I. D. White will assume command of the Second Army with headquarters at Ft. George G. Meade, Md., probably in September of this year. Now commanding general of the X Corps in Korea, Gen. White will replace Lt. Gen. Edward H. Brooks, who retired Apr. 30.

An Old Theme!

New Program Will Distinguish Between NCOs, Specialists

Washington—The Army's new program to distinguish between NCOs and specialists has been given official approval and will go into effect within a few months.

The plan is not designed to change a man's pay grade or any of his allowances and benefits but does give recognition to those who carry the burden of leadership.

In the future this will mean that in grades of E-4 and up, only those who are specialists in leadership will wear stripes. Those whose specialties are in the technical fields will have special insignia to mark their grades and fields.

The date when this plan will go into effect will not be known until a number of details are worked out. Definitions must be worked out for jobs which are to be classified as leadership positions and those which are to be technical. This will be true in the combat arms as well as in the service branches.

Also it will be necessary for the Army to work out the special insignia which the technical specialists will wear and the titles by which they will be addressed.

It has not been determined whether men now serving in the upper two grades will lose their stripes even if they are considered to be specialists. This is because there are very few jobs in these grades which are not leadership jobs in addition to being technical.

Men who hold equal pay grades no matter whether they be NCOs or specialists will receive the same dependent benefits, quarters, travel and ration allowances. In the case of regulars, they will receive the same retirement benefits. (AFPS)

Field Forces Chief

Lieutenant General John E. Dahlquist, former Fourth Army commander, has succeeded Gen. John R. Hodge to become acting Chief of Army Field Forces. Gen. Hodge retired June 30 as Chief of Army Field Forces. Gen. Dahlquist commanded the 36th Inf. Div. in Europe during WWII.

Army Cracking Down On Allotment Frauds; Justice Department Aids

The Army has given notice it is cracking-down on cases of alleged dependents receiving Class Q allotments which they are not entitled to.

The Class "Q" allotment is made to one or more dependents of an enlisted man or woman in military service when the government is unable to provide adequate living quarters. Part of the payment comes from the individual's pay and part from the government.

Although the Army revealed no wide-spread fraudulent allotments in investigations in Puerto Rico and the U.S., it did uncover enough cases to call on the Department of Justice to help put a halt to illegal payments and proceed against violators.

Enlisted personnel involved in making false allotment claims can be tried by courts martial the Army said. Dependents involved in such frauds may be prosecuted by the Department of Justice.—(AFPS)

Protect Your Privileges!

The PX is celebrating its 58th anniversary this year. That's a pretty good record—58 continuous years of service to the serviceman. And we hope it will continue for another 58 years, and another 58 years—indefinitely, in fact.

BUT—and it's a big BUT. It takes the cooperation of every member of the Armed Services, every member of the servicemen's families, and every member of the exchange team to keep the PX in operation. This cooperation can be summed up in four words—PROTECT YOUR PX PRIVILEGE.

Back in 1949, some retailers' organizations gave the Exchange Service a rough time and the result was that restrictions were tightened and a few of the privileges lost. Among the charges made by the retailers were: purchasing by people not entitled to the PX privilege, reselling of merchandise by authorized customers, irritating local retail merchants by boasting about the PX's lower prices.

The Congressional hearings resulted in the elimination of special orders, reduction of some lines of merchandise, and restrictions on the type and price of items permitted to be stocked in a PX. It also provided for the tightening of identification card procedures.

It is the last mentioned item that is causing us some trouble now. The American Retail Federation recently complained to the House Armed Services Committee that the identification system is not being enforced. The Exchange Service is constantly alert for such violations and such instances are very rare, but it takes only a few isolated cases to start trouble.

Only through the cooperation of all military personnel and people concerned with the PX can this situation be avoided. So, let's make this anniversary a time to take stock and resolve to eliminate all violations. Cooperate with the salesclerks and always show your ID cards—never insist on making a purchase if you have forgotten your card. Refuse to resell merchandise and do not needlessly antagonize the local civilian merchants.

We want to celebrate the PX's 59th anniversary and all the others to come. Let's make sure we do. PROTECT YOUR PX PRIVILEGE.

Topic

Important features of the Uniform Code of Military Justice and how it operates to protect the rights of personnel and maintain discipline will be discussed during the Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units next week. Armed Forces TALK No. 442, "You and the Law," will be used.

After passage of the National Security Act of 1947, which brought all Services under a single Department of Defense, it was logical that a single code of military justice should be worked out. This was finally achieved by replacing the Articles of War, the Articles for the Government of the Navy and the Disciplinary Laws of the Coast Guard with the Uniform Code of Military Justice, which became effective 31 May 1951.

This Code provides greater safeguards and privileges for persons accused of crimes than any other judicial system in the United States.

Like any set of laws, the Code is not completely unchanging; it is being continuously interpreted by the top courts—the Boards of Review and the Court of Military Appeals. A committee composed of the Judges of the Court of Military Appeals and all the Judge Advocates General consider these matters and report annually to Congress, with recommendations for any necessary amendments.

Related subjects to be discussed will include military personnel and civilian laws, the Soldiers' and Sailors' Relief Act, voting and political campaigns.

Ordnance Corps Wins Safety Council Award

Washington—For the second straight year, the Army's Ordnance Corps in spite of the fact it makes and handles vast quantities of high explosives, has won the nation's highest safety award. The "Award of Honor" was presented to Maj. Gen. E. L. Ford, Chief of Ordnance, by Ned Dearborn, President of the National Safety Council.

In earning the award Army Ordnance was given outstanding scores in seven of the eight safety areas rated—an unusual accomplishment because of the very nature of Ordnance activities which in addition to explosives, develop, produce and supply the heavy munitions of war.

According to Army accident costs data, about 3¾ million dollars were saved as a result of Ordnance's safety program.

New AFTs Films Are Slated for Field Issue In Near Future

Three 16mm films dealing with foreign countries have either already been distributed this month by Army and Air Force film libraries or will be placed there in July by Armed Forces Information and Education office in Washington.

The three information films are: (1) Australia, its land and people, an important outpost of western democracy; (2) Brazil, the biggest frontier left in the modern world and (3) Canada, the contrasts of the traditional and the modern.

Armed Forces Talks No. 444-5 were distributed in June. Talk No. 444 points out similarities between fascism and communism, while No. 445 discusses the problems in uniting Europe. (AFPS)

QMC Conducting Broad Climatic Research Tests

Washington—Extensive research tests are now underway at the Army's Yuma Test Station, Yuma, Ariz., under the supervision of the Quartermaster Corps.

The main testing phase will involve four hot weather clothing ensembles, made of three lightweight cotton fabrics and designed in various styles.

Most unusual of the garments being evaluated is a bush coat made of lightweight cotton. Resembling a civilian sport jacket it is intended to protect a soldier from contact with heated rocks and sand, direct rays of the sun and the debris of sandstorms.

Working in a location that has a heat wave every day, the test subjects are seeking to determine the amounts of water required by the individual, load carrying stress over sand, and the relation of socks and footgear to burning feet sensation and blister formation.

Two of the QMC's famed "copper men" dummies will be clothed with light and dark colored uniforms designed to determine the difference in heat absorbed from the sunlight by the two color extremes.

Other tests, under the supervision of the QMC test groups, will encompass sunburn preventive creams, load carrying systems for the individual soldier, insect repellants, tent anchoring systems, V-board packaging, and field shower baths.

Combat exercises will be carried out by QMC troops from Ft. Lee, Va., while wearing one of the four hot-dry ensembles under evaluation. A separate anthropological study will endeavor to discover what relationship exists between the amount of body fat on an individual and continuous living in desert heat.

The mysterious "mirage" which causes visual distortion and produces errors in distance and motion, will also be studied in varying conditions of terrain. Of particular interest to the military, this distortion will be examined using test subjects having normal vision and those who wear glasses.

DEADLINE IS WEDNESDAY NOON

SILVER STAR

Sgt. Jack M. Stevens, USA, was manning a machinegun during a heavy Red attack around "Old Baldy." Enemy grenades were inflicting heavy casualties in Sgt. Stevens' section. During the attack he was wounded in the head but continued to fire his gun in the face of the continuing enemy assault. As more of his men were hurt by the enemy fire, Sgt. Stevens covered their positions, enabling them to be treated. Finally his own gun and ammunition were destroyed by enemy fire.

Assisting a wounded comrade, he went back to a forward aid station where both were treated. Sgt. Stevens then obtained another gun and more ammunition and made his way back to the scene of the battle. He continued to deliver effective fire, beating off the repeated enemy attacks until his unit was relieved. For this "Gallantry in Action," Sgt. Stevens was awarded the Silver Star.

Armed Forces of Free World Fight Red Aggression In Korea

Twenty-two nations—united as one army under the blue and white of the United Nation's flag—joined the fight against communist aggression in Korea.

Since the beginning of time, nations have fought together as allies, but the meshing of 22 nations to stem the tide of communism in Korea is the first true international fighting force.

The out-numbered and ill-equipped South Korean defenders were bolstered by United States combat troops on July 1, 1950, less than one week after the Russian-trained Communist Army of North Korea shocked the world by attacking across the 38th parallel.

To prevent a complete enemy break-through and to gain time for the creation of a defense zone, United States Army troops were committed piece-meal. However, by August, 1950, four United States infantry divisions, two regimental combat teams and the First Provisional Marine Brigade were in action in Korea.

The first foreign contingent to join the United States and the Republic of Korea in combatting aggression on the ground in Korea was the 27th British Brigade from Hong Kong. These British soldiers entered Korea on August 29, 1950.

Other initial United Nations' ground force contingents and their dates of arrival in Korea follow:

Philippine Combat Team—Sept. 19, 1950.

Royal Australian Rifles—Sept. 28, 1950.

Turkish Infantry Brigade—Oct. 17, 1950.

Thailand Regimental Combat Team—Nov. 7, 1950.

Netherlands Battalion—Nov. 23, 1950.

French Battalion—Nov. 28, 1950.

Greek Battalion—Dec. 8, 1950.

Canadian Light Infantry—Dec. 18, 1950.

New Zealand Artillery Battalion—Jan. 2, 1951.

Belgium-Luxembourg Battalion—Jan. 31, 1951.

Ethiopian Battalion—May 5, 1951.

Colombian Battalion—June 15, 1951.

In addition to the combined effort on the ground, flying contingents from Australia and the Union of South Africa joined United States and Republic of Korea Air Force units in aerial combat against the enemy.

At sea, combat units from Australia, Canada, Colombia, New Zealand, Thailand, the United Kingdom and the Netherlands combined their efforts to assist United States and Republic of Korea naval units operating in Korean waters.

Medical supporting elements from Norway, Sweden, Denmark, India and Italy also joined the United Nations' effort in Korea.

New Bill Removes Inequities From Retirement Regs

Washington—The House and Senate have passed, without objection, a bill which removes the limitation preventing retirement of certain Army and Air Force Reserve officers who have more than 30 years active Federal service.

Previously, commissioned officers of the Army and Air Force Reserve components who had not less than 20 years or more than 30 years of active Federal service could retire under Section 202 of the Army and Air Force Vitalization and Retirement Equalization Act of 1948.

A limited number of Reserve officers who had more than 30 years service could not retire under this provision, and faced the prospect of waiting until they were 60 years old in order to retire in their commissioned grades.

The new bill removes the upper limit of 30 years service. Requirement of at least 10 years active commissioned service remains in effect. (AFPS)

Weekly World News AT A GLANCE

A TRUCE IN KOREA continues to seem near, despite South Korea's discontent over the truce terms and the Communist radio's objections to the South Korean attitude toward the truce. Authoritative Allied sources in Munsan say one or two minor points remain to be settled. Communist and Allied staff officers are winding up the final details of the truce agreement such as the line of demarcation separating the opposing armies and are understood to have completed arrangements for exchanging prisoners of war who want to go home. . . . ON THE KOREAN BATTLEFRONT, Chinese Communists threw about 1,000 troops against five South Korean positions in action on the Central sector Thursday. At three points the attack was beaten off and at two other points the Chinese drove South Korean infantrymen off hill positions, then pulled back in the face of counter attacks. 8th Army Commander General Maxwell Taylor and South Korean President Rhee have toured the central front. Rhee went to the front to personally thank his troops for repelling the big Chinese offensive of last Tuesday.

EAST BERLIN'S Soviet High Commissioner demanded Wednesday that the United States stop supplying food to East Germany, but the Western food relief program for Eastern Germany continued and with a renewed statement by President Eisenhower that American help will continue. In West Berlin, thousands of workers have been wrapping packages of food stuffs for delivery on the border beginning Monday. The supplies are coming from a West German government reserve in Berlin. Donations from the United States will replenish that reserve. The Communists rejected Mr. Eisenhower's offer to send $15,000,000 worth of American food to ease conditions and later agreed to send more than $57,000,000 worth of food to help with the provision that the East Germans pay for the aid with manufactured goods. . . . EAST GERMANY'S new Minister of Justice Hilde Benjamin has outlawed strikes as "Fascist putsches," but thousands of Soviet Zone workers defied the ban. The new minister ordered the arrest and punishment of anti-Communists opposing the government.

THE POLISH Council of State has cancelled the prison terms of 16 Catholic priests and three nuns and has recommended their immediate release. The action was seen as another move in the continuing Soviet "peace offensive" and was believed to have been taken in response to a request by Catholic leaders of the National Front, a "progressive" group which cooperates with the Communist government. More than 100 priests are believed to have been arrested in Poland during the past two years. . . . COMMUNIST CZECHOSLOVAKIA denounced a recent propaganda balloon barrage from the West as a "provocative action designed to increase the cold war." Thousands of leaflets urging the Czechs to resist their Red leaders were ballooned eastward into Czechoslovakia from Bavarian soil the night of 13 July by the American-sponsored Crusade for Freedom Committee. "This shows that the 'Winds of Freedom' operation was very effective," said a spokesman for Radio Free Europe.

THE SUPREME SOVIET, Parliament of the Soviet Union, will meet 5 August, the Soviet press announced Wednesday. The Kremlin had announced earlier the meeting would be held 27 July, but no reason was given for the postponement. Chief purpose of the meeting is expected to be to approve the discharge of Lavrenty P. Beria from his post as Minister of Internal Affairs. The agenda is also expected to take up the question of agricultural reform and reform of the penal law, both of which Beria opposed. . . . ISRAEL and the Soviet Union have announced they will resume diplomatic relations. Russia severed relations 12 February, three days after a bomb exploded at the Soviet Legation in Tel Aviv. In an exchange of letters, Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov announced that he was accepting Israel's apology for the bombing and assurance that Israel would continue its attempts to catch the "culprits."

LONDON'S Board of Trade has released figures showing Britain's business in nonstrategic goods with Red China is climbing—despite American congressional complaints. The Board disclosed Britain and Red China did $15,680,000 worth of business with each other in the first five months of this year. This is almost treble the total of $5,900,000 in the same period of 1952. British exports to China, a spokesman stressed, were entirely nonstrategic. He listed the main items involved as woolen goods, chemicals and fertilizers, machinery mainly for textiles, and semifinished iron, steel and nonferrous goods. China's main exports were raw hair, bristles, fats and oils and some food products.

ALL OF IRAN'S troubles were blamed on "plots and intrigues of foreigners" by Premier Mohammed Mossadegh in a radio broadcast made from his bed. His attack on foreigners climaxed a day of preparation for Tuesday's holiday celebrating the first anniversary of the riots which put Mossadegh back in power. . . . TURKEY has received a protest from Russia against the forthcoming visit to Istanbul of British and American warships. The Soviet Foreign Ministry note said the visit would constitute "a kind of military demonstration." . . . IN CAIRO, Britain's top negotiator indicated that the long Anglo-Egyptian dispute over control of the Suez Canal Zone may be approaching a solution. Lt. Gen. Sir Brian Robertson declared Britain would recognize full and unqualified Egyptian sovereignty over the area where Britain's giant Middle East defense base is located.

IN NORTHWESTERN INDO-CHINA, French Union troops struck at Communist-led Vietminh this week seizing control of a sixty-mile stretch of highway. Thousands of infantrymen, landed by Naval units at Tien Yen and spearheaded by paratroopers dropped in key towns and villages, drove northwestward with but light, scattered Vietminh resistance. The French wiped out a score of bridges, smashed enemy telephone lines and seized a munitions depot. . . . CHINESE NATIONALIST on Formosa reported Monday that their commandos killed more than 1,000 Communists and captured several hundred in last week's raid on Tungshan Island. The commandos withdrew from the island after wrecking Communist military installations in what was described as the biggest raid since the Nationalists quit the mainland in 1949. . . . JAPANESE casualties during the devastating flood last weekend in central Honshu Island were announced Tuesday as totalling 9,177.

Illinois College Offers Half Tuition Fee for Korea Veteran Students

Through a special type scholarship, Korean war veterans may now attend the Illinois Institute of Technology for half tuition.

IIT, the country's largest engineering college, has established 100 such scholarships, each valued at $325 a year, to supplement the "GI bill" funds. They may be renewed on a year-to-year basis, provided the student's academic performance is satisfactory.

The scholarships are awarded on a basis of previous academic records in high school or college, or in performance in IIT's entrance examination. They may be used in any of the Institute's three divisions: engineering, which offers 14 curricula; liberal studies, which includes seven departments; and the graduate school, which offers advanced degrees in engineering, science and liberal studies.

Veterans wishing to enroll for the fall term beginning 21 September, may apply for information by writing: Director of Admissions, Illinois Institute of Technology, Chicago 16, Illinois.

New Account System To Aid Army Economy

Washington—The Army will introduce a new property accounting system to 97 Army supply installations soon, Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens has announced.

The new system, which provides a means of readily determining the dollar value of supplies, has been adopted for use throughout the Army supply system. It is expected to improve supply management through tighter inventory controls.

Correct Procedure For Observing "Retreat"

"Call to Colors" sounds at the Presidio each day at 1700.

It is followed by "Retreat" or the retiring of the flag.

Usually most civilian employees have already left the post before this ceremony starts.

For those still here, either walking or in vehicles, there is a standard procedure.

All movement should cease and those walking should come to attention while the flag is being lowered. Vehicles are to halt and one person from each automobile should step out and come to attention. He represents all of the persons in the vehicle.

Service personnel in uniform come to attention and salute at the sound of "Retreat."

Those who fail to observe the proper procedure are subject to citation by the Military Police.

VA's Direct Loan Is Extended One Year

Washington—The direct loan program of the VA to aid veterans in the financing of homes and farmhouses in areas where private financing is not available, has been extended for a year.

This action extends the program to June 30, 1954. Direct loans are not made in metropolitan areas but are usually confined to rural areas where GI loans from private lenders are not available. The law also increases the interest rate from four to four-and-a-half per cent. This is the same level as the maximum rate chargeable by private lenders.

Direct loans are limited to $10,000 although the average has been approximately $6,900. (AFPS)

Army Furnishes 75-Bed Hospital For Boy Scouts

One of the Army's major contributions to the third National Boy Scout Jamboree at the Irvine Ranch near Corona Del Mar, Calif., this week was a 75-bed hospital furnished by the Sixth Army. Quartered in tents, the hospital was the main "Health Lodge" of the Jamboree offering facilities similar to a civilian hospital or an Army clearing station for handling emergency cases and providing treatment for minor ailments or injuries.

This unit was staffed by two United States Army Reserve organizations, the 355th General Hospital of Santa Ana and the 823rd Station Hospital of San Diego. Members of these organizations are mostly physicians, dentists, nurses and technicians in civilian life taking their annual two-week training at the same time as the Jamboree.

During the field training, the 823rd was attached to the 355th under Col. Thomas E. Hanigan, commanding officer of the Santa Ana unit. Lt. Col. Bernard E. Cunningham is commander of the 823rd. On full-time duty were ten doctors, twelve nurses, four dentists, ten Medical Service Corps officers and twenty enlisted men and women.

Other Army equipment used in support of the hospital included twelve ambulances and two busses standing by to take any serious cases to hospitals off the site.

Dental care was also provided by Army Reserve dentists using a mobile dental unit loaned by the U. S. Coast Guard.

505 MP's Company 'A' Wins Best Mess Award Third Time

They've done it again!

With an overall rating of 99 percent, A Company, 505th Military Police battalion won the "Best Mess" award for the month of June, 1953.

They permanently retired an earlier award plaque by winning the competition three times within a six months period from September, 1952, to February, 1953. The name of each month's winning organization is engraved on a plaque presented by the deputy post commander.

Runners up with a rating of 98.2 were Detachment 1, 6002 ASU, and the 99th Engineer Base Reproduction Company.

A total of 13 messes, both from the Presidio and its sub-posts, entered the June competition.

The award is based on preparation of food, sanitation and administration of records, and inspections are carried out under the direction of Captain Carlton D. Woodell, Post food advisor, Post S-4 Section.

Lt. Emil P. Lind, company commander of A Company, attributes the achievements of his company in food processing to Lt. Ronald B. Sterkel, mess officer; SFC Robert S. Scranton, mess steward, and Cpl. James Tetterington, Pvt. Glenn Hummel, Pvt. Richard Robinson, Pvt. Delmar Hall, Pvt. Donald Hall, PFC Houston Evans and Cpl. William O'Connell, assistant mess stewards.

Aside from winning its numerous mess awards, A Company has recently been cited for having one of the most tastefully decorated mess halls on the Presidio.

Redecoration, the cost of which was under $25, was under the direction of Lt. Sterkel, a recent graduate of the University of Nebraska where he majored in interior design. He was assisted by PFC Jerrell D. Messener.

Three original water colors of San Francisco scenes, the work of Pvt. George Gardner of the 505th's A Company, also adorn the walls.

Emergency Mass Food Techniques Studied at 3-Day Presidio School

A three-day Army course in emergency mass feeding techniques was held at the Presidio this week with 40 key civil defense workers in attendance.

Classes were held in the Sixth Army Food Service school on Wednesday, and on Thursday and Friday the students underwent field training at the outdoor kitchen at Fort Scott.

Subjects taught by Army instructors included emergency water purification, waste disposal, prevention of food contamination and food poisoning, layouts for mass feeding, selection of menus, field expedients, safety, fire building, sanitation and improvisation of measuring instruments and lighting.

The class was made up largely of representatives of restaurant associations, Red Cross workers, and managers of school cafeterias, most of them women. While the majority of the students were drawn from the San Francisco bay area, there were representatives from Arizona, Nevada and Utah.

Army motion picture photographers recorded the instruction on films which will be utilized in later training to be conducted by the civil defense organizations at local levels.

Recently Assigned

Major William A. Hawkins, Jr., has recently returned from three and one-half years with the Augsburg Military district, Germany, where he was assistant Post S-4.

His new assignment is in the active Army branch, G-3 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

With a total of 71 months overseas, Major Hawkins has been decorated with the Silver Star Medal with Cluster, the Bronze Star Medal, and the Purple Heart with three Clusters. In World War II he served first with the 21st Infantry, 24th Division, at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, and later with the 36th Division in the Italian, French, German and Austrian campaigns.

In the Army for the past 13 years, the major also served in the G-4 section of the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia, from 1945 to 1949.

WOJG Floyd L. Curry is the newly assigned adjutant of the 46th Ordnance group.

For the past 20 months he has been assistant adjutant at Fort Huachuca, Arizona.

In the Army for 25 years, WOJG Curry served a total of 60 months in the Far East theatre during World War II.

Post Judge Advocate Cites Major Cause of Presidio Car Accidents

Driver's failure to keep a safe distance from the vehicle ahead has been the cause of from 50 to 75 per cent of the accidents on the Presidio during the past eight months, announced Capt. Eugene J. Reynolds, Post Judge Advocate.

Eleven motor accidents involving military personnel drivers of military vehicles occurred last month. Ten of these were the fault of the drivers and of these, five accidents were the result of driving too close to the car ahead.

Capt. Reynolds points out that the senior officer or non-commissioned officer in a vehicle is responsible for its being driven in a safe manner and will have to pay for any damages resulting from an accident which is determined to be the fault of the driver. Payments for such damages are currently being made by some Presidio personnel, the captain states.

Alaskan Notes

By Lt. James A. Mulkern

(Ed's Note: This is the fourth on-the-spot report from 1st Lt. James A. Mulkern, helicopter pilot with the 30th Engineers in Alaska.)

Well, the Flying Irishman of the Tripod Airlines is temporarily out of business. Main reason being that on his last landing a few days ago at Pilot Point he ran out of lake. Since there was a 10 to 12 foot bank at the end of the lake, he is fresh out of floats—and therefore airplane.

Track and field events headed the recreation calendar for the men this week. Particular emphasis being placed on running, jumping and marksmanship.

For instance, the events entered by 2nd Lt. R. G. Lancaster and Pfc. Edward Shelby at the Bay of Islands camp.

Pfc. Shelby says he heard an unusual sound one morning and upon looking out of his pup tent discovered two brown bears staring him in the face at a distance of 30 feet. Grasping his carbine firmly he tried a bit of "sprinting" to the edge of a cliff near the tent. There he indulged in "jumping" with the intent of becoming invisible to the bears. He miscalculated the slope and finally stopped when he was about 70 feet down where he grabbed some brush.

There he remained a good portion of the morning until Lt. Lancaster who was "hiking" and "rock climbing" came up the other side of the peak. Upon reaching the top, Lt. Lancaster discovered four Bear Eyes (not to be confused with Bull's Eyes) at the distance of 50 feet.

Pulling out his 38 S&W, he fired once with no effect. He fired three more times but the bears turned around and slowly walked away. Hearing the shots, Pfc. Shelby yelled and shortly he and Lt. Lancaster were looking at each other over the cliff edge.

That evening the members of the Bay of Islands camp decided to include marksmanship in their recreational activities and submitted a request for 12 rifles—30-06 with soft nosed ammunition.

A lot of things are popping around here. The surveyors and fly boys are all getting wary of the volcanic mountains.

Mt. Spurr blew its top three days ago. Worse than a First Sergeant! In the matter of only four hours, the whole Anchorage, Ft. Richardson, Elmendorf Air Force Base area was out of business. With a corrosive ash piled to a depth of 1½ inches everywhere and visibility down to ¼ mile the forward echelon's air wing was completely grounded.

The rest of the battalion was operating but from the Headquarters area nothing moved.

PFC Lynn Brooks of 740th Is Essay Winner

PFC Lynn P. Brooks, Headquarters battery, 740th AAA Gun battalion, one of the winners in the present Cost Consciousness essay contest, was awarded his check for $5.00 by Colonel Walter H. Murray, commanding officer of the 30th AAA Group.

In charge of schools and TI&E programming for the 740th, PFC Brooks has been with the unit since November 1952. He was graduated from North Texas State Teachers college where he received his Masters degree in Education.

DON'T LOSE YOUR HEAD, as this fellow did when he got too close to David M. Larson, magician extraordinaire! Chaplain Larson, who at present is stationed in the office of the Chaplain, Oakland Army Base, will present "90 Minutes of Magic," at the Presidio Service club Sunday (26 July), beginning at 2000. In his travels around the world both as a civilian minister and in the Army, Chaplain Larson decided some 30 years ago that making men laugh was an important spiritual benefit too, so he took himself into the field of magic, where small creatures come from out of the nowhere and go back there with a "poof" from the Chaplain. In addition to performing before thousands of service personnel all over the world, Chaplain Larson has shown his art before other magicians in Sweden, Japan and America. Before an audience of more than 2,000 in Guam, the Chaplain once was able to produce a small Guamanian deer to take the place of the proverbial rabbit. His performances have brought him numerous letters of commendations from commanding officers. Chaplain Larson has been a member of the International Brotherhood of Magicians for many years.

"Fame and Poet" Set 27 July By Presidio Players

"Fame and the Poet," an allegorical fantasy, will be the initial presentation on 27 July of "The Presidio Players," newly formed drama group at the Presidio.

Under the direction of PFC Curtiss Hungerford, the play will be presented at the Presidio Service club following the military talent show slated for that night. PFC Hungerford, a graduate of Stanford university's department of speech, is currently a member of the Sixth Army band.

The three-member cast includes Miss Valerie Balsamo, Post Judge Advocate office, as Fame; PFC Richard Armbrust, Sixth Army band, as deReves, the disillusioned poet, and PFC Louis Carroll, B Company, 505th MP battalion, as Prattle, the poet's worldly friend.

Membership in "The Presidio Players" is still open to both military and civilian personnel who are interested in any phase of stage production.

Application blanks are available at the Service club, or call Ext. 2000 after 1300.

Cinema Previews

"THE BEAST FROM 20,000 FATHOMS," F* lets a prehistoric sea reptile, revived by an atomic bomb test in the Arctic, go rampaging down the Manhattan coast creating havoc in Manhattan and Coney Island before he is destroyed.

"THE MAN FROM THE ALAMO," F* is set in the year 1836. Strife-torn Texas is fighting for independence from Mexico. Outlaws see their chance to rob the territory, that is, until they run into a band of stalwart refugees who put up a fight.

"THE KID FROM LEFT FIELD," F* a baseball story, begins with the signing of a nine-year-old boy as manager of a tail-end ball club, when the owner discovers his ability in pointing out playing weaknesses. Illness forces the boy to a hospital where he confesses his knowledge comes from his father, a once big league outfielder. Result? Pop gets the job as the club's manager.

"THE BANDWAGON," F* brings back to the screen the magic toes of Fred Astaire. The plot centers around Fred in a Broadway show that is too classical for him. So the show flops. So Astaire turns it into the kind of song-and-dance thing he knows best and it comes back as a smashing success.

"BLUEPRINT FOR MURDER," M is a gruesome plot in which both the husband and step-child of Jean Peters are found to have died from gentle doses of strychnine. Her case is dropped in court, however, due to insufficient evidence. Joseph Cotton, fearing for her other step-child, takes matters into his own hands and forces a confession.

Presidio Musicians Win Opportunity To Appear on New York TV Show

Five Presidio soldiers distinguished themselves in an audition at Fort Ord recently when they won honors in a Department of the Army-sponsored talent program.

The soldiers won for themselves places as delegates to Steve Allen's television feature "Talent Patrol" and a trip to New York to appear on the show in September.

The top five men who will appear are Pfc. Samuel Minasian, Cpl. Stan Zirbel, Pfc. William Mundy, Pvt. Richard Armbrust, Pfc. Richard Barnett, and Pfc. Murray Korda.

Pfc. Mundy's record as instrumentalist and composer shows a variety of talent. Prior to his entry in the Army in June, 1952, he studied composition at Occidental College, Los Angeles, with Haakon Bergh.

His musical accomplishments so far include, as he puts it, "a room full of compositions," which number a ballet, cello concerto, and numerous organ pieces which Mundy composed for his own use as church organist; appearances in motion pictures, the last of which was "Stars and Stripes Forever," released just before his entry into the service; a position as tuba player with the Burbank Symphony orchestra, and position of director of his own brass and string ensembles which performed on numerous occasions in Southern California.

Pfc. Murray Korda is well-known locally due to his recent appearance with the Arthur Fiedler "pops" concerts, where he demonstrated his remarkable ability on the violin with the playing of Sarasate's "Gypsy Airs."

Murray's musical preoccupation of late has been an effort to revitalize public interest in gypsy music.

Prior to the Service, baritone Pvt. Armbrust studied music at the College of the Pacific, Santa Barbara and U.C.L.A., as well as being under the tutelage of famed singer John Charles Thomas.

Armbrust has appeared as soloist with the Vallejo and Stockton Symphonies, and with the Vallejo Chorus. His specialty is light opera and opera.

Before his service career, Cpl. Stan Zirbel was hot on the tracks of wide personal popularity in local night-spots, TV and radio appearances, where he lent his mellow baritone voice to such songs as "The Nearness of You," "That Old Black Magic," and "Embraceable You."

Aside from appearing with his own combo, being a percussion expert as well as singer, Stan served as vocalist with such bands as Les Brown's, Bill Clifford's, and Roger Burke's.

Stan's most recent TV appearances have been with the Del

Courtney and Les Malloy TV shows.

Pfc. Barnett and Pfc. Minasian have something in common. They both studied in the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, New York. Minasian's specialty is the violin, and like Korda, he is noted for his sprightly renditions of folk music. Barnett is a percussion expert, his forte being the marimba.

Raider Bats Lambast Three Bay Teams in Week's Contests

The Presidio Red Raider baseball team banged away at pre-Sixth Army tournament competition once more this week, vanquishing three out of four opponents and demonstrating a decided strengthening of the batting and pitching potentials. Star man in last week's tilt against the Moffett Field Flyers was Hurler Wayne Hamaker, who whiffed a grand total of 13 opposition batsmen and held them to a meager eight hits for the day.

Against Raider artillery the Flyers scraped the bottom of their moundsman bucket and ordered a total of five hurlers to the mound in an effort to staunch Presidian wood-whackers. Opposition hurlers were sailors Ius, Wills, McKay, Lahann and McGlaughlin.

The five of them managed to hold the home bats down to 16 connections.

Big bats were Taylor, Fucile, Thayer, Ardito, Hamaker, and Gene Jacobs. The latter lambasted a tremendous 400-foot roundtripper which shook two men off the bases and sparked the great ninth inning rally for the Raiders. The eventual score ran 12-3.

Last week-end saw the Raiders held to two losses against the visiting San Luis Obispo nine, one of the finest teams in the Sixth Army congregation.

On Saturday, the home boys buckled the San Luis crew to a ten-inning victory. Biggest artillery for the invaders proved to be Bouchee, with three for four, and out of sixteen connections, they were allowed a slim eight run tally, which speaks well for Raider defense.

On the Raider ledger, Taylor and Jacobs heroed at bat with three for five apiece. Arkie Stanton pitched a good loser.

On Sunday the San Luis nine gained a one-run advantage in the second inning of the game and held it to a final 4-3 tally in their own favor.

Hole-in-One Test Offers Cash Award

Do you figure you could ace a golf ball into the cup at 89 yards? If you do, then your place is at the Number One green on the Post Pitch 'n Putt course Saturday morning, 1000 hours.

At that time the Presidio Hole-in-One Tourney is slated to tee off, and will continue till 1500 hours. Proceeds from the event are going toward the Post AER drive.

The tournament is open to all personnel, including dependents and civilians.

A limit of five balls will be allowed each contestant, with balls costing a dime apiece.

The winning golfer will be awarded a cash prize, and in case of a tie the award will be divided.

And you don't even have to bring your clubs. According to contest rules, the only iron in play will be the number nine furnished by the clubhouse.

The Post Pitch 'n Putt course is located on the Presidio off McArthur Blvd. between Rodriguez and Liggett.

Pitch 'n Putt Course Offers Pro Advice To Military and Kin

The Post Pitch 'n Putt course has announced the commencement of free instruction in golf for the benefit of fairway enthusiasts in military service in this area and their dependents.

Classes in the use of the iron and putter will be under the direction of professional golfer Cpl. Joe Mazur, and will be open to personnel starting next Tuesday, 28 July.

Schedule of classes will be as follows:

Military: 1300-1600 hours, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday; 0900-1600 hours, Saturday.

Ladies: 0900-1100 hours, Tuesday and Thursday.

Teenagers: 0900-1100 hours, Wednesday and Friday. (Twelve years or older.)

In the case where more than one person is present for the classes group instruction will be undertaken. There will be no reservations made and classes will commence whenever a student arrives.

The Post Pitch 'n Putt course continues its regular schedule for the use of military personnel and their dependents 0900-1900 hours, Tuesday through Friday; 0900-1600 hours, Saturday, Sunday and holidays. The course is closed each Monday for maintenance.

There is no charge for greens fees, and golf balls and clubs are furnished free at the clubhouse by Post Special Services.

Captain Clouts Clutch Clincher As Officers Clamp 9th AAA

The Presidio Officers Club bounced back into softball league contention last Friday in pulling a tight 5-4 triumph out of the bag over the tough Headquarters 9th AAA nine to bring their team standing to within one game of the first-place Fort Scott Hill Toppers.

Feature action for the afternoon came in the sixth inning, when Officers' captain Le Van stepped to the plate with his team trailing 4-2, two men out, and two men on base.

It looked as if the game was about sewn up for the 9th Ack Ack.

But Le Van, long accustomed to tricky situations, thrashed out a line double to score both men off the bags and tie the game.

Earlier in the same bracket, Officer bats had slammed in two markers to lighten their load.

The top of the seventh and last bracket saw Officer Hoskins on third-base, whereupon Vincent blasted a long fly to left field to score his teammate and mark the winning tally.

In the bottom of the seventh the 9th Ack Ack tried hard for a rally, putting men on first and second, but superb pitching by Officer moundsman Hoskins and some brilliant scoops by twice-great Le Van in short sufficed to handcuff Ack Ack artillery, normally a threat to an infield any weaker than the brass.

Veteran Rhoan chucked for the 9th. Their weakest point was the infield. It just didn't click as it usually does. Plus the fact that their normally heavy bats had trouble connecting off the controlled hurling of Hoskins.

Another game last Friday produced a 12-11 slam-fest victory by the Detachment A crew over the 102 MRU.

The afternoon saw the Guard team trailing dismally 11-2 up to the fifth inning, whereupon their biggest bats opened up for a nine-run rally to tie the game and go on to win.

Heavy-stickers for the Guard were Baxter, team hurler, Trueblood, Cladas, Goodhue, and Bandstetter, who homered.

For the MRU the big batsmen proved to be Baillie, Beck and Melinski, who also distinguished himself with a couple of grandstand catches from his center-field spot.

Biggest weakness was the fact that the MRU was missing its two bright lights, Waldron and Ryan. As hard as he tried, hurler Chute couldn't take Ryan's place on the mound, and Detachment A bats made the most of that difficulty.

League standings to date:

Team	Won	Lost
Fort Scott Hill Toppers.....	11	2
Officers' Club	10	2
9th AAA	11	4
102 MRU	8	6
Det. A Guard	6	6
HQ 6th Army	5	8
Harbor Defense	4	9

45th Boat Co., 21st Engineers Unload Upsets on HQ Nine

By Cpl. Allen Van Soest

Two upsets illuminated the 30th Engineers softball league stage this week, with the 21st Engineers and the 45th Boat Company coming from behind to hand a couple of losing doses to the previously unbeaten Headquarters and 99th Engineers teams.

For the 45th, batsman Sheetz distinguished himself in the box against the Headquarters nine with a strategic roundtripper in the first and another four-bagger later in the game. Puig and McDonald also slammed homers for the 45th, to help compile the final 16-11.

Brinkmeyer was the winning chucker, with Harris for the losers.

The 21st Engineers gave the fans their second upset win of the week last Friday, but it took extra innings to down their foes, the stubborn 99th Engineers.

Opening for the 21st, Saddler's double sent two men hustling across the plate in the second bracket to break the scoring ice. The 99th countered with a run on a walk and a triple by Starks.

The photomapper squeezed another run in the seventh frame but the 99th knotted the count on singles by Christopher and Maniece.

The winning tally crossed in the eighth as clean-up hitter Ferguson doubled to unload the sacks.

All of the Engineer league teams still have a good chance to cop the championship trophy. Two other rounds of play have been scheduled with the winning teams in each round being matched in playoffs at the conclusion of the season.

LOOKING TOWARD THE SIXTH ARMY preliminaries are Post net aces 2nd Lt. Doug De Tata, 30th Engineers, Fort Scott; Pvt. Tim Spangler (kneeling), 505th Military Police Battalion, and M/Sgt. Anas Velarde, G-3, Chief Joint Center. The threesome leave

After playing in only four PGA-sponsored tourneys this year, BEN HOGAN, king of golf, still tops American pros in money-winning. PGA statistics credit newly-crowned British Open Champion Hogan with 1953 earnings of $16,604. Hogan's closest pursuer, with $14,266, is LLOYD MANGRUM. SAM SNEED, with 690 2/3 points, still is the leader in contention for membership on the 10-man Ryder Cup team. However, the competition now is only for eight berths since the PGA executive committee has automatically qualified the 1953 and 1952 PGA championship winners, WALT BURKEMO and JIM TURNESA, as Ryder Cup members.

After a morning-long conference, SID FLAHERTY, manager of BOBO OLSON, and two high ranking representatives of the International Boxing Club were unable to come to a definite agreement this week concerning a site for a proposed world's middleweight title fight. The OLSON-RANDY TURPIN match is not out of the woods yet. Not by a long shot. Right now it's still unsigned and mired down by voluminous verbal agreements. Following their meeting, IBC managing director HARRY MARKSON said that Flaherty, acting for Olson, had agreed to meet Turpin for the IBC. But the site had not yet been agreed upon. "We discussed all aspects of the fight," Markson reported. "TRUMAN GIBSON (the IBC secretary) and I spoke about New York as a site but Flaherty presented some pretty strong and good arguments for San Francisco." The meeting was very amicable, said Markson, who has an agreement to meet with Gibson and Flaherty in New York today, at which time the case will be presented to Norris.

Last week when All-Star pickings were in the news, it's interesting to note that two straw polls by Service agencies indicated that the Servicemen's voting for the 1953 All-Star baseball teams ran pretty much to form with the rest of the nation's balloting. A vote sponsored and tabulated by Armed Forces Radio Service in New York for servicemen in Europe, Africa, Middle East and Northeast coincided with civilian selections in the U. S. on six of eight positions in each league. Another vote was recorded by the European edition of Stars and Stripes, where Armed Forces personnel agreed with civilian fans on five of eight performers for each league. Milwaukee's 21-year-old third baseman, EDDIE MATHUEWS, tied with New York's MICKEY MANTLE, outfielder, as the most popular in the AFRS tabulations. At the same time Stars and Stripes compilers saw Cardinal second baseman RED SCHOENDIENST spurt ahead of Mathews in the last minute 1,249 to 1,137 votes in their poll. In nation-wide picking TED KLUSZEWSKI, Cincinnati first sacker, proved the most popular vote-getter with 1,652,803, a 250,000 lead over Micky Mantle, number two favorite.

Simmons last week in his stint with the All-Stars. He is only just back in the line-up after being benched temporarily with a foot injury 4 June, when he caught his foot in a power lawnmower at his home. Simmons credits a combat boot which he was wearing for saving his foot and his career. Before the accident, Simmons was leading the National League pitcher with a 7-4 record.

MP "Yellow Tops" Nab Fifth Straight Win to Clinch Top Presidio Fireman's Son Awarded N.Y. Trip with All-Stars

The striding 505th MPTC instructor softball team, the Yellow Tops, continued to walk over all opposition with a squeaking 8-7 victory over the Charlie Company Pelicans last week.

According to one team member, the Yellow Tops were not in peak form for the game and suffered most from a weak infield, which allowed the opposition two mark-ers on errors alone.

The afternoon's action saw the Pelicans leading into the sixth bracket of play, at which point the Yellow Tops rallied for four runs to head off the lead.

Yellow Top thunderbats who were instrumental in closing the score were O'Gara, who homered with one man on the bags, and Garfield, who slammed a round-tripper with two men on.

In the final bracket, bigbat Asterny heroeed when he exploded with a triple and then stole home for the winning run.

Stalwart instructor Les Nuckolls pitched for the winners, holding the opposition to a meager four hits.

The 17-year-old son of Presidio fireman Frank Hall has lately been making quite a name for himself in local athletic circles.

Hall Jr. was recently picked with Santa Clara's Jim Small to make an expense-paid trip to New York as the Northern California baseball representatives to the National All-Star game on 22 August, in New York.

The two boys turned in conspicuous performances in last week's All-Star game in which Southern and Northern California battled to a 12-inning 12-12 tie at Seals Stadium.

Hall, voted San Francisco's high school athlete of the year, bounced a double off the Seals Stadium fence and pitched the final innings of the game to preserve the tie after going most of the way as catcher.

Fireman Frank Hall Sr. has been with the Presidio Fire Department for six months. Prior to his service here he was with the Treasure Island department.

Yost Leads Roberts to Team Victory In All-Sixth Army Golf Championship

Spear-headed by the sensational sub-par play of Private Dick Yost of Portland, Oregon, the Camp Roberts golf team won the 1953 Sixth Army Golf Championship for the second consecutive year at the Presidio links last Friday.

The Roberts total for the four days' rounds was 1597. In second-place Fort Lewis totaled 1618, with the Presidio trailing 1624, ahead of Fort Lawton's 1826.

The Camp Roberts team held a commanding lead throughout the four-day 72-hole medal play tournament. Yost mastered the tricky greens and narrow fairways by carving out a total of 284, four under par, over the Presidio's treacherous oceanside layout.

Second lowest golfer of the Championship was Lt. Ken Towns of Fort Lewis, who shot a scorching 67 on Friday, five under par, for the best round of the tournament to tie with the Presidio links record. The 1949 National Public Links Champion from San Francisco registered a total of 292 as second behind Yost.

Private Les Howatt of Camp Roberts finished third by combining a pair of 77's with an 80 and 79 for a total of 313.

M/Sgt. George De Rosia, Presidio favorite, tied with Lt. Jack O'Donnell of Fort Lewis, for a fourth-place 314.

In Senior Division contention, on the last day of the tournament Colonel Wiley O'Mohundro of Two Rock Ranch and Lt. Colonel Henning Carlson found themselves locked at 397 for a tie in that division. O'Mohundro and Carlson ran a three-hole play-off, with the Two Rock Ranch representative regis-

The Sixth Army Championship play last week determined the six golfers to represent the Army Area in coming All-Army competition at the Pebble Beach Golf Course, Monterey, California, next week, 27-31 July.

Golfers that were slated to pack their bags for Fort Ord and the All-Army tourney were the five low medalists in the Main Division: Yost, Towns, Howatt, O'Donnell, and De Rosia; and the single low medalist in Senior Division, Colonel O'Mohundro.

Due to an emergency, George De Rosia of the Presidio will not be able to take his place on the Sixth Army team. The Championship's sixth lowest scorer, Major Henry Glaister of the Stanford R.O.T.C. has been named to take De Rosia's berth.

Team scores at the close of the Championship were as follows:

Camp Roberts: Yost, 284; Howatt, 313; Freer, 327; Samuelson, 340; Meuchel, 333. Total, 1597.

Fort Lewis: Towns, 292; O'Donnell, 314; Burns, 326; Blair, 353; Macy, 359; Jankowski, 333. Total, 1618.

Presidio: De Rosia, 314; Kapp, 323; Button, 328; Bagley, 338; Peters, 321; Humble, 349. Total, 1624.

Fort Lawton: Feragen, 343; Brooks, 359; Bryant, 360; Laxalt, 352; Brennan, 412. Total, 1826.

A TROPHY TO THE WINNER is presented by uniformed WO Urban Araujo of the Sixth Army Special Services, Sports Division. Senior Division Champion of the 1953 Sixth Army Golf Tournament is smiling Colonel Wiley O'Mohundro, of Two Rock Ranch. Colonel O'Mohundro will represent the Sixth Army next week at the Pebble Beach All-Army tournament. (Sixth Army Photo.)

Leathernecks Post New World Skeet Record

Camp Lejeune, N. C.—Five marines representing Camp Lejeune set a new world skeet shooting record at the Great Cotton States Open Shoot, Spartansburg, S. C., recently. The five shooters missed but nine out of 750 targets to best the old record by four points.

Devil Dogs Clinch Title

San Diego, Calif.—The San Diego Marine Corps Recruit Depot Devil Dogs clinched the West Coast Marine Corps baseball championship with a two out of three sweep of Camp Pendleton, Calif. Virgil Miller pitched a four-hitter for victory in the deciding second game and came back the following day for an eight inning relief stint and credit for the win.

Port News

San Francisco Port of Embarkation presented "E" awards this week to five Port harbor craft which had maintained an aggregate efficiency score of better than 90 points for the first six months of 1953.

Masters of the vessels received the awards at a dockside ceremony at Fort Mason, with Brigadier General Ralph I. Glasgow, Port commander, making the presentations.

Those honored included Captain James H. Ellis, master of the LT-3; Captain Niels Jensen, master of the LT-57; Captain Walker Willis, master of the LT Lt. Colonel Kendrick; Captain Arthur M. Yturriaga, master of the LT-983, and Captain Kris Kristiansen, master of the self-propelled barge BSP-1653.

Lt. Colonel Robert H. Fillmore, stationed at the San Francisco Port of Embarkation since February 1950, has now been assigned to one year's training in railroad operation with a local railroad headquarters in San Francisco.

Serving successively as Port transportation officer, deputy chief of staff for operations, and as Port director of operation, Col. Fillmore is a director of the San Francisco Bay chapter of the National Defense Transportation Association.

Approximately 350 persons donated blood at the San Francisco Port of Embarkation last week, to add to the total of 541 pints given by Fort Mason personnel this year. CWO LeRoy Paddock is general chairman of the quarterly visits to the post which are made by the Irwin Memorial-Red Cross bloodmobile.

Brig. Gen. Ralph I. Glasgow made his second donation since becoming Port commander in March, and with him were Army service personnel, Coast Guardsmen on duty at the Port, 6212th Reserve members on TDY at Fort Mason and civilian personnel.

63rd Infantry Reserve Ends Summer Training At Hunter-Liggett

Summer field training for more than 1,500 members of the 63rd Infantry division (Reserve) was completed at Hunter-Liggett Military reservation last week.

The "Blood and Fire" division, commanded by Brigadier General James T. Roberts, trained for 15 days with infantry, artillery, tanks, supply units and all other component parts of a division in mock combat. The exercises followed 12 months of weekend drill as separate units.

High ranking officials who observed the 63rd in action included Lt. General Joseph M. Swing, Sixth Army commander; Major General Frank H. Partridge, Sixth Army deputy commander; Brigadier General E. C. B. Danforth, California Military district commander; Colonel James C. Short, chief of staff, III Corps, and Colonel William Potter Jr., chief of staff, Southern California Military sub-district.

New Ambulance Railroad Car Streamlines Patient Travel

Maximum comfort and care of travelling patients were the major considerations in the planning of the Army's newest ambulance unit railroad car, which left the Presidio the first of this week following demonstrations for Sixth Army officers and personnel of Letterman Army Hospital. Also displayed was the latest type kitchen car.

The ambulance unit has accommodations for twenty-four patients and nine attendants, including doctors, nurses and technicians. Hospital-type cots for the patients are in three tiers in the main section of the car attractively painted with blue walls and cream ceilings. Roomettes for the nurses and a section for other attendants are at one end.

Next to the patients' section is the office for the nurses and doctors. Here is located the telephone and intercommunications system, as well as a call board on which patients can signal from their beds when they need assistance.

By use of the intercommunication system, doctors and nurses can be paged throughout any section of the train. Those paged can answer their calls on a private telephone line. The car's telephone system can also be connected with city systems while at depots.

The gleaming white diet kitchen of the car has an electric range and an electric refrigerator, as well as a freezing compartment.

The car has an overhead system which can be run by electricity for either heating or cooling. When part of a train, steam is used, but if this is unavailable the electrical system is available.

With two generators, the unit can be self-sustaining for its electricity requirements. When one generator becomes too heavily loaded, the other cuts in automatically. These generators can be easily removed and replaced. Several groups from Letterman Army Hospital visited the car to become familiar with its operation. Technical features were demonstrated by E. L. Jordan, locomotive and mechanic foreman from Sharpe General Depot, Lathrop, Calif.

Numerous refinements over previous kitchen cars have been incorporated into the latest type which was on display along with the ambulance unit. Improvements include installation of a regular cooking range, built-in refrigerator and cabinets, and a water filtering and purifying system. This car now has two doors, a screen one and a heavy metal one for use during inclement weather.

This is the first time that either car has been displayed in this area. Arrangements for bringing them here were made by the Sixth Army Transportation Section.

Roberts Troops See Propaganda Items Used by N. Korea

Camp Roberts, Calif.—Psychological warfare materials used in Chinese and North Korean propaganda attempts to undermine the morale of United Nations troops are currently on display at the information and education centers here.

These materials are from a collection of pamphlets, newspapers and other items brought back from Korea by Maj. Gen. Frank H. Partridge, Deputy Sixth Army Commander, and Lt. Col. Jack L. Weigant, 7th Armored Division assistant director of training. They were found in a white cloth sack inside a wooden mail box on the 1st Marine division's front.

Also in the sack were tabloid newspapers which were to show that the United States is a warlike nation, using for examples such stories as that of an 11-month old baby who received a draft notice. One paper contains a complete story on the "prisoner-of-war Olympic games" along with statements attributed to the prisoners that the Olympic will remain one of their most cherished memories.

The post centers are also showing propaganda material used by the United States.

Names Change

Transfer Centers and Transfer Points are the new designations for all activities formerly referred to as Separation Centers and Separation Points, Headquarters Sixth Army announced this week.

Since the large majority of personnel being released from active duty have Reserve obligations, these name changes are part of the Department of the Army's effort to insure an awareness of the concept of continuing service, active and reserve. The former names were considered to imply a severance from military jurisdiction rather than a transfer from the active service to a Reserve component.

New Carrier Is Used in Korea For Evacuation

Western Front, Korea—Use of America's newest armored personnel carrier—the T-18—for the first time in battle to evacuate soldiers safely in daylight under heavy Communist shelling has been revealed by the Army.

The full-tracked vehicles, sheathed and roofed with armor plate, brought back soldiers from abandoned Porkchop Hill. A division of Chinese artillery had the road zeroed in on its gun sights and it was considered impassable.

The armored vehicles rumbled up to the hill's remaining defenders in daylight, under direct view and fire of the Communists in this first trial under heavy fire. Their engines at full power, the carriers backed up to caves and bunkers to load on the Americans.

The carriers returned to Porkchop with engineer teams that blasted bunkers and caves before the Chinese could occupy them. Only one vehicle was seriously damaged.

The carriers hold about twenty-five men, but the number employed in the operation is security information.

While the old M-39 type carrier had been used for similar evacuation operations, they were not nearly as satisfactory, Army officers pointed out, because they did not have a roof to stop fire from above.

Signal Corps Officers Honored Prior to Taking New Duty Assignments

A group of Signal corps officers who have been assigned to new duty stations were honored at a farewell gathering recently, by members of the Signal section.

Those leaving include Colonel Lawrence E. Fouchs, chief, supply and maintenance division, Sixth Army Signal section, EUCOM; Colonel Stephen C. Dier, chief, communication division; CWO Clifton Tabor, radio control, radio communication branch, communications division; Captain Charles F. Rioridan, executive officer, Post Signal office; all to FECOM.

Lt. Colonel Leo R. Jensen, chief, radio communication branch, Alaska communication system; Lt. Colonel William J. Gannon, chief, wire communication branch, Fort Mason, California; Captain Elwin A. Vernon, assistant chief, wire communication branch, Advanced Signal Officers school, Fort Monmouth, New Jersey.

For Colonel Fouchs, the trip to the east coast will be a honeymoon, with stops along the way to visit relatives and friends including his mother, Mrs. Melvira M. Fouchs of New Martinsville, West Virginia.

Colonel Fouchs and Captain Margaret Edith Megill, ANC, were married in the First Methodist church of Palo Alto on 17 July. The bride is stationed at the Presidio as public health nurse and will join the colonel in EUCOM as soon as military assignment permits. She is the daughter of Mrs. Edith E. and the late Colonel Sebring C. Megill of Palo Alto.

Mrs. Fouchs joined the Army Nurse corps in 1940 and has been stationed at Walter Reed hospital, Letterman Army hospital, the Panama Canal zone, The Philippine Islands, and aboard the Army hospital ship "Hope" transferring wounded servicemen home from the Far East.

Col. Fouchs served as Post Signal officer, Fort George G. Meade, Maryland, and in Europe with the Advance section, Communication zone, the Seventh Army, and the US Control commission for Germany in Berlin during World War II.

His other assignments prior to coming to the Presidio included plans and policy section, Army General staff, the Pentagon.

Cp. Roberts Announces Essay Contest Winners

Camp Roberts, Calif.—Winners of the recent cost consciousness contest here were Pfc. Bernard A. Galler, Lt. John C. Meehan and Mrs. Marilyn Moore. Private Galler's winning essay will be forwarded to the Sixth Army Headquarters, Presidio of San Francisco, to be entered in competition with winners from other installations of the Sixth Army area.

The contest was sponsored by the Civilian Welfare Fund Council on the topic "What Cost Consciousness Means to Me." Those receiving honorable mention were WOJG Howard E. Dillon, Cpl. Clifford M. Nall, Pfc. Herbert F. Snook, Pfc. Pete Tamburello, Pfc. Claire M. Chalupsky, Pvt. Winfield G. Beach, Pvt. Billy L. Buck and Mr. Lawrence G. Withey.

10,000 PINTS OF BLOOD in the three months of its existence is the astounding record achieved at the Armed forces blood bank, Fort Lewis, Washington. Above, resting on cot, is Pvt. Richard Jensen, donor of the 10,000th pint, which is being held by Mrs. Robert Terrien, Red Cross nurse, who drew the blood. Others in the picture are, l. to r.: Colonel B. E. Craig, Army Personnel Center executive officer; Mr. Edward Mc-

Cabe, Red Cross field director; Colonel Edward Schmitt, commanding officer and blood bank co-ordinator, and Miss Amy Cunig, chief nurse. Pvt. Jensen was in the Army only five days when he volunteered as a donor. The blood center is operated by a staff of eight Red Cross nurses, who are assisted by civilian volunteers. (U. S. Army photo.)

Stops Pulled Out In Gigantic Fete For U.N. Commander

General Mark W. Clark, Supreme Commander of the United Nations Forces in the Far East and a legendary figure in two Free World efforts to halt world conquest, came home to a rousing welcome yesterday. Not since the return of General of the Army Douglas MacArthur had San Franciscans demonstrated so spontaneously for a returning military hero.

Met at the San Francisco Airport by a small delegation of civic and military leaders that included his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Oosting, and Sixth Army Commander Joseph M. Swing, General and Mrs. Clark were escorted to the City Hall for official welcoming ceremonies.

Obviously moved by the tremendous reception accorded him, General Clark spoke briefly and informally, indicating his pleasure that the people and city he had chosen for his future home (he will reside here following his retirement) had opened their hearts not only for him, but as a demonstrated measure of pride in the American Soldier who had so selflessly dedicated himself to the fight for freedom in Korea.

General Clark was honored with a gigantic parade down Market Street to the Palace Hotel. A smart stepping honor guard of Korean veterans and military and civilian bands and units made up the line of parade.

Later, as guest of honor at a luncheon sponsored by the Commonwealth Club and the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce Club, General Clark addressed a capacity audience in Garden Court.

In the evening he was guest of honor at an informal gang dinner at the San Francisco Press and Union League Club where he spoke off the record for a gathering of newsmen and civic leaders.

General and Mrs. Clark will fly to New Orleans tomorrow morning and be on hand for the marriage of their son, Army Major William D. Clark, to Mrs. Audrey Cairn Loflin on Monday.

After high level conferences in Washington, D. C., General Clark is expected to return to Tokyo around 10 August.

Army careers of fourteen senior officers and one master sergeant assigned to the Sixth Army will end at a retirement ceremony on the Main Parade ground of the Presidio at 1100 today. More than 600 Presidio troops headed by the Sixth Army band will parade in their honor.

Scheduled to participate in the ceremony are:

Brigadier General Burdett M. Fitch, Chief of the Utah Military District, completing a total of 35 years' service. During World War for Pacific Coast ports during the first two years of World War II and was then assigned to the Fifth Army in Italy and U. S. Forces, Austria. More than 34 years have elapsed since he first entered the Army.

Colonel James Notestein, Infantry, Chief, Information Section, Sixth Army. His more than 35 years of service include duty in the Philippines, Panama, and as commanding officer of the 371st Infantry in Italy during World War II. After the end of the war he became Chief of the Displaced Persons and Repatriation program in Italy and later served as Chief of the Liaison Branch and Deputy to the Chief of Information, Public Information Division, Washington, D. C.

Colonel Chester H. Elmes, Quartermaster Corps, Quartermaster Section, Sixth Army. One of the highlights of his forty years of military service was as Quartermaster for Corregidor, Philippine Islands, at the start of World War II. A prisoner of war of the Japanese, he returned to the Philippines as Quartermaster following the war and, just prior to coming to the Presidio to retire, was quartermaster of the Hawaiian Command.

Colonel James V. Collier, Artillery, Professor of Military Science and Tactics, Stanford University, with a total of more than 34 years' service. A member of General MacArthur's staff in Manila and the General Staff on Bataan at the start of World War II, he was taken prisoner by the Japanese and following the close of the war served as Deputy Post Commander of Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Colonel Thomas S. Gunby, Artillery, Inspector General's Section, Headquarters Sixth Army. He commanded the 17th Airborne Division Artillery during World War II and participated in the air drop across the Rhine in the "Ruhr Pocket" and in the "Battle of the Bulge." He was assigned as chief of the Artillery Section of the Military Mission to Turkey and went to Korea as Chief Adviser for the Turkish Brigade, later returning to command Camp Stoneman, Calif.

Colonel John S. Mallory, Artillery, Special Services Office, Sixth Army, with more than 36 years of service. Colonel Mallory was Artillery Commander for the XI Corps, Assistant Artillery Commander for XII Corps and Chief of Staff for United Kingdom Base in England during World War II. He was later Assistant Artillery Officer for Headquarters Second Army and Deputy Commander of Camp Holabird, Maryland. A graduate of the U. S. Military Academy in 1917, he followed his father, Brig. Gen. John S. Mallory, who II, General Fitch served four and a half years in the Pacific, first on the staff of Lt. Gen. G. H. Brett and later on the staff of General Douglas MacArthur. He was present at the signing of the Japanese surrender on the USS Missouri in September, 1945.

Colonel Wayland B. Augur, General Staff, Deputy Chief of Staff, Sixth Army, will be retired as a Brigadier General. He served as Combat Commander of the 13th Armored Division in World War II. He has a total of 36 years of active Army service.

Colonel Peter J. Lloyd, Infantry, Inspector General's Section, Headquarters Sixth Army, was Deputy Post Commander of the Presidio in 1949 and in 1952. Colonel Lloyd held the post of Inspector General was graduated 38 years previously and who retired after 43 years of service, and was followed at the Academy by his son, John S., Jr., who was graduated in 1947 and is now a captain in the Air Force.

Colonel Patrick E. Shea, Field Artillery, Professor of Military Science and Tactics at the University of Santa Clara, a veteran of more than 36 years of military service. Formerly commanding officer of the 64th Field Artillery Battalion, executive officer of the 24th Division Artillery and Commander of troops at Fort Shafter, Hawaii.

Col. Peter J. Lloyd

Colonel William F. LaFrenz, Artillery, Deputy Chief, California Military District. In his more than 36 years of active service he held various assignments in the United States, Hawaii, and as a Combat Control Team Commander with the Executive Headquarters of the "Marshal Mission" at Peiping, China.

Brig. Gen. B. M. Fitch

Colonel Albert E. Billing, Artillery, Senior Army Instructor, California National Guard, at Sacramento, with 36 years of service. Commanding officer of the 202nd Group in Europe during World War II, he was later commander of the Wherton American Technical School in England and in 1949 was

New Troop Basis Will Curtail Active Duty For Reserves

Two Department of the Army announcements this week indicate that budgetary limitations and a newly established troop basis will send thousands of non-regular officers and warrant officers to inactive duty within the next few months.

The first announcement authorizes certain non-regular officers and warrant officers to request release from active duty prior to the expiration of their current category. In general; 1) those who have completed 24 months service since 24 June 1948; 2) completed 12 months of service between 16 September 1940 and 24 June 1948; 3) completed 90 days service between 7 December 1941 and 2 September 1945, are eligible for release under this program. Department of the Army will decide the exact date of release upon receipt of application. Applications must be submitted by 1 September of this year.

However, a second announcement stated that the Army does not expect the early release programs to effect the number of releases that new troop programs will require. To make certain that new officer ceilings are reached, the Department of the Army has appointed boards to screen records and select certain individuals for forced separation prior to the expiration of their category.

Commanders have also been requested to nominate individuals for forced separation who are considered surplus to the needs of the Army. These nominations will be made by submitting special efficiency reports under current regulations. Reports must reach Department of the Army by 25 August, 1953.

Controls Extended!

Camp Roberts and Camp Stoneman were among the 24 areas redesignated as "critical rent areas" this week. This will extend rent controls in these areas until April 30, 1954, or until they are no longer needed. All controls in noncritical zones, including San Francisco, end at midnight tonight.

Signal School Course For Enlisted Personnel

Establishment of a Countermeasure Search and Analysis course to be conducted at the Signal School at Fort Monmouth, N. J. has been announced by Headquarters Sixth Army. The fourteen-week course will train enlisted personnel to install and operate electronic search equipment and analyze data received.

Prerequisites for the course include a standard score of 100 or higher on Aptitude Area I and security clearance to include Secret. MOS for which trained is Countermeasure Search Specialist (1840).

Applications for the course are to be submitted to Headquarters Sixth Army, ATTN: AMGCT-2, in accordance with current instructions.

Weekly World News AT A GLANCE

KOREAN ARMISTICE was accomplished Monday morning at Panmunjom with the signing of the truce agreement by United States Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, Jr., of the United Nations command, and North Korean Gen. Nam Il representing his Nation and Communist China. The Republic of Korea, which opposes a truce that leaves Korea divided, was not represented at the signing. All shooting along the 155-mile battle front stopped 12 hours after the signing. All troops and their equipment were withdrawn by Thursday evening to create a two and one-half mile wide demilitarized zone as a buffer between Allied and Communist territory. The demarcation line is anchored on the Imjin River just west of Munsan in the extreme west and runs north through Panmunjom, cuts northeast through Koropango to a point five miles north of Chorwon, runs due east to Heartbreak Ridge, then curves northeast to the coast at a point about five miles south of Kosong. Most of the outposts on which battles have been fought in the past year are in this demilitarized zone between the armies. First meeting of the Truce Supervisory Commission at Panmunjom has been set for Saturday. The commission is composed of representatives from Sweden, Switzerland, Poland and Czechoslovakia. First charges of truce violation were made by the Reds accusing the Allies of eight violations involving flights of United Nations aircraft over the demilitarized zone, while the Allies say Communist warplanes streamed from Manchuria to North Korea after the deadline earlier this week when all arms shipments into Korea were to have stopped. The Allies and Communists have agreed to begin exchanging prisoners of war on 5 August. Altogether 12,763 Allied prisoners, including 3,313 Americans, and 74,000 Communist prisoners are to be exchanged. The Communists will return about 400 United Nations prisoners daily, while the Allies will deliver about 2,400 able-bodied Red prisoners and about 360 sick and wounded daily. A neutral repatriation commission and 4,000 Indian troops will take custody of 7,800 North Koreans and 14,500 Chinese anti-Communist prisoners who have refused to return to their homelands and who will be held in the demilitarized zone.

INDO-CHINA's central coast was hit by air, sea and land as French Union forces attacked a 3,000-man Vietminh regiment base north of Hue, the capital of Annam province. French officers said heavy fighting had developed in this biggest action of the Indo-Chinese war since an armistice in Korea. The French threw 10,000 men into the assault and by Thursday were tightening a ring of steel around a series of villages, fighting fiercely along one street that winds through a string of coastal villages.

GERMAN relief records were broken when 200,000 persons from the Eastern zone defied the Reds to get free Western food. In all, a total of 450,000 food packages have been handed out to hungry East Germans this week. Red police arrested many persons in East Berlin but some were freed later. The first truckload of American supplies to bolster the food drive left Hamburg for Berlin early Tuesday after being stopped for a "routine inspection" and then released by the Russians at a checkpoint on the edge of the Iron Curtain. East German Premier Otto Grotewohl told the Soviet zone Parliament that the free Western food is nothing short of an American provocation.

HUNGARY is reported to have promised to consider a British request for the release of Edgar Saunders, who was jailed on espionage charges in late 1949 along with American businessman Robert Vogeler. A few months later a Budapest court sentenced him to 13 years' imprisonment after finding him guilty of espionage and sabotage. The U. S. Government later negotiated the release of Vogeler, but British efforts to win freedom for Saunders so far have failed. . . . ARRIVING IN YUGOSLAVIA, two American doctors were taken to see ailing Cardinal Stepinac, Archbishop of Zagreb, who has been confined by the Communist government to a small mountain village for war-time collaboration. He is suffering from a rare blood disease and the two American specialists flew from the United States with radio-active phosphorus to treat him.

ITALY's leftists and rightists joined together Tuesday to overthrow Premier Alcide de Gasperi's new government. Communists and Socialists teamed with Monarchists and Neo-Fascists to vote "no confidence" in the de Gasperi's All-Christian Democratic Cabinet. It was the first such defeat for the 72-year-old Premier, who has been head of Italy's governments continuously since December, 1945. De Gasperi immediately submitted his resignation to President Luigi Einaudi. At Einaudi's request, however, he agreed to remain in office with his present Cabinet on a caretaker basis until a new Premier is named.

THROUGHOUT THE SOVIET UNION, Communists were advised in a Fiftieth Anniversary party manifesto Sunday that their leaders would remain closely to Lenin's broad Socialist theories and that a prime concern of Communism is "maximum satisfaction" of the peoples' growing demands. The statement, marking a half century since the founding of the party, had the strength of a major policy directive from the country's leaders to every party organization and member in the land.

IRAN's Premier Mohammed Mossadegh told his people they must choose between him and the 23-man rump Majlis (Parliament), which is making a last-ditch fight against his policies. He is planning a nation-wide referendum which it is believed will take place sometime next week, asking Iranians to vote for or against dissolution of the rump Majlis, from which 56 Mossadegh supporters already have resigned. . . . JORDAN's cabinet met for the first time Monday in the Arab-held section of Jerusalem. A ministerial source said last week occasional cabinet meetings would be held there to counteract Israel's recent transfer of her foreign ministry to the Jewish-held section of the Holy City. The Israelis call Jerusalem their capital and all Government agencies now are situated there. The Arab Nation has protested this move.

ENGLAND's acting Prime Minister Richard Butler told the House of Commons that Britain still wants four-power talks between the heads of the United States, French, Russian and British governments. Butler added that the Western Big Three nations still are awaiting Russia's reply to their invitation for a foreign ministers' conference on the German and Austrian questions.

Summary Given Of Army Blood Donor Program

Five installations of the Sixth Army have reported blood collections during the first six months of this year which equal or exceed one-half of their annual quota, a summary of the Army blood donor program through June reveals.

These installations and the percentage of their revised annual quotas collected as of the end of June are as follows: Arizona Military District, 233.6 per cent; Fort Douglas, 77.2 per cent; Seattle Port of Embarkation, 69.4 per cent; Auburn General Depot, 56.8 per cent, and Camp Stoneman, 51.9 per cent.

For the entire Sixth Army area, the quota for the current calendar year is 181,648. Of this amount, only one third had been collected during the first six months.

The Umatilla Ordnance Depot narrowly missed meeting half of its yearly quota with a total of 48 per cent for the first six months, while Camp San Luis Obispo reported 42.5 per cent.

Service Birthdays!

Four Army service branches were celebrating anniversaries this week. Three of these, Army Medical Service, founded 27 July, 1775 and the Chaplains Corps and Judge Advocate Generals Corps, founded 29 July, 1775, will mark their 178th anniversaries. The junior member of the group, the Transportation Corps, will be celebrating 11 years of service.

Law of the Land

The Senate has ratified a North Atlantic Treaty Organization treaty, rejecting a proposal that the U. S. hold exclusive jurisdiction over members of its Armed Forces or civilian components for off-duty violations of foreign laws in NATO countries. The NATO pact includes a reciprocal agreement concerning foreign nationals in NATO countries, with the understanding that they are subject to the laws of the country in which they are serving.

Roberts Corporal Develops Revolutionary Training Aid

Camp Roberts, Calif.—Cpl. William J. Ring, modelmaker for 7th Armored Division Training Aids, has invented a small plastic model of an M-1 rifle trigger group for instructing of trainees in the working mechanism of this vital part of the infantry soldier's rifle.

Made of colored plastic, the model is used in connection with a Vue-Graph machine which reflects the transparencies onto a screen. This new plastic model costs about $5 to make as compared to the cost of $75 for the wooden model presently used.

For Corporal Ring, the invention was a matter of starting from scratch. Although a skilled model maker, he had had no previous experience working with plastic.

One of his toughest problems was coloring the plastic for, if the model were to be successful, the important parts had to be of different colors. He first tried various types of ink, but none of these worked, so after some research he purchased a special type of dye out of his own funds. When he did not succeed with his initial attempts with the dye, he mixed in acid which made a rough surface on the plastic in which the dye would set.

The completed model was sent to Headquarters Sixth Army where officials of the Training Aids Branch of G-3 and the Signal Section have expressed enthusiasm over its possibilities.

Corporal Ring's model will be used next month to illustrate the type of progressive work by the Army in the use of visual aids at a conference of the Department of Audio-Visual Instructions of the National Education Association in Washington, D. C.

School Aid Approved

The House has passed a bill authorizing a $227 million program of school construction aid for areas crowded with "federally connected" children. Most of the fund would be for areas that have become congested with military or federal employee families since 1952.

Topic

Refusal of the Soviet Union to agree on terms to end the occupation of Austria has resulted in the question which will be the topic of next week's Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units — "Can Austria Be Freed?"

During World War II, Allied leaders repeatedly promised to treat Austria as a liberated country, not as a captured enemy, on the basis of the established fact that Austria was a victim of Nazi aggression and not a willing party to it. Re-establishment of a free and independent Austria was promised in the Moscow Declaration issued in 1943 by the Soviet Union, the United States, and the United Kingdom.

When Austria was liberated in 1945, the Allies set up occupation machinery to restore order in the country. It was assumed that the occupation would be brief and no treaty would be needed to restore her independence. Yet, because of the Soviet's refusal to agree on terms to end it, the occupation of Austria has lasted long after former enemy countries like Italy and Japan have been completely freed.

Background discussions on the question will include a brief history of the land and the people, Austrian politics, Hitler's taking over by force, and the country under Allied occupation.

This subject is the subject of Armed Forces TALK, Number 443.

MEDAL OF HONOR

"Conspicuous gallantry and indomitable courage above and beyond the call of duty" has earned the Nation's highest award for Army Sgt. David B. Bleak, Army Medical Service. While serving with the 223rd Inf. Rgt., 40th Div. in the vicinity of Minari-gol, Korea, Sgt. Bleak volunteered to go out with a patrol committed to engage the enemy and capture a prisoner for questioning. As they approached the enemy position the patrol was subjected to heavy automatic and small arms fire wounding several of the men. Sgt. Bleak, a medical aidman, administered to the wounded and continued on with the patrol. As they neared the top of the hill several more men were wounded. When Sgt. Bleak tried to go to their aid he came under fire from a small group concealed in a trench. He jumped into the trench and killed two of the enemy with his bare hands, the third with a trench knife. Later in the same action he shielded a member of the patrol from a grenade blast with his body. While attending the wounded he was hit by enemy fire but continued his ministrations. Despite the wound he undertook to evacuate a wounded comrade. As he moved down the hill with his heavy burden he was attacked by two enemy soldiers with fixed bayonets. He grabbed the aggressors and smashed their heads together and then carried his helpless comrade down the hill to safety. . . . "Sgt. Bleak's dauntless courage and intrepid actions reflect utmost credit upon himself and are in keeping with honored traditions." (AFPS)

Selective Service Chief Speaks At Regional Training Conference Session

Major General Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, addressed the opening session of the annual two-week regional Selective Service Training Conference that got underway at the Presidio this week.

In speaking to the 17 members representing major National Guard and Reserve units throughout five western states, Utah, New Mexico, California, Colorado, Wyoming and the Territory of Hawaii, General Hershey emphasized the continuing need for strengthening our ready reserves and keeping manpower currents in full flow regardless of the chameleon appearance of world conditions.

This is the sixth of seven regional conferences that will be held throughout the United States this year. Others have already been held in Atlanta, Dallas, Norfolk, New York City, and Chicago, with another slated for Seattle next month.

In the first week's session, members are assigned to committees of six each and take under study three subjects, methods, projects and aids. The second week is devoted to discussion and establishment of unit training schedules.

Some 66 Reserve Training Units and 48 National Guard Sections are represented at these annual meetings, aimed at studying and providing training methods in current operational procedures for Guard members, and earmarked selective service officers from all branches of the services.

Colonel Dee Ingold, QMC, from the Department of the Army is conference director. Colonel Raymond E. Porter, USAF, and Major William T. Armstrong, USMCR, are the regional field officers.

Members at the Presidio conference included: Major Charles C. Bunch, AFR, Albuquerque, New Mexico; Captain Henry A. Weatherby, USAR, Gasper, Wyoming; Lt. Comdr. Alonzo B. May, USNR, Denver, Colorado; Lt. Comdr. Clarence L. Hodge, USCGR, Honolulu, Hawaii; Lt. Comdr. Henry I. Weitzel, USCGR, Pasadena, California; Maj. James H. Abell, AFR, Pueblo, Colorado; Comdr. John P. Puffinbarger, USNR, San Andreas, California; Lt. Col. Bryon F. Christianson, USAR, Salt Lake City, Utah; Col. Francis V. Keesling, Jr., USAR, San Francisco, California; Capt. William Nelson, USAR, Santa Cruz, California; Maj. J. G. Smith, NGUS, Phoenix, Arizona; Maj. William L. Shaw, NGUS, Sacramento, California; Col. Thurston T. Houghton, NGUS, Denver, Colorado; Capt. Cecil L. Miller, NGUS, Reno, Nevada; Capt. Paul B. Dailley, NGUS, Albuquerque, New Mexico; Maj. Harold G. Miller, NGUS, Salt Lake City, Utah; Lt. William R. Hovis, NGUS, Cheyenne, Wyoming; Maj. George E. Goss, NGUS, Oahu, T. H.

Port Scrap Operation Tops Previous Marks

San Francisco Port of Embarkation today reported that salvage and scrap operations at the Port Quartermaster's Property Disposal Branch at Oakland Army Base produced a cash return to the government of $248,711.00 in the first six months of 1953. This compared with cash return of $247,763.93 for the entire year in 1952.

Cash returns in this Army operation that more than pays its own way are received through sale through competitive bids to dealers and individuals of scrap metal, paper, old equipment and other material salvaged in Korea and other Pacific ocean bases and also within the Western United States.

In addition to its cash sales the Port salvage operation reclaimed and turned over to the Armed services for further use property valued at $265,379.06 and turned over to federal institutions, schools and other authorized agencies property valued at $430,456.15 for a total of $944,546.81 for the six months as compared to $916,285.06 for all of 1952.

Civilian News Notes

By Earl F. Reinke

Note: The information furnished below has been prepared for release by the Civil Service Commission, in connection with the new Separated Career Employee program. The basic purpose of the program is to retain RIFd career employees in Government jobs through displacement of indefinite employees if necessary. The questions and answers explain how this will be done.

Q. What help does a laid-off career employee get in his own agency?

A. He is helped in two ways:

1. He gets a 1-year priority over employees of other agencies and persons outside the Government (except disabled veterans) for vacant jobs in his former agency in the local commuting area.
2. His former agency must survey jobs held by indefinite employees in the local commuting area to see if there are any for which he is qualified. If it finds such a job, the agency must separate the indefinite to make room for him.

Q. What help does he get from the Civil Service Commission?

A. The Civil Service Commission will order other agencies in the local commuting area to displace an indefinite (generally a non-status employee appointed on an indefinite basis) in order to make room for him if he cannot be placed by his former agency.

Q. Does this change the benefits that laid-off career employees had in the past?

A. No, the new program is in addition to the benefits a laid-off career employee has received.

Q. Whose names are put on reemployment priority lists?

A. The names of all career and career-conditional employees of an agency separated from the competitive service through reduction in force.

Q. How long does a name stay on a list?

A. For one year.

Q. What jobs are covered by the lists?

A. Each laid-off career employee has his name placed on lists for all jobs in the agency for which he is qualified.

Q. What priority do persons on the list get?

A. They receive priority for filling any vacancies in the agency. Generally speaking, an agency cannot hire someone from outside, other than a disabled veteran, to fill a vacancy in the local area if there is some one on the reemployment priority list for that position.

Q. In what grade of job is the career employee entitled to displace an indefinite by agency action?

A. He may displace an indefinite in a job at the grade in which he has been laid off, or at the highest grade held prior to September 1, 1950 (the effective date of the Whitten amendment), whichever is higher.

Q. Can a laid-off career employee force the firing of ANY indefinite employee in his agency—regardless of his job?

A. No, the agency is required to separate an indefinite only when he holds a job for which the laid-off employee is qualified.

Q. If a laid-off career employee is willing to take a job in another part of the country, must his agency displace an indefinite there?

A. No. Although the agency may take this action if it wishes to do so, it is required to separate indefinites only in the local commuting area in which the career employee was laid off.

Q. What happens when an agency cannot place a separated career employee through firing an indefinite?

A. The agency certifies that it has no job held by an indefinite that the career employee can fill. It has 30 days from the last day of active duty of the career employee in which to check its jobs. The employee's name, of course, remains on the reemployment priority lists in the agency for the remainder of the 1-year period from the date of the reduction-in-force notice.

Q. When may a career employee who has received a reduction-in-force notice file applications with Civil Service Commission offices?

A. He may file applications as soon as he receives his reduction-in-force notice. He may not file later than 90 days from his last day of active duty.

Q. After receiving a separated career employee's applications, will the Commission proceed automatically to search for indefinites to displace?

A. No, since this service is given by the Commission only after his former agency finds it cannot hire him through displacement of an indefinite. When the agency finds it cannot place him through displacement of an indefinite, it gives the career employee a certification in writing to this effect. The career employee sends copies of the certification to the Commission offices with which he has filed, and the offices which have jurisdiction over the filling of positions in the commuting area will try to locate an indefinite employee in another agency who may be displaced by the career employee. Such offices will also continue to refer the career employee ahead of other eligibles to fill regular vacancies.

New Veterans Chief

Harvey V. Higley, a 61 year old Marinette, Wisconsin industrialist has succeeded Carl R. Gray, Jr., as Administrator for Veterans' Affairs.

A graduate of the University of Wisconsin, with a degree in chemical engineering, Mr Higley is chairman of the board of directors of the Ansul Chemical Company.

Famed Guerrilla Fighter to Retire After 32 Years Service

By Gloria Hetherington
Star-Presidian Feature Editor

Lt. Colonel Memecio M. Santos, whose last duty assignment was as Sub-Post commander (Forts Barry, Baker and Cronkhite) retired from the Army today after 32 years of service. He had served the Sub-Posts since January 1950.

Shortly after the outbreak of World War II, when the Japanese reached the Philippines, Colonel Santos was taken prisoner and held from May to August 1942. He was released due to illness.

Following his release in August, Col. Santos sold his rice lands and with the money organized and commanded a unit of guerrillas under the name of Andres Bonifacio.

The group operated in and around Manila and so outstanding was his battle against the enemy that Colonel Santos found himself second only to General Lim in "men most wanted" by the Japanese Military Police. His wife, sister and nephew all were captured, held as hostages and finally killed by the Japanese.

When his guerrilla activities ceased in February 1945, Colonel Santos later took over Military control of the Philippine Scouts, a part of the American Army.

Arriving in this country, he was with Headquarters company at Fort Scott, prior to becoming Sub-Post commander.

Colonel Santos was commissioned from civilian life in August 1921 while an engineering student at Cornell university from which he was graduated. Prior to that he had already served as a second lieutenant in the Philippine National Guard.

He has spent most of his military career in the Philippines, and from 1922 to 1926 he was detailed with the Department of Military Science at the University of the Philippines.

He was detailed with the Military mission to the Philippines Commonwealth under General Douglas MacArthur from 1937 to 1941, and was on the staff of the commanding general of Manila and Subic Bay up to the fall of Corregidor.

Colonel Santos is a graduate of the Command and General Staff school, the Coast Artillery school, the Chemical Warfare Field officers school and the Quartermaster Corps school.

He has remarried and has purchased a home in San Francisco where he and his wife and 11 children will reside. The oldest son has returned to college after service in Germany and the second son is now attending Preparatory school USMA, Newburgh, New York.

Rollins College Offers Scholarships to K-Vets

Winter Park, Fla.—Rollins College has announced a scholarship program for "an unlimited number of qualified Korean veterans" on the basis of financial need, as well as other qualifications, to supplement the benefits under the Korean GI Bill.

The Rollins scholarships, which are now being awarded, are from $250 to $500 per year. The Korean GI Bill (Public Law 500) provides for a monthly training allowance of $110 for a single veteran, $135 for veterans with one dependent, and $160 for veterans with two or more dependents.

No limit on the number of scholarships that will be awarded has been set by the college, which has an enrollment of 600, including 300 men for the four-year liberal arts courses. Rollins operates for three terms: fall, winter and spring, and new students can be admitted at the beginning of each of these terms in some circumstances.

New Bill Would OK Income Tax Deduction For Uniform Expense

Washington — Representative Richard H. Poff, (R-Va.), has introduced a bill which would allow servicemen and women to deduct from their income tax the cost of uniforms, less clothing allowances, that they have to buy.

The bill, which is an amendment to Sec. 23 of the Internal Revenue code, limits the amount deductible in any one year to $200.

Mr. Poff pointed out that civilians who are engaged in an occupation which requires special apparel are allowed to deduct the costs of this apparel provided it is required as a condition of employment, and is not adaptable for general usage.

In the case of the Armed Forces, Mr. Poff pointed out, the uniform is special apparel, is required for employment and is not adaptable for civilian usage.

"Assuredly our servicemen and women," Mr. Poff said, "are entitled to the same benefits as our civilian income earners and taxpayers." (AFPS)

Red Cross Aims To Refute Lies On Blood Sales

Washington—The national convention of the American Red Cross, meeting here, has voted overwhelmingly in favor of a resolution calling for action to refute lies being spread about its services.

Calling for an "aggressive, year-round campaign to enlighten the American public," Edward P. Clayton of Mississippi, newly elected to the board of governors, said that primary among the lie targets is the often repeated story that the Red Cross charges individual servicemen for blood.

John W. Pearsall, another newly elected member, said that of 24 cases in which returning servicemen told of blood sales, 17, upon questioning, signed affidavits that they had deliberately falsified and the balance pleaded hearsay or misunderstanding.

(AFPS, wishing to get a definite statement on the matter of expense to the services, checked with Red Cross national headquarters. It was determined that the Red Cross receives "around $6.00" for each pint of blood. This money, officials pointed out, is used to defray shipping and processing expenses. All other expenses necessary in blood procurement are borne by the Red Cross.)

The Red Cross also is anxious to fight the canard that the society sells cigarettes and coffee to servicemen. Mr. Clayton, in his speech said, "we know that the Red Cross doesn't sell anything to anyone."

Mr. Clayton asserted that the untruths were cropping up with such similarity and consistency as to indicate they might be subversively inspired. (AFPS)

Missing A Letter?

The Department of Army announced a large quantity of mail for Korea was lost July 14 with the sinking of the S. S. Jacob Luckenbach 11 miles outbound from San Francisco.

The ship sank after a collision with the S. S. Hawaiian Pilot in a thick fog.

Postal authorities estimated the mail originated in the United States between July 3-12. Sixty-one pouches of first class mail, 4,077 sacks of parcels and 436 pieces of oversized parcels were lost in the sinking. (AFPS)

New WMSC Entrant Commissioned During Graduation Exercises

In a surprise ceremony which took place during their own 69th graduation exercises, students of the Annie Wright seminary, Tacoma, Wash., saw one of their instructors in physical education sworn into the Women's Medical Specialist corps recently.

Captain Gertrude J. Murray, WMSC, Presidio of San Francisco, was present to administer the oath to Miss Ann Bogrette, who was one of 22 applicants selected from throughout the United States for the 12-months' physical therapy course.

This course is open to a limited number of young women between the ages of 21 and 28, who have received a baccalaureate degree with satisfactory courses in the biological and physical sciences and psychology.

Lt. Bogrette, who will begin her training in September, is the first faculty member ever to be sworn into the service at a commencement ceremony of this type, Captain Murray said.

Lt. Bogrette is a graduate of Tufts college, Medford, Mass., and Bouvé-Boston (School of Physical Education).

Army Makes Big Business For Small Firms

Washington — More than three-fourths of the contracts being let by the Army are going to small business.

Of the 620,979 contracts let from July 1, 1952, to Jan. 1, 1953, more than 472,400, or 76 per cent, went to small business—firms employing fewer than 500 persons.

This 76 per cent slice represented $960,562,600 (M) or 41 per cent of the $2,331,413,300 (B) in contracts awarded by the Army during this period.

In addition to the contracts let by the Army to small businesses, an estimated 60 cents of every dollar contracted with big business goes to small business through sub-contracts.

Although big business is getting two or three times as much as small business in dollar volume, the small firms are way on top in the number of contracts awarded.

The reason for this is that contracts in the million dollar bracket normally can be filled only by big business—firms having mammoth technical staffs, extensive experience, and financial resources sel-

Group's First Play! "Time of Your Life," Production At Cronkhite Club on 14, 15 Aug.

"The Time of Your Life," William Saroyan's laugh, laugh epic about wonderful people who pass in and pass out—of a charming saloon, will be presented by the Fort Cronkhite Little Theatre group on 14 and 15 August.

Productions are set for the Fort Cronkhite Service club and will begin at 2000.

Pvt. James McGuire, 505th MP Battalion, Fort Baker, will direct the play, assisted by Miss Beth Galt, Fort Cronkhite Service club director. Pvt. McGuire attended Beloit college, Beloit, Wisconsin, and has played in summer stock.

Service personnel who will take part in the play include Cpl. Larry Tubelle, Cpl. George Seaman, M/Sgt. Joseph Pacheco, Cpl. Joseph Aulenti, Jr., Sgt. Gerald Boss, Pfc. John J. Jurovich, Cpl. James Burgess, Pfc. Kay W. Prestwick, Sgt. Gilbert Gaines, Pfc. Carl Miller, Pfc. Earnest Perry and Pvt. Richard Rose.

Other Service club directors at Both Forts Cronkhite and Baker, who will assume feminine roles in the play include Misses Gertrude McConnell, Janet Horning and Rita Ringwood.

The major role of Kitty Duval will be taken by Marilyn Tobener, director of the Larkspur Children's theatre and formerly with the Presidio Service club. Others in a civilian status who will appear in the cast include Miss Lexie Hall, Miss Elizabeth Helm and a pair of bright youngsters "Skippy" Charles Brown and Vickie Lee Brown.

Presidio Officers Club Slugs to Post Intramural Softball League Crown

The seemingly unconquerable Presidio Officers' Club nine burned to a sizzling season victory over the six other teams in the Post Intramural Softball League this week to capture the cup and stand ready to defend their laurels against Sixth Army competition in the All-Sixth Softball Tournament scheduled for the end of the summer.

The week's victories were registered against the 102 MRU and Detachment teams.

The MRU game was hardly a contest. The final 23-3 tally was recorded after only five innings, at which point the inequality of the teams made an early finish necessary.

505th MP's Captain Francis Hoskins hurled masterfully for the major part of the game, holding the MRU to three hits, with teammate Captain Holtz taking the mound in the latter innings.

Equally dazzling was Hoskins' batting record. He connected five for five, sparking the 12 run first-inning splurge with two round-trippers, and running up a total of seven RBI's for the afternoon.

Against Detachment A Holtz and Hoskins went to the mound again to lead the indomitable brass to a 12-4 victory.

Heaviest on the wood was Lt. Papp, who homered with two men on in the bottom of the fifth.

A little late in the season to mean a lot but nonetheless startling was the news this week of the HQ Sixth Army victories.

That once luckless team suddenly bounced into focus to register four straight wins, two against league-leaders.

The startling 9th Ack Ack upset of two weeks ago was followed recently by Headquarters victories over Detachment A, Harbor Defense and—to show fans they meant business—the tough Fort Scott Hill Toppers.

Last Monday's slug-match against the Guard crew saw HQ's batman Brandstetter spark his team's heavy-stickers with a home run and three singles.

Two Moffett Flyers Fly to Cycle Victory

Moffett NAS, Calif.—Two Navy airmen, Dave and Ron Rhoads composed half of a four man San Jose, Calif., cycling team credited with the first win recorded over a Japanese team on a goodwill tour of the U. S. and Canada. Dave scored 19 points in San Jose's 40-25 victory.

Attention Gridders!

All personnel at the Presidio who are interested in signing up with the Post football team for the 1953 season are invited to attend pre-season practice sessions on the Main Athletic Field, in front of the Presidio Theatre, at 1700 hours on weekdays. Uniforms and shoes will be available at the Post Athletic Office, Bldg. 122, for those who are without them. These sessions are not mandatory for team members, but will be of considerable value to those players who are free to attend after the workday.

Footballers in Marines

Quantico, Va.—Ten members of the Eastern Kentucky State football team are Marine officer candidates here. The players enlisted en masse for Platoon Leaders class.

CAPTAIN FRANCIS HOSKINS of Officers Club displays pitching form that hurled his softball team to the Intramural League Circuit crown this year.

Teammates Thompson, Ickert, Weathersby, Palinsky, Zielinsky and hurler Schook took turns at bat pounding out the singles and doubles that rang the eventual 14-9 tally.

On Wednesday the Headquarters turned cellarward and throttled the Harbor defense 9-1. Schook again mounded his best, binding the sailor bats to a slim three hits, while Weathersby sparked his team hit-wise with a triple, unsacking two men for the tally.

Ickert poled two others across while Wagner and Thompson each batted two for four.

Last Friday came the real pay-dirt for the HQ team in their upset meeting with the top-rung Hill Toppers.

505th Instructors Blast To Sixth Victory; Sneak Past MP Pistol Packers

The 505th MP Yellow Tops waxed hot on their softball win streak this week with their sixth victory in a row, this one against the Pistol Packers, a team of MP trainees.

The Pistol Packers led through the top of the fifth bracket, whereupon Yellow Top Aspermy exploded with a roundtripper, blasting two men off the sacks and thrusting the instructors into a one-run lead.

Milt Garfield poled three for four with a customarily wicked bat, while hurler Pfc. Les Nuckolls allowed five hits.

The final score was a squeaking 7-6.

Grid Star Out Soon

Elmer Willhoite, the All-American guard from the University of Southern California, is expected to receive a medical discharge from the Marine Corps soon. After reporting to the Recruit Depot here for training, the examining physician reported Willhoite had cartilages and ligaments torn in his knee, the result of old football injuries.

The Fort Scott sluggers led 5-0 into the bottom of the fourth bracket, whereupon HQ's Schook cracked a Texas Leaguer to spark a six run rally which eventually meant the game. Teammate "Pepper" Palinsky gained inspiration from Schook and thrashed out a triple with the bases loaded.

In the fifth and sixth frames the HQ boys, tasting blood, marked up four more runs and iced Topper batting in the seventh to take the game with a squeaking 10-9 edge.

Hurler Schook, the team's manager as well as moundster, chucked all three winners, allowing a total of 19 hits for the week's business.

99th Repro Keglers Edge 21st Alibis 3-1 For 30th Engineer Win

The 99th Repro five swept a four-game series from the 21st Alibis Tuesday night to become the top team in the 30th Engineer bowling league with a game tally of 9-3.

Highlights of the series included a lumber-levelling 187 rolled by Lowell for the Alibis and a 186 ten-frame total by 99th bowler Hoover.

Following a single win by third-place Headquarters Company, the 21st Soltechs handily won their second and third game and eked out their third triumph for the evening by a slim margin of one pin to clear the maple for three out of four and to take a league's second-place with eight and four.

Kegler action will continue for eight weeks, with the winning team being awarded a championship trophy. A rotating trophy will be held as well for the champion teams. Winning team members will each receive a trophy and the runner-up bowlers will be given medals. (Cpl. Allen VanSoest)

Second & Last!

505th Cinderellas Wax Kips For Season's Second Triumph

By Pvt. Bruce Lansbury

The indomitable Able Company trainees and cadre baseball team from the 505th Military Police Training Battalion at Fort Baker did it once more this week and closed out their short season with a perfect game score: two wins.

The victory this week was registered against the San Francisco semi-pro outfit called the Cannon Kips, at 5-3.

The afternoon saw the policemen trailing the Kips 3-2 up to the top of the ninth bracket.

There was one man out and no one on when hard-hitting MP "Boots" Butsumyo went to bat. He drew an Annie Oakley to first.

Forthwith, teammates Donald Bayer and Phil Susic also walked, the latter being struck by a pitched ball.

Then Aspermy, usually a heavy hitter, sacrificed himself on a bunt to bring teammate Butsumyo home for the tying run.

For the clincher, Dennis Benson poled a line single to bring in Bayer and Susic for the two-marker margin.

Perhaps the most entertaining aspect of the game concerned the activities of team manager Sergeant Gerald Peterson, named "The Tiger" on account of his frequent arguments with the umpire and opposition players on behalf of his own boys.

Peterson's leonine qualities recalled the antics of another, more notable baseball figure, namely Leo Durocher.

Like Leo, Peterson, in his ardent solicitations on behalf of the MP's, strutted, bickered, fumed and wrangled in true big league style, in a way that perhaps served to take the edge off the un-businesslike appearance of the MP team—uniformed as they were in combat boots and fatigues.

The coming end of the Able Company training cycle means the end, too, of a short-lived but nonetheless fruitful baseball team.

Managed and coached by "Tiger" Peterson, the congregation was put together at the inspiration of A Company Platoon Sergeant Dick Barton a few weeks ago. In its short life-span, it has met and conquered two semi-pro teams of no mean calibre.

But the value of this ball team can be rated by more than wins and losses. The 505th trainees and cadre have put forth a bright example of the essential purpose in the Service sports program.

They have shown what a unit can do with its own materials, men and equipment, only a few hours per week to practice, and a little ingenuity.

We wait with anticipation to see what sort of a ball team the next A Company training cycle will bring us.

LAH Sergeant Ace

A total of 30 contestants lined the Number One green at the Post Pitch 'n Putt course last Saturday to take part in the Post hole-in-one tourney, given in support of the AER drive. Proceeds from the event summed $17.80. First-place winner was Letterman Army Hospital's M/Sgt. John B. Angelo, whose winning ball bounced within five feet four inches of an ace shot. Second to Angelo was M/Sgt. Leonard Hoaglund, who came to within eight feet one inch of the cup. The winner was awarded a cash prize.

45th Engineers Down 99th; HQ Team Gigs Surveyors in Pitch Dual

A red hot 45th Engineer nine smashed out another win this week, defeating the tough 99th Engineers with a round 19-7, keeping a covetous hold on the league first place.

Going right to work, the 45th heavy-stickers sent home a total of ten runs in the first frame and five more tallies in the second.

Leading hitters for the winners were Sheetz, Chicca, Brinkmeyer, (pitcher) and Piug who homered.

Big bats for the 99th were home-run polers Starks and Reilly.

In another game last week, the Headquarters team got behind the controlled hurling of Joe Conception to stifle the Surveyors 10-6.

Following a tight pitcher's duel for five innings, the Headquarters boys suddenly broke loose with heavy bats to score five runs and ice the game.

Up to the fifth no Surveyor reached first base. Then Lamping led off with a line single over second to spark an ineffective rally. Teammate Jones belted a round-tripper for the losers in the sixth bracket.

Headquarters was led at the plate by Herzog, with four for four, and Wilson, who smashed his first home run of the season. (By Pfc. Gerry Odom)

Reich Whiffs 17

Norfolk, Va.—Camp Lejeune's southpaw Bob Reich struck out 17 men recently in pitching a four-hit 8-0 shutout over the Service Force, Atlantic Fleet team.

Raiders Vanquish Stoneman; Lose Tilt With Coast Guard

The Presidio Red Raiders broke even in wins and losses this week with a lambasting 16-2 triumph over the Camp Stoneman team and a sneak 9-7 failure with the Bay Area League Champion Coast Guards.

Arkie Stanton pitched both games, limiting the teams to 12 hits between them and shining brightly at bat.

Against Stoneman he fanned seven opponents, while teammates Williamson and Taylor thrashed out winning rally home runs. Gene Jacobs and Stanton registered two hits apiece, Jacobs being instrumental in bringing a total of four markers across home plate.

Although the game was a loss, the Raiders showed beautifully against the Coast Guard. Hurler Stanton, at his best, whiffed 10 adversaries, while Sea Hawk moundsman Sullivan achieved only four.

Klopp, Stanton, and Fucile each bagged a roundtripper, while Jacobs and Taylor supported with singles and doubles.

The only thing that stopped the Raiders from going to victory was a walloping double by Sea Hawk De Benedetti in the eighth bracket, which served to unsack two teammates and summarily break up a taut tie.

The two games served to give the Raiders appropriate prepping for the coming All-Sixth Baseball Tournament, to be held at Fort Ord 24-28 August.

Fourth Army Team Cops All-Army Golf Title

The National SPORT SCENE

Cooperstown, New York, Hall of Fame officially welcomed DIZZY DEAN and AL SIMMONS last Tuesday. The National Association of Minor Leagues' President, GEORGE TRAUTMAN, delivered the principal address after unveiling the plaques. Following the dedication ceremonies was the annual exhibition game between the Chicago White Sox and Cincinnati Reds at Doubleday Field. Unless retired five years effective 1 January, 1954, a coach, manager, player or umpire will not be eligible for election to the select group of players in the Hall of Fame. One year retirement, heretofore, the player was eligible. In previous elections the eight players who received more than 100 votes, five were retired more than the new requirement, but three fall in the other category, they are DIMAGGIO, BILL DICKEY and TED LYONS, both of whom are coaching. From the records of the players, the election will strictly depend on receiving 75 per cent of the votes as in the past.

HARRY MARKSON and TRUMAN GIBSON, big time Easterners representing the International Boxing Club (IBC) were in town last week to "feel the pulse of San Francisco" before determining if a HARRY TURPIN-BOBO OLSON fight should be held here instead of New York. They were taken to a fancy lunch by SID FLAHERTY, IBC's astute manager, who trilled and fluted the virtues, hospitality and sweeping generosity of all San Franciscans. "You'll be taken by their wonderful ways," said Flaherty. Markson was soon to be convinced, especially when they left the restaurant. Someone had stolen his hat!

TED WILLIAMS of the Boston Red Sox has been given a complete bill of health by the doctors of the suburban Naval Hospital in Bethesda, Md., after undergoing treatments for nearly a month. It was formerly announced that he was to be released 1 August from the Marines, but Williams requested an earlier separation date when he found he was no further use as a jet pilot, on doctor's orders. Indications show he will be back in uniform almost before even he realizes it. Although confiding to friends that he would be more than anxious "to suit up again" as soon as possible, Williams wonders if he can get into condition quickly enough to be of help to the Red Sox. The Boston Trainer JACK FADDEN boasts, "I haven't the slightest doubt that Ted can get back into condition in a few weeks, if hard work will do it, he is as good as in the starting line-up." Meanwhile, Williams publicly wondered whether the Red Sox wanted an old man like him again. LOU BOUDREAU, the Boston manager, declared laughingly at Ted's doubts as to whether he would be welcome: "Absolutely, he'll be welcome. We sure could use him." Somewhat skeptical but obviously pleased was JOE CRONIN, general manager of the Red Sox, as he learned of Ted's release from the Marines.

Twenty-four years ago, BEN HOGAN told his mother, "I'm going to be the greatest golfer in the world," and this week was informed by his hometown that he had reached his goal. A little choked up while receiving the acclaim of more than six hundred persons at an appreciation luncheon, Ben realized his accomplishment, while LACY BOGGESE, former president of the Colonial Country Club where Hogan has long been a member, told the story of Ben's expressed determination to conquer the world of golf. Boggesse related "He practiced hour upon hour, he worked until his hands were bruised and sore, he kept his objective ever before him despite some of the cruelest breaks a man ever had, and today Ben has accomplished what he set out to do: be the greatest golfer in the world."

Reports from the Fort Worth, Texas, Press give us word of DAN STUPUR, pitching sensation who spent two seasons with the Presidio Red Raiders prior to his release from Service. Stupur turned in the supreme showing of the season by a Fort Worth pitcher when he almost blanked the Texas League-leading Shreveport team. At that, he allowed them only one hit. The main topic of conversation around Fort Worth recently has concerned an 18-day home game stint, in which the invincible Danny won seven straight mound victories for the Cats.

Army Pistol Delegates Vie in Regional Shoot

Ft. Benning, Ga.—Twenty top Army pistol shots will fire in the Southwest Regional Matches, El Paso, Aug. 1-2, to determine a team of 12 members to represent the Army in the National Pistol Matches, Camp Perry, Ohio, Aug. 26-27. These shots have been whittled from 54 outstanding candidates sent to Ft. Benning from installations in Europe, Puerto Rico, Panama Canal Zone and 18 states.

Coastal Fishing Boom

California party-boat fishermen caught 51,391 fish during March, according to figures released by the marine fisheries branch of the Department of Fish and Game. The catch included 30,608 rockfish and 6,248 kelp bass. San Diego boats reported a good catch of barracuda, accounting for 1,110 during the month.

Glenn Presnell of the Detroit Lions place-kicked a professional record 54-yarder against Green Bay, October 7, 1934.

Information Chief Wins In Senior Division Play

In Wednesday's second round of play, Buster Reed shot a one over par 73 to take the lead in the tourney.

Bolstered by Reed's two-day score of 75-73, the Fourth Army's five-man team finished with 613 for first place in team competition, which ended on Wednesday.

Another 73 was turned in for the second round by Clifton Harrington to boost him into second spot with a 150 total.

Tuesday's leaders, Kee and Maxwell, dropped into a six-way tie for third in the second round, finishing with 153 each.

Also tied for third-place were Dick Yost, Sixth Army champion, with 75 for Wednesday, 153; Bill Rose, with 77, 153; Tom Nieporte, 77, 153; and Bill Maca, 75, 153.

In the Senior Division Major General Parks successfully defended his title by turning in a two-day aggregate of 171, five strokes ahead of tournament director and Sixth Infantry Division Commander Major General Robert B. McClure.

Recent word from the rough Pebble Beach Course says that nearly all the contestants claim that this is one of the toughest yet.

Few of the service contestants had trouble, however, with the treacherous eighth hole, which calls for a long drive over a 200-yard expanse of ocean.

Maxwell, who dropped considerably below Tuesday's performance, claimed the best putting feat of the second round, although he failed to sink the ball.

On the 218-yard 17th hole, the diminutive private pushed a 50-foot putt over a rise in the green. The ball spun around the cup and came to rest a foot from the hole.

Sixth Army's Yost's best effort came when he birdied on the 480-yard second hole to finish the front nine with a one-under 35. He birdied twice more and then carded two bogies to turn in the 75 total.

The All-Army contest continues through this afternoon to determine individual medalists.

Service Thinclads Contribute Yankee Victories in Sweden

American track and field stars, headed by Mal Whitfield and including several top service athletes, were busy this week winning honors in Swedish track meets.

Top performance of the week was turned in by cinder ace Whitfield at Goteborg, where he whipped to a thrilling finish in the 1,000 meters with Sweden's Olle Aberg, holder of the accepted record, in second place. Whitfield's near-record time was 2:22.6.

On the same Goteborg program, Army's limber dash expert, Jim Golliday, raced to a 200-meter victory in 21.8.

Two days later in Varberg, Whitfield burned to a 47.5 win in the 400-meter run, beating Lars Wolfbrandt of Sweden by one half a second.

Other athletes to distinguish themselves were world champion shot-put artist, Parry O'Brien of USC, Kansas stringbean trackster Wes Santee, Navy's javelin expert William Miller and Marine's pole vaulter George Mattos.

After three years of absence from the Army's sport slate, the 72-hole All-Army Golf Tournament made an impressive return to the spotlight this week when upwards of 60 top service golfers teed-off on Tuesday at the world-famed Carmel (California) Pebble Beach Course.

Teams from eight army areas have been entered into the Main Division competition—representative squads from Zone of Interior Armies, the Military District of Washington, the Caribbean Command, and the Hawaiian Command.

For the Sixth Army, hope for repeating the Area's 1948 All-Army triumph rests upon the powerhouse golf of three-time Oregon Amateur champ, Pvt. Dick Yost of Camp Roberts, whose sensational fairway technique sufficed to win medalist honors last week in the All-Sixth championship at the Presidio. Supporting Yost's play will be links champion Lt. Ken Towns of Fort Lewis, runner-up for the Sixth-Army and 1949 U. S. Public Links champion.

Others in the Sixth Army contingent are Pfc. Leslie Howatt Camp Roberts; Lt. Jack O'Donnell Fort Lewis; Major Henry Glaister Stanford R.O.T.C.; Colonel Peter Peters, Presidio, and for the Senior Division, 1953 Champion Colonel Wiley O'Mohundro, Two Rock Ranch.

A fearsome duo from the tough Fourth Army contingent hopes to repeat their command's 1949 All-Army triumph—Pvts. Billy Maxwell and Buster Reed.

Maxwell took the Nation's top amateur honors in 1951 when he copped the USGA National Amateur Championship, while in service play recently, teammate Reed demonstrated an almost equal fairway ability when he forced Maxwell into an extra nine-hole play-off after matching him stroke for stroke over the regulation Fourth Army championship course.

For the Fifth Army top-fighters Pfc. John R. Knight, Pvt. Bob Hold, and Pvt. Billy Rose take to the greens. Knight, winner of the Fifth Army tourney, was sixth-place finisher in the famous Tam O'Shanter World Amateur matches in 1950 and finished ninth in the 1951 tourney. Both Rose and Hold are pro golfers in civilian life.

Classy Tom Nieporte leads a dangerous team from USARPAC the Hawaiian command. Before going into service, Nieporte was the 1951 NCAA golfing champ. He took first in the recent Army tourney at Hawaii with a sparkling 10-under par 278.

In the Senior Division, Major General Floyd L. Parks, Chief of Information, Department of the Army, comes from the Military District of Washington to defend the Senior title that he won in 1949. Chief opposition for General Parks is expected to come from Fort Ord's Major General Robert B. McClure and Two Rock Ranch's Colonel O'Mohundro.

After 36 holes of play, competition for the medalist title will be limited to golfers who score in the lower 50 per cent. These golfers and any Senior with an equivalent score are participating in the final two days of play for the Malin Craig Trophy, awarded to the tourney's top individual golfer.

At the same time the elimination of players occurs, the team scores are determined from the top four members of each team in the Main Division.

Eastern Tee Aces Shine Bright In First Days Play

Third Army's Kelly Kee, North Carolina professional, and Fourth Army's long-hitting USGA National Amateur champion, Billy Maxwell, tied with a two-over-par 74 to card the lowest scores for the first round of the All-Army Golf Tournament at Pebble Beach, Carmel, Tuesday.

Taking a three-over-par 75 and one more stroke than teammate Maxwell, Buster Reed won second-place honors to assist the Fourth Army team to take first-place for the round with 303, six strokes better than the runner-up contingent, Third Army.

The first hole was bogie for Maxwell and the fourth trapped him for two extra. He birdied again on the sixth to turn in a two over 38 on the way out. On the back nine the Fourth Army representative took a birdie and a bogie for a par 36 and the final 74.

Kee went one under and one over the sixth and ninth for par and then bogied twice on the 13th and 17th for the tying 74.

Sharing third-place with 76 each were Pvt. Eddie Johnson, Third Army; Pfc. Robert Hold, Fifth Army; Pvt. William Rose, Fifth Army; Lt. Ken Towns, Sixth Army, and Cpl. Thomas Nieporte, U. S. Army, Pacific.

In fourth-place with 77 were Pfc. Clifton Harrington, Third Army; Lt. Charles Harrison and Pfc. Joe Zakarian, Fourth Army, and Lt. Huston L. Laclair, Jr., Washington Military District.

Lt. William Anderson, First Army Pvt. William Maca, Second Army, and Pfc. Dick Yost, Sixth Army turned in 78's, while Major Edwin Kingsley, Second Army, Sgt. John Law, First Army, and Sfc. Artemio Fortuno, U. S. Army, Pacific, all turned in 79 each.

In the Senior Division, Major General Floyd L. Parks, Chief of Information, Department of Army, defending the Senior title, turned in an 84 in the first day of play.

President Appoints Two For Defense Department Posts

Two new Assistant Secretaries of Defense, the first of six posts created by a Defense Department reorganization, have been named by the President.

They are Dr. Melvin A. Casberg, in charge of health and medical affairs, and Franklin G. Floete, head of the office of properties and installations.

At the same time President Eisenhower also named VADM Merlin O'Neill, USCG, for his second four-year term as commandant of the Coast Guard.

The Senate Armed Service Committee, meanwhile, recommended confirmation of the appointment of Gen. Lauris Norstad, USAF, as air deputy to the Supreme Allied Commander, Europe.

Maj. Gen. William H. Tunner, USAF, slated to replace Gen. Norstad as commander, USAF in Europe, received approval of nomination to lieutenant general.

Other nominations approved were: James H. Smith, Assistant Secretary of Navy in place of John G. Floberg, resigned; Maj. Gen. Donald L. Putt, USAF, lieutenant general and commander of Air Research and Development Command; and Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Smith, USMC, lieutenant general and CG, Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic.

Assistant Defense Secretary Casberg, 44, a former dean of the St. Louis University School of Medicine, receives a promotion from his assignment as assistant to the secretary.

He was in the Army Medical Corps during WWII including duty with Chinese guerrilla forces behind Japanese lines.

Assistant Defense Secretary Floete, 64, from 1941 until he retired from business last year owned and operated the Iowa Ford Tractor Co., at his home in Des Moines. He was a captain in the first world war. (AFPS)

Choy, while Junior joined the company only two weeks ago while it was on bivouac at Hunter Liggett Military reservation. (US Army photo)

A Soldier's Soldier!

Infantry General Completes 36 Years Outstanding Service

Camp Roberts, Calif.—One of the most decorated general officers of the Army, Brigadier General Arthur S. Champeny, assistant division commander of the 7th Armored Division, who retires on 31 July after 36 years' service, was honored Saturday at a review of more than 10,000 soldiers.

During his military career, General Champeny has received three Distinguished Service Crosses, the Silver Star, three Bronze Stars, five Purple Hearts, two French Croix de Guerre, the French Legion of Honor, the Legion of Merit, the Italian Bronze Medal for Valor, Commander-Order of St. Maurice and St. Lazarus, and the Italian Military Valor Cross.

The general began his career when he was commissioned a second lieutenant of Infantry at the 1st Training Camp, Fort Riley, Kan., in 1917. During World War I, he was in service with the 356th Infantry, participating in the St. Mihiel offensive, Meuse Argonne offensive and two defensive sectors in France. For this action he received the Distinguished Service Cross and the French Legion of Honor and Croix de Guerre.

In 1942, he organized and commanded the 351st Infantry, 88th Division, which he trained and accompanied to North Africa and Italy where they were in combat for over a year. During this time he participated in the Griglon Sector, Rome offensive, Arno offensive and the push north from Florence. He was awarded the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Distinguished Service Cross for this action.

Returning to the United States, he was assigned to the faculty of the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga., as chief of the tactical section. Upon completion of this duty, he was assigned as deputy commander, Replacement Training Command, Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, until October 1945.

General Champeny was detailed then to work with the Korean Military Advisory Group. He served with the military government there until 1947 in the capacities of: Inspector, Korean Police; Director, Korean Police;

Brig. Gen. Champeny

Director of National Defense; Civil Administrator; Deputy Military Governor; Deputy Commander, and Chief of Staff.

General Champeny organized the present Korean Army and Navy in 1946 signing the original commissions for its officers.

Returning to the United States in February 1948, he served with the New England Military District as training officer and chief of staff.

In July, 1950, he was ordered to Korea where he commanded the 24th Infantry, 25th Division, in combat in the Haman perimeter. He was wounded in action during this time, but returned to duty as Seoul Area Commander in October and was placed in command of the Civil Assistance Command from November 1950 to January 1951. While in Korea he received his third Distinguished Service Cross.

Returning to Japan in January 1951, the general was assigned to duty as Inspector of Training of National Police Reserve and Deputy Chief of Staff for the Far East Command until July.

He was appointed Deputy Chief, Korean Military Advisory Group and Chief Advisor to the Replacement Training and School Command from July to October of 1951. He consolidated the Korean Service Schools at Kwanju and put the Korean training on a sound basis.

General Champeny was assigned as assistant division commander, 7th Armored Division at Camp Roberts in November 1951.

Army Port Proves Big Business For Small Businessmen

Of the $6,948,691.00 spent by San Francisco Port of Embarkation for supplies and services in the second quarter of the current year, 93.5 per cent of the money, or $6,489,788.00 went to small business firms, the Port Commander announced Thursday.

In the 3,879 procurement actions involved, 2,834 or 76 per cent concerned small business, defined in the Army program for aiding small firms as those with 500 employees or less.

In the period, the Port spent $155,794.00 on harbor craft repair. Of that total 93 per cent or $145,769.00 went to small business.

FOR THE LAST TIME 18 officer and enlisted men of Sixth Army area stand at attention before the colors at retirement ceremonies held on the Main parade ground at the Presidio of San Francisco on 31 July. Hundreds of persons attended the ceremony which ended the Army careers of one brigadier general, 15 colonels, one major and one master sergeant. More than 600 Presidio troops passed in review as a climax to the reading of orders which relieved them of their active duty assignments. (Army photo by Hilmer.)

Korea, Far East Rotation System Changed by Army

Washington—A new rotation system making the normal tour of duty in Korea 16 months has been announced by the Army.

In the past the rotation of troops has been by a system of points for "constructive months service." Those soldiers stationed at the front got four points a month while those in the rear areas got two.

The new plan for 16 months of Korean service will send the rear area soldiers home sooner but will keep the soldiers who would have been at the front a bit longer. A total of 36 points was needed previously for rotation.

This new policy will not affect personnel who will be ready for rotation under the point system before Oct. 1. They will be returned home under the old system.

Those soldiers who now are in the Far East but who will not be rotated until after October 1 will get credit for their points but under a different plan.

The Army will give them credit for 1/36th of their tour for each point they have. Under this a soldier who has 18 points at that time will get credit for half of his tour of duty and will have only eight more months to serve in Korea.

Tours of duty in other areas of the Far East have been set also. In the Philippines it will be 24 months. In Okinawa both unmarried soldiers and married soldiers who have their families with them will serve 30 months. Those whose dependents do not accompany them will serve only 20 months.

In Japan, soldiers accompanied by dependents and unmarried soldiers will serve 36 months, while soldiers unaccompanied by dependents will serve 24 months.

The program of voluntary intra-theater transfer from Korea after a minimum of 10 months service in Korea, to complete a minimum of 12 additional months in Japan or Okinawa will be continued.

Although it is unlikely that the length of fixed tours will have to be increased, it is emphasized that availability of a qualified replacement remains as governing criteria for any individual. (AFPS)

Colonel David M. Dunne

Colonel Dunne Is New Deputy Chief Replaces Col. Augur

Colonel David M. Dunne has taken over the duties of Deputy Chief of Staff, plans and operations, Headquarters Sixth Army. He replaces Colonel Wayland B. Augur, who retired from active duty on 31 July.

Colonel Dunne has spent the past two years as commanding officer, 419th Aviation Engineer brigade and commanding officer, Fort Huachuca, Arizona.

A graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point, class of 1923, Colonel Dunne entered Cornell University in 1925, and was graduated in 1926.

He served in the company grades in various troop units including the 1st, 2nd, 6th and 11th Engineers from 1923 to 1940. He then spent a year as commanding officer of the Eighth Engineer squadron.

Colonel Dunne was assistant G-3, Army Ground forces, from 1941 to 1943 and Engineer, Second Army from 1943 to 1944.

In 1944 he went to the Pacific theatre where he served in New Guinea, the Philippine Islands and Japan as Engineer, Eighth Army. That tour of duty lasted until 1947 at which time he returned to the United States to become assistant commandant of the Engineer school for two years. He served the following year as district engineer, Tullahoma district, Tennessee. (Continued on page two)

Members of Army Program Advisory Committee Listed

Membership of the Sixth Army Program Advisory committee, consisting of one military representative and one alternate for elements of Sixth Army Headquarters, were announced this week. Col. David M. Dunne, Deputy Chief of Staff, plans and operations, was designated as committee chairman.

Those to represent headquarters elements are as follows: Comptroller, Col. F. H. Patrick (member) and Mr. J. J. Loughrey (alternate); ACofS, G-1 Lt. Col. H. Densley (member) and Mr. E. W. Weber (alternate); ACofS, G-2, Lt. Col. J. J. Toth (member) and Lt. Col. R. M. Luman (alternate); ACofS, G-3, Lt. Col. J. L. Rogers (member) and Mr. T. LeRay (alternate); and ACofS, G-4, Col. H. G. McFeely (member) and Lt. Col. W. F. Jorgensen (alternate).

This committee will advise, guide and coordinate the effort in the development and preparation of the annual Sixth Army programs. Included in their activities will be the development of necessary criteria and procedures and the review of Sixth Army program documents prior to submission to the Chief of Staff.

Finance Lists Some Reserve Vacancies For Junior Officers

Vacancies exist for appointment as commissioned officers in the Finance Corps, USAR, with concurrent active duty not above the grade of first lieutenant, states Reserve Components Circular No. 48, issued this week by Headquarters Sixth Army.

Applications will be processed under the provisions of SR 140-105-8 and forwarded to Sixth Army Headquarters, ATTN: AMAGR-4. Additional requirements include: a master's degree in business administration, accounting or economics, and an age of less than 39 at the time of appointment.

The initial active duty assignment for successful applicants will be the Finance School, U. S. Army, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. This training period will be approximately 20 weeks following which the individual will be reassigned as required.

Wants UMT Report

Reserve Obligation Unequal; President Asks New Study

Washington—A new study of the need for Universal Military Training has been ordered by President Eisenhower. The study is necessitated, the President said, by the "inequities" of the present system, especially toward Korean veterans.

The President directed the National Security Training Commission to make the study and report to him by Dec. 1. He also asked the Office of Defense Mobilization to submit a companion study on manpower by the same date.

The main point of the President's objection to the present system seems to center around the fact that men who have been called into the service to fight in Korea are discharged with a six-year Reserve obligation, while those who were not called have done no fighting and have no Reserve obligation either.

The Reserve, the President noted, "is composed almost wholly of men who have already served the nation in the Korean war, WWII, or both. These inequities appear to me to directly contravene some of the most basic principles of our society."

"Under the present system thousands of our young men have not yet assumed any military obligation to our country. Men who have not been inducted for Korea not only escape the ordeals of the conflict, they also undertake no Reserve obligation."

"Thus," the President went on, "our system requires our soldier of today also to carry the future national defense burden ahead of the man who has received no training, has done no service and has assumed no Reserve obligation."

The President also appointed three new members to the committees which will carry out the survey. They are Julius Ochs Adler—a Reserve major general and vice-president of "The New York Times," Dr. Karl T. Compton, head of MIT, and Warren Atherton, an attorney and former head of the American Legion. (AFPS)

Colonel W. F. Magill, Jr.

New Commander Started 36-Year Career at Presidio

Presidio of San Francisco has played an important role in the 36-year Army career of Colonel William F. Magill, Jr. It was here that he was first commissioned as a second lieutenant on 15 August 1917, and he later spent a four year assignment, 1938-1942, with the 30th Infantry Division and Headquarters Fourth Army, units then assigned to the Post. Last week he began another tour of duty at the Presidio, this time as Deputy Post Commander.

Colonel Magill returned to the Presidio from Germany where he was commanding officer of the Bremerhaven Port of Embarkation. His four years in Germany were preceded by two years with the Veterans Administration in Washington, D.C., immediately following the war.

During World War II, he was in command of the 363rd Infantry, 91st Division, in Italy.

Colonel Magill was stationed in the Philippines for two years and also served in Hawaii. His assignments in the United States have taken him to Fort Lewis, Wash.; Vancouver Barracks, Wash., and Fort Benning, Ga. He was with the Organized Reserves of Oklahoma for four years and was in charge of the Junior ROTC unit at Waukegan, Ill., where he followed Colonel Peter J. Lloyd, former Deputy Post Commander of the Presidio.

He has been awarded the Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star.

Colonel Magill was accompanied to the Presidio by his wife. Their son, Lt. William F. Magill, is assigned to the military department of the University of California at Berkeley and their daughter, Mrs. James M. Corum, is in Paris where her husband, an Army captain, is currently stationed.

A Big Think?

Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.—More than 4,000,000 computations without a single mistake is the record racked up by first low-cost "robot brain" electronic computer now in operation at this Army Ordnance installation.

The machine—known as the Elecom 100—during a recent test successfully completed 60 hours of grueling non-stop operations, making errorless computations at the rate of 1,700 a minute.

NYU Will Conduct Training Seminar For Safety Engineers

Specialized safety training will be given safety officers and civilian safety engineers of major installations and military units at the New York University Center for Safety Education, New York City.

The first course will be held from 14 September through 2 October 1953. Nominations of officers and civilian employees of the Sixth Army area for attendance at the first class must be submitted to reach Sixth Army Headquarters, ATTN: AMGAP-SB, not later than 10 August.

Final selection of students will be made by the Department of the Army. Commanding officers who have submitted nomination will be informed as to personnel selected upon receipt of approved rosters at Sixth Army Headquarters.

Income Tax Delay!

A bill extending for one year the present income tax exemptions for men in the combat zone in Korea has been passed by Congress. The law exempts all pay of enlisted men and the first $200 a month pay of officers. The new terminal date set by the bill is December 31, 1954.

WWII Vets' Benefit Near Completion as GI Bill Passes 9th Year

Washington—The WWII GI Bill is nine years old now and each of its three major benefits is in a different stage of completion.

The program of guaranteed loans for homes, farms and businesses is still in effect and has four more years to run. Thus far some 3,300,000 veterans have obtained GI loans with 90 per cent of them going to veterans who wanted to buy or build homes.

The education and training benefits reached the cut-off point for most veterans July 25, 1951. Those who are in training now are veterans who started before the cut-off date and who have remained in training since. A total of 7,800,000 persons have taken some form of training under this program.

The readjustment allowances for unemployment and self-employment have all but passed out of the picture. About 9,000,000 veterans drew this allowance but only one in 10 used the full one year authorized. (AFPS) see, and from 1950 to 1951, he was deputy commander and chief of staff of the 301st Logistical command.

Colonel Dunne has been decorated with the Distinguished Service medal, the Legion of Merit with two Oak Leaf clusters, the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf cluster, the Air Medal and the Army Commendation ribbon.

Colonel and Mrs. Dunne have two daughters, Mrs. Joan Weart, wife of Captain D. S. Weart, and Miss Gail Dunne, a student at the University of Arizona.

Discharged Korea Vet Postpones Trip Home In Favor of World Tour

Pusan—A United States soldier who says he's "in no hurry to get home" received his discharge here last week and prepared to embark on a year-long world tour.

Pfc. Donald R. Thurston, 23, of Chappaqua, New York, completed his two-year army duty and left Pusan as crew member of a Korean freighter bound for Kobe, Japan.

From there, Thurston plans stops at Formosa, Hong Kong, Bangkok, Karachi, and cities along the Suez Canal and the Mediterranean before crossing the Atlantic to New York and home.

New Haven, Conn.—A Bookmaker was arrested after a Yale professor translated his betting slips. They were written in Hindustani.

New Defense Chiefs

President Eisenhower has nominated two new Assistant Secretaries in the Defense Department. Charles Sparks Thomas has been named to be Assistant Secretary for Supply and Logistics, and Donald A. Quarles has been named Assistant Secretary for Research and Development.

Money Saving Ideas

Washington—The Army expects to save nearly $11,000,000 in one year by putting into practice more than 10,000 ideas for improved methods of operation submitted during 1952 by military and civilian employees of the Army.

The ideas were chosen from more than 50,000 offered.

Officers Recently Assigned

Lt. Colonel Joseph A. Walker is the newly assigned Post S-3 at the Presidio. He has just returned from a year's service at Nurnberg, Germany, as battalion commander of the First battalion, 169th Infantry.

Lt. Col. J. A. Walker

In Korea, as Regimental S-3 and Battalion commander, Second Battalion, Ninth Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division, Col. Walker was wounded during the battle of the Naktong river and evacuated.

With a total of 19 years' active service, Col. Walker served through all the grades, both enlisted and commissioned, to present grade. In 1940, although he already held a Reserve commission, he was one of three enlisted men chosen from the Third Infantry division to attend the first Infantry officer candidate school at Fort Benning, Georgia. He served in World War II with the 70th Infantry division and the Third Army. He has been awarded the Korean Presidential citation and the Combat Infantry Badge on two occasions.

Lt. Robert P. Mooney has just returned from 16 months of duty in Korea as assistant staff judge advocate with the 45th Division.

Lt. R. P. Mooney

He entered the service in October 1950 as an enlisted man, and received a direct commission as a lieutenant in addition to being awarded the Bronze Star Medal.

Lt. Mooney is now with the Military affairs division, Judge Advocate section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Lt. Edward G. Ruckel is now serving as assistant S-3, reports branch, 30th Engineer battalion at Fort Scott.

Lt. E. G. Ruckel

Prior to his Presidio assignment, he was graduated from Officer Candidate school at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, receiving his commission in May.

Lt. Ruckel entered the service from New York City and is a graduate of St. John's University, New York.

Major Emerson T. Young, who has been Post supply officer at Camp Stoneman for the past 15 months, is now assistant ammunition officer, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Maj. E. T. Young

Prior to Camp Stoneman, Major Young spent four years as Post Ordnance supply officer, Garmisch, Germany.

He was with the Americal division in the Pacific theatre during World War II and earned two battle stars. Major Young has been a member of the Army for the past 26 years.

Lt. Burton Mason, Jr., has recently been assigned as platoon leader with Detachment A.

Lt. Burton Mason, Jr.

He has just returned from Korea where he spent a year as company commander and Battalion S-2, 180th Infantry.

Lt. Mason enlisted in the Army in 1945, attended OCS and was commissioned at the Infantry school, Fort Benning, Georgia, in 1947.

Captain Robert R. Bangs has begun his new assignment with the Provost Marshal section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

He spent the past year in the Provost Marshal office in Tokyo, and prior to that, was with the Ninth Corps in Korea for one year. For his service there he received the Bronze Star medal.

A chief petty officer in the U. S. Navy during World War II, Capt. Bangs served in the Pacific theatre. He later re-enlisted in the Air Force and then attended OCS at Fort Riley, Kansas. He has been in the Armed service for 14 years.

Colonel Neil D. Wilson has become the new area veterinarian for Detachment 6002 ASU, Presidio of San Francisco.

He was formerly traveling consultant to the Veterinary division, Surgeon General's office, D/A, with station in Chicago, for the past two and one-half years.

Entering the Army as a Reserve officer in 1940, Colonel Wilson entered the Regular Army in 1946. During World War II, he served in the South Pacific theatre, principally in New Zealand. He is a graduate of Washington State college.

Major James D. Shi, Jr., has become chief, ROTC branch, civilian components division, G-3 Section Headquarters Sixth Army. He has just been graduated from a 10-months' course at the Command and General Staff college at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Maj. J. D. Shi, Jr.

Major Shi has been decorated with the Silver Star Medal, the Bronze Star Medal, the Purple Heart with two Oak Leaf clusters the Distinguished Unit citation, the Combat Infantry Badge and the ETO and Middle European theatre ribbons with eight battle stars. He is also a qualified parachutist.

In the Army for the past 13 years, Major Shi served in the European theatre in World War II for 24 months with the 157 Infantry regiment of the 45th Division. From March 1949 to July 1952, he returned for a second tour, this time at the Augsburg Military post as dependent affairs officer, assistant Post S-3, and as commanding officer of the 7896th labor supervision center.

Lt. Jerome R. Wobrock has received his initial assignment as supply and intelligence officer, 315th Engineers.

Lt. J. W. Granicher

His last service was as company commander and platoon leader in the 120th Combat Engineer battalion in Korea, where he served for 14 months.

The unit supported the 45th Infantry division.

A 1951 graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point, Lt. Granicher has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal.

Germany Gets Democracy Via Parcel Post

Washington—United States soldiers and citizens are sending democracy to Germany by parcel post—and German youths are finding it an attractive package.

In the past five years, many tons of workshop materials have been donated by American citizens to the Armed Forces Assistance Program to German Youth Activities.

The GYA program is helped by donations from many organizations in this country, and is guided by servicemen stationed in Germany. A special fund—the General Clay Fund For German Youth Activities—was started in 1948 to support the program.

Mrs. Jouett Shouse, of Washington, fund chairman, estimates that American citizens have donated approximately $500,000 in money and materials to help make the German youth program a resounding success.

Every month approximately 250,000 German boys and girls learn democracy first-hand in GYA center activities led by servicemen and women.

Handicrafts, sports, discussion groups, community projects—all contribute toward developing in German youths ideas of democratic processes.

Almost every center—there are 74 GYA-sponsored centers in the U. S. area of Germany and hundreds more are GYA-assisted—has at least one English language discussion group. Activities include such diverse undertakings as "meistersinger" contests and soap box derbies.

Observers of the program consider it of major importance that Germany's future leaders participate in the benefits and responsibilities of democracy.

Volunteering Out!

Volunteering for service with infantry units in Korea has been eliminated, the Department of Army has announced. The information is contained in DA Message 439358, July 28.

Course Will Qualify Enlisted Personnel As Clinical Technicians

Seven classes of the Advanced Medical Technician course for enlisted personnel, both men and women, are scheduled to be given during the current fiscal year to produce highly trained technicians qualified at the practical nurse level.

The present and anticipated acute shortage of the Army Nurse Corps officers necessitates the increased utilization of qualified enlisted personnel in selected nursing duties and this course will produce technicians capable of augmenting Army Nurse Corps staffing in hospitals.

Prerequisites of the course are as follows: Regular Army enlisted personnel in grade E-4 or above; qualified in one of the following MOS's—1123, 1277, 1403, 1666, 1861 and 3369; standard score of 100 or higher on Aptitude Area I or III; high school education or equivalent, as measured by the General Education Development tests; expressed interest and desire for this training, recommended by commanding officer with reference to desirable personal qualification, personal achievement and emotional stability, and at least two years' service remaining following completion of course.

Location of the classes and starting dates will be: Brooke Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, 17 August 1953; Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D.C., 19 October 1953; Fitzsimons Army Hospital, Denver, Colo., 9 November 1953; Letterman Army Hospital, San Francisco, Calif., 11 January 1954; Brooke Army Medical Center, 15 February, 1954; Walter Reed Army Hospital, 19 April 1954, and Fitzsimons Army Hospital, 26 May 1954.

Each course will be forty-eight weeks in length and an MOS as Clinical Technician will be given.

PFC Lynn Brooks Is Final Winner of Cost Consciousness Contest

In final judging of the essays submitted in the Presidio Cost Consciousness contest, the first prize of $10 was awarded to PFC Lynn P. Brooks, 740th AAA Gun battalion, and the second prize of $5 went to Cpl. Allan W. Van Soest, 30th Engineers.

The essay by PFC Brooks will be sent to Headquarters Sixth Army to compete with the winning entries of contests at individual installations throughout this Army area. First three prizes in the Sixth Army contest will be $35, $20 and $10.

Five essays were judged in the final Presidio contest. Each of these had previously won separate contests over a period of ten days. In addition to those of the final winners, these essays were written by the following: Pvt. Bruce Lansbury, sports editor of "The Star-Presidian," Cpl. James Nauert, 30th Engineers, and SFC Dorrie L. Ross, WAC, 6300 ASU Signal Service Detachment.

Ft. Harrison Claims Soldier With Lowest Army Serial Number

Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind.—A wise old soldier with the Army Finance Center here holds the lowest Army serial number still in active service.

He's M/Sgt. Vernon Moran, Chief Clerk, Enlisted Personnel, 7th Finance Disbursing Section. His dog tag reads "RA 422." That's right, three digits—422!

Moran enlisted in the Army back in 1917. He was a civilian for a few years in the early 1920's and then came back to stay. His assignments have been worldwide and he has spent time in practically all branches of the Army.

He has been with the Finance Corps for 20 years and at the Finance Center off-and-on for the past four years. (AFPS)

Army City in Portugal

A new "city" for 20,000 inhabitants is being completed near Lisbon, Portugal, and will soon be ready for occupancy.

Built by the Portuguese army as the latest word in training camps, the "city" of Santa Margarida is equipped with airfield, railway station, shops, five movie houses, playing fields, five swimming pools and a hospital.

A division will move in to start training as soon as the base is completed.

The United States has contributed 85 Patton tanks for use at the new camp.

Army Shown New Infusion Methods By Detroit Doctor

Ft. Benning, Ga.—A new method of blood transfusion has been demonstrated to 17 Army doctors here by the man who probably knows the technique better than anyone else.

Dr. Henry Turkel, Detroit, has spent 20 years perfecting an instrument for injecting blood directly into the bone marrow, a system which would save many lives during a disaster such as an atomic bombing. He is a consultant for the Education and Training Division, Surgeon General's Office of the Army.

In explaining bone marrow infusion, Dr. Turkel said there are small blood vessels in the bone which carry the blood immediately into general circulation. "It is an alternate procedure to be used when transfusion of blood or fluid into the veins may be impractical or impossible," he declared.

The needle he perfected for the method is injected usually in the breast, hip, or leg bones. He said it could remain in a patient's bone for a month, protected by a glass covering, usable for repeated infusions. (AFPS)

Medical Lab Courses Scheduled at Ft. Baker

Courses in Bacteriology, Chemistry, Histological Technique, Parasitology, Serology and Entomology to be conducted at the Sixth Army Medical Laboratory, Fort Baker, Calif., have been announced by Headquarters Sixth Army. The courses will provide training in laboratory procedures and new techniques.

All courses will be for three weeks with the exception of Entomology for preventive medicine technicians who will be enrolled for two weeks. Thirteen classes have been scheduled during the current fiscal year with a class capacity of two for each subject.

Applicants must have either satisfactorily completed the basic course in Medical Technology at Fort Sam Houston, or have completed six months "on-the-job" training in the field in which further training is desired, or have equivalent civilian education or experience. Students who enroll in the Entomology course must have completed the Preventive Medicine course at Fort Sam Houston. Air Force personnel must have completed an equivalent course of study to qualify.

All applicants, if military, must have at least nine months remaining on current enlistment.

Army T.I.C. Topic

What the free nations of Europe have done and are doing to achieve a united Europe will be discussed during the Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units next week. Basis of the discussions will be Armed Forces TALK, No. 445, "Europe Uniting."

Western European nations recognize the need for closer union to strengthen their economies and means of self-defense. Six of these nations—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—have taken the first step toward unity by creating the European Coal and Steel Community under supranational authority and have made plans for a military and a political community.

Organizations of special significance in uniting of Europe will be outlined at the conferences. These important groups include the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, European Coal and Steel Community, European Defense Community and the proposed European political community, called "Europe."

United States is interested in European unity because it will promote conditions of peace, improve Europe's economy and reduce need for U. S. aid, and strengthen Europe's ability for self-defense.

Engineer Unit Ends Two Weeks Training At Fort Scott

After two weeks of active duty training, Detachment A of the 9861st EUTC (ORC), a United States Army Reserve unit under the command of Colonel DeWitt C. Butz, will leave Fort Winfield Scott Sunday to return to their home base at Los Angeles, California.

During their two weeks with the 30th Engineer Base Topographic Battalion, the 42 officers and 4 enlisted men added practical training to their engineering background.

The reservists received a clear picture of the work involved in turning an aerial photograph into a finished 5-color topographic map showing land elevations, swamps, rivers, and prominent landmarks.

Their training was divided into three phases: surveying, photomapping and reproduction. On-the-job training was given in each field punctuated by discussion periods giving the men an opportunity to voice their particular problems and questions.

19-Weeks Study!

Advanced Course To Train Field Grade WAC Officers

Establishment of the WAC Officer Advanced course to be conducted at the WAC school, Fort McClellan, Ala., has been announced. The initial class for the 19-week course starting 8 February will be limited to twenty-five, but subsequent classes will be increased to forty.

This course will provide advanced training in the duties and responsibilities appropriate to field grade WAC officers. It is designed to parallel the regular advanced course at the branch service schools. A portion of the course will consist of appropriate material extracted from the courses conducted at the Command and General Staff college.

Its scope will include personnel procedures, command and staff responsibilities and functions, staff writing, managerial functions of command, map and aerial photograde reading, leadership, unit and team tactics, combined arms, supply procedures, effective instruction, statistics and signal communications.

Eligible to apply are commissioned WAC officers of the Regular Army or commissioned WAC officers of the Army Reserve who are on extended active duty. Other prerequisites require a minimum of five years of commissioned service and security clearance to include secret.

Selections for the course will be made by the Department of the Army. Requests for further information will be forwarded through command channels to the Adjutant General, ATTN: WAC Career Management.

Attendance at the course will prepare WAC officers for staff assignments.

Air Force Lists Vacancies In Five Civilian Positions

Five position vacancies for civilian accountants at the Sacramento Air Materiel Area, McClellan Air Force Base, McClellan, Calif., were announced this week.

Single vacancies are for the following positions: Supervisory Governmental Account, GS-510-11; Supervisory Cost Accountant, GS-501-9, and Supervisory General Accountant, GS-501-7. Two of the vacancies are for Governmental Accountants, GS-510-9.

Qualified individuals interested in applying should forward Standard Form 57 by air mail directly to: Civilian Personnel Officer, McClellan Air Force Base, McClellan, Calif.

The United States Army adopted the 24-hour clock system on July 1, 1942.

Earns BA Degree

San Francisco State College has awarded a bachelor of arts degree to Lt. Col. George A. MacEachern, who earned the credits for his degree in sociology at on-post classes at the Presidio conducted by the college. Colonel MacEachern, who was the first commander of the San Francisco-East Bay Armed Services Police Detachment, was recently assigned to Carlisle Barracks, Pa., to attend the Army War College.

Cardinal Spellman Set For VFW Distinguished Service Award for 1953

By a vote of the Veterans of Foreign Wars National Council of Administration, its 1953 award of the Bernard M. Baruch Distinguished Service Award with Gold Certificate of Merit was presented to Francis Cardinal Spellman, Catholic Archbishop of New York.

James W. Cothran, commander-in-chief of the VFW, said that the award is made each year to "the distinguished individual American citizen who makes the most outstanding contribution to the preservation of the American way of life and promotion of unity and world peace."

Mr. Baruch made the presentation to Cardinal Spellman on the occasion of the Distinguished Guest banquet on 3 August, which was held in conjunction with the 54th annual encampment of the VFW, slated this year for Milwaukee from 2 through 7 August.

Plaque For Bradley

General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has received the Distinguished Citation Plaque, highest award of the Disabled American Veterans for conspicuous service to disabled American veterans and the Nation as head of the Veterans' Administration and as Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

FIRE SHORTS

One sure way to start a fire is to tolerate a damaged wire.

HEAP BIG FIRE and how to put it out was demonstrated to visiting Ohio Boy Scouts by Malcolm Ogle-tree, Presidio fireman, when the youngsters were taken on a tour through the Presidio fire department. Returning home from the International Boy Scout Jamboree, the 400 Scouts were guests of Lt. Colonel Roger L. Bilewicz, far left, Post executive officer and

Biggest Contribution

Presidio's campaign to raise funds for support of the Army Emergency Relief and Army Relief Society was given its largest single contribution with the donation of $1,716.64, representing the proceeds of "Las Vegas Nite," a benefit held at the Presidio Officers Mess. A check for this amount was presented by Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, Sixth Army commander, to Major Ella A. Wilton, chairman of the joint campaign.

Final event scheduled during the month-long drive was a carnival dance held last night at the Presidio Service club. All units are to submit their reports on the drive to Major Wilton today and the campaign total will be announced next week.

Hawaiian Boy Scouts On Jamboree Trip Are Presidio Guests

Thirty seven Boy Scouts from Hawaii have been guests of the Presidio this week on their way back to the islands from the Boy Scout Jamboree at Irvine Ranch near Corona Del Mar, Calif. The group arrived Sunday after a tour of Yosemite Park and they will leave for home by ship this afternoon.

An extensive program of sight-seeing was arranged for the boys during their stay here by Cpl. Bill Gunsalus, Presidio Scout Master, and members of the Presidio Boy Scout troop took them to various places of interest in the city. Group trips were made to Chinatown, Golden Gate Park, Muir Woods, Fisherman's Wharf, Sutro's and Seals Stadium.

The boys are from the islands of Maui and Lanai and are accompanied by their Scout Master, Mr. Walter Koshiba. When they arrived in San Francisco on their way to the Jamboree they were met at the pier by Presidio Scout officials and were taken to their hotel by post buses.

During their stay on the Post this week they have been quarantined with the 505th MP Battalion.

30-Month Nightmare! Former POW Reenlists At Presidio; Describes Hardships As Red Captive

By ROBERT BUSEY
Star-Presidian Staff Writer

Twenty-three year old Corporal John D. Martin of Tule Lake, Calif., became the first former prisoner of war to reenlist at the Presidio when he was sworn in by Colonel William F. Magill, Jr., Deputy Post Commander, in a brief ceremony at Post headquarters Tuesday morning.

The corporal is looking forward to his future assignment to the Post recruiting office, which follows his thirty months of nightmare as a prisoner in a North Korean camp. Martin enlisted in the Army on 23 November 1947 and early the following year was assigned to duty in Japan. He was sent to Korea with the 25th Division in July 1950 shortly after the fighting started.

He fought on the front lines in those days of bitter battle until his capture on 27 November 1950. On that day he was a member of the Task Force Dolphin striking near Unsan toward the Yalu river, about 27 miles away.

Earlier in the day, the force had liberated a group of prisoners and had dispatched them to the rear. They had been on the offensive when suddenly the Chinese hit hard and isolated the unit Martin was with.

"They were fanatic fighters," Martin said. "You would get one of them and ten others would be there to take his place. They used our own artillery against us and were like children playing with toys, using one gun for awhile then throwing it away for another."

Minutes before his capture, Martin was struck in a spinal disc by a shell fragment and hit in the leg by a slug from a burp gun.

Although seriously wounded, he was forced to march with the other prisoners for seven days in bitterly cold weather to reach the POW camp. Part of the way he was so ill he had to be carried by other prisoners.

Asperin was the only medication Martin received for his wounds.

Most of the marching was done at night to avoid detection by Allied aircraft. During the day they rested at the side of the road or were herded into mud huts. Martin was certain that most of the time they had been marched in circles before reaching Chongson camp No. 5 near the Manchurian border.

Martin credited his survival of the trip to the fact that "when you know you have to do it to keep on living, you do it."

At this camp, thirty to forty men were crowded into a single, small mud hut. Later the groups were broken up into squads of ten men. After three months, Martin was transferred to Chongson camp No. 3 where he remained until he was exchanged on 22 April 1953.

Working of the prisoners consisted of clearing the bombed-out areas near the camp and hauling wood for the Chinese and themselves. They worked with crude Korean tools.

During one of his timber hauling details, Martin was hit in his previously injured back by a falling log. Once again he was given only asperin as medication.

Their food was described by Martin as being more like chicken feed than anything else. Nor was there ever much of it, "semi-starvation" was Martin's term for their diet.

In addition to his improperly healed wounds, Martin suffered from malnutrition, dysentery and other ill-effects of his treatment. An American medical officer among the prisoners told him at one point he could only live three days. He became so weak he could not lift a light brush broom to sweep the compound and his weight had dropped from 128 pounds to 60 pounds. Some how he managed to keep alive.

"We were all walking mummies," Martin said. "With no medicine available, we could do nothing to help the many dying about us except to talk with them and comfort them as best we could."

For recreation during the summer the prisoners were allowed to swim within a limited area of the backwash of the Yalu river. If anyone ever went beyond the set limits, it was "just too bad" for them.

A mud barn was their recreation center in the winter. The Communists had put the sign "Our Club" over the entrance.

It was in this "club" that the men were gathered for propaganda talks by English-speaking Chinese officers. In these talks the prisoners were denounced as "imperialists" and "murderers."

These talks were frequently held daily and then would slack off for no apparent reason. Some of these sessions would last all day with only one ten-minute break.

To keep from hearing these speeches, some of the men would stuff cotton in their ears. Martin was discovered with cotton in his ears and was given a week of solitary confinement in "the hole," a rat-infested cellar underneath a mud hut.

While a prisoner, Martin received about a dozen letters from his family. He was carefully coached on what to say in the two letters he was allowed to send home.

When the Chinese informed them that there was to be an exchange of sick and wounded, Martin and most of the other prisoners did not believe them. In fact, when they were sent from camp they thought they were being taken to another camp for further interrogation.

"When we did get to the exchange area, I didn't waste any time getting across the line," Martin recalled. "I was afraid they would grab me back."

The corporal has spent the past month at Letterman Army Hospital where the doctors told him he was "mighty lucky" to have survived his back injury, to say nothing of the other rigors of prisoner camp.

Former Sheriff is Honor Graduate in MP Training Here

A former deputy sheriff of Alameda county walked off with top graduation honors at the Military Police Training center, Fort Baker, last week.

Pvt. Kenneth A. Tiers, with a degree in law enforcement from San Francisco City college, scored a 92 in scholastic average, scored 263 with the .45 calibre pistol and maintained a physical fitness score of 260. He is now assigned to the Camp Stoneman Military Police detachment.

Other honor graduates of A Company who received their diplomas on 1 August included Pvts. Danny J. Miller, Bruce D. Anderson, Marion E. Guebler, Rueben J. Brost, Kent L. Germaine, James A. McGuire, John E. Marcroft, Melvin C. Westfall and Edward I. Mohr.

Guest speaker at the graduation ceremonies in the Fort Barry theatre was Colonel David M. Dunne, newly assigned deputy chief of staff for operations, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Colonel Dunne, formerly commanding officer at Fort Huachuca, Arizona, spoke of the excellence of the Military Police corps work at the fort and the need for continuing efforts on the part of all MP's for order and efficiency.

A graduation parade preceded the ceremonies with Captain Raymond E. LeVan as commanding officer of troops and Lt. Oliver A. Peter as parade adjutant. The Sixth Army band was also present and played a concert.

This is the seventh class to graduate since the opening of the training school, which to date has turned out a total of 1,137 men to the Military Police corps.

Nine Given Diplomas

Nine high school diplomas for personnel of the Presidio have been approved by the San Francisco Unified school system and are now being processed, the Post Education Center announces. Cronkhite Club Will Celebrate 2nd Anniversary

An entire week of special activities is being planned at the Fort Cronkhite Service club from 9 through 15 August, to celebrate its second anniversary.

It will be two years on 12 August that the Service club was re-opened, after having been closed since V-J Day of World War II, when it was also in use as a service club.

Honored guests from Marin county square dance clubs will be present at the anniversary square dance to be held on 10 August. On Tuesday (11 August) the bingo party will feature refreshments and personnel from family quarters have been especially invited to attend.

The all-Post dance and floor show will be held Wednesday (12 August), with grand tournaments in pool and ping pong Thursday. Climax to the anniversary celebration will come Friday and Saturday with the presentation by the Cronkhite Players of William Saroyan's play "The Time of Your Life." This five-act fantasy-comedy will begin at 1930, while all the other programs are set for 2000.

Among the anti-aircraft units which are served by the club is the 459th AAA AW Bn., "C" Battery, 9th AAA, which opened the club, and the 740th AAA Battalion. The club has received letters from alumni members all over the world.

Fort Cronkhite was established in 1937 on the heights overlooking Tennessee Cove on the Marin county shore, and is the newest of the posts of the Harbor Defenses of San Francisco Bay.

The fort was named in honor of Major General Adelbert Cronkhite, veteran of the Indian campaigns and the Spanish American War. General Cronkhite commanded the 80th Division during World War I, and was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal, Commander in the French Legion of Honor and Knight Commander of the British Order of St. Michael and Saint George.

Cinema Previews

"SO THIS IS LOVE," F*, relates a portion of the life of the late Grace Moore, Metropolitan Opera star. It recalls her early childhood and the events that led up to her successful career.

"ROMAN HOLIDAY," F*, has Audrey Hepburn cast as a princess who, tiring of her official obligations on a tour, decides to go incognito on a 24-hour fling. She meets an American newspaper reporter and they manage to do Rome and fall in love, but next day, at a press conference, the truth comes out and a far from pat ending provides an exciting climax.

"NO ESCAPE," F*, brings together a department store clerk and a nightclub pianist for questioning a mysterious murder. Being thrown together while working their way out of their plight cause them to become interested in one another.

"CLIPPED WINGS," F*, is the Bowery boys' latest. They visit an Air Force base, two of them sign up, but through a mix up, one of them gets assigned to the WAF!

"THE CADDY," F*, provides a turnabout plot for Martin and Lewis. Martin, a famous golfer, wants to become a singer, while Lewis, a showman, wants to quit and become a golfer.

"CRUISIN' DOWN THE RIVER," F*, and that's what they do, but not until Dick Haymes and his friends fix up an old retired riverboat into a modern floating nightclub.

Student Gets Bird!
Gentle Art of Taxidermy Now Being Taught at Fort Cronkhite

Gotta bird or animal you want stuffed?
"Stuffed" isn't a nice word. "Taxidermied" is a more fitting name for the process that turns your prize catch into a thing of beauty to hang on your wall or place on the shelf in your den!

A taxidermy class is just getting organized at the Fort Cronkhite Service club under the direction of Sgt. Earnest Svacek. It will meet each Friday at 2000.

Now even if you don't have a specimen to work on, come anyway! Fox traps have been set up all around the Fort Cronkhite area, and sooner or later, some small creatures are bound to realize their mistake too late! Trapped! Should you catch a subject yourself, Sgt. Svacek warns that it should be put on ice immediately to preserve it.

The sergeant learned the gentle art from a Sgt. Blavins while he was stationed at the Camp Stoneman separation center. "It's easy to do," he says. "It takes only a short time to complete an animal, and you have unlimited chances for originality when you begin working out the backgrounds on which your subject will rest in peace."

Sgt. Svacek, who is from West, Sx, enlisted in the Army at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, on 16 October 1940, for a one-year stretch. Pearl Harbor intervened and he is now going into his 13th year, having just re-enlisted for three more years. Lt. Colonel Charles D. Sauvignet, battalion commander of the 459th AAA AW battalion, swore him in again in May of this year, and he is now assigned to the Fort Cronkhite Service club.

In World War II, the sergeant was with the 2nd Division, 9th Infantry Regiment, H Company, during the Normandy invasion. Wounded and returned to the United States, he recovered in time to be sent to combat in Korea. On the way to the front lines, his leg was wounded by artillery fire, and again, he was hospital-bound, this time to Letterman Army hospital. Following his release he was sent to Oakland Army base where he remained a short time before being assigned to Fort Cronkhite.

Theatre Evening, Musical Dramas At Service Club

"A Pleasant Evening in the Theatre," just what the name implies, will be presented by the Kenny Kingston players when they appear at the Presidio Service club Monday (10 August) beginning at 2000.

Directed by Kenny Kingston, World War II veteran, the theatre will present excerpts from "Come Back Little Sheba," "Othello," and "Showboat."

Musical monologues will include a love story entitled, "I'm Yours," a behind-the-scenes in a beauty parlor, a teen-ager working at getting a date to the prom in "Teen Times," "Garden Party Gossip," and a husband and wife at the breakfast table, "My Feelings For You."

Player members include Anita Burns, Isabelle English, Nancy Saxby, Blue Hawks, Richard Mesai, Georgia Jacks, Constance Hauser, Raymond Herald, Norma Johnson, Isabelle Annalla, Lillian Hall and Virginia Sherwood.

Approximately 80 per cent of the more than 120,000 officers now on active duty with the Army are reservists.

Want to take golf lessons from a veteran PGA member? Military personnel on this post and their dependents now have that opportunity—free—from newly-arrived 25-year-old Cpl. Joe Mazur of Wilmington, Delaware.

Mazur has recently been assigned to the Post Pitch 'n Putt course, off McArthur Blvd., between Rodriguez and Liggett, to give classes in the use of the iron and putter. His instruction will be available to neophyte and seasoned divoteer alike.

And if anybody were capable of taking over the coaching reins at the Post Pitch 'n Putt Course, Joe Mazur is.

Joe Mazur's golfing experience dates back to when he was a young, short-hitting runt of nine years old on his home-town links in Eastern Pennsylvania. He took all of nine years to sharpen up his fairway technique and at a comparatively tender eighteen turned to professional contention.

Since then, in the seven years he has been a member of the Professional Golfers Association, he has piled up an impressive number of golfing appearances, including eight major tournaments.

In 1949 he came second in the popular 72-hole Reading (Pennsylvania) Open, beaten by only one stroke by none other than top pro Slammin' Sammy Snead.

In 1949 Joe was making a living as assistant pro in an Eastern Pennsylvania club. In 1950, having won several local Philadelphia tournaments, he went to the Wilmington, Delaware, course, where he took over as club pro.

On his induction into the Army in April, 1952, Mazur spent some time at Fort Huachuca, Arizona, as golf advisor on the links there.

The schedule of classes by Cpl. Mazur will be as follows:

Military: 1300 - 1600 hours Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday; 0900-1600 hours, Saturday.

Ladies: 0900-1100 hours, Tuesday and Thursday.

Teenagers: 0900 - 1100 hours, Wednesday and Friday. (Twelve years or older.)

There is no charge for greens fees, and golf balls and clubs are furnished free at the clubhouse by Post Special Services.

The only Korean runner in history to win an Olympic marathon was Kitei Son. The tiny trackster covered the 26 miles, 385 yards in 2 hours, 29 minutes, 19.2 seconds to win the event in the 1936 games at Berlin.

Red Raiders Squeeze by Jeffersons; Shut Out USS Rochester Crew 14-0

The Presidio Red Raider ball club churned over two opposition teams this week—the San Francisco Jeffersons and the Navy's U.S.S. Rochester—as part of an all-out team effort to strengthen the Presidians' fighting potential prior to the nearing All-Sixth tourney at Fort Ord.

Hurler Bob Hill served the Jeffersons five strike-outs and a meager nine hits on Monday to help buckle the local semi-pros to a 5-4 loss.

The teams were tied up to the bottom of the ninth inning, at which time Presidio centerfielder Gene Jacobs belted a double into left field, and teammate "Snuffy" Taylor singled to drive Jake in for the winning marker.

Heavy-stickers for the home-team were Jacobs, Taylor and Hamaker, while on the Jeffersonian roster Maloney and Puchalski both connected two for four to produce almost half of their contingent's hits.

This Wednesday saw moundster "Ham" Hamaker knock a total of six Rochester crewmen down via the strike-out and allow only four hits. A tight Raider defense prohibited the sailors from earning a single run.

Raider bats had a field day, with Jacobs connecting, as usual, with four for four—two singles, a double and triple—and Sal Fucile, Ed Williamson, Ken Klopp, Bert Fowler and "Ham" Hamaker all contributing to the final 14-run tally.

Fucile, a man who is equally at home pitching and catching and carries a mighty big stick to boot, thrashed out a lengthy left field homer which might well have been a record for the Presidio park. To round it out, he poled a single and double.

Both games this week came by way of preparation for the Southern Division All-Sixth Army Baseball Tournament to be held shortly 24-29 August at Fort Ord.

In view of the coming Sixth Army play team manager Sal Fucile has been doing a good deal or shuffling on the team roster. It has always been difficult for Raider managers to separate key players from their sectional commitments, and at this time it is still difficult for him to determine who'll be available and who won't.

Fucile has hopes now of being able to include team stalwart Ed Williamson in his starting line-up at Fort Ord. Ed has always been a difficult man to nail because of his section obligations—personnel shortages being what they are.

But by the time the tourney rolls around, Sal has hopes of being able to field a total of 12 men.

Toppers Second Brass In Intramural Softball

Final team standings in the Post Intramural Softball League were posted by Post Special Services this week and ran as follows:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Presidio Officers' Club	14	2	.875
Fort Scott Hill Toppers	13	3	.8125
Headquarters 9th AAA	12	4	.750
102nd MRU	9	7	.5625
Headquarters 6th Army	8	8	.500
Det. A Honor Guard	6	10	.375
Naval Harbor Defense	4	12	.250

Surveyor Keglers Wax Officers and HQ Co. To Move into Third Spot

Steady bowling by the Surveyors overpowered their opponents this week 6-2 to lift them into third place in the Fort Scott League.

The Surveyors took three out of four from the 30th Engineer Officers last Thursday and added three more victories at the expense of the Headquarters company Tuesday night.

The 30th Officers bowled their way out of the cellar into fifth place after a defeat at the hands of the Surveyors by walloping their bottom-of-the-ladder rivals, the 21st Alibis, four straight for the week.

Team	Won	Lost
99th Engineers	9	3
21st Soltechs	8	4
Surveyors	10	6
Headquarters Co.	8	8
30th Officers	5	11
21st Alibis	4	12

The San Francisco 49ers finished third place in the National Division with a 7-5 record last year.

Engineer Softball! 45th Boaters Swamp Survey Team; Photomappers Whip HQ

Running their win streak to three straight games, the sizzling 45th Boat Company added the Surveyors to their list of prey this week with a rousing 21-20 slugfest victory.

Trailing 16-13 at the end of five frames, the 45th bats erupted in the sixth with eight runs to cinch the lead for themselves.

Biggest gun for the 45th was Puig, who hit safely four for five while Brown, playing his last game before discharge from the Army, celebrated the great day prematurely with five bingles for the Surveyors.

The win put the 45th in first place with the 21st Engineers, who were concurrently banging out an 18-5 slaughter over the faltering Headquarters nine.

The 21st posted their second win of the round as Cobb handcuffed the Headquarters team with only five connections.

Contradicting their current performance, the Headquarters boys scored closely over the tough 99th Engineers in game tallies recently to come out league-leaders in the first round of the Fort Scott season.

Second round standings are as follows:

Team	Won	Lost
45th Boat Co.	3	0
21st Engineers	2	0
Headquarters Co.	1	2
99th Engineers	0	2
Surveyors	0	2

Local & National . . . SPORTS PULSE

By Pvt. Bruce Lansbury
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

Wednesday night's semi-final bout to the Art Aragon-Henry Davis feature at the Cow Palace involved an up-and-coming young boxer by the name of Lou Gage, a San Franciscan, and Oaklander Ernie Dixon. The fact that Gage whipped Dixon didn't make big news locally. He's done it twice before, first in a four-round decision as his pro debut in January and later by a first-round kayo in a rematch. What did make some of the local sports experts sit up and take notice was Gage's lightning form and dynamite punches—of a kind that label a champion. But veteran Presidians will recall Lou's champion form when the San Francisco pugilist was Corporal Louis Gage of the Presidio Special Services in the last months of 1952, when he was assigned here a few months before his discharge last year. At that time, as a 147-pound welterweight of growing amateur repute, he copped the 22nd San Francisco Annual Golden Gloves Tourney for his third straight year. Previous to this, he had won the welterweight championship in Okinawa and the light-middleweight crown at Japan's All-Far East bouts. He had earned berths to the Pan-American Games, the AAU finals, the All-Army bouts, the Midwestern Regionals and the 1952 Olympic Games at Helsinki. Wednesday night's triumph makes it nine straight wins for Gage as professional. In spite of his previous record, he hasn't been shown locally very much due to managerial difficulties. A change of handlers produced the Cow Palace date and promises better exploitation of the ex-GI in the future.

LOU GAGE

On the Presidio scene, we notice that the near close of competitive softball and golf brings attention to bear on the gridiron. Special Services Officer Lt. Roland Daigle's request for football aspirants via last week's Star-Presidian brought a good response, with all of 16 fall-season hopefuls turning out for pre-season informal practice sessions. These meetings, which are held after 1700 hours on weekdays, are still open to personnel with a yen to start with the Presidio Raiders this fall. All you have to do is show up on the Main Athletic Field after work, and if you don't have gear, uniforms and shoes are available at the Post Athletic Office, Bldg. 122. Formal practice begins at 1330 hours, 17 August, at which time there will be a meeting of all persons interested in joining the team at Bldg. 122. At that time uniforms will be checked out and the season will officially begin.

Roberts All-Stars Prep For All-Sixth Tourney

The Camp Roberts All-Star baseball team has resumed play in preparation for the coming Southern Division All-Sixth Army baseball tourney, scheduled for Fort Ord, 24-29 August.

The initial start of a post team some two months ago was discontinued because of interference with play in the Regimental Post League which recently concluded.

The 22-man All-Star aggregation will play various top semi-pro clubs and other military installations.

Ram Gridders Flatten Ord Warriors 24-0; Matson's Offense Strong

The Fort Ord Warriors stalled the rolling Los Angeles Ram football team for the entire second and fourth periods only to take a 24-0 tumble in their season-opener at Long Beach last week. The game was witnessed by 12,370 fans.

Holding a 14-0 lead at half-time, the Rams intercepted a pair of Don Heinrich passes and turned them into touchdowns in the third and fourth sessions.

With such standouts as Ollie Matson, Don Heinrich, Dave Mann, Ed Henke and Pat Canamela working for them, the Warriors grudgingly yielded two first period scores to which Ram kick-expert Ben Agajanian added extra points.

Ord made two fairly deep penetrations against the pros' sturdy defense.

One, in the first period, saw a Heinrich to Matson screen pass net 29 yards and put the soldiers on the LA 36. But they could move no further.

Then early in the fourth quarter, Matson took a flat pass from Heinrich and raced to the Ram 34.

Ord will provide the San Francisco 49ers their first tests of the season in a charity game at Sacramento, August 15.

Hawaii's Tom Nieporte Edges Texan Buster Reed for All-Army Golf Title

Corporal Tom Nieporte from Hawaii slashed one from the par-72 Pebble Beach Golf Course last Friday to take the 1953 All-Army Golf Championship out from under the nose of perceiving Pvt. Buster Reed of the Champion Fourth Army contingent.

Reed, a bantam GI from Brownsville, Texas, had for two days kept a slim one-stroke lead over his nearest competitors.

Playing in a field of 22, the Cincinnati-born, Hawaii-stationed Cpl. Nieporte took three birdies and two bogies on the first nine, and two bogies and two birdies coming in, to rack up a four-round 76-77-71-71, 295.

Going into the last round on Friday, Nieporte was trailing one stroke behind Reed.

Reed took a final 75-73-75-75, 298-total to share a third-place position with San Francisco-born Lt. Ken Towns, Sixth Army runner-up from Fort Lewis, Washington.

Towns racked up a final 76-78-73-71 for his tying 298.

Reed carded a two-over-par 38 going out and a 37 on the way back, while Towns stroked an exceptional four-under 32 on the first nine but went three over coming in.

Reed's Fourth Army teammate, Pvt. Billy Maxwell from Killeen, Texas, turned in 74-79-71-73, 297 to annex second place. He carded a bogie for 37 on the first nine and took the back nine in par for his final round's score.

Sounds Fishy To Me!

S. F. Examiner pundit Frank Raymond recently showed an example of the Midas touch being applied to fish. A few days ago a Stanford University biologist injected an unidentified hormone extract into a rainbow trout. Approximately 20 minutes later the rainbow trout became golden! Which goes to show that you don't always have to climb 10,000 feet into the high Sierra to meet up with the rare golden trout. The payoff: the hormone extract came from the pituitary glands of the very common salmon, and anybody knows a salmon isn't in the same social league with a golden trout.

Service Thinclads Dominate Overseas Yankee Track Wins

America's touring track and field stars dominated an international meet at Solingen, Germany, this week, winning nine of a dozen events on the program before a crowd of 8000.

Yankee servicemen showed their versatility as Fort Ord's ace broad jumper George Brown won the 100-meter dash in 10.6 seconds just ahead of Jim Lea of LAAC. Lea came back to win the 200 meters in 22.3 with a close victory over Henry Cryer of the Army, who tried again and won the 400 in 49.4.

Warren Druetzler of the Army won the 2000-meter steeplechase in 6:01.8 and the Yanks breezed to a 42.9 triumph in the 400-meter relay.

Ken Wiesner of the U. S. Navy won the high jump with a leap of 6 feet, 5 1/8 inches.

Taking the fourth-place position was Camp Roberts' smooth-swinging Pvt. Dick Yost, 1953 Sixth Army Champion, who comes from Portland, Oregon. Yost carded 78-75-76-74, a 303 total.

Taking a two under par on the first nine, Yost lost two strokes on the tenth hole and took bogies on the twelfth and seventeenth for his two-over-par 74.

Deer Season Opens

Deer hunting season opens for Californians one-half hour before sunrise, Saturday, 8 August. Nimrods taking to the dry hills of 26 central and south coastal counties will find deer in good shape, fire hazards high and conditions generally drier than last year. Hunters have until 13 September to stalk their bag limit of two bucks in the counties of Mendocino, Lake, Colusa, Sonoma, Napa, Yolo, Solano, Marin, Contra Costa, Alameda, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, San Benito, Monterey, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Ventura, Los Angeles, and Orange. Westerly portions of Stanislaus, Merced, Fresno, Kings, Kern and Riverside counties are included in the 37-day early hunting season.

Following Yost in fifth was Third Army's Pfc. Eddie Johnson, with 304. Lt. Charles Harrison, Fourth Army, shot sixth, with 305. Pvt. Clifton Harrington, Third Army, sneaked into seventh with 307.

The 1953 team winner came on last Wednesday, after the first two rounds of play. It was the tough Fourth Army representation, powered by Buster Reed's champion form in the first two days, that finally culled the slim 613 winning total.

In the Senior Division, also determined after the first two rounds, Military District of Washington's Major General Floyd L. Parks outstroked his closest rival, Fort Ord CG Major General Robert B. McClure, to successfully defend his Senior Division title which he won in 1949.

Sixth Army competitors besides Dick Yost and Ken Towns were Pfc. Leslie Howatt, Camp Roberts; Lt. Jack O'Donnell, Fort Lewis; Major Henry Glaister, Stanford R.O.T.C.; Colonel Peter Peters, Presidio, and for the Senior Division, Colonel Wiley O'Mohundro, Two Rock Ranch.

Presidio Netmen Fare Badly in Sixth Army Camp Roberts Prelims

The Presidio tennis team, entered last week in the Southern Division Sixth Army preliminaries at Camp Roberts, found lack of concentrated practice and heavy service competition too much in its opening sets this week.

In semi-final doubles Lt. Doug. Detata and M/Sgt. Anas Valarde lost 7-5, 6-2, 6-4 to Ordmen Pfc. John Bisch and Pfc. Kenneth Walts.

Pvt. Tim Spangler lost his singles match on the opening day.

TWENTY-FIVE PULL UPS was the amazing record set by Army Private Emidio C. Punzo, 20, of San Francisco. Punzo, in training at Camp Roberts, California, recently shattered three physical training records at Roberts as part of his Army training. He completed 25 pull ups, 100 push ups, and 101 sit ups consecutively. Shown here with Pvt. Punzo is 1st Lt. Howard B. Conrad of the Roberts physical training department.

MEETING AGAIN in Letterman Army hospital are Mrs. Mark W. Clark, wife of General Mark Clark, and Sfc. Donal O'Callaghan, Ward B-1. When Sfc. O'Callaghan was a patient in Tokyo Army hospital, it was Mrs. Clark who visited his bedside and wrote a letter to his father in Pasco, Washington. When she toured Letterman last week and learned that he was now a patient there, she asked to see him again, and they are shown above renewing their acquaintance. (U. S. Army photo.)

They Meet Again!

General's Wife Pays Visit to Letterman, Renews Friendship

By Gloria Hetherington
Star-Presidian Feature Editor

A gracious lady came a-callin' last week.

She came to Letterman Army hospital, and, for at least one patient there, it was a reunion that brought back memories of an earlier, harder day.

The lady was Mrs. Mark W. Clark, and the patient was SFC Donal O'Callaghan.

On that earlier day, SFC O'Callaghan was in a bed in a Tokyo Army hospital. Mrs. Clark was there too, talking to him, cheering him and assisting him by writing a letter to his father in Pasco, Washington, so he would have all the latest news about Donal.

And when she heard he was in Letterman, she asked to see him again.

The magnitude of greatness in the human heart can only be measured by deeds such as these.

For the past year, before returning to the United States with her husband, General Mark W. Clark, last week, Mrs. Clark visited Korean battle casualties daily, filling vases at the side of each bed with flowers from her own carefully cultivated garden.

Her work among the Japanese—especially the children—has overflowed in magnitude.

Since her arrival in Japan in the summer of 1952, thousands of homeless, bewildered kids have felt the warmth of her generosity both in word and deed.

Within days of her arrival in the Far East, friends of Mrs. Clark back home were receiving letters asking them to donate whatever they could both in material things and in money.

In a few months time she had collected approximately $7,000 and hundreds of items such as blankets, clothing and food, which were distributed to Japanese orphanages.

The money Mrs. Clark used to purchase fuel for the orphanages, refrigeration for milk storage, a sewing machine and other necessities.

At least 21 institutions were included in her charitable works with hundreds of items of children's clothing, basketballs and baseballs, baby rattles and soap. And all the time she was there, Mrs. Clark managed to entertain groups of these small kiddies in her home at least once or twice a week.

When General and Mrs. Clark visited the Presidio last week, they also had a chance to see again an operation which was begun by Mrs. Clark when the general was commanding the Sixth Army from 1947 to 1949.

It was that of the Post Nursery, and it was established for the care of youngsters of soldiers stationed at the Presidio, as an aid to busy mothers who could not afford expensive outside help.

Look Out Below! Bulldozers Don Army Parachutes

Fort Belvoir, Va.—While most construction experts have to build from the ground up, Army engineers here are doing their best to reverse the process—by jockeying their equipment into position far above prospective building sites.

The Engineer Research and Development Laboratories here have developed "paradozers"—air-borne bulldozers—and heavy construction equipment with special shock-absorbing gear for drop by parachute.

The engineers have worked out techniques whereby construction equipment weighing up to 16,000 pounds can be parachuted to working sites.

The following items of heavy equipment already have been dropped without mishap: a 100-horsepower air-borne tractor dozer, a six-cubic yard scraper, a 14,500-pound motor grader, tractor saws, towed scrapers, and tractors with bucket loaders.

Other items slated for drop-tests include air-compressors, cranes, rock crushers and rollers.

Whether air-dropped or air-landed, construction equipment is considered air-borne only if transported as a unit ready for operation a few minutes after delivery.

Buck Passing

Fort Hood, Texas—The one-horse shay may have been put out of business by the automobile, but the deer at Fort Hood refuse to be awed by the auto—as Sergeant First Class Donald T. Harrell, of 622 Camden St., Parkersburg, W. Va., can testify. Twice in one month, Harrell, while driving along the post's East Range Road, was ambushed by big buck deer, which crashed into his car.

In both encounters, the bucks got the best of the tilt and withdrew triumphantly into the woods. Harrell had to pay repair bills of $45 and $225 to bind up the wounds of his mechanical charger.

Port Oversea Supply Division's New Chief

Appointment of Colonel Roland S. Watts, Seattle, Washington, as Chief of Oversea Supply Division at San Francisco Port of Embarkation was announced today. He succeeded Colonel Irwin M. Diamond, who was transferred to the Caribbean Area.

Colonel Watts came to San Francisco from Seattle where he headed the Oversea Supply Division at Seattle Port. He served in Europe in World War II and in Washington and Okinawa after the end of the war.

A resident of Massachusetts and a construction engineer in civilian life he entered Army service in 1942. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and of the American Association of Engineers.

New Engineer Slot

The Corps of Engineers, DA, has been reorganized to provide deputy chiefs for construction and for military operations, Maj. Gen. Samuel D. Sturgis, Jr., Chief of Engineers, has announced. The two new deputies are Maj. Gen. Bernard L. Robinson, Construction, and Brig. Gen. Albert C. Lieber, Military Operations. Gen. Robinson previously held the single post of Deputy Chief.

Uncle's Long Arm!

Pair Travel 10,000 Miles To Report for Processing

Army Personnel Center, Wash., July 28—Among the several functions of the Army Personnel Center is the processing of men going to the Far East, so sending a man 3,000 miles is common, but the situation took on a new twist last week when inductees Earl Davis and Ernst Dafenbach traveled over 10,000 miles, across the Atlantic and Canada, to report here for induction processing, also a function of the center.

The men were attending Washington State College when their draft registration became necessary in 1949. Completing one year at State, the two transferred to the University of Washington and studied there for two years. Late in 1951, the boys decided to go to Germany to study at the University of Munich. On June 2, 1953, they received notice of their induction necessitating return to the United States.

The two new privates tell how receiving orders for induction on June 2 for June 1 created quite a problem. Immediately they contacted the American Consulate in Munich. Explaining their predicament, proper steps were taken to avoid AWOL charges by the Army. They reported to the nearest military installation, hoping they might remain in Germany for basic training, but found that that was impossible.

On June 17, they left Munich with little funds and hitch-hiked to Bremerhaven hoping to catch an outgoing ship on which they could work their way across the Atlantic. The men were able to get a job on an Italian liner heading for Quebec, Canada, arriving there about July 1.

The privates, of similar backgrounds—both being orphans—first met while in the eighth grade in Spokane. After completing that year, they went to England to live with relatives of Private Davis and there received high school training. In 1949, they returned to the United States, enrolling at Washington State College.

Having interest in theoretical studies, together they worked their way to Germany; there, Dafenbach continued his study of pure mathematics while Davis pursued clinical psychology. In order to remain in school, the two worked during off hours, and tell many interesting stories of how they earned their livelihood.

346th Hospital Reserve Unit on Active Duty Tour at Camp Roberts

Members of the 346th General Hospital unit, San Francisco Bay area Reserve unit, are presently engaged in their annual two weeks summer active duty training course at Camp Roberts U. S. Army hospital.

Commanded by Colonel Berthel H. Henning, 346th personnel are dispersed throughout the hospital working in the specialized fields, learning the latest on new procedures and medical equipment used by the Army.

State Governors To Greet K-Vets At Seattle POE

Washington — Governors from the 48 states and five territories are expected to be on hand to greet a troop ship returning from Korea during the Annual Governors' Conference in Seattle, Aug. 2-6, the Army Chief of Transportation announced.

To go along with the occasion, a special detachment with an enlisted man from each state and territory is now being formed in Korea. When the ship docks, each state representative will be greeted at the gangplank by his governor, then ushered into a convertible with the governor for a drive through Seattle's "Welcome Lane."

While these men are being greeted, the other troops aboard will debark and be honored along with the special detachment by a parade which will include extra bands and other features supplied by Greater Seattle, Inc., the organization which stages a pier-side show for each rotation troop-ship docking in Seattle. MEDAL OF HONOR

The Medal of Honor has been awarded to Edward C. Benfold, a Navy Hospital Corpsman who sacrificed his life to save the lives of two wounded Marines in Korea. He performed this heroic deed while serving as a corpsman attached to the 1st Marine Div. He was killed on September 5, 1952, only five days after he landed in Korea. While ministering to the wounded, Corpsman Benfold left the protection of a sheltered position and "moved forward to an exposed ridge where he observed two Marines in a large crater. As he approached the two men, an enemy soldier threw two grenades into the crater while two other Reds charged the position. Picking up a grenade in each hand, Benfold leaped out of the crater and hurled himself against the onrushing hostile soldiers, pushing the grenades against their chests and killing both the attackers." This action saved the lives of the two Marines he had attempted to treat. They were able to escape their position and return to their lines where they reported the heroism of Benfold to their superiors. Corpsman Benfold was mortally wounded by his selfless act. (AFPS)

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

HIS FATHER'S DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS, awarded posthumously for extraordinary heroism in Korea, was presented to the 6-year-old son of the late Captain Isidro D. Urbano by Brigadier General

William T. Sexton, Chief of Staff, in the presence of his mother and 5-year-old sister, Sandra, at an informal ceremony Tuesday in the office of the commanding general, Sixth Army. (U. S. Army photo by Hilmer.)

The young man stood in solemn pride with his mother and younger sister as the general pinned on the Distinguished Service Cross.

Isidro D. Urbano, Jr., of Daly City was receiving the Nation's second highest award from Brigadier General William T. Sexton, Chief of Staff, at a ceremony Tuesday in the office of the commanding general, Sixth Army.

He had to stand in a chair so that General Sexton could pin on the medal for 6-year-old Isidro who was being given the medal awarded posthumously to his father, Captain Isidro D. Urbano, for extraordinary heroism in Korea.

Captain Urbano was mortally wounded while attempting to rescue an injured comrade during action against the enemy in the vicinity of Kumhwa, Korea, on 18 September 1952.

He had been leading a volunteer patrol which was ordered to assault an enemy-held hill with the objective of taking prisoners of war. As the group was approaching the hill, the men were pinned down by an intense barrage of sniper, machine gun and mortar fire.

"In the devastating rain of fire, the patrol became disorganized and suffered numerous casualties," states his citation. "Disregarding his personal safety, Captain Urbano moved among the men, reorganizing and encouraging them.

"He was preparing to move on the objective when he received orders from the battalion commander to withdraw. As he supervised the withdrawal, Captain Urbano observed a wounded comrade lying in an exposed position.

"Unhesitatingly, he moved toward the wounded man in an attempt to rescue him, firing his weapon into the enemy ranks. He had almost reached his comrade when he was mortally wounded."

After entering the service from California, Captain Urbano was commissioned at the Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning, Ga., during World War II. He fought in the Pacific area with the 1st Philippine Infantry Regiment and the 130th Infantry Regiment.

Rhodes Scholarships

Washington—Officers of the Regular Army, Navy and Air Force who wish to apply for Rhodes scholarships may do so with the understanding that they will be ordered to duty at Oxford University in an active duty status for the duration of the scholarships. However, in order to receive official Service sponsorship, it is necessary for a candidate to apply with the approval of his branch. (AFPS)

Freedoms Foundation Contest

Washington—Deadline for entering the Freedoms Foundation's "letters from service personnel" contest is only about two months away.

Letters may be submitted by Service personnel on the subject "What America Means To Me" and must be received before midnight, Oct. 15.

Men and women who are on active duty in the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps or Coast Guard, either in the U. S. or overseas, may submit letters of not more than 500 words on America or some phase of American life. Soundness of ideas and clear thinking, rather than literary form, will be the basis for judging letters.

Entries are to be sent to Awards Editor, Armed Forces Radio Service, 1016 North McCadden Place, Los Angeles 38, Calif., and must have the signature, rank, service number and organization of the entrant.

Awards will be in the form of cash and George Washington Honor Medal Awards. The principal award will be $1000 and an Honor Medal. In addition there will be 20 awards of $100 and Honor Medals, and 10 or more Honor Medals alone.

The contest is being sponsored jointly by the Freedoms Founda-

Presidio's AER Fund Drive May Reach Total of $5,000

Contributions to the Presidio fund raising campaign for the Army Emergency Relief and Army Relief Society reached a total of $4,656.59 this week as all but a few units submitted final reports on last month's annual drive.

Several units expressed dissatisfaction with the results of their campaigns and informed

Major Ella A. Wilton, drive chairman, that they would give their personnel another opportunity to contribute to the fund at the end of this month.

Major Wilton is hopeful that these contributions and those of units whose reports had not been received earlier this week would bring the final total of campaign donations up to $5,000 or more.

Even if this figure is not realized, the 1953 contributions to the joint campaign have already far exceeded the amount raised during last year's drive. This week's incomplete total was $2,783.20 greater than the $1,973.39 collected last year.

The largest single contribution to this year's campaign was the $1,716.64 donation representing the proceeds from "Las Vegas Night," a benefit held 11 July at the Presidio Officers' mess.

Other AER benefits were given at the Service clubs of the Presidio, Fort Cronkhite and Fort Baker. All three affairs featured carnivals and dances.

Top contributions by individual units of the post will be announced after all final figures have been received by the drive chairman.

Promotion Figures Show Little Change From July Totals

Holding steady with the July total of enlisted promotions, August figures were released today totaling 51,545. In July the figure was 51,300.

Top four grades were broken down as follows: E-7, 700; E-6, 2,750; E-5, 12,700, and E-4, 35,395.

In the Sixth Army area, only the figures for July are available, as the current month's figures are restricted. In July there were 37 E-7 promotions, E-6, 128; E-5, 338; E-4, 911 and E-3, 981.

The July quota represented a sharp drop in the number of promotions after months of progressively increasing quotas throughout the Army. That month the Army-wide number for the top four enlisted grades was 54,150 less than the 105,450 authorized for the month of June.

It was just a year ago this month that the Department of the Army inaugurated its present system of authorizing specific promotion quotas for each command every month. All promotions had been suspended since the previous March because of strength limitations.

Quotas during the first few months under the new system were comparatively low, but jumped in January to 64,000 and continued to increase through June. Totals during this period were as follows: February, 73,950; March, 78,100; April, 82,500; May, 99,500, and June, 105,450.

Red Cross Mission

Public law 131, 83d Congress authorizes the President of the U. S. to accept the assistance of the American Red Cross in aid of Armed Forces even though a state of emergency has not been declared. Previously, a state of emergency had to exist before such assistance could be accepted.

Important Notice!

Major George C. Johnson, Post TI&E Officer, announced this week that a plan is being prepared to provide transportation to public schools for dependents residing on the Presidio of San Francisco (including Wherry Housing) and subposts.

In order that this plan may be completed and firmed as soon as possible, parents who intend enrolling their children in public schools, grades kindergarten through high school, are asked to furnish, in writing and not later than 18 August, the following information: 1) Names of parents, and children who will utilize transportation, 2) Grade in which children are to be enrolled, 3) Quarters number and area of residence on the post, 4) Statement as to whether child attended San Francisco public school last semester and if so, which grade and school attended.

Major Johnson emphasized that since funding for transportation would come from "public monies," only children attending public schools would be eligible for transportation.

'Tropic Lightning' Tag Now Official for 25th Infantry Div.

Washington—For the first time in Army history a division has been given permission to use a nickname besides its regular numerical designation.

The Army has announced that hereafter, the 25th Inf. Div. will be officially known as "Tropic Lightning." Unofficially, the division has used the nickname since December, 1942, when it entered combat in Guadalcanal.

A bolt of lightning was eventually adopted as the division's shoulder patch.

The 25th, which played a very important part in the Korean campaign, was also known for a period as the "Pineapple Division," reflecting its formation and service in Hawaii.

During WWII, the division commander was Gen. J. Lawton Collins, now Army Chief of Staff. He led the 25th through the Guadalcanal campaign. (AFPS)

Infantry School Slates Basic Noncom Course

Establishment of the Infantry Basic Noncommissioned Officer course at The Infantry School has been announced with twelve classes of eight weeks each scheduled to open between 23 September 1953 and 12 May 1954.

Course students will be selected graduates of infantry training division leader courses or personnel who have completed at least 24 weeks infantry training and who have been selected by unit commanders to fill noncommissioned positions in an infantry unit. MOS's for which they will be trained are R-1745, Light Weapons Infantry Leader, and R-1812, Heavy Weapons Infantry Leader.

'Big Switch' Speeds POWs Release—1200 in Exchange

Panmunjom, Korea—Operation "Big Switch" began on schedule and now the repatriation of the more than 12,000 United Nations soldiers is well underway. A total of 3,313 of them are Americans.

Seventeen disabled Americans were aboard the first planeload of liberated prisoners to return to the United States. They left Tokyo's Haneda Airport Monday night and after a brief stop in Hawaii, arrived on the West Coast Wednesday.

At Inchon, 328 of the Americans already released boarded the transport General Walker for the journey back to the United States. The transport is expected to arrive in San Francisco on 24 August.

The transfer of captives across the Armistice line is being made at the rate of 400 UN men daily. There are about 74,000 Chinese and North Korean Communists to be exchanged and they are to be returned at the rate of 1,200 well—and 360 sick and wounded each day until all the disabled are sent back.

The actual beginning of the exchange was preceded by several days of intense preparations. UN personnel slated to take part in the POW exchange ran through simulated trial runs. Many of them received experience for their jobs by having participated in Operation "Little Switch" last April.

The complex plans involved large numbers of medical and administrative personnel, huge stocks of supplies, USO shows, 36 large Army helicopters, communication systems, and naval transports.

As UN soldiers cross the line their names are checked and they are sent immediately 13 miles to the rear by truck, ambulance or helicopter for processing. There they are given thorough medical examinations, food, and new uniforms.

Each soldier receives a booklet explaining changes which have taken place since he was captured, such as the death of Stalin and election of Dwight D. Eisenhower as President.

The 36 big Army helicopters then give them a quick lift to special camps. Americans go to Inchon, where arrangements include bed sheets, an elaborate menu, and decorated mess halls. They will return home by ship direct from Korea.

Other groups in addition to military personnel prepared for the exchange. Red Cross workers from both sides were ready to cross the Armistice line as soon as it began. Those representing UN forces took 20 truckloads of comfort goods to prisoners still held by the Reds awaiting their turn for repatriation. (AFPS)

The Star-Presidian

Sixth Army Star-Presidian is an authorized dual purpose weekly publication published by and for the military personnel of the Sixth Army and the Presidio of San Francisco, California, under the supervision of the Post Troop Information and Education Office. Circular Lists Proper WAC Reserve Uniform

Uniforms to be worn by enlisted women of the Army Reserve are defined in a Reserve Components circular issued this week by Headquarters Sixth Army. The old type uniform items will be worn for normal Reserve duty and the new uniform will be used for active duty and ceremonial occasions.

Enlisted women of the Ready Reserve will retain their old uniforms until 1 July 1954 when they will be turned in by the individual. When the new type is issued, the old uniform may be kept until this date even though an overage in allowances results.

Army Reservists Are Wasting Big Chance

Washington—More than half a million men are passing up an opportunity to make more money with little effort.

Many of these men have served at least two years on active duty in the Army and according to law are required to serve six years in the Army Reserve.

They are subject to recall to active duty in an emergency. Yet—since they are not taking an active part in the Army's reserve program—they forgo the payment they could get for attending training classes and are neglecting their chances to build up substantial retirement incomes.

Retirement incomes after 20 years of satisfactory service as Army Reservists can range from $30 to several hundred dollars a month, payable from the man's 60th birthday until his death. The sum a reservist receives depends upon the number of points he has at the time of retirement.

The Army is encouraging men with a service obligation to join organized units so the units can be brought up to authorized strength and trained to meet their mobilization missions.

Reservists in many of these units receive a day's pay—figured according to their rank and length of service—for almost every training class they attend. All active reservists receive points toward retirement by attending training classes.

24th Infantry First!

Ten U.S. Army Units Played Major Role In Korean War

Seoul — Hundreds of thousands of United States Army soldiers have served in Korea during the past three years.

Nearly one-half million American soldiers have been transferred out of that country. These include soldiers rotated to the United States, medical evacuees, men transferred to other areas, and those discharged from the Army.

As a result of these changes, three Eighth Armies have fought in Korea—the original one, units of which first entered the war in July, 1950; another which began to replace the first in April, 1951, and the Army which is there now.

Ten units of the Eighth Army have played a major role in the Korean war.

The first division to enter the fight against the Communist aggressors was the 24th Infantry Division which swept into the country from Japan between July 2 and 6. First commander of the 24th was Major General William F. Dean who served until his capture during the battle of Taejon in July, 1950.

Major General John B. Church then took over the division which fought valiantly against the enemy until Feb. 4, 1952, when it was ordered back to Japan.

The First Cavalry Division (Infantry) and the 187th Regimental Combat Team also took part in the fierce early battle in Korea and have since returned to Japan. The cavalry unit served from July 18, 1950, to Dec. 30, 1951, under supervision of Major General Hobart R. Gay. The combat team entered Korea Sept. 17, 1950, under Brigadier General Frank S. Bowen, Jr., left the war zone on two occasions during the next two years and finally returned to Japan Oct. 17, 1952.

Army units still embroiled in the conflict against Communist forces are: the 25th Infantry Division, commanded by Major General William B. Kean, entered Korea July 9 to 18, 1950; the Second Division landed in Korea July 30, 1950, under Major General Laurence B. Keiser; the Fifth Regimental Combat Team from Hawaii landed in Korea Aug. 3, 1950, under command of Colonel John L. Throckmorton, and the Seventh Infantry Division entered Korea Sept. 18, 1950, and was led by Major General David G. Barr.

Also, the Third Infantry Division landed in Korea Nov. 12, 1950, commanded by Major General Robert H. Soule; the 45th Infantry Division arrived Dec. 5, 1951, serving first under Major General James C. Styron and later under Major General David L. Ruffner; and the 40th Division arrived Jan. 11, 1952, with Major General David H. Hudelson in command, later succeeded by Major General Joseph P. Cleland. (ANF)

K-Vets Get Complete Job Protection Rights

Washington — Korean veterans who held Federal jobs when they entered service can have their old jobs back, or receive similar assignments, no matter whether they had permanent or indefinite tenure.

The Civil Service Commission has issued a new regulation covering this situation. Korean veterans previously had restoration rights only if they had left permanent-type jobs. To qualify, veterans must be honorably discharged and make application within 90 days after leaving the Service. (AFPS)

The reservist gets credit toward retirement for each day of active duty and for each training class he attends. He must get 50 points a year to meet the minimum requirements for retirement income.

He receives 15 of the points for being active in the Reserve. He must earn the other 35 points by attending classes with his unit, by active duty tours or through Army correspondence courses.

Most Reserve units meet one evening a week or one evening every other week in their local armories for two-hour training sessions. Many reserve officers spend two weeks each year on active duty at Army installations near their home.

This is how the Army Reserve Program works:

Under present law, most men between the ages of 18 and one-half and 26 must serve eight years in the military. Part of this time is served by active duty in the Army and part in the Reserve. Men who are drafted must serve at least two years on active duty. This leaves a six-year Reserve obligation.

Under the law, the Reserve forces are divided into the Ready, the Standby and the Retired Reserve. All National Guard units and most Army Reserve units are in the Ready Reserve.

When a soldier is separated from active duty, he is placed in the Ready Reserve for the time he has left to serve. During this period, he is subject to recall to active service in an emergency proclaimed by the President, as in the case of Korea.

If he joins a unit—either National Guard or Army Reserve—and takes an active part in the Ready Reserve, he may request transfer to the Standby Reserve when he becomes eligible.

To be eligible for transfer to the Standby, a reservist must have completed five years of active duty in the Armed Forces, or a total of five years combined active duty and duty with a Ready Reserve unit, or must have served on active duty with the Armed Forces for at least one year during World War II and at least one year since June 25, 1950, or have been active in a Reserve unit for a total of eight years.

Except in rare instances, a man in the Standby Reserve is subject to recall to active duty only in an emergency declared by Congress—a declaration of war.

The Retired Reserve is made up of men who, because of age or physical disability, cannot serve in the Ready or Standby.

Regulations make it easy for men to take an active part in the Army's Reserve program. Reservists not only can add to their incomes, but also can make patriotic contributions to their country by keeping themselves trained for military duty in case of emergency. (ANF)

Advanced Lab Course For Enlisted Personnel At Walter Reed

Establishment of a new course in Advanced Medical Laboratory Procedures for career enlisted personnel has been announced. This forty-eight-week course will be given at the Army Medical Service Graduate School, Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C., with the first of three classes now scheduled to begin 5 October.

Personnel attending will be trained as chief medical laboratory technicians (MOS R-1858) to assist in supervision and administration of a medical laboratory or laboratory section, and to assist in performing and supervising laboratory and field research duties in the biological or physical sciences.

Included in the prerequisites are: Grade E-4 or above, qualified as medical laboratory technician, standard score of 100 or higher on Aptitude Area III, and at least two years time remaining to serve following completion of the course. Individual applications are to be submitted to Sixth Army Headquarters, ATTN: AMGCT-2.

Supply Sergeant Gives Instructions in Reserve Unit Property Recording

Students at the USAR supply school completed six weeks of instruction in the preparation and maintenance of unit property records at Fort MacArthur's Army Reserve training center on 9 August.

Responsible property officers of Southern California Reserve units, G-4 and S-4 Sections, and all unit commanders and Reserve groups training at Fort MacArthur on weekends were in attendance at the Saturday sessions.

M/Sgt. Herbert M. Jones, who originated and conducted the class, states that they will continue until all Reserve officers of the Southern California sub-district have completed the schooling.

In the three months since the course began, it has been taught at Bakersfield, San Diego, Ventura and Santa Barbara. Sgt. Jones, a veteran of 27 years' service, practically all of it in Army supply work, came to Fort MacArthur in 1947 from the Memphis Armed Forces depot.

WE'RE SORRY!—Due to a Photo Lab mixup the portraits of Major Emerson T. Young (left) and Major James D. Shi (right) were sent to "The Star-Presidian" with transposed captions and appeared that way in the weekly feature Recently Assigned. We are reprinting them above, with proper identification, in the hope that it may deter some of the young majors' friends from rushing down to see their oculists.

Reserve Unit Trains

Camp Roberts, Calif.—Seventy-seven members of the 6262nd Army Reserve ASU Military Intelligence Security Organization will complete their two-week tour of active duty here Friday. They have trained as a separate group under command of Colonel Joseph Rodrigo of San Rafael. Members of the unit are from San Francisco, Los Angeles, Berkeley, San Jose and Santa Barbara.

Officers Recently Assigned

Lt. Colonel George W. Adair has recently taken over duties as chief, communications division, Signal section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

He has just returned from 44 months service as district Signal officer, Stuttgart, Germany.

During World War II, Colonel Adair, who has been in the Army for 13 years, served with the 19th Corps, 2nd Signal battalion, in the European theatre. He has been awarded the Bronze Star medal and appropriate theatre ribbons.

WOJG Glenn R. Widdifield has been assigned as assistant supply officer with the 46th Ordnance group, Presidio of San Francisco.

For the past three and one-half years, he has been with Seventh Army Ordnance depot supply in Germany.

In 1941, WOJG Widdifield was an enlisted man with 14th Bomber squadron at Hickam Field, Hawaii. He later spent 15 months in France. In 1948 he re-enlisted in the Air Force but later switched to the Army again and received his warrant in 1951. He has been in the service for 13 years.

Lt. Colonel Byron M. Peterson is now with Provost Marshal section, Headquarters Sixth Army, after a year's duty with the office of the Provost Marshal general in Washington, D. C.

In August 1952, Colonel Peterson returned from Japan where he had spent three years as chief of the CID for metropolitan Tokyo.

A member of the Army for the past 11 years, Colonel Peterson spent a year in Germany in World War II with Military Police duties.

New Bill on Benefits

A bill has been passed and sent to the White House which would allow military personnel to spread their retirement benefits to cover surviving dependents. Servicemen upon retirement would be allowed to choose between getting full retirement pay or receiving lesser payments to assure support for their survivors.

Army TIC Topic

Topic of the Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units during the coming week will be "Commander's Problems." Unit commanders will select the discussion subjects, such as reasons for policies, directives and conditions affecting unit personnel as individuals or explanations of local conditions and community relations.

New Volume Out

The latest volume in the series "The U. S. Army in WWII" will be published soon, the Department of Army has announced. It will be entitled "Strategic Planning For Coalition Warfare, 1941-1942." This volume may be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C., for $3.25.

The Panama Canal was completed in 1914 under direction of Army Major General (then Colonel) George Washington Goethals.

Captain Clarence L. White is the new commanding officer of the 359th Engineer Utility detachment, Presidio of San Francisco.

He returned recently from nine months duty at Chelveston RAF station, Northamptonshire, England, and prior to that he served three years with the aviation Engineers, 928th group, 916th ASPC.

With more than 12 years with the Corps of Engineers, Captain White served with the 1933rd Engineers in the African-European-Middle Eastern theatre in World War II.

CWO Lawrence R. Calvert has taken over his new duties as administrative assistant to the adjutant general, AG Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

He has spent the past three and one-half years with Headquarters Army Pacific, with base in Hawaii.

During World War II, CWO Calvert spent three years in the Philippines and Far East theatre. He is a veteran of 27 years Army service.

Colonel Burleigh F. Hillman, recently released from Letterman Army hospital where he was a patient, has become the new chief, management division, office of the comptroller, Headquarters Sixth Army.

His last duty assignment was at Fort Lewis, Washington, where he was comptroller for 20 months. He also served as comptroller in Alaska for 21 months.

A National Guard official initially, Colonel Hillman integrated into the Regular Army in 1946 and has a total of 11 years active duty.

Chemical Course Gives Basic Branch Training At Ft. McClellan

Opening of the Chemical Officer Basic course at the Chemical Corps School, Fort McClellan, Ala., has been announced. This course will provide basic branch training for newly commissioned second lieutenants from all sources whose assignments, actual or anticipated, are to the Chemical Corps.

Seven classes are scheduled before the end of next June with the next class starting 7 September. Subjects to be studied during the fifteen-week course are: personnel and administration; intelligence; CBR organization, plans, operations and training; logistics; technical instruction on atomic, biological and chemical warfare; Chemical Corps materiel, and protection during CBR operations.

PFC Is Honored

PFC Howard P. Kelley, a member of the 9th AAA Battalion (120mm Gun) (Static) has been named "Soldier of the Month" for the 30th Antiaircraft Artillery Group. He was selected as outstanding among all the troops of the Northern California antiaircraft sector for his knowledge of his job, his efficiency, his soldierly bearing and exemplary conduct. Kelley is a native of Stewart, Okla.

Major Don W. Black, a recent graduate of the Command and General Staff college, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, is now with the Reserve components division, G-3 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Major Black spent a year in Korea with the IX Corps Artillery, returning to this country in February 1952.

From 1943 to 1945, he served in North Africa and Italy with the 630th AAA AW battalion in combat, and from 1945 to 1948, he was assigned to the U. S. Constabulary with occupation duty in Germany. Major Black has been in the Army for the past 12 years, and wears the Bronze Star medal with Oak Leaf cluster and appropriate theatre ribbons.

Captain Paul A. Swanson, now with the Sixth Army Transportation section, has just been graduated from the 10-months Transportation officer advanced school, Fort Eustis, Virginia.

A member of the famous First Cavalry division, Captain Swanson arrived in Japan in January 1950, and was wounded in the Korean fighting in August of that year. Returned to this country, he spent the next two years in service hospitals at Great Lakes, Ill., and Camp Atterbury, Indiana. In addition he served 30 months in the Pacific theatre in World War II.

Captain Swanson has been decorated with the Silver Star Medal, the Bronze Star Medal, the Purple Heart and all of the theatre ribbons. He has been in the Army for 11½ years.

Army Short Officers

Washington—Officer shortages in Artillery, Corps of Engineers, Ordnance Corps, Judge Advocate General Corps, and Medical Service Corps have been announced by the Army. Officers in other corps or branches who desire to transfer may do so in accordance with the stipulations set forth in AR 605-145 and Circular 58, July 20th. (AFPS)

Reserve Finance Unit Has Headquarters at Oakland Army Base

Activation of the 9059 ARAAU, Finance Regional Accounts Office United States Army Reserve, has been announced by Headquarters Sixth Army through the Chief, California Military District. The only reserve unit of its kind in the west, the unit was activated as an Early Ready Force with headquarters at the Oakland Army Base.

This reserve unit is designed to perform the centralized accounting functions of an Army area. These functions are to secure a proper administrative examination of all accounts prior to their transmission to the General Accounting Office, perform certain fiscal accounting, analyze accounts for proper classification as to appropriation, and to summarize and transmit the reports to the General Accounting Office.

All phases of finance will be taught during the three-year training program scheduled for the unit. Finance Corps officers and enlisted men with a background of accounting, IBM or administration are needed to fill this unit which will meet every Tuesday evening at the Oakland Army Base.

The commanding officer of the unit is Colonel Russel M. Stearns, FC, USAR, who is a certified public accountant and an attorney at law.

NATO Commands Plan Joint Exercise Tagged 'Operation Mariner'

Washington—Operation Mariner will be the first exercise sponsored jointly by the three principal North Atlantic Treaty Organization area commands for the Atlantic, Europe and English Channel, beginning Sept. 16 and continuing for 19 days.

The Atlantic exercise will take place between Greenland and Norway on the north and between the southern United States and Portugal to the south, as well as the English Channel, the North Sea, and parts of Western Europe.

Officers and men from nine of the 14 NATO nations will take part in ships and aircraft of all types. Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, the United Kingdom, and the U. S. will participate in one or more phases of applied sea-air power. (AFPS)

SILVER STAR

The Silver Star has been awarded, for gallantry in action, to Army SFC. Julius L. Cunningham while serving with Hq. Btry., 503rd FA Bn., 2nd Inf. Div., in the vicinity of Kunu-ri, Korea. Enemy forces had launched a powerful attack in that area. While engaged in this action Sgt. Cunningham saw eight soldiers, several of whom were wounded, trapped on the far bank of a wide and ice-bound river. Finding a boat, he smashed his way through the ice and began to take the group aboard. At this moment the enemy found the range and brought the group under heavy fire, mortally wounding several of them. Despite this fire Sgt. Cunningham got the rest of the group into the boat and made his way back to the relatively safe shore. He then led the men to the battalion aid station. Sgt. Cunningham's quick and gallant action saved his comrades from certain death.

Jewish New Year Services Planned During September

Jewish service personnel have been reminded that Rosh Hashanah (New Year) begins at sundown on Wednesday 9 September and ends at sundown on Friday 11 September. Yom Kippur (day of atonement) starts at sundown Friday, 18 September and ends at sundown Saturday, 19 September.

Presidio personnel and their families have been invited to attend the High Holy day religious services at the synagogue of their choice in the San Francisco Bay area.

Seating accommodations may be made by calling the Sixth Army chaplain's office, Ext. 2521 or 4192, or by calling UNDERhill 3-0620, or by writing to the National Jewish Welfare board, 1005 Market street, San Francisco.

Reserve Conference for Recruiting Slated at Harmon Armory 18 Aug.

A series of conferences regarding the maintenance of strength of Reserve units in the area has been held the past week.

Unit and company commanders from the San Francisco area will confer at Harmon Armory, Presidio of San Francisco, on 18 August, in an effort to map out a more vigorous recruiting campaign.

Units which are not up to authorized strength by 30 September will be discontinued.

Brigadier General E. C. B. Danforth, Jr., Chief, California Military district headquarters, has visited the Reserve headquarters at both Fresno and Sacramento, and has been represented at meetings in both Oakland and Stockton by Colonel William N. White, chief of staff, and Lt. Colonel Elmer Geforos, acting SAI, California Military district.

Fills Two Posts

Mr. Tracy S. Voorhees has been appointed to two posts in the Defense Department by Secretary Charles E. Wilson. He will fill a newly-created position in the Department by acting as the representative of the Secretary in matters relating to offshore procurement in Europe, and combine with it duties as Defense Advisor to Ambassador John C. Hughes, U. S. Permanent Representative on the North Atlantic Council. The assignment carries the personal rank of Minister.

AAA Chief Visits

Lt. Gen. John T. Lewis, chief of the nation's antiaircraft artillery defenses, was in Fort Baker Wednesday while on a tour of antiaircraft defense installations on the West Coast. He arrived by plane from Seattle, Wash., and proceeded to Los Angeles Thursday, returning to his headquarters at Colorado Springs later in the week. He was accompanied by Brig. Gen. Edward J. McGaw, commanding general of the Western Army Antiaircraft Command, Fort Baker.

93 Presidio Girl Scout Members Get Awards For Their Achievements

In one of the largest Courts of Awards ever held by Presidio Girl Scout troop No. 187, a total of 93 awards were presented at the meeting held on 12 August.

Of these, three were first class and 10 second class badges. In addition, two of the Scouts were awarded five-year pins for continuous membership.

The badges, all of which were earned since 1 June, were presented by Captain Elizabeth Polk Glaskowsky, Letterman Army hospital, who is the youth activities committee representative for Girl Scout activities.

The Presidio troop claims the largest membership of any in the city, according to Mrs. George C. Masters, Troop leader.

Battle Casualty Lists Expected to Be Halted

U. S. battle casualties numbering 142,294 were listed this week on what may be the next-to-last report to be presented on the Korean conflict.

The Defense department total was up 589 from last week, but reflected the start of the prisoner exchange by listing 35 fewer current missing and 166 fewer known prisoners.

Forced Extensions Go

Involuntary extensions will not be required of Regular Army men whose enlistments normally expired after 15 April 1953. This is the policy announced in SR 615-360-15, dated 14 July 1953.

Three involuntary extensions were required of the Regular Army enlisted men because of a shortage of qualified leaders and technicians in the noncommissioned ranks of the Army. These extensions were by executive order for lengths of nine months to a year.

Post Explorer Scouts Will Make Pack Trip Through Yosemite Park

Three Explorers of the Presidio Boy Scout Troop and Cpl. William J. Gunsalus, Post Scout Master, will leave tomorrow for Yosemite where they will join other San Francisco Explorers in a ten-day back-packing expedition along the rugged Yosemite Crest trail in the High Sierra.

Presidio Explorers making the trip will be Stuart Mitchell, Charles Parshall and Barton Carpenter. Cpl. Gunsalus will be one of three adult leaders assisting the expedition director.

A special feature of the expedition will be an air drop, which has been arranged with the U. S. Air Force to parachute fresh food supplies at mid-point. This will eliminate the necessity of the youths' packing all their food on their backs from the starting point of the 100-mile trip.

The Presidio group plans to remain in Yosemite for two days after the expedition to continue their hiking on some peaks of the park.

New Arrivals

Births to personnel of the Presidio and sub-posts at Letterman Army hospital during the past week were:

Twins, son and daughter, to: 6 August: Lt. Col. and Mrs. Wilton L. Simon, 6002, ASU, PSFC.

Daughters to: 3 August: Cpl. and Mrs. William C. Schaaf, 6900 ASU, Two Rock Ranch Station, Petaluma, California.

6 August: Lt. and Mrs. Robert L. Besseda, 542 Engr. Base Survey Co., Fort Scott.

For Better Service

Civilian News Notes

By Earle F. Reinke, Civilian Personnel

Representatives of the Civilian Personnel offices of Department of the Army installations in the San Francisco Bay Area met last week at Fort Mason and formed an Area Placement Committee which will carry out a new cooperative system for the placement of career employees who have been separated by reduction in force.

The Committee will endeavor to place career employees only after they have exercised all their reduction in force rights and privileges at their previous place of employment. This means that a career employee in either Retention Group I or Group II whose job is abolished first will have the opportunity for reassignment or placement within the installation where he is working and secondly with other Department of the Army installations in the commuting area.

The Area Placement Committee replaces the "monitoring" system which has been generally ineffective. The previous monitoring system theoretically entitled any career employee to displace ("bump") another career employee of the Department of the Army in a lower retention subgroup as well as Group III Department of the Army employees within the commuting area. The new procedure will permit career employees to displace only those employees in other Department of the Army installations in the commuting area who are in retention group III (Indefinite). It is believed that because it is a more realistic approach to the placement problem it will have a much greater chance of success.

In actual operation civilian personnel representatives from all Department of the Army installations in the commuting area will meet as often as is necessary in order to consider the cases of separated career employees. If no installation has a suitable vacancy for which the employee is qualified, all installations will canvass their rolls for a suitable position occupied by a Group III employee and the separated career employee will be considered for this position. If no such position exists in any Army installation, the Committee will refer the case to the Civil Service Commission for monitoring to all other federal agencies in the commuting area.

The Civil Service Commission may direct an installation to separate indefinite employees in order to make positions available for surplus career employees of other Departments. The objective is, of course, to prevent Group III employees from holding federal jobs for which R1 Fed career employees are qualified.

Employees eligible for these benefits are entitled to participate in the program until placement is effected or declined, or until expiration of one year from the date of their advance notice of reduction in force.

Department of the Army installations cooperating in establishing the Area Placement Committee are as follows:

- (1) Presidio of San Francisco, (2) San Francisco Port of Embarkation, (3) Army Audit Agency, (4) San Francisco District Engineers, (5) South Pacific Division Engineers, (6) Alameda Medical Depot, (7) San Francisco Ordnance District, (8) Office of the Secretary of the Army (SF Field Office), and (9) Quartermaster Market Center.

'Tennis Nets' Aid Jet Landings in Korea

A cheap, web-like device stretched across Korean airstrips has saved an estimated $2,250,000 worth of American Sabrejet fighter planes from crashing, the United States Fifth Air Force revealed recently.

On ten occasions since the device was introduced, damaged Sabrejets made emergency landings into a "tennis net" that pops up near the end of short airstrips and slows the supersonic fighter from its 140-mile an hour landing speed to an easy stop.

The net, similar to an aircraft carrier's arresting gear, is made of nylon webbing, steel cable and heavy anchor chain.

Devised by the Far East Air Force's 6400th Maintenance Group in Japan, the net costs the taxpayers about $14,000. It has saved ten Sabrejets so far—each worth about $240,000—and possibly the lives of ten pilots, officials said.

Army Losses from Fire Dwindle to Zero

Washington — Fire losses at Army installations in the U. S. during fiscal '53 were the lowest in seven years, the Department of Army announces.

Losses were $2,201,316 from July 1, 1952-June 31, 1953 as compared with $3,831,564 during fiscal '52. The average annual fire loss for the seven fiscal years of 1946-52 was $4,993,320.

The number of deaths due to fire was reduced from 13 the previous year to eight in fiscal '53.

HONOR GRADUATE of "B" Company, Military Police Training Center, Pvt. Stanley J. Alexson, was presented a Certificate of Achievement by Lt. Col. Keene Saxon, commanding officer of the 505th MP Bn., at graduation ceremonies Saturday at Fort Baker. Present were the other top graduates (l. to r.): Pvts. Ralph W. Johnson, Gerald D. Bruxvoort, Kenneth E. Kosman, Merle W. Nicks, Dean S. Mallory, William J. Hoffman, Franklin C. Beckley, Lester L. Stevens and Dwight M. Anderson.

It's This Weekend!

"The Time of Your Life," gay, laughable hit play by William Saroyan, will be presented to-night and Saturday night (14 and 15 August) at 1930, at the Fort Cronkhite Service club. This will be the initial presentation of the Fort Cronkhite Little Theatre group and will climax a week of festivities commemorating the second anniversary of the opening of the club.

BOOK CORNER

RAINBOW GOLD by Davenport Steward. A serious historical of America's first gold rush in 1828 and the subsequent surge into the Cherokee Nation, which contained the richest finds. The eternal human heart manifesting itself in love, conflict and greed.

MALENKOV, STALIN'S SUCCESSOR by Martin Ebon. The few concrete facts that the biographer has assembled about this man of mystery indicate that Malenkov is a disciplined man of action, contemptuous of theorists and provincial in outlook, whose training in terrorism and conspiracy has well equipped him to rule over a police state.

SEVEN AND ONE HALF CENTS by Richard Bissell. A gay, impudent and amorous novel about a strike in the garment industry. Sid, the hero, keeps very busy getting out the "lovers-on-parade" line of pajamas for the Sleep-Tite factory and tries to keep the operators happy while holding together their obsolete machines with bailing wire almost. Things eventually get worse before they get better.

WINSTON CHURCHILL by Virginia Cowles. The biographer sees Churchill as a man endowed with a sense of mission, the last of the great Romantics, who divides the world into villains and heroes, and who has always been more interested in ideas and events than in people. The motive powers behind his actions, she suggests, have always been emotion, impulse, and ambition rather than logic.

RAMEY by Jack Farris. The simple, moving story of a boy's growth from adolescence to manhood, told in the vernacular of the Ozark hill country. When his father is senselessly killed by the town bully, the boy faces life with an amazing courage gained from his wise father and good-natured mother.

But I would like to make this statement Mr. Chairman—Not a single shred of evidence has been produced to prove that I am or ever was a monkey, monkey's uncle or even associated with monkeys. However, since this committee is a wicked institution for attacking minorities I . . ."

HONORED BY ARMY—George Mardikian (left), San Francisco restaurant owner, was presented with a special Commendation award by the Army Quartermaster association at a Presidio dinner last week for his services in World War II in acting as a special consultant on subsistence to the Quatermaster General. Giving the award was Major General George A. Horton.

PFC Has New Twist For 'Candid Camera' Fun

With the 45th Inf. Div. in Korea —The 189th F. A. Bn. here has its own version of the well known "Candid Camera."

Every day Pfc. Shane D. O'Connell takes his motion picture camera with him as he goes through the battalion area. He shoots the daily routine of unwary artillerymen. Then the films are shown later before regularly scheduled movies. They have become so popular that the men call for them to be shown over and over.

One of the most popular scenes was of a battalion first sergeant trying desperately to direct a group of South Koreans to build an icebox. The contortions he went through obviously made it lucky there was no candid microphone.

The bill for the film and its processing is footed by O'Connell. He says he feels it is worth it as a morale builder. (AFPS)

Cinema Previews

"MISTER SCOUTMASTER," F*, brings out the best of Clifton Webb's sarcastic superiority as it clashes with his troop of Boy Scout demons when he takes over the troop in order to boost sale of the breakfast food his TV program sponsors.

"LATIN LOVERS," F*, is an amusing romantic comedy about this girl with $37,000,000 who can't decide whether or not to marry this boy who has $48,-000,000!

"FORT ALGIERS," F*, adventure-some tale of the African desert, brings together Arabs and the French Foreign Legion, as they battle valiantly for the causes they believe in.

"HALF A HERO," F*, casts Red Skelton and Jean Hagen as a young married couple just getting started and battling bills and problems that come with buying a home in a new housing development.

"ISLAND IN THE SKY," F*, with spectacular photography, is laid in the frozen north where a transport plane has been forced down. The touch and go battle to survive until help can reach them is topped by an exciting ending.

"VICE SQUAD," M, is saturated with car theft and bank robbery in a tingling 20-hour preiod as guests of the Los Angeles Police department.

Presidio Service Talent Will Give Prize-winning Show at Service Club

A total of six Presidio service-men, all of whom have won berths as delegates to appear on the "Talent Patrol," nation-wide television program aired from New York, will present a resume of their coming program when they appear at the Presidio Service club Monday (17 August) at 2000.

Destined for a September trip to New York after winning in the auditions held at Fort Ord last month are PFC Richard Armbrust, PFC Richard Barnett, PFC Samuel Minasian, PFC William Mundy, PFC Murray Korda and Cpl. Stanley Zirbel.

Pvt. Armbrust is a baritone whose specialty is light opera and opera. PFC Barnett is a master of percussion, with especial talent on the marimba. PFC Minasian and his violin present delightful folk music. PFC Mundy is a piano virtuoso and PFC Korda plays gypsy music on the violin. Cpl. Zirbel is a baritone with popular numbers his forte.

"Teen-sters" Troupe To Give Performance At Service Club Sunday

The "Teen-sters," troupe of variety performers led by Vonalee Rose as mistress of ceremonies, will appear at the Presidio Service club Sunday (16 August) at 2000.

Miss Rose who doubles as a boogie pianist and pantomime artist, has in her troupe Phyllis Isquierdo, tap and rumba dancer; Pauline Wood, vocalist; Shirley Rego, hula dancer, and Pat Tafjen, pantomime and piano accompanist.

A six-piece combo directed by Paul Crawford, with vocals by George Wood, will accompany the group, which has performed at Letterman Army hospital, Oakland Army base and Oak Knoll hospital among others.

Raiders Set for All-Sixth Tournament, See Fort Ord Only Threat to Crown

Next Thursday the Presidio Raiders leave for Fort Ord and the 1953 All-Sixth Army Baseball Championships.

They will meet teams from installations in the eight Western States—the cream of Pacific Coast Army ballplayers.

But, according to Presidio performance in the last month, game statistics, and player comparisons, the only real threat to the Raider's passing into the final phases of the Area contest seems to be in the formidable Fort Ord Warriors, California State Semi-Pro Champions.

Battery set-ups for the Presidians as recently outlined by Raider manager Sal Fucile will pass from Arkie Stanton, pitcher, and Sal Fucile, catcher, to Bill Herriage and Fucile.

Supporting Stanton and Herriage will be hurlers Bob Hill and "Lefty" Gaea.

First baseman for the Raiders will be big Bert Fowler and on second, Wayne Taylor.

Biggest gift to the Presidio team came by way of Ed Williamson, who has been temporarily relieved of his section duty to play with the Raiders at Fort Ord.

Ed will be filling shortstop, where he has been of key importance to the team's defensive strength all season long—when he's been able to play.

Hamaker will serve at his regular third base spot, while in the outfield Thayer, Jacobs and Klopp will take their stations in left, center and right field.

In view of the near-close of the Raider baseball season, this might be a good time to give some background of a few of the personalities on the team.

The majority of them have played professional ball prior to entering the Army and have expressed the wish to continue with their career on leaving—and a few of them will undoubtedly be names which will run into the nation's sports pages long after they have gone into civvies.

Starting with Sal Fucile, Raider manager: Sal first started playing professional ball with the Pittsburgh, Far West League, in 1948. Since then, in his four years with the professionals, he journeyed through the Santa Rosa, Far West League, 1949; Idaho Falls, Pioneer League, 1950; Erie, Pennsylvania, of the Middle Atlantic League, and latterly the Sioux City, Western League clubs, in 1952.

Sal is currently property of the New York Giants, and he will return to pro ball on his discharge from the Army.

Wayne Hamaker, pitcher and thirdbaseman for the Raiders, entered baseball professionally in Eugene, Oregon, of the Far West League. He won 13 games the next year as pitcher with the Billings, Montana, Pioneer League.

Property of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Hamaker will resume pro ball on his discharge.

Ken Klopp, Presidio pitcher and outfielder and property of the Cleveland Indians, has played two years of pro ball. In 1952 he played with the Class A Redding, Pennsylvania, group, winning his one and only game as pitcher. He has served also with the Bakersfield Class C club and the Cedar Rapids, Michigan, "Three I" league.

Gene Jacobs, centerfield, batted .389 with the Porterville Padres (Class C) to lead his league in 1951. Prior to that, Gene had sparkled as a college ballplayer and rung up .444 in 1952 to lead all universities and colleges in batting averages.

Before the Army, Jacobs played professionally with the San Diego Padres, batting .243 in 21 games. His ambition on leaving the service is to finish college and play professionally.

Bill Herriage, pitcher, served with the Klamath Falls, Ore., and San Jose, Calif., teams. In 1952 he switched to Twin Falls, Idaho, and the Pioneer League. Bill is under contract to the Boston Red Sox and will continue with pro ball when he leaves the Army.

Other Raider players include Hulen Stanton, pitcher, lately from the Modesto Reds and property of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and Ray Aridito, Santa Rosa pro.

Non-professionals include "Lefty" Gaea, who played amateur baseball at St. Louis College, Hawaii, and who expects to go into farming when he leaves the Army.

Wayne Taylor, second baseman for the Raiders, played semi-pro ball prior to the Army and is planning on making baseball his career.

Big Bert Fowler—a sergeant—has been playing service ball for a long time. His plans on leaving the service, according to Bert, are the "Old Soldiers' Home."

Maybe they'll play ball there, too.

All-Sixth Next! Raiders Split With Parks AFB, Lose Squeaker to Coast Guard

The Presidio Red Raider baseballers closed their practice sessions this week with one win and two losses. They split two games with the Parks, AFB, team and lost narrowly to the Bay Area Championship nine, the Coast Guard.

Next week they leave for Fort Ord and the Sixth Army Championship games.

Hurler Arkie Stanton mounded the Presidians to a 12-5 victory over the Parks airmen in the first of two games this Monday, allowing only three hits, fanning ten.

Heavystickers for the Raiders were Hamaker and Taylor.

The second Parks contest saw three Raider hurlers go to pitch against the warming airmen. Team manager Sal Fucile started for the locals, with Arkie Stanton and Bob Hill taking over the chores in subsequent innings.

The final score, 13-9, was produced in the main by airmen Farley, Cotter (5/6), George, Jones, Butter and Fry, all of whom got three hits or better off a suddenly weakened Raider pitching staff.

Tuesday's Coast Guard game started with Hamaker mounding for the Raiders. He was relieved in the fifth bracket with a sprained ankle, at which time Stanton took over.

It was a close game throughout, with the Sea Hawks registering their winning marker in the eighth frame off Debenedetti's bounding double, which sufficed to score teammate Ertola.

Biggest gun for the locals was Fucile, who poled his customary home-run, a double and two singles for a perfect percentage at bat.

Sea Hawk Adams showed well on the mound, though not as well as he did in mid-season against a vastly weaker Raider batting section.

Gridders Needed!

A meeting of all personnel interested in joining the Post football team will be held in Bldg. 122, Post Special Services, at 1330 hours, Monday, 17 August. At that time Deputy Post Commander Colonel William F. Magill will be present to give the gridgers an official boost into the 1953 season. Immediately after the meeting the regular football practice sessions will begin. Uniforms, shoes and other gear will be available at Special Services.

Hunting Regs Posted

California's 1953 hunting regulations in booklet form are now being distributed by offices of the California Department of Fish and Game and its 3,000 independent license agencies throughout the state.

The publication was delayed in order to include important changes made at the last session of the legislature.

Olson Back to Bosox

Karl Olson, six-foot, two-inch, 200-pound outfielder, joined the Red Sox last week following his discharge from the service. Olson played briefly with the Red Sox before entering the Army two years ago. He was considered the top outfield prospect in the entire organization.

He Ain't Tiny! 'Tiny' Kochel Hurls 505th MP Yellow Tops to Newest Victory

The kingpins of the Baker-Men-del softball league, the Yellow Tops, strung their win skein to all of seven games this week with an 8-2 triumph over the Company A Patrolers.

Star of the afternoon was pitcher "Tiny" Kochel—a new man on the mound for the unbeaten pedagogues—who wired Patroler stick-ers to only four connections, allowed three walks, and whiffed seven.

They call Sgt. Kochel "Tiny"—which is misleading. He scales at 338 pounds. Perhaps it is his very meatiness that lends such terrific force to his pitches. This week's game with the Patrolers was Kochel's first try on the mound for some time, and presumably he was not up to his usual form.

And there are dark hints from the Baker side of the Bay that he has had a bright past in Service sports prior to this—that pitching is not his only forte. In any event, Sgt. Kochel's chucking is the best we've seen on either side of the Bay for a long time.

Other weekly action on the Baker diamond saw Charlie Company Pelicans attack the Able Company Pistol Packers with a slugging 19-12 victory.

Heads Sixth Army Special Services

Col. Eugene Bogard

Sixth Army Headquarters has announced the change in assignment of Lt. Colonel Eugene D. Bogard, ex-Post Special Services chief. Colonel Bogard has been assigned to Sixth Army Headquarters as Army Special Services Officer. Prior to his Presidio assignment, Col. Bogard served 18 months at Camp Hakata, Japan, as Special Services Officer there. He was in Korea in October, 1951. During World War II, he served in the South Pacific Military Government office, 24th Division, and Eighth and Sixth Army Headquarters. He was a member of an advanced party which entered Japan prior to the occupation forces to set up facilities to be used by Allied Occupation Forces in the Sixth Army Area. Colonel Bogard, who wears the Bronze Star Medal, has been in the Army 31 years.

Alibis Bowl Over Soltechs in 3 Wins, Climb from Cellar

In the Fort Scott Bowling League this week the powerhouse bowling of the 21st Alibis sufficed to nab three out of four games from the once-hot 21st Soltechs, forcing them into a tie in game scores with the maple-mangling Surveyors.

High point man up to last week was Headquarters' Hollier, who bowled the cannon-ball for 191 points.

As for the bottom-of-the-ladder teams, there are still five weeks to go in the Fort Scott kegler season and plenty of time to make amends.

Pity the Fish

California party boat fishermen caught over 200,000 ocean fish during May, according to monthly catch records compiled by marine fisheries branch of the Department of Fish and Game.

More than 70,000 rockfish and 46,400 kelp bass were landed by party boat sportsmen throughout the State.

Engineer Softball! 21st Softball Nine Dunks 45th Boatmen, Cinches Loop Lead

By Sgt. Frank Sloan

Still adding to their list of prey, the hot-to-trot 21st Engineers had another victim on record after a sizzling 5-4 victory over the 45th Boat Company this week.

During the slugfest, the 45th led 4-3 going into the final inning and was threatening, but failed to score at the top of the seventh.

Jones, first up for 21st, grounded out. Moran followed with a single and was thrown out by Brinkmeyer, pitcher for 45th, while trying to steal second. The count was two outs and one run behind at the bottom half of the final inning.

Saddler came to bat under pressure and hit a fly into left field. It looked like it was all over for him when the fielder dropped the ball, and Saddler made second on the play.

Ditto was next up and erupted with a screaming liner to second scoring Saddler's tying run. Ferguson hit a slow grounder to the second-baseman, who bobbled the ball and Ditto scored.

Winning pitcher Cobb gave up six hits, one walk and fanned three, while Brinkmeyer let out seven hits, walked two and whiffed two.

Puig, 45th clean-up hitter, knocked the only homer in the game, with his fifth-inning belt over centerfield. Ditto tabbed two hits for four at bat.

The 21st Engineers now lead the league with three wins and no

It looks as if Pfc. Dick Yost, Camp Roberts golfer who recently came out on top in the Presidio-held Sixth Army Championships and carded a fourth-place in the All-Army tourney at Pebble Beach, will never stop swinging those clubs.

Most current golfing chore for Yost will be an exhibition match at the Green Hill Country Club near San Francisco, Saturday, 22 August. Yost will team with Green Hills professional Bill Fritz against the touring duo of semi-retired pro Byron Nelson and San Francisco amateur champ Ken Venturi.

Nelson, one of the greatest golfers of all time (he was born in the same year as Hogan and Snead), now spends most of his time raising turkeys, chickens and cattle on his ranch in Texas. He was invited to do the present tour by S. F. car dealer Ed Lowrey, to prepare his protege, the 22-year-old Venturi, for the Walker Cup Matches at Marion, Mass., 6-9 September.

Yost and Venturi, as young up-and-comers in the game, will be matching accolades as well as clubs next Saturday. According to Nelson, Venturi "has a bright future."

"At 22 he has already arrived . . . has distance off the tee without being concerned about it." Something which Nelson considers important in the embryo champion.

Having been under Nelson's tutelage for the past weeks, Venturi's style of golf has changed. He has adopted the dip in the knee characteristic of the Nelson swing.

Yost, while not as well-known as Venturi, was invited by officials arranging the Nelson exhibitions because of his recent sparkling play in winning the Pacific Northwest Amateur tourney. He was six under par in defeating Bruce Cudd, Oregon amateur champ, 5 and 4 in the finals.

Frank Farella, Green Hills golfer of some standing, who arranged the exhibition, says he feels that Fritz and Yost will take the measure of the fast-stepping Nelson-Venturi duo. Says Farella, "I think that boy Yost is one of the coming greats of the game."

In any event, golfing experts consider both Yost and Venturi as the two most promising amateurs on the Pacific Coast. Venturi, a civilian, has much more time to practice and enter tournaments, hence his brighter name. It will be interesting to see how fast Yost moves up when he finally discards the khaki.

Sports activities within the Sixth Army Area this week found close-of-the-season activities on most Post diamonds. At Camp Stoneman last week, the 2354 PP Sq., Post Intramural League Baseball Champions, scored nine runs in the top half of the last inning to come from behind and completely smother the All-Star team 15-7. The All-Stars were a product of the SALVO (Post newspaper) sports-writers.

Also on Stoneman property we hear of the discharge of 1st Lt. Clayton Tonnemaker, 1st string center for the Green Bay Packers and former University of Minnesota All-American. He is expected to resume his professional career on release.

Cpl. Craig Gifford, Sports Editor of the Stoneman SALVO for the past seven months is being discharged from the Army shortly. His place is being taken by Pfc. Milt Mittleman, ex-Chicago Daily Newsman. His column will be entitled "Down the Middle with—Mittleman"—and we'll watch for it!

In Camp Roberts this week, the newly-organized Post baseball team, the All-Stars, behind brilliant pitching of Pvt. Whitney Ulrich shut out the powerful Santa Maria Indians, 4-0.

Pvt. Ulrich, property of the St. Louis Cardinals, walked only three men and fanned eight. His specialty: a blazing fast-ball and sharp-breaking curve.

The All-Stars, made up of the finest ball-players from the Roberts intra-mural baseball teams, was put together at the close of the intra-mural season so that Roberts could send its best to next week's All-Sixth competition. The 22-man aggregation has been playing various top semi-pro clubs and other installations in preparation for the contest.

Also at Roberts, fans got a look at some good softball chucking last week when Hospital hurler Pvt. Jack Fix faced 22 men and allowed only one of them to reach first, shutting out the opposing 507th Repl. Company 2-0. Pvt. Fix fanned 15 in his no-hit, no-run effort, while his teammates earned two runs on six hits off 507th's hurler Jack Ulrich—not to be confused with All-Star Ulrich.

Ord Wins Thrice Over Diego Sailors For Semi-Pro Title

A 20-inning 2-1 victory in favor of Fort Ord capped off a three-game triumph by the Warrior baseball team against the San Diego NAS Skyraiders last week, to give the Ordsters their second successive California State Semi-Pro title.

Previously the Warriors had trimmed the Marysville Giants to take the Northern Division crown. The San Diego team won the Southern Division tournament held at San Luis Obispo.

Bill Pinckard was hero in the final marathon struggle when he thrashed a ball out of the park in the top of the 20th for the winning tally.

S. F. Auto Show Slated

Plans for San Francisco's Motor Sports Show, to be staged 21-25 November at S. F. Civic Auditorium were completed recently.

More than 200 unusual autos boats and motorcycles will vie for attention along with exhibits of mobile homes and sports displays of multiple variety.

Headquarters for the show have been established at 833 Powell Street, Fairmont Hotel Bldg., and will remain open for information until opening day. Entries are being received there.

Herriage in Hospital

Raider pitcher Bill Herriage went into the hospital this week for a tonsillectomy.

He will be out in time to go to work for the Raiders next week, however, in their All-Sixth competition at Fort Ord.

Northern, Southern Division Netters Clash in All-Sixth Dual at Madigan

Jack Shoemaker

The Northern and Southern Division Sixth Army Tennis Preliminaries came to a close last week, with victors from Fort Lewis, Camp San Luis Obispo and Fort Ord becoming titlists in their respective divisions.

The North and South contingents met at Madigan Army Hospital this week, 11-15 August, to determine All-Sixth champions in doubles and singles matches.

Top man in the Camp Roberts Southern preliminaries was Lt. Jack W. Shoemaker of Hollywood, California, who represented Camp San Luis Obispo.

The ex-UCLA net star won the singles title in the recent Roberts tourney by defeating Pfc. John J. Bisch, Fort Ord, in three straight sets, 6-3, 6-3, 6-1.

The three-year Bruin letterman didn't lose a single set throughout the entire Southern Division contest.

Bisch found some measure of compensation, however, when, under a broiling sun, he and Ken Walts of Fort Ord edged the SLO duo of Shoemaker and Fritz Hurd, 6-3, 6-3, 1-6, 5-7, 6-4.

The two Ord players and the pair of San Luis Obispo stars will represent the Southern Division this week.

Chief threat to Shoemaker's unsullied record in the singles is ace netter at the Northern prelims at Madigan last week—hard-hitting Dick Osburn, a Fort Lewis-stationed private from Dallas, Texas.

Osburn teams with Cpl. Robert Schroeder of Elgin, Illinois, against the Southern doublists.

The tourneys this week will be single elimination. The best two out of three sets shall constitute a match, excepting the semi-finals and finals which will be determined by the best three out of five sets.

Winners in the All-Sixth, which finishes tomorrow, are slated for the All-Army Tennis Championship, to be held 25-29 August at West Point, New York.

QUESTIONS

1. What A. L. manager holds the all-time record for the most pennants won?
2. How many Indianapolis speedway races did Barney Oldfield win?
3. What N.L. pitcher had the best earned-run average in 1952?
4. Where was the world's fastest mile on land recorded?
5. Vic Ghezzi, Doug Ford and Ted Kroll are all well known jockeys, golfers, boxers, or baseball players?

ANSWERS

1. While managing the Philadelphia Athletics, Connie Mack won nine pennants. Joe McCarthy, while piloting the Yankees, won eight pennants.
2. None. The famous Oldfield, one of the greatest drivers of his day, was never a winner of the Indianapolis classic.
3. Hoyt Wilhelm, New York Giants, with an earned-run average of 2.43, led N.L. hurlers. He was followed by Warren Hacker's 2.58 ERA.
4. On the salt flats of Bonneville, Utah, Sept. 16, 1947. John R. Cobb, driving a Railton Red Lion, was timed at 403.135 mph, fastest ever recorded on land.
5. Golfers. All recently competed in the U. S. Open Golf tournament at Oakmont, Pa.

No License Needed!

California sportsmen will be faced with some new hunting and fishing regulations when the sun rises on 9 September, the 91st day after adjournment of the 1953 legislative session. Among the new regulations are included clauses which permit members of the Armed Forces on active duty to fish without an angling license, and the issuance of free hunting and angling licenses, pheasant and deer tags, to totally disabled war veterans.

Enos 2,000 Hitter

Ord to Host All-Sixth Baseball; Fort Sam Houston, All-Army

Plans for the 1953 All-Sixth Army Baseball Tournament received the official stamp of approval from the AG Section this week, with Area teams scheduled to converge at Fort Ord, California, 24-29 August, to match bats for the choicest fruits of the baseball season.

There will be no preliminary tournaments, and team winners will be determined on a double elimination basis. Official 1953 National Baseball League Rules will govern all play.

Sports officials at Sixth Army Headquarters here at the Presidio have invited and encouraged all installations within the Army Area to enter a team in the contest.

Trophies to be won include the prized Sixth Army Commander's Trophy, to be awarded to the team winning the Championship. It will be held for temporary possession for one year. A replica of the award will be presented for permanent possession. Individual awards will be presented to each member of the winning and runner-up teams.

Besides the All-Sixth title,

Area teams will be slugging with an eye toward the big All-Army tourney, to be held during the period 7-12 September at Ft. Sam Houston, Texas, in the Fourth Army Area.

All servicemen on extended active duty, assigned to this Army Area, are eligible to enter a team, excepting those men undergoing individual training, basic and advanced combat, and men pending assignment to basic training units.

Each installation is authorized one team not exceeding eighteen members, including team officials.

Roger Bresnahan, Mickey Cochrane, Connie Mack, Wilbert Robinson, Buck Ewing, Mike "King" Kelly and Jim O'Rourke all have two things in common. As ballplayers they were catchers and they are all in the Hall of Fame.

For Surer Performance!

Deadly Beta Rays Ferret Out Flaws In Army's Guns, Shells

Dover, N. J.—Spinning electrons inside doughnut-shaped vacuum tubes have been harnessed as "seeing eyes" to speed the inspection of tanks, ammunition and other Army battlefield equipment.

The electrons—light satellite particles of the atom—are the source of high energy X-ray.

used to penetrate metal forgings, castings, welds and machine assemblies ranging in thickness from a fraction of an inch up to 24 inches.

At Picatinny Arsenal here a 22,000,000 volt "seeing eye" passes final judgment on high explosive shells for the Army's largest gun—the 280-millimeter monster which also can fire atomic projectiles.

Because of its potent and deadly radiation, the X-ray inspector is treated with as much respect as a bolt of lightning. It penetrates 11 inches of metal and explosive charge in its photographic examination of the "king size" artillery shells.

In a matter of minutes, the massive X-ray instrument known as Betatron detects air pockets in the explosive charge within a projectile as well as imperfections in the metal surrounding the charge. Imperfections show up on the photographs as clearly as they do in medical and dental X-rays. The Betatron can find a flaw in a steel casting as readily as a hospital X-ray machine can locate a break in a bone.

The Betatron derives its name from its production of high energy beta rays or electrons—those minute particles with a negative electric charge which whirl around the core of an atom.

The process from electron to X-ray is relatively simple. The giant-size, push-button controlled apparatus figuratively gives these electrons a kick in the pants to set them in motion. Then, like a self-starter spinning an engine faster and faster, the electrons build up momentum until they are whirling around inside the doughnut at a speed of 186,000 miles per second.

When these electrons reach their peak energy, the magnetic field is reversed and the electrons break from their path around the glass doughnut and fly off against a platinum target. Bombardment of the target produces X-rays.

The next step in the process of inspection is to focus these rays in a cone-shaped beam which passes through a counting chamber, through the metal being tested, and finally onto a film plate behind the object being scrutinized.

The counting chamber—a small metal box equipped with an instrument similar to a Geiger counter—records the amount of radiation emitted and relays this information to an operator at a control panel outside the Betatron exposure room. After a desired amount of radiation has passed through the object being X-rayed the beam is shut off, the film plate is developed, and photographic evidence is at hand.

Prior to use of Betatron, inspection of welded tank turrets to determine where inferior flaws would develop in quantity production often required more than two months. Now the process takes only a week and the X-ray pictures reveal even trivial flaws in the welds.

From the drawing board to the battlefield, in experimental research and in quantity production, many ordnance items now line up for Army physicals by the "electronic doctor." (ANF)

Restrict Appointments Of Reserve Officers

Restrictions on direct appointments in the United States Army Reserve are outlined in a Reserve Components circular issued this week by Sixth Army Headquarters.

No further applications for direct appointment in the USAR as reserve warrant or commissioned officers will be accepted or processed for individuals who are either classified 1-A or could be classified by 1-A by loss of their current Selective Service deferment classification. However, applications which were formally accepted for processing prior to 25 July 1953 are to be processed to final conclusion.

Programs of the Department of the Army not affected by this restriction are: direct appointment with concurrent active duty when vacancies have been announced by Department of the Army, special registrants (Medical Corps, Dental Corps and Veterinarian Corps) applying under provisions of SR 140-105-8, Army Officer Candidate Schools and Senior ROTC.

'Copter Pilot Training To Be Given Medical Officers at Fort Sill

To meet requirements for staffing helicopter ambulance medical detachments, a program to train Medical Service Corps officers as helicopter pilots has been initiated at the Army Aviation School, Fort Sill, Okla.

Successful completion of this twenty-two-week course will qualify the officer to be designated Army Aviator and awarded MOS 1066, Helicopter Pilot. Assignments will be to helicopter ambulance units at Brooke Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston, Texas, or in overseas commands. A few officers will be assigned to the Staff and Faculty, Medical Field Service School at Fort Sam Houston and the Army Aviation School, Fort Sill.

Officers are placed on flying status while students and when designated Army Aviator and are therefore eligible to receive flying pay appropriate to their grade.

Complete details as to prerequisites and method of application to enter this program are included in SR 605-95-1. Although these regulations limit entrance to lieutenants, officers of higher grade may request waiver of this prerequisite.

Reveal Top Secret!

UN Radar Station Operated Under Red Noses in Korea

One of the top-secret projects of the Korean war has been unveiled to the great chagrin of the Chinese Reds and the chuckles of the UN high command.

Cho, which is only a four-by-five mile island about 60 miles from the mouth of the Yalu River and 45 miles from the Red capital of Pyongyang, was occupied by the Army and Air Force as a radar and air rescue squadron station.

Cho's radar picked up the Russian-built MIG-15s as they took off from Manchurian and North Korean air bases. They tracked the MIGs right up to the time they were intercepted by our fast jets.

Approximately 200 UN pilots and their crews have been snatched up by Cho's 2157th Air Rescue Squadron after they had been forced to parachute into the waters of the Yellow Sea.

Cho's security forces consisted of some 2000 Korean marines, plus 500 American personnel.

Cho was also responsible for an interesting hoax.

One morning, some MIGs were out looking for trouble and were tracked on Cho's radar screens.

Cho Radio sent out a faked message to an F-86 squadron saying that the MIGs had been sighted and gave their position. Since the Reds were monitoring the Cho frequency they heard the message.

The MIG pilots also heard the radio operator say.

"They're at 5,900 now (which they were)! Get up behind them in the sun. They'll be sitting ducks for you!"

Sixty seconds later, Cho radar and radio operators watched the screens as the MIGs sped away from the scene—and from the mythical flight of F-86s. (AFPS)

October Calling!

A draft call of 23,000 men has been ordered for the month of October, the same number as was designated for the months of July, August and September.

Since selective service operations were reopened in September 1950, a total of 1,538,340 men have been called up for induction into the Army.

Officials have pointed out that the present draft figure is likely to continue until the Korean situation becomes more stable and then dwindle to approximately 4,000 monthly until next summer.

Camp Roberts Drive For AER Surpasses Anticipated Estimates

Camp Roberts, Calif.—Donations to the campaign to raise funds for the Army Emergency Relief totaled $13,606.09, surpassing by more than $2,000 the amount anticipated during the five-week drive which ended here last week-end.

By contributing an average of more than $1.38 per man, soldiers of Reserve Command collected a total of $3,542.34 to top the drive. The high company-size unit was Battery A, 87th Armored Field Artillery Battalion with an average of more than $2.19 per man for a total of $505.55 collected by the unit.

Climax of the campaign was a two-hour variety show featuring Lillian "Beulah" Randolph. More than 1200 soldiers and civilians attended to contribute more than $300 to the drive.

$4,900 Savings Made in Forms By Headquarters

Reported savings of $4,900 have been achieved by Headquarters Sixth Army as a result of the Forms Management program, according to a progress report for the period from 16 March through 15 June, 1953. The headquarters eliminated three forms by consolidation and did not replace another 95 for a total of 98.

By not replacing 47 forms, the Presidio of San Francisco effected reported savings of $1,457, while Fort Lewis reported savings of $800 by consolidating two and not replacing four forms. Savings of other installations were: California Military District, $313; Fort MacArthur, $165.86, and Fort Douglas, $13.47.

With a total of 183, Fort Ord eliminated the largest total number of forms by consolidating four and not replacing 184. Fort Ord did not submit a figure on the savings accomplished. Camp Roberts also did not report the savings resulting from the elimination of 76 forms not replaced.

Throughout the Sixth Army area, the savings which were reported amounted to $7,649.33. A total of 581 forms were eliminated, 27 by consolidation and 554 not replaced.

18 Months Set As Minimum for Duty in CONUS

All Regular Army enlisted personnel returning to continental United States from a normal overseas tour will serve a minimum of eighteen months from date of arrival before again becoming qualified for further overseas assignment, Department of the Army has announced.

This action reduces to eighteen months enlisted assignments in United States currently stabilized at eighteen months to two years. Reenlistments during the period of this stabilization will not operate to extend the stabilization beyond the 18 months.

Personnel may volunteer for overseas assignment prior to completion of eighteen months of CONUS service.

Excepted from the stabilization are Regular Army enlisted personnel assigned as ROTC instructors who will not be reassigned during an academic year and RA personnel of the CIC who may be excepted when needs of the service so require.

The new policy becomes effective 1 September 1953.

Colonel Karl C. Frank

31-Year Career in Army Closes for Col. Karl C. Frank

A total of 31 years of Army service has ended with the recent retirement of Colonel Karl C. Frank, for the past two years the PMS&T at Utah State Agricultural college, Utah Military District, Logan, Utah.

A retirement review was held at Fort Douglas for the colonel, at which time he was presented the Sixth Army "Certificate of Achievement." The award was presented by Colonel William C. McFadden, chief, Utah Military District, who represented Sixth Army Commander, Lt. General Joseph M. Swing.

Colonel Frank is a graduate of Kansas State college. He attended Artillery school at Fort Monroe, Virginia, from 1923 to 1924 and again from 1929 to 1930.

During World War II, he was with the Hawaiian department and later served in the European theatre. He was senior instructor at Oregon Military district from October, 1947, until the fall of 1950 when he was assigned to the Utah Military district.

N.D. Bonus Deadline

The deadline for filing for WWII North Dakota state bonus payments is Feb. 18, 1954. Persons who had active service in the Armed Forces between the dates of Jan. 1, 1941 and Jan. 1, 1946 can receive $12.50 per month of domestic service and $17.50 per month of foreign service. Address applications to Adjutant General, State House, Bismarck, N. D.

Shortly after 0800 Sunday morning, the transport General Nelson W. Walker will pass under the Golden Gate bridge bringing 328 former prisoners of war home from Korea. These POWs will be the first to return by ship.

As the General Walker comes into port, the repatriated prisoners will be given a musical welcome by the Sixth Army band playing on the decks of a boat circling the transport as she proceeds to Fort Mason to dock at Pier 2 at 0900.

The first POW down the gangplank will be greeted by Lieutenant General Joseph M. Swing, commanding general of the Sixth Army. The Fort Mason band will be on the pier to play as the men disembark.

Families of returning prisoners have been notified by the Defense Department of their arrival and many are expected to be there.

Their arrival will be telecast over three television networks and broadcast by radio throughout the nation. Press reporters and photographers will be on hand and some will be included in the boarding party to meet the ship.

Every effort is being made to process all of the former prisoners and get them on their way home as speedily as possible. The Camp Stoneman processing unit will set up shop and begin their work the minute of dockside. Stoneman officials have also made plane and train reservations and it is anticipated that all those physically able will be on their way by Sunday evening.

First to be processed will be those whose families are not present. After their paper work has been finished, these men will be taken to the Presidio Service club to wait for the time of their departure.

The men whose families will be there to greet them will be given time for their reunions before their processing is started. A separate enclosure will be set aside for them. After their processing they will be able to leave immediately with their families.

Disabled returning prisoners in a patient status will be taken directly to Letterman Army Hospital where they will be reunited with their families. They will be given physical examinations and necessary treatment then dismissed as soon as possible.

Of the total 328 repatriated prisoners of war returning on the General Walker, 320 are Army personnel.

Brig. Gen. R. E. Lindquist

General Lindquist Leaves Stoneman; Gen. Lewis Named

Brigadier General Roy E. Lindquist, commanding officer at Camp Stoneman, California, since May of this year, will leave Sunday for his new assignment as assistant Division commander, Sixth Infantry Division, Fort Ord, California.

Replacing him at Camp Stoneman will be Brigadier General James M. Lewis, former civil administrator for the Ryukus Islands.

Both generals will be honored at a parade and review at Camp Stoneman Saturday (22 August) at 1100.

General Lewis, a graduate of West Point, class of 1920, Field Artillery, went to France in February, 1944, as commanding general of the 32nd Field Artillery Brigade. In July of that year, he became commander of the 30th Division Artillery in Normandy.

Named deputy commander at Fort Lewis, Washington, in June, 1946, he was later assigned to the War Department General Staff as chief of the classification and personnel actions branch. He was named civil administrator for the Ryukus Islands in January, 1951.

General Lewis has been decorated with the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, the French Croix de Guerre, the Belgian Croix de Guerre and The Netherlands Order of Orange Nassau.

Recent Michigan State Legislation extends to June 1, 1956 the deadline date which allows disabled veterans to apply for state bonus payment. The deadline was May 31, 1953, but disabled veterans who are still in the service or in a veterans' or State hospital have been given the new deadline for applying for WWII bonus checks.

Weekly World News AT A GLANCE

IN IRAN, forces loyal to the Shah ousted Premier Mohammed Mossadegh with a bloody and violent nine-hour coup Tuesday during which at least 300 persons were killed. Mobs armed with sticks and stones massed in the southern part of Teheran at 0900 and were joined by soldiers and uniformed police. By noon the mobs with five tanks and 20 trucks in their midst closed in on the center of the capital setting fire to eight buildings. By afternoon they were in control of the Foreign Ministry and various other ministries. A mob shouting "Long Live the Shah" swept through the compound and home of Mossadegh and even entered the politician's bedroom to find only a dead bodyguard. Although Mossadegh fled, his capture was announced Wednesday. The mobs pillaged his home and peddled his furniture in the bazaars for souvenirs. The uprising was led by Major General Fazollah Zahedi whom the Shah named as Premier just before he left the country for Rome in his private plane Sunday. The new Premier requested the Shah to return at once and he was expected to start back Thursday.

IN RUSSIA, the Soviet government at Moscow announced Thursday it had exploded a hydrogen bomb. A government communique said the explosion in the Soviet Union "a few days ago" set off a "thermonuclear reaction of great force." The test showed that "the hydrogen bomb is many times stronger than atom bombs," the communique said. In Washington, the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission confirmed that Russia exploded an H-bomb, the blast occurring on the morning of 12 August.

IN FRANCE, the French strike continued to spread Thursday as it went into its fifteenth day. New strike orders went out to hundreds of thousands of workers in the metal industries and building trades. The new 48-hour stoppages were directed to begin Friday, but workers were reported to be walking off the job earlier in big plants like the Renault auto factory in Paris which employs 37,000. At the same time, at least one million workers are still idle in the French railroads, coal mines and post offices. There were slight prospects that the nationwide strikes would quiet down before next week when Parliament is expected back for an emergency. If Parliament backs Premier Joseph Laniel, there is no assurance the strike might not spread into a complete general strike.

IN ITALY, the new cabinet of Christian Democrats led by Premier Giuseppe Pella was sworn in Monday and went before the Chamber of Deputies Wednesday. The 51-year-old Premier, a financial expert, said his government would support the North Atlantic Alliance and European unity. Missing from the lineup of cabinet members was Alcide de Gasperi, eight-time Premier and the dominant figure of postwar Italian politics. He turned down the Foreign Ministers' portfolio in the new government which is committed to make only an administrative housecleaning and push no major policy measures.

IN GREEK ISLANDS of the Ionian Sea, the United States Sixth fleet brought tons of food supplies and tents to care for the thousands of victims of last week's earthquake. The International Red Cross at Geneva estimated the death toll at 1000 persons in the earthquakes that split mountains and sent cliffs crashing into the sea. An estimated 20,000 homes were destroyed and the homeless were without water, their wells filled with mud. British and U. S. helicopters dropped containers of pure water to head off epidemics.

IN ENGLAND, Prime Minister Churchill attend his first Cabinet meeting Tuesday since his doctors ordered him to rest nearly two months ago. He then returned to his country home.

IN KOREA, the prisoner exchange passed the half-way mark this week with just over 50 per cent of the promised Allied prisoners returned by Thursday. However, fewer than half of the 3,313 American prisoners have been sent back. Signs are that the rate of return for U. S. prisoners will increase with 150 Americans, the largest group so far, to be included in Friday's exchange.

IN UNITED NATIONS, three main propositions have been set forth for dealing with the Korean peace conference. And although several small nations are hinting at compromise plans, the Western powers apparently believe there is no need to widen the choice. The Russian plan is for a round-table discussion involving only a few of the fighting nations, and including several neutrals. This is the one the United States will not accept. The United States plan is for a meeting of the 16 fighting Allies, on one side, and the North Koreans and Red Chinese on the other. In between is the proposal to include Russia in such a meeting, which the United States has agreed to do if the Russians sit on the Communist side.

IN JAPAN, the third most devastating flood in less than a month left one hundred dead, missing or injured and thousands driven from inundated homes last weekend. The latest area to be stricken is in the southern part of the main Japanese island. This great flash flood resulted from the breaking of a dam at the head of the valley with a half a million tons of water from a reservoir pouring into an already rain-swollen river which burst its dikes in 700 places. Scores of landslides followed the wall of water which swept down the narrow valley.

IN MOROCCO, the Sultan has been deposed by France and he and two of his sons have been exiled to the Mediterranean island of Corsica. The 44-year-old Sultan has been giving the French trouble recently by encouraging Nationalists who want independence for the French protectorate. He was dethroned after Berber tribesmen of the Sultan's bitter foe, the Pasha of Marrakech began to march down from the hills on the palace at Rabat. A curfew now has been imposed in Morocco.

IN HUNGARY, Edgar Walter, British business man sentenced by a Hungarian court to thirteen years in prison in February, 1950, was pardoned by the Hungarian Presidium Monday. Sanders was arrested at the same time as United States businessman Robert Vogeler, who was released 28 April, 1951. Sanders said in Vienna after his release that the Communist secret police "prepared" him for his "espionage" confession by constant interrogation. At one point he was questioned for 35 hours without a stop, he said.

In the Army for the past 12 years, Major Ferguson spent three years in the Pacific in World War II with the 7th Infantry Division, and has been awarded the Bronze Star medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Purple Heart.

CIVILIAN PERSONNEL OFFICER of Camp Roberts, C. J. Deacon, was presented the Department of the Army commendation for meritorious civilian service Monday by Maj. Gen. Robert F. Sink, commanding general, 7th Armored Division. The citation states: "His loyal devotion to duty, able leadership and superior organizational ability inspired his fellow workers to a sustained high level of performance which resulted in an outstanding personnel program." Prior to coming to Camp Roberts in May, 1951, Mr. Deacon was civilian personnel officer at McCord Air Force Base and had also served as assistant civilian personnel officer at Fort Lawton, Wash. (U. Newspapers' Prove Army's Ability to 'Get Out the Word'

Seoul—Army newsmen in the Far East are in a tongue-twisting business that makes Peter Piper look pale as papyrus.

Troop Information and Education editors who put out the Army's unit newspapers go to press in many languages in order to keep attached United Nations' units abreast of the news.

The Third Infantry Division, for instance, has been energetic in bringing out multi-lingual newspapers. The division at various times has published editions in Korean, French, Flemish, Spanish and Greek.

The Third Infantry Division paper was the first of many to bring out a Korean edition. It was putting out Korean-language editions as early as September, 1950, in Japan.

Since then, soldiers of many tongues have been able to read the news in their own language, courtesy of the Army papers.

A common Army newspaper practice is to print items side by side in two languages, or to use one page for the English-speaking readers and the next for the attached foreign units.

The 25th Infantry Division's Tropic Lightning News, for example, carries stories in English, Turkish and Korean. A weekly, it is edited and proofread by Americans who speak neither Turkish nor Korean, and hand set by Koreans who speak neither English nor Turkish.

The problems of the Tropic Lightning News are typical. The printers make mistakes, of course, because they are familiar with only one of three languages.

But they make fewer miscues in setting Turkish copy than they do either on English or their own Korean.

In the English and Korean copy, they sometimes assume they recognize a word from the first two or three letters without checking further. Mistakes crop up when the guess is wrong.

But they have almost no experience with Turkish, so they have to set the material with great care, letter by letter.

Army foreign language papers are not confined to the Far East. In the Panama Canal Zone and Puerto Rico, Spanish editions appear for troops speaking that language. (ANF)

Chief's Parting Salute

(Editor's Note: The following is Army Chief of Staff General J. Lawton Collins' parting message to the troops on the occasion of his retirement.)

"To the men and women of the Army: I cannot complete my tour as Chief of Staff without paying heartfelt tribute to you the men and women of the Army and civilian alike for your loyalty, sacrifice and constant devotion to duty.

"During the past four years your splendid achievements have enabled the Army to meet unprecedented responsibilities in a superb way. Fighting a war in peacetime on a battlefield more than 5,000 miles from home while at the same time building our strength to deter new aggressions elsewhere or to repel them if necessary required unprecedented effort.

"Korea has already become one of the finest chapters in our military history. Beginning that day three years ago at the little village of Osan, where American soldiers stood fast against odds as great as 30 to 1, the story of the fighting in Korea was a story of daily hardship, determination and valor. The Eighth Army reorganized and rotated three times in the face of the enemy, will live in history as the first United Nations fighting force and as one of the invincible armies of all time. All this would not have been possible without the magnificent response not only of the Regular Army but of our own National Guard and Organized Reserves who have added new brilliance to their citizen soldier tradition.

"In Europe and in scattered distant outposts, you have been helping our partners man the defenses of the Free World against the possible new threat of militant, imperialistic Communism. Here at home, you have utilized our nations tremendous industrial capacity and scientific genius to make the best fed, best clothed, best equipped soldier in the world today and also to multiply your firepower and mobility for the possible battlefields of tomorrow.

"To every man and woman, wherever you are, I want you to know that I have been proud to serve with you in our great Army. And I am sure you join with me in paying homage to those of our fellow soldiers who have made the supreme sacrifice in action in Korea. They embody the spirit and patriotism by which the Army has always defended our nation expressed in the words—'duty, honor, country.'"

/s/ J. Lawton Collins.

Training Course To Be Conducted At Northwestern

Motor vehicle safety and traffic regulation will be the subject of a specialized training course to be conducted at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., under the general supervision of the Department of the Army from 26 October through 20 November 1953.

This course is designed for Army officers and key civilians whose duties and responsibilities involve planning for traffic safety activities, administration or direction of the movement of personnel or material by highway transportation, highway traffic control and other phases of safety in highway transportation.

Comprehensive training will be given the development and administration of safety activities specifically directed at the prevention of motor vehicle accidents. Among the other subjects will be the examination and licensing of drivers, use of accident records in improving driver and vehicle control, use of and cooperation with other governmental and private safety organizations, and application of civilian traffic safety practices to military needs and situations.

Nominations of officers and civilian employees from area installations for attendance at this class should be submitted to reach Headquarters Sixth Army, ATTN: AMGAP-SB, not later than 31 August.

Final selection of students will be made by the Department of the Army. Commanding officers who have submitted nominations will be informed as to personnel selected upon receipt of the approved rosters at Headquarters Sixth Army.

Army T.I.C. Topic

Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units next week will be somewhat unusual in that they will deal with principles and facts which explain why the conferences and other troop information media and activities are carried on by the Army.

Troop Topics, No. 20-160, "Information and You," defines troop information as "facts that are important for soldiers to know." For the most part, these facts are the kind that help toward understanding some idea or situation directly or indirectly related to the individual's duties as an American soldier.

Each headquarters along the chain of command plays an important part in planning information activities. The Department of the Army supplies information related to matters that are common to all units and explaining the overall mission. The Department of Defense provides information for the Armed Forces as a whole—Army, Navy and Air Force—on broader subjects concerning national and international affairs.

Although every commander along the chain of command shares in the responsibility for troop information, the company commander has the most direct concern since he knows what information is needed better than anyone else. However, the biggest troop information responsibility of all is that of the individual since he is the only person who can make it pay off for himself, for his unit and for the Army.

Chemical Corps Was Inventor of Popular Respiration Method

Washington—The Army Chemical Corps developed the new back-pressure arm-lift technique for artificial respiration.

Now adopted as a standard life-saving technique in the United States, the method combines pressure on the victim's back with lifting motions of his arms.

The American Red Cross—which has adopted the technique—considers it the most effective means of restoring the breathing of persons in danger of death by drowning, hanging, electrical shock and other causes.

The new technique—also called the Holger Nielsen method—makes it possible to press more than 1,000 cubic centimeters of air into a victim with each movement. This is more than twice the number of cubic centimeters estimated as possible under the old method.

Answer to Puzzle

Operation Big File!

Washington — The Army Adjutant General's office at St. Louis, Mo., keeps 19,800,000 files on Army and Air Force veterans.

The office handles more than 1,500,000 inquiries a year which must be answered by referring to these files.

Current doctrines, principles and methods of Ordnance field maintenance and supply management, will be given by members of the 46th Ordnance group at the Presidio of San Francisco beginning 31 August.

Sixth Army Ordnance officers assigned to field maintenance and supply units and installations as well as key civilian Ordnance technicians charged with training of military personnel will attend the 38-hour course which will be patterned after that conducted at the Ordnance school, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland.

Lt. Colonel James R. Hooper, commanding officer of the 46th Ordnance group, will direct the course, assisted by Captain Hugh R. Watson who will brief the instructors.

Class I installations and civilian components from Northern California and Utah will attend the first course which begins 31 August and ends on 15 September. Approximately 80 military and 18 civilians will register.

The second course will be given at Fort Lewis, Washington, and will include Class I installations and civilian components from Washington, Oregon and Montana. A total of 86 military and 14 civilian personnel will attend.

Final course is set for Fort MacArthur for Class I installations and civilian components of Southern California and Arizona, with 41 military and 12 civilian slots for students.

Instructors will include Captain Robert C. McTierney, Captain Frank W. Smith, Lt. Willard R. Kuhn and Lt. George A. Armstrong, all of the 46th Ordnance group, PSF; Captain Michael I. Clark, 6002 ASU, PSF; and Captain George W. Gruber, 6006 ASU, Fort Lewis, Washington.

Selection of personnel to attend these classes will be made by installation commanders within each respective area where the courses are to be given.

Area ROTC Problems To Be Studied Before Conference at Pentagon

Military district ROTC affairs officers and selected professors of military science and tactics are scheduled to meet at the Presidio with representatives of Headquarters Sixth Army who will attend a Department of the Army ROTC conference of major command representatives at the Pentagon in October.

Current ROTC problems at the institutional level to be discussed at the Presidio conference will be selected from data received from the PMS&Ts. Selected topics will be submitted by the chiefs of military districts to Headquarters Sixth Army not later than 30 August.

Date of the Sixth Army conference will be announced as soon as a firm date has been established for the Department of the Army conference.

Food Schools Close

Discontinuance of the Sixth Army Area Food Service school at the Presidio of San Francisco and the sub-school at Camp Roberts has been ordered by Headquarters Sixth Army. The Presidio school will be closed by 31 August and the closing of the sub-school at Camp Roberts was effective 14 August.

Sub-schools at Fort Ord and Fort Lewis have both been redesignated as Sixth Army Area Food Service schools.

Complexion Care!

Washington—The Quartermaster Corps bought more than 42,000,000 pounds of GI soap for the Army during the past year. Price per one-pound bar on a recent procurement order was slightly more than seven-tenths of one cent.

Fort Ord's Draper Wins Top Honor In "Talent Patrol"

Ronny Draper, popular young Western guitarist and vocalist who serves as cadre for Company B, 1st Infantry Regiment, at Fort Ord, California, grabbed top honor in a recent "Talent Patrol" TV show presented by Fort Ord entertainers at the New York studios of the American Broadcasting Company.

Journeying to New York with Draper were Julian White, pianist; Ricardo Sosa, Spanish dancer; Bill Linton, baritone, and Bob Williams vocalist.

"Talent Patrol," which is a bi-weekly presentation similar to Arthur Godfrey's show, is sponsored on alternate weeks by the Department of the Army Personnel Procurement Division and the Air Force, and is one of the most widely televised shows in the United States.

It is expected that the 3 August program the Ordists appeared on will be shown in this area on Thursday night, 20 August, over KGO-TV, channel 7, San Francisco.

Cinema Previews

"THE GOLDEN BLADE," F*, adventurous tale of the famed sword of Damascus which is used to overpower the enemies of Bagdad and bring freedom to the people.

"THE STAND AT APACHE RIVER," F*, is made by a group of stagecoach travelers as they fight off a raiding band of Indians from a roadside inn.

"AFFAIR IN MONTE CARLO," F*, lavish technicolor spread of that glamorous gambling spot, Monte Carlo. A wealthy young widow's love for a man she meets there makes it next to impossible for her to understand that his one real love is gambling.

"CHAMP FOR A DAY," F*, is full of suspense right up to the last punch, for when his manager disappears the night before his big fight, the boxer is really on the spot, both to come through with a win and to try and determine what has happened to his boss.

"FROM HERE TO ETERNITY," M, dramatization of the James Jones best-seller, is laid at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii just before Pearl Harbor day. The ambitions and problems of the men stationed there in those dark days is brilliantly told in this screen adaptation.

BOOK CORNER

ONE OF US IS WRONG! by Henry McLeMORE. Obviously a pack of lies—except that it is all perfectly true! Experiences resulting from the author's personality, which attracts the most unorthodox friends, drinking companions, and impossibly funny situations ever devised by God, the Devil or man.

THE RIVER AND THE GAUNTLET by S. L. A. Marshall. The first full report on the entry of the Chinese Communists into the Korean War, and a detailed description of military action as it actually took place during the Battle of the Chongchon River in November, 1950.

THE ALASKAN by Robert LUND. The hero at 21 flees the depression of 1934 to become a "cheechako" or tenderfoot and throw in his lot with the rough but honest sourdoughs of Alaska. Through his swiftly changing experiences, we see the broad Alaskan scene and the life of the sturdy territory, with its bright future.

NORTH FROM MALAYA by William Orville DOUGLAS. Once again, the author writes of such problems as land reform, guerrilla warfare, population pressures and the misunderstanding between the East and West may be bridged. Advocating a political rather than a military approach to Asia's problems, he believes friendship will be won by ideas instead of guns.

AFFAIR OF THE HEART by Margaret LONG. The story tells of the struggles of a group of progressive newspaper people in a Georgia community to establish an independent paper to be the spokesman for conscientious liberals. The complex problems of race relations in the South is the underlying thesis.

MJB—Presidio Libraries.

YMCA Program

Friday, 21 August—Ceramics and pottery, 1300 to 1600; movies, 1930.
Sunday, 23 August—Musical program, 2030; Sing with Vera, 2100.

Langner Opus Next Production Planned By Presidio Group

Lawrence Langner's "Another Way Out", is to be presented by the newly organized drama group, "The Presidio Players", at the Presidio service club on Monday, 14 September.

The play is a modern story in modern setting.

The characters include Margaret Marshall, a sculptress with unconventional ideas; Poveroy Pendleton, a writer who detests red; Mrs. Abbey, the all-knowing maid; Charles P. K. Fenton, an inspiring salesman, and the Baroness de Meauville, an exotic clothier.

Directing this comic satire on the domestic tradition will be Pfc. Curtiss Hungerford, who also did an excellent job on the group's first production, "Fame and the Poet."

Heading the cast as Margaret will be Miss Valerie Balsamo, remembered for her performance in "Fame and the Poet," and as Pendleton, Cpl. Richard Barnett. Supporting roles include Pfc. Shirley Keith as Mrs. Abbey, Miss Mary Lowe as the Baroness and Pfc. Victor Le Frenz as Fenton.

Miss Balsamo is currently assigned on Post as court reporter with the Judge advocate, while Pfc. Le Frenz and Cpl. Barnett are both musicians with the Sixth Army Band. Pfc. Keith is in the Sixth Army Personnel section.

Everyone, military and civilian, interested in dramatic activities, is cordially invited to attend the weekly meetings on Wednesday evenings at 2000 hours in the Service Club lounge.

Military Menagerie

SILVER STAR

The heroic act of saving a fellow Marine in a bloody night patrol fight has won Pfc. Dennis D. Dooley the nation's third highest award for valor, the Silver Star. Pfc. Dooley was leading a three-man fire team, part of a 17-man patrol in a night action. The patrol established contact with the enemy and was at once subjected to heavy machinegun and grenade fire. During this action the word was passed to break contact and withdraw to the base of the hill. During the withdrawal Dooley looked back and saw a member of the patrol who was caught in barbed wire directly in front of an enemy machinegun position. The man was obviously wounded. With complete disregard for his own safety Dooley returned to the position and freed the man from his entangled position. He further exposed himself to enemy gunfire as he carried the wounded marine back to safety. (AFPS)

Copies of California's new Fish and Game Code will be available the first of October, according to William J. Harp, assistant to the Fish and Game Commission. They may be purchased at a cost of 52 cents from the Documents Section of the State Printing Plant, 11th and "O" Streets, Sacramento.

Service 'Small Fry' Get Gridiron Invite To Nat'l Milk Bowl

Washington—Service 'small fry' are going to have their day.

This does not necessarily apply to small Pvs. E-1, SRs, or A/Bs.

The National Milk Bowl committee, a non-profit project, has announced that children of service personnel stationed in the U. S. or overseas are invited to participate in the 1953 National Milk Bowl football classic.

Authorities at military installations which have football teams composed of youngsters under 100 lbs. and wish their teams to be considered for selection as the 1953 guest team should contact Mr. Lee W. Frieson, 1953 Milk Bowl, Lufkin, Texas.

All expenses to the Armed Forces "small fry" will be paid by The National Milk Bowl, Inc. They will compete against a team of Texas youngsters.

Deer Offer California Nimrods Better Odds This Year Than Last

During the first two days of the opening of the early season at least, deer hunting in California was better in 17 counties and worse in eight counties than it was at the same time last year.

Early deer tag returns received by the Department of Fish and Game show that Mendocino County leads the central and south coastal area with a take of 73 bucks. Last year's opening week-end tally was 56.

Following the Officers' Club Intra-mural Softball Championship win of a few weeks ago, Presidio athletic officials have been preparing names for the roster of a Post team to be entered in the coming All-Sixth Softball Championships, to be run 14-19 September here on the Presidio.

Membership on the Post team will be drawn entirely from personnel with the 505th Military Police Battalion here on the post.

Sparkling the team roster from the victorious Officers' Club contingent will be Captain Raymond Le Van, team manager, Lt. Lee Brandenburg, Lt. Joe Papp and Captain Francis Hoskins.

All other team members have been drawn from the highly-touted 505th MPTC cadre team called the Yellow Tops, who are currently leading the Baker-Mendel Softball League and have remained unbeaten all season in on-post and off-post games, one of which involved the Air Force All-Stars at Hamilton Field.

Names of those joining the team from the 505th MPTC are: Sgt. Fred Goss, M/Sgt. Hiram Kochel, Cpl. Norman Levigne, Sgt. Victor Barlow, Pfc. Ben Sumrall, Pfc. "Boots" Butsumyo, Pvt. Milton Garfield, Pfc. Charles Kenny and Pfc. George Asepermy.

The 505th aggregation has been practicing as a team for the last week, and team manager, Captain Le Van, has stated that he is well satisfied with the group's performance.

With the Sixth Army competition still a few weeks away, the MP's are expected to make big strides in over-all functioning, and several practice games against neighboring teams are slated for the near future.

Shooters Defend Titles

Marine Lt. Col. Walter Walsh, of Arlington, Va., who holds the Match Rifle crown, and Maj. Robert C. Dawson, of Barstow, Calif., holder of the Service Rifle title, will defend both titles in the NRA Match Rifle and Service Rifle match to be held at Camp Perry, Ohio, 20 August to 7 September—the biggest event of its kind in the world.

Raiders Leave

The Presidio Red Raiders baseball team left for Fort Ord this Thursday for the 1953 All-Sixth Baseball Tournament, 24-29 August. The Raiders' first game will probably come on Monday, though at this time there is no official schedule for games. Area winners will be determined through double elimination. Watch in next week's STAR-PRESIDIAN for the results.

Red Raider Football Season Opens; 45 Show for First Week's Try-Outs

Three stars This Tuesday saw the official opening of the 1953 Presidio Red Raider football season.

The event was distinguished by a meeting of all football aspirants in the Post's gym.

Deputy Post Commander Colonel William Magill delivered a short send-off talk at that time, giving the team his full support and best wishes, and emphasizing a few of the principles behind Service sports.

One of the points that Col. Magill made was the fact that sports which involve bodily contact, like football, inevitably shape good soldiers and capable leaders.

So as a kind of emphasis to his words, it wasn't half an hour later, with sweat shirts and pants and football shoes donned, that 45 gridsters of assorted shapes, weights and sizes and from a variety of sections on post, were out on the Main Athletic Field grunting and groaning with the season's first loosening-up exercises.

And calisthenics and scrimmages of a sort that Lt. Roland Daigle, head coach, and line mentor Lt. Bill Carey have in store for the boys is no respecter of persons.

It won't be long before they have the team's line-up whittled

Engineer Softball!

21st Engineers Kill Surveyors To Keep Lead; HQ Gigs 99th

By Sgt. Frank Sloan

Riding the top of the Engineer Softball League, the 21st Engineers skunked the Surveyors in a 13-1 victory played on the Fort Scott diamond last week.

Allowing only a single run, the sizzling 21st softballers supported their rarely-hit moundsman Cobb to the fullest throughout the game. Hurler Cobb thus far has pitched all of his team's games.

Cobb and teammate Ferguson are the league's heaviest hitters. Ferguson, an all-round man who plays where needed most, is usually found at his third-base spot.

Against the Surveyors, Fugita of the 21st blasted three for four times at the stick to come out the afternoon's heaviest bat.

Also at Fort Scott last week Headquarters Company trampled the 99th Engineers in a two-hit shut-out, 9-0. August Herzog showed terrifically on the mound for the HQ boys.

Biggest gun for the HQ was J. Wilson, who thrashed two round-trippers. The team is expected to feel his absence in the future as the heavy-hitter goes out for contact of a different sort—the Post football team.

Team standings to date:

Team	Won	Lost
21st Engineers	4	0
45th Boat Company	3	1
Headquarters Company	2	2
99th Engineers	0	3
Surveyors	0	3

Marines, Too?

For the first time this year, the annual Second Army rifle and pistol championships, scheduled at Fort Eustis, Va., in September, will be open to all branches of service. Also a quota of 50 civilian entrants has been set. All entrants, military and civilian, must be stationed in or residents of the Second Army area.

Soltechs Massacre Maple to Hold Lead In Fort Scott Loop

In the Fort Scott Bowling League this week, we find the maple-polishing 21st Soltechs in the lead once more. The Soltech keggers—all masters of the jet cannon-ball, hold a 13 for 20 win tally.

Soltech powerhouse Lt. Corson is high-point man with an average of 134 for 2,016-pin total rolled on behalf of his team. Following close behind is Cpl. Merrill with a total of 1951 pins, 130 average.

With the kegler season running out in Fort Scott—only four more weeks to go—cellar dwelling contingents will have to bowl plenty hard to overtake the league-leaders.

Correction please! Last week there was a mix-up in box scores. The Surveyors' tally should have read 12 wins and 8 losses.

Which puts the Surveyors into a second-place knot with the 99th Engineers.

Team standings:

Team	Won	Lost
21st Soltechs	13	7
Surveyors	12	8
99th Engineers	12	8
Headquarters Co.	8	8
21st Alibis	8	12
30th Officers	3	13

Three stars to the 35 names his official Table of Organization calls for.

Introduced on Tuesday was the training element behind the team. It included Lt. Daigle and Lt. Carey, as head coach and line coach, respectively.

Bill Carey served with the tough Michigan State eleven from 1949 to '51. He joined the Army through R.O.T.C. in March of '53 and is currently assigned STILL WINNING—Mal Whitfield, America's Olympic Games 800-meter champ, bettered the world record for 1,000 meters last week when he was clocked in 2 minutes 20.8 seconds in an international meet at Eskilstuna, Sweden. Whitfield, who earlier in the season said he hoped to set ten world records this year, reached the halfway mark with this most recent victory.

Three stars to the 505th Military Police Battalion.

Team trainer is none other than "Arkie" Stanton, known on the Presidio for his mounding duties with the Red Raider baseball team. "Arkie" was taking pre-med studies before his entrance into the Service, and is particularly suited to his job.

Equipment manager will be Sal Fucile, who is a colleague of Stanton's on the baseball squad and has already shown his managerial ability on that team.

First scheduled game on the Raider football agenda will be with Chico State, 19 September. Till that time, the team will be working out in scrimmage sessions. Other outside teams will be found to hold practice games with.

Ace Shot Retired

Retired for a disability at Fort Benning, Col., Perry D. Swindler was a great loss to the Army since he was one of its long-time outstanding marksmen and had been the captain of the All-Army Pistol team and coach of the rifle and pistol teams at the Infantry School. He was one of the rare holders of both the Distinguished Marksman Badge for rifle and the Distinguished Pistol Shot Badge. Retired 31 July, Swindler was recognized as an international champion with both weapons.

SPORTS PULSE

By Pfc. Bruce Lansbury
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

We were down at the Letterman Gym this week to watch one of the few boxers on Post working out in preparation for the nearing San Francisco Golden Glove Championships.

Jesse Hale, 22-year-old Negro welterweight, skips, jabs, hooks and pounce the bag with a determination and skill that demand respect—and in such a way that has prompted some of the downtown ring sages to name him as the most likely prospect for the 1953 Golden Gloves welter title.

Hale's service boxing goes back to his February, 1948, enlistment in the Army. Since then he's fought his way through Japan and Korea to Ft. Sheridan, Illinois, Camp Atterbury, Indiana, and Fort Knox, Kentucky.

Some of us will remember him for his short appearance in last year's All-Sixth Army competition. Unfortunately for Jesse, at that time he had little opportunity to train. He went into the ring against boxers from Fort Ord and Camp Roberts who had been training three months previous.

But as his determination suggests, Hale is after better things this year. He's been training steadily in the last two months, working out every evening with his manager Jimmy Hayes, a fellow Presidian who fights professionally in civilian life. And his coach is none other than Lou Gage, prominent San Francisco welterweight who distinguished himself recently in a TKO win over Ernie Dixon. On weekends Hale goes down to The San Francisco gym where Gage trains and works out with him, "taking the best Gage has got," as Jesse puts it.

And if Lou Gage can instill in his protegee some of his own lightning speed and lethal sock, Hale will be a difficult man to beat.

Speaking of boxers, we're wondering if the real life counterpart of James Jones' Cpl. Prewitt, of "From Here to Eternity" fame, ever met up with a terrorizing heavyweight by the name of M/Sgt. Stephen Kadash. Considering their respective weight divisions, chances are he didn't.

Reports from Stoneman this week, where Kadash is currently stationed, indicate that he was once one of the greatest of Army fighters.

His ring career began way back in 1932, when he was stationed in Panama. He lost his first fight, but from then on never dropped another tournament scrap. In '33 he copped the middleweight title in Panama and in '34, to prove his versatility, captured the III Corps heavy title.

From 1934-36 he battled in the Virginia Tidewater circuit and took the amateur heavy crown in that area. Then in '36 he was assigned to the Military District of Hawaii—which brought up our original query concerning Prewitt—and for the next three years dominated the light-heavy ranks in that area.

During a short stint as pro fighter and civilian in 1939 and 1940, Kadash chalked up 25 wins for 30 bouts, but after a KO at the hands of Joe Finizzo in Boston in '40 he donned khaki once more.

The sergeant was toying with the idea recently of doing some more pro fights in Pittsburgh, but in consideration for his 39 years he gave up the idea.

Nowadays he's working in the Officers' Section of the Stoneman Replacement Battalion—which must seem like some bed of cotton to an old scrapper like Kadash.

Special Service officers at the Presidio had some trouble in selecting a team to represent this Post in the coming All-Sixth Softball Championships this year. The Presidio Officers' Club, who won the intramural title two weeks ago, were in logical succession for a crack at the All-Area, but the only trouble with them as a team was the fact that they were all commissioned officers. The memorandum on the subject of All-Sixth Softball stated specifically that the EM ratio would consist of no less than 50 per cent.

To complicate matters further, another regulation stated that teams entered could not represent a unit of over 250 men—with the exception of training divisions, which could enter on a battalion level, utilizing cadre personnel.

The solution to the problem now features a perfect composite of 505th MP Bn officers—those who were part of the victorious Officers' Club nine—and training cadre from the Yellow Tops, unbeaten leaders of the MPTC Baker-Mendel League.

A combination like that should be difficult to beat.

Leathernecks Post Korean Pistol Win

Pollack Range, Korea—The First Marine Div. outshot the runner-up 7th U. S. Army Div. in both rifle and pistol team matches to clinch the Army I Corps marksmanship meet. The winning six-man rifle team dropped only 99 points out of a possible 1200; the pistol shots fired 1638 points out of a possible 1800. Lt. Norman D. Fournier, 7th Regiment, paced two Marine teams as individual high scorer.

Sports Stay Popular

Washington—Eighty per cent of all U. S. soldiers take part in sports programs conducted by the Adjutant General of the Army.

Last year 127 soldier performers qualified for Olympic tryouts and 32 of them went on to the 1952 Olympic Games.

Mary K. Browne, who held the U. S. Women's Singles tennis crown in 1912, 1913 and 1914, was the only national tennis champion in history ever to be a top ranking amateur golfer. She reached the finals in the 1924 National Women's Amateur Championships.

Hard-stroking Southern Division champion Lt. Jack Shoemaker of Camp San Luis Obispo ached his way through singles competition from six western area titlists last week to cop the 1953 All-Sixth Army Tennis Championship.

Shoemaker strung three straight sets, 6-0, 6-4, 6-0, over his closest rival, Pvt. Dick Osburn of Fort Lewis, to produce his cinching victory in the tournament's final day.

In men's doubles, Shoemaker coupled with his San Luis net-mate Pvt. Fritz Hurd to defeat doublists Dick Osburn and Robert Schroeder of Fort Lewis, and in the finals, Ken Walts and John Bisch, Fort Ord.

Powered by the Shoemaker-Hurd duo, the San Luis Obispo contingent culled enough wins to take the Commander's Trophy, symbol of the team championship.

In women's competition, Gutierrez, 6411 ASU (LA Recruiting Office), defeated Gieldseth of Madigan Army Hospital, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3, for the championship, while Gutierrez and McClellan of Madigan combined talents to outstroke Gildseth and Riber of Madigan, 6-3, 6-3, 6-0 for the women's double title, determined in the tournament's second day. Madigan won the women's team Championship.

Net stars selected to represent the Sixth Army in the coming All-Army Tournament at West Point, New York, 25-29 August, were Shoemaker and Hurd, SLO; Walts and Bisch, Fort Ord; Osburn, Fort Lewis, and Millikan, Madigan.

Results:

Burnett, 6511 ASU, d. Beckman, Madigan; Bisch d. Hinds, Madigan; Hurd d. Walts.

Shoemaker d. Burnett; Millikan d. Schroeder, Fort Lewis; Osburn d. Hurd.

Shoemaker d. Osburn (Finals). Men's Doubles: Walts and Bisch d. Millikan and Beckman; Hurd and Shoemaker d. Osburn and Schroeder.

Shoemaker and Hurd d. Walts and Bisch (Finals). Women's Singles: Gutierrez d. Gieldseth (Finals). Women's Doubles: Gutierrez and McClellan d. Gildseth and Riber (Finals).

Game Dept. Solves High Lakes Problem With Airborne Fish

From its twin-engined airplane, the California Department of Fish and Game this summer planted more remote lakes with more trout at less cost and in less time than ever before in the five-year-old aerial planting project.

When Senior Warden-Pilot Al Reese drops 340,000 golden and cutthroat trout in high Sierra waters next month, the year's total will add up to 2,864,000 fingerlings in 662 lakes. The previous record was set in 1951, when 2,769,000 trout landed in 632 mountain lakes.

The cost of aerial fish planting has been slashed from $2.98 per thousand, when the large-scale program began in 1949, to $1.25 per thousand fish this year.

Using the traditional pack horses and mules, the planting of mountain lakes used to average out at almost $20 per thousand fish.

Primary reason for the four-way record year is Al Reese's perfection of a system of drugging the fish in transit. The addition of sodium amylal to water in the carrying cans calms the fish so that they use less oxygen and need less water.

As many as 6,800 trout fingerlings were transported in four gallons of water.

From the Oregon border to the Tehachapi Mountains, Reese and his two pilots spent 105 hours in the air ferrying and planting the fish. Last year's flying time was 124 hours and in 1951 the plane logged 142 hours.

Stoneman Golfers Win

Camp Stoneman golfers met the Sacramento Signal Depot linksmen recently for six matches. Stoneman, led by long-hitting M/Sgt. John Walker, won all six matches on the Pittsburg Country Club course.

Presidio to Officiate All-Sixth Softball Tourney in September

The 1953 All-Sixth Army Softball Championship Tournament has been scheduled to take place at the Presidio of San Francisco, California, on 14-19 September.

Teams will be competing for the Sixth Army Commanders' Trophy, to be awarded to the winning team for temporary possession for one year, and a chance to represent the Area in the subsequent All-Army Championship Tournament to be held in the Military District of Washington 5-10 October.

Sixth Army Special Services Office here has invited and encouraged all installations in the Area to send a representative team to participate in the championships.

Company or comparable unit softball teams representing an organization or combination of organizations not exceeding 250 men are eligible to participate, with the exception of training divisions. They are allowed to enter on a battalion level utilizing only cadre personnel.

As is usual with inter-installation athletics, both basic and advanced combat trainees, or those personnel pending assignment to basic outfits, are ineligible to enter.

The All-Sixth contest will be conducted under the 1953 Amateur Softball Association Guide and Rules, and winners will be determined by double elimination. There will be no preliminaries.

Female teams will not compete in the October All-Army finals at MDW.

GI in 18th Ring Victory

Gil Cadilli, fight trainer for Fort Ord's 1st Infantry Regiment, continued his recent boxing win streak by pouncing out a unanimous decision over Marvin Smith of Wichita, Kansas, at the Hollywood Legion Stadium recently. It was Cadilli's 17th win in 18 starts—he has had one draw.

Salmon Saved

Personnel of the California Department of Fish and Game rescued more than 40,000 salmon and steelhead trout from drying streams in Humboldt, Del Norte and northern Mendocino counties during the month of July.

Collegiate Netter Wins Roberts Singles Title

Hard-stroking Pfc. Vasti Bradley of Division Faculty blasted CCA's Pfc. Robert Brans in three straight sets to walk away the Camp Roberts singles champion recently.

Bradley was tennis ace at the Southern University of New Orleans prior to service.

The Roberts doubles crown went to Pfc. William Walter and John Gerlach of 6100 ASU. They paired up to sweep the crown from Combat Command B's duo, Lt. John Hess and Pfc. Robert Gunderson, taking the victory in three straight sets.

A golfer must be a professional for five years before he is eligible to enter the men's PGA championships.

THE FIRST DEER OF THE SEASON to be killed at the Hunter Liggett Military Reservation near Camp Roberts, California, was bagged by Corporal Kenneth Wiederspan early Saturday morning on the first day of the open season. Wiederspan is stationed with 6100 Area Service Unit as chief clerk of the supply section at Camp Roberts. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wiederspan, Culbertson, Nebraska. (U. S. Army photo.)

IT'S THE REAL THING! Jackie Lee Call, inductee from Garland, Utah, has his induction papers checked by Sfc. Merle H. Stewart, left, member of the 6253d examining and induction Army Reserve unit, while Sfc. Bryant E. Stauffer, RA, induction NCO, right, looks on and supervises. Members of the 6253d are presently receiving their annual summer active duty training at the induction center at Fort Douglas, Utah. (Army photo by Hargreaves, Fort Douglas.)

Unusual Unit! Lucky 6253d Reserves Take Summer Training in Stride

One of the most unusual of Utah's Army Reserve units, under the supervision of the Utah Military District, is the 6253d Armed Forces examining the induction station (Reserve) now undergoing its annual summer camp training at the induction center at Fort Douglas.

The large majority of Army Reserve units stationed in Utah receive their two-weeks summer training at Fort Lewis, Washington, or at Army camps in California. However, the 6253d goes to summer camp right in Salt Lake City at Fort Douglas.

Because of the nature of their assignment, they receive this annual training at home. In the event of war, the unit has a mobilization assignment of setting up an induction and examination station to process draftees in Salt Lake City. Hence the nearest place where they may receive their annual 15-day training is logically with the Regular Army unit operating at Fort Douglas, officials pointed out.

Under the supervision of Regular Army personnel, the members of the units actually perform the duties they would have to perform if called to active duty. The men in the unit are composed almost entirely of Salt Lake City area residents, according to Colonel William C. McFadden, chief, Utah Military District.

Both the physical and the mental examinations are conducted by competent personnel of the 6253d. The unit also makes arrangements for housing and feeding of these men during processing. They also obtain transportation to basic training camps to which the men are sent after induction.

Assignments within the unit are based on educational background, civilian occupation and personal desires insofar as is possible.

Captain Rulon W. Stevenson, commanding officer of the unit, has stated that "there are numerous openings in the unit for young men desiring to train with men from their own locality and fulfill part of their eight-year military obligation."

Some of the positions open are for clerk-typists, x-ray technicians, laboratory technicians, medical examiners, record clerks and drivers. These positions have promotion possibilities from private first class to master sergeant."

Interested young men and returning veterans may receive more information by calling Fort Douglas, Ext. 2240.

Army Board to Examine Instrument Flight Pilots

Early establishment of an instrument pilot examining board is announced by Headquarters Sixth Army. This board will conduct flight and written examinations covering instrument flight rules, navigation, weather and related subjects.

After 1 July, 1954, Army aviators must hold an effective Army instrument qualification card to fly an Army aircraft under instrument flight conditions. Until that date, Air Force, Navy and CAA instrument ratings will be valid.

In addition to familiarizing all Army aviators with techniques and procedures and qualifying those whose duties require actual instrument flights, the current Army aviation instrument training program will also qualify limited numbers of Army aviators as competent instrument flight examiners.

Provide Entertainment

Washington—The Adjutant General's office of the Army operates 368 soldiers' service clubs in various parts of the world. Dances, parties and other entertainment are given in these clubs to provide off-duty recreation for men and women in the Army.

Easy-Over-Out For Army Doctors At Walter Reed

Washington — Army doctors—who in the past spent many precious hours writing patients' medical records—now just pick up a telephone and start talking at Walter Reed Army Hospital. A few minutes later, the reports are ready for signature.

There is something special about the telephones they use—they are connected to recording machines—and they are saving both time and money.

As an Army physician dictates, his words are recorded automatically on plastic records in the hospital's stenographic pool. A "community" typist, upon hearing a click indicating another record has been made, removes the disc from the recording machine and replaces it with a fresh one.

The typist then plays the record on another machine, listening through earphones, and regulates speed to suit her typing ability.

With 28 dictation phones now in use in the hospital's out-patient service, speed and efficiency in making medical records has increased tremendously. The saving amounts to $5,000 annually. Previously, many medical records were written in longhand by physicians and later typed, or recorded on dictaphones for later transcription.

Regs Readied For EMs On Wear Of New Blues

Washington—Regulations authorizing the purchase and wear of dress blue uniforms by Army enlisted men are now being printed and will be released to all commands sometime this month.

The new uniform is optional and must be purchased by the wearer. Prescribed accessories include white gloves, dark blue cap, black tie, white shirt, black shoes and socks.

The new uniform is quite similar to the currently prescribed officers' dress blues.

School's Second Year!

Over 100 Reserve Officers Completing 2-Weeks Training

Over 100 Army Reserve officers of the Ordnance and Finance branches are completing two weeks of intensive training this weekend at the 6227th USAR school at the Presidio. This is the second year that these officers from the California and Nevada Military Districts have attended the instruction and classes of the school.

"Our school is organized to further the military education of all Reserve officers who attend," states Colonel Fred C. McFarland, commandant of the school. "We bring them up to date on matters pertaining to their particular specialties and we make them better able to serve their country in time of need."

Classes have been held at Harmon Armory with instruction scheduled from 0800 to 1700, Mondays through Fridays, and from 0800 to 1200 on Saturdays.

Special tours were organized for the benefit of the officers in an effort to give them "on-the-job" training. Ordnance officers spent one day at the Benicia Arsenal where they observed, as well as assisted, the repair and maintenance of heavy duty equipment, such as tanks and howitzers.

Finance officers made a "working tour" of the Federal Reserve bank of San Francisco and a trip to the Oakland Army Base fiscal offices. At the base they observed the mechanics and latest methods of handling the entire Bay Area's military fiscal problems.

Instructors for the courses offered were selected from among the Army Reserve members who had indicated their ability to teach others. They have been specially trained in the subject which they instruct, many of them having attended special branch schools to meet this requirement.

The officers have been furnished sleeping quarters and have lived on the post for the two-week period.

The Army at a cost of about $1,800,000,000, has recovered and rebuilt material worth $13,600,000,000 since World War II.

What's in a Name?

Camp Roberts, Calif.—"You name him. We have him". Or so it would seem to those at the Post Locator file who maintain a complete card file on every man stationed at Camp Roberts.

It's not a color chart, but a roster that lists Black, Brown, White, Red, Green, Silver, Gold, Blue and Gray.

In spite of what might be indicated, Fish, Swan, Dove, Bear, Lark and Finch are all capable of pulling KP.

Historically speaking, the 7th Division can boast of six Robert E. Lees, two U. S. Grants and one Woodrow Wilson.

If craftsmen are needed call for Printers, Painters, Tailors, Carpenters and Gardeners. They are all here, but there's no assurance that they are qualified as such.

For those interested in athletic events, Track and Field are available.

For real complications, the more than 1,200 Joneses, Smiths and Johnsons include 25 James Smiths, 16 James Johnsons, 13 James Joneses, 13 Charles Smiths and 12 Kenneth Johnsons.

The longest name is that of Miles Long and to wrap everything up there is an Endd.

Lot of Say Ahs!

Washington — An average of 219,855 men and women a month were examined for entrance into the Armed Forces during the first quarter of 1953. Processing of these individuals was done in 74 Armed Forces Examining Stations in various parts of the country by the Adjutant General of the Army.

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA Friday, 28 August, 1953

CHAIRMAN PHILIP YOUNG of the U. S. Civil Service Commission (2nd from the right) and personal aide to the President on administrative affairs, was the guest of Sixth Army Commander Lieutenant General Joseph M. Swing, during his tour of Bay Area Federal agencies, this week. General Swing hosted an informal luncheon in Mr. Young's honor at the Presidio Officers' Mess. Shown (l. to r.) are General Swing, Mr. Harry Kranz, Director of Civil Service, 12th Regional District; Mr. C. D. Hertzog, Director of Field Operations, Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.; Mr. Young and Mr. C. E. Miller, Chief of Civilian Personnel, Sixth Army. (Army Photo by Hilmer)

Civil Service Chief Visits Presidio; Says Major Problems Face Commission

Mr. Philip Young, chairman of the U. S. Civil Service Commission and special aide to the President on government personnel, said this week that though some 100,000 jobs will be dropped from the Federal payroll between now and 1 July, more than 50 per cent of the reduction will be accomplished through attrition.

He also added that few, if any, career employees who have gained status and are not in the 420 policy-making or confidential jobs recently reassigned to Schedule A (jobs not within the Civil Service competitive career field), will be displaced.

He said the Commission had gone to great lengths to insure that where reductions in force are necessary they will be accomplished under new procedures devised to cut down costly, disruptive chain bumpings, and give the career service employee stronger job protection by displacing employees of indefinite tenure and putting career employees in their places.

Mr. Young said that although by Executive Order the Civil Service Commission has the last say on positions that may be shifted to Schedule A, there has not been, nor will there be, any major blanketing of jobs now held by career employees. Rather, the Commission has been very diligent in examining and approving the few jobs that have been reassigned to Schedule A and has rejected many times the number approved.

The Chairman stated that of the 2,400,000 employees now on the Federal payroll some 844,000 are without status. He said that the Defense Department was the largest employing agency with 51 per cent of the overall total. This figure broken down by service shows the Army with 21 per cent, the Navy with 18 per cent and the Air Force with 12 per cent.

Mr. Young said that the President was deeply concerned with providing "a true prestige service built on a non-partisan, non-political basis." He said this could only be done when the responsibility for Civil Service is shifted from the legislative branch to the executive branch of the government.

He said that one of the Administration's major aims was to strengthen the merit system by developing competent leadership to replace the police type of authority that now prevails.

He felt this could be accomplished by "taking steps to provide more flexibility to the myriad rules by which Civil Service is currently hidebound." He scored past leadership as poor.

Chairman Young pointed out that the Administration had successfully proposed legislation which repealed the Thomas leave rider, and regained for Federal employees the right to accumulate a moderate amount of vacation time from year to year. He saw this as only just "since this accumulation provides the Federal employee with a cushion against unemployment, since Federal employees are not covered by unemployment insurance or any severance pay provisions."

He saw another significance in this modification in that it reversed the trend toward enactment by Congress of appropriation bill riders limiting administrative discretion in matters of personnel management. He added that "it is not possible to legislate good management."

Since half of all Federal jobs are held by veterans, Mr. Young feels that recently legislated changes to the Veterans Preference Act will greatly improve the merit system. Backed by the Administration and all four major veterans groups, these amendments provide that veterans must meet all basic requirements for a job before getting benefit of their preference points.

Mr. Young is making his first tour of Federal installations since his appointment to the top Civil Service position by President Eisenhower in March.

Meet A Vicious Killer!

The hot-war in Korea has cooled off.

For the first time in over three years not a single American soldier will die in combat on this Labor Day holiday. But an estimated 30 American soldiers will die!

They will die at beaches, in swimming pools and the old swimming hole. They will die from exhaustion, cramps and undertows.

Some will die from horseplay, firearms and explosives. The greatest percentage will kill or be killed on our highways.

Sad to say these deaths will all be needless. Without reason or rhyme. Without cause or purpose.

No more than a sacrificial offering to the most vicious killer of our age—Selfish Carelessness.

It is possible that a recently returned POW will die in a Labor Day accident.

That after surviving many long months of intense hardship his life will suddenly be snuffed out by Selfish Carelessness.

Or worse yet, that a moment of carelessness on his part or that of a brother-in-arms, will bring death to those for whom he has been willing to sacrifice so much.

On the battlefield a soldier's creed is "kill or be killed!" The battle stilled, let our holiday creed be "live and let live!"

Plan your holiday weekend early. Plan it well and by all means enjoy it.

But not at the expense of your life, or another's!

More POW's Due!

437 American Repatriates Aboard General Hase Saturday

Tomorrow morning the Navy transport General William F. Hase will dock at Fort Mason with 437 Americans released from Korean prisoner of war camps. Of this group 430 are Army personnel and seven are Marines.

Arrival of these repatriates will bring to 865 the number of former prisoners to return here this week. Sunday the first shipload of 328 reached San Francisco after a direct voyage from Korea.

In addition to the freed prisoners, the General Hase will also bring home 1400 soldiers returning on rotation.

The repatriates will be given special processing by Camp Stone-man personnel in warehouse offices near the Fort Mason piers in order to get them on their way home as fast as possible. This system was tried effectively last Sunday with the first group.

One thousand more former POWs are enroute now to San Francisco. The Navy expects the hospital ship Haven here on 4 September with 371 patients, including 104 former prisoners. Also expected the same day is the Troopship Marine Adder carrying 367 repatriated soldiers, while the transport General John Pope left Korea Wednesday with 428 war prisoners.

New Committee Will Streamline Defenses Financial Procedure

Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson has named a committee to review and modernize financial procedure throughout the Defense Department, including the military departments.

The 12-man group, under the chairmanship of Charles P. Cooper, former Vice President of AT&T and President, Presbyterian Hospital, NYC, will submit periodic recommendations which, as approved, will be made effective promptly.

Officially designated The Advisory Committee on Fiscal Organization and Procedure, it will co-operate with the committees of Congress and the various Federal agencies concerned with fiscal management. All will regularly be informed of the committee's progress.

PX Called 'Vital' For EM Morale, NCO Reenlistees

Washington—A Congressional subcommittee investigating service exchanges has issued a report saying that "most of the charges made against the operation of the exchanges are loose and reckless."

The subcommittee, which is part of the Armed Services Committee of the U. S. House of Representatives, admitted that there are "occasional lapses," but said that on the whole the exchanges are doing an important job. They were cited as a vital morale factor which helps keep noncommissioned personnel in Service.

The report also pointed out that if service personnel should be required to pay the civilian rate on all merchandise, it would be necessary to grant a pay adjustment.

However, under the present set-up the exchanges operate as self-supporting enterprises, pay Federal taxes, and benefit enlisted men and women by the purchase of recreational facilities from the profits. Were it not for exchanges, the taxpayer would have to provide Service libraries and athletic equipment.

The committee noted that servicemen and women, who are shifted from place to place, have no opportunity to determine integrity of nearby merchants.

No basis was found for charges of unfair competition against retailers, the subcommittee reported. Recommendations for improvement of exchange operations, made in 1949 by the House Armed Services Committee, are being "carried out implicitly."

The committee did recommend regular study of sales slips for purchases in excess of $5 to prevent overbuying by individuals or families. It also condemned incentive pay for employees based on volume of sales. (AFPS)

Navy at Camp Roberts For Specialized Course

The Navy invaded Camp Roberts this week, when 35 officers from Naval school for civil engineers, Port Hueneme, California, joined the Army for a week's active participation in basic Infantry training.

The officers will participate in weapons instruction courses, familiarization firing, combat firing, infiltration course, perimeter defense, mines and booby traps, grenades and the attack course.

Dr. Hannah to Far East

Dr. John A. Hannah, Assistant Secretary of Defense (Manpower and Personnel), is presently on a two-week tour of military installations in Alaska, the Far East, and the Pacific islands. Purpose of the trip is to discuss personnel, morale and welfare problems with responsible commanders. Morale, education and recreation problems, and opportunities for U. S. forces stationed in Korea will receive particular attention.

Chief of Staff's Message

(Editor's Note: Reference DA Message 44455, the following message from General Ridgway, chief of staff, is quoted for dissemination to personnel in Army units and activities within your command.)

"To the men and women of the Army. Upon being sworn in as chief of staff, United States Army, I thought it appropriate to address brief remarks to the small group of distinguished guests present at the ceremony. In fact, however, I was speaking not to them alone but also to all of you both in and out of uniform wherever you may be stationed. The remarks were these:

"When the President transmitted to the Congress his plan for reorganizing the defense department, which plan has since become law, he emphasized two essential objectives the maintenance of democratic institutions and the protection of the integrity of the military profession.

"The first is clear. It means in my case service under the direct personal command of a distinguished civilian of highest integrity, Secretary Stevens, and through him under another great American patriot of highest character, Secretary Wilson.

"Today more than ever our future depends on the moral stature of those clothed with great authority. We are very fortunate to have these civilian commanders.

"The President's second objective while likewise clear to us, needs much continuing explanation to many in our government and certainly to the American people.

"The integrity of the military profession is indispensable to an effective, efficient military establishment and that, in turn, to nation's security. The term itself, integrity of the military profession, implies an officer corps of such character and competence as will provide the highest professional and spiritual leadership; and a NCO corps indoctrinated and inspired by the officer corps whose precepts are its guides and whose standards it emulates.

"It implies fearless forthright expression of highest, objective, professional military views.

"It implies completely loyal execution of decisions once announced by proper civilian authority.

"To attain this second objective will require a full recognition by civilian authorities of the qualities of integrity, devotion to duty and loyalty and extension by the civilian commander of like loyalty to the military service.

"As a fundamental institution in the development of our national life, the United States Army has played a proud historic role. It has produced leaders unswayed in character, competence and courage, moral equally with physical.

"I accept with pride and trust in divine guidance the challenge of continuing the service of great distinction which my predecessor, General J. Lawton Collins has rendered.

"It shall be my constant purpose, within the scope of my responsibility, and authority to insure, that the highest traditions of the United States Army are maintained in all their finest aspects; that the Army accomplishes in full its assigned missions; and that the men and women who wear its uniform and their dependents, receive the full measure of respect and consideration from their countrymen which their high principled devotion and utter loyalty in both peace and war so fully merit."

General, U. S. Army,
Chief of Staff.

The Star-Presidian

Sixth Army Star-Presidian is an authorized dual purpose weekly publication published by and for the military personnel of the Sixth Army and the Presidio of San Francisco, California, under the supervision of the Post Troop Information and Education Office. News, features, photographic and art materials are solicited from military personnel. Publication depends on available space and general interest value as judged by the staff. No payment will be made. Every effort will be made to return rejected material but no responsibility can be assumed beyond the exercise of due care in expediting return. Army and local news appearing herein may be reprinted. The Star-Presidian uses Armed Forces Press Service and civilian publications are not authorized to reprint such material appearing herein without written permission from Armed Forces Press Service. The Star-Presidian is distributed directly to the military personnel of the Presidio, and mailed to the Troop Information and Education Sections of Sixth Army in sufficient quantity for information distribution.

The Star-Presidian accepts no paid advertising and is supported without the use of funds appropriated by Congress. Editorial views and opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the Department of the Army. The Star-Presidian may be mailed outside of Sixth Army.

Dr. Johns Named to Direct USAFI Program

Washington—Dr. Robert Johns has been named Director of the United States Armed Forces Institute, Madison, Wis., to succeed Dr. Glenn L. McConagha. Dr. Johns has been a member of the faculty of Purdue University. In WWII he was a naval officer.

Dr. McConagha is taking the post of Vice President of Muskingum College, New Concord, Ohio. He has served as Director of USAFI for the past 10 years during which time it developed into an educational institution which offers approximately 350 correspondence and self-teaching courses in high school and college subjects to Armed Forces personnel.

352nd Hospital Unit Training at Roberts

The 352nd General Hospital Reserve unit from Oakland Army base is presently undergoing 15 days of intensive field training at Camp Roberts.

Under the command of Colonel Charles B. Hudson, the 352nd is the only Northern California unit attached to the 311th Logistical Command, also undergoing summer training.

Activated in 1948, the unit now has 76 members. It trained initially at Letterman Army hospital in 1949, and has trained at Fort Ord, Camp Cooke and Camp Roberts in succeeding years.

Servicemen Please Note!

Four States Change Laws On Local Tax Deductions

Washington—Four states have altered their state income tax laws. Servicemen from these states, California, Iowa, Maryland and Minnesota are required to pay income taxes to the state and therefore are affected by these new additions. The changes are:

CALIFORNIA

The state of California has raised the maximum deduction allowed for charitable contributions from 15% to 20% of the adjusted gross income.

Also, the four-year time limit on recognition of gain on the sale or exchange of a residence, has been suspended while the taxpayer (or spouse, in certain cases) is on extended active duty. The limits are the time of the sale of the old residence and before Jan. 1, 1955. Relief from this four-year time limit is also granted to persons who have served outside the Americas for over 90 days after Dec. 18, 1950.

IOWA

Armed Forces personnel who are residents of Iowa, may exclude from their gross income for the years 1952, 1953 and 1954, $2,000 of all military pay, and all subsistence, dependency or disability allowances; also pensions, rehabilitation or education, or compensation for death, wounds, or illness resulting from service.

Refunds will be allowed by the State if taxpayers file proper claims for taxes already paid for 1952. Information on filing proper claims can be obtained by writing the State Treasurer.

MARYLAND

Residents of Maryland may deduct contributions not exceeding 20% (formerly 15%) for all calendar years beginning after Dec. 31, 1952. All medical expenses, without regard to the 5% limitation, are deductible if the taxpayer or his spouse reaches the age of 65 before the end of the taxable year.

MINNESOTA

A call to active duty suspends periods of limitation in a recent law providing the nonrecognition of a gain on the exchange of ownership of residences if it is made within one year of sale. The gain is recognized as the amount that the selling price of the old exceeds the cost of the new.

Forced Separatees May Reenlist in RA As SFC's

Washington — All officers and WOs now on active duty who are selected for involuntary release may re-enlist in the minimum permanent grade of sergeant first class, the Army has announced.

This notice, contained in DA message 443481, dated 12 August, has been sent to all major commands. It contains the changes to SR 615-105-1 which occur in subparagraph 16. This SR concerns the re-enlistment of former officers and WOs as enlisted men.

The current provisions protecting the permanent rating of RA enlisted men called to active duty as Reserve officers or who accepted a discharge to undertake commissioned service are not affected.

Accrued leave may be taken in officer status and no money lost, since the ex-officers and WO's have 60 days in which to re-enlist after release from active duty.

Those who are involuntarily released may take a lump sum payment for accrued leave and still enlist. (AFPS)

Ceremony Marks Promotion of NG 40th Commander

Hunter Liggett Military Reservation—The second star of a major general was pinned on the collar of Homer O. Eaton, commander of southern California's 40th Infantry Division National Guard, during a ceremony here Saturday. The pinning was done by Maj. Gen. David P. Barrows, the first National Guard commander of the 40th, before top ranking Army and National Guard officials, including Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, Sixth Army commander.

Following the presentation of the new insignia, more than one thousand men of the 111th Armored Cavalry Regiment passed in review in nearly 300 tanks and armored, howitzer-carrying vehicles. Also participating in the ceremony were 1,900 officers and men of the 40th, as well as men of the other California National Guard units completing the first half of their annual two-week summer field training.

General Eaton, a Los Angeles educator in civil life, enlisted as a private in the Los Angeles 160th Infantry regiment in 1921 and was commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry, reserve, on his graduation from Pomona College in 1924. He went to active duty during World War II with the Los Angeles regiment and, as its executive officer, saw service on Guadalcanal and New Britain.

As intelligence officer of XIV Corps, he was awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action during the crossing of the Pasig river in Manila. He also won the Bronze Star for meritorious service during World War II.

With the 40th, he was called up for the Korean war in September, 1950, and helped direct the division's training at Camp Cooke. He headed the advance detachment to prepare for the division's mission as a security force for the northern half of Honshu, principal Japanese home island.

On Christmas eve, 1951, Eaton led the advance detachment of the 40th to Korea where the division relieved the 24th Infantry Division. The general was awarded the Legion of Merit for his efforts on the Korean battle line.

One of the last National Guardsmen of the 40th to leave Korea, Eaton was relieved from active duty in June, 1952. Last May he succeeded Maj. Gen. Daniel H. Hudelson as commander of one of the two Guard divisions to see combat in Korea.

Recently Assigned

Lt. Harvey E. Wilkes has been assigned as a platoon leader with Detachment A, Fort Scott.

He recently completed 14 months service in Korea with the 160th Infantry Regiment.

Entering the service again two and one-half years ago from ROTC ranks at the University of Alabama, Lt. Wilkes was an enlisted man in World War II, serving with the First Marine division, 4th Amphibious corps, in the Southwest Pacific. He has been awarded the Purple Heart.

Lt. Harvey E. Wilkes

Lt. Colonel Frank W. Bagnal is now with the plans and operations and psychological warfare division, G-3 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

His assignment here follows graduation from a six-months course in psychological warfare at Georgetown University, Washington, D. C.

Colonel Bagnal served with G-1 Section, GHQ, Far East Command, from October, 1950, to February, 1952, following which he was assigned to the 57th Field Artillery group, Fort Lewis, Washington.

In the Army for the past 13 years, the Colonel Bagnal was with the 7th Army in the European theatre during World War II.

Captain Richard J. Teehan has become the new commanding officer of the 16th Base Postoffice, Presidio of San Francisco.

He has completed two tours of duty in the European theatre, the most recent from June, 1950, to June, 1953, as mail operations officer, 24th Base Postoffice, Frankfurt, Germany. Previously, he served there from December, 1945, to April, 1949.

Captain Teehan entered the Army in January, 1945, and was graduated from Officers Candidate school at Fort Benning, Georgia.

Lt. Howard J. Puggey will soon assume duties as commanding officer of the 11th TC Car company, Presidio of San Francisco, as well as his present duty as operations officer, Post Motor Pool.

He returned recently from 16 and one-half months duty in Korea as commanding officer of the 715th Truck Company, and more recently as CO of the 505th Truck Company.

Lt. Puggey has been in the Army for the past five and one-half years, and was graduated from OCS at Fort Riley, Kansas, in June, 1951. He then attended the Transportation school, Fort Eustis, Virginia, prior to his overseas assignment.

Reserve Logistical Unit Takes Summer Training

Camp Roberts, Calif. — Twelve hundred officers and enlisted men of the 311th Logistical Command will complete the first two weeks of intensive reserve training here Saturday. The command is the largest logistical reserve unit in the west.

Reservists from Arizona, California, Oregon and Washington are participating in the summer field training which includes instruction in new combat support techniques developed from operational lessons of World War II and Korea. The 311th Logistical Command encompasses 42 individual units, most of which are from Southern California.

For Better Service

Civilian News Notes

(Editor's Note: Following is the first of two series of questions and answers prepared by L. F. Scanlon, assistant chief, civilian personnel, in an effort to explain the basic concepts and workings of the Salary and Wage Administration program in the Army.)

1. What are the objectives of the salary and wage program?

Employees doing substantially the same work will receive the same pay treatment; pay rates will be based on the level of skill and responsibility required in the job; pay rates (i.e., for Wage Board jobs) will be geared to the going rates in the locality for comparable levels of skill and responsibility; pay rates will be applied without regard to the race, color, religion, or sex of the incumbent.

2. What is the authority for salary and wage administration?

For the Army Establishment, the authority to assign grades in accordance with the Classification Act of 1949 and the authority to establish rates of pay consistent with legal requirements for Wage Board jobs resides with the Secretary of the Army. In accordance with the principle of maximum delegation of authority and responsibility indicated in DA General Orders 52, 1952, installations are delegated the authority to determine appropriate grades and titles for all civilian positions in the Classification Act and Wage Board categories under their jurisdiction.

3. What is the Classification Act of 1949?

It is a law enacted by the 81st Congress for application by all Federal agencies. It provides a plan for the classification of positions and for rates of basic pay for the positions covered by the Act. It defines, generally, the grade levels of difficulty and responsibility for clerical, administrative, fiscal, subprofessional, professional, and scientific types of positions.

4. What are the main classes of employees in the Army establishment?

There are two main classes—Classification Act or graded employees and Wage Board or ungraded employees. Graded employees are classified in accordance with the Classification Act of 1949. They are divided into two groups: General Schedule (GS) and Crafts, Protective, and Custodial (CPC). Ungraded employees are those in recognized trades or crafts, or other skilled mechanical crafts, or in unskilled, semi-skilled, or skilled manual-labor occupations.

5. Who determines rates of pay for civilian employees?

The salaries of graded employees are set and may only be changed by Congressional action. The salary scale is established on a nationwide basis, so that a Clerk GS-4 in New York is paid the same as a Clerk GS-4 in San Francisco. The pay for ungraded employees is set by wage boards, with the approval of the Secretary of the Army, and in accordance with prevailing local rates in each industrial area. So that a Carpenter WB-12 in San Francisco is paid $1.98 per hour minimum and in Salt Lake City a Carpenter WB-12 is paid $1.82 per hour. Graded employees salaries are established on an annual basis, while ungraded employees are paid according to an hourly rate.

6. Who assigns grades?

The supervisory official who delegates certain duties and responsibilities to an employee, in effect sets the grade of that employee. The salary and wage analyst studies and writes up those duties and responsibilities as they are observed at the work location and then measures the approved description against grade level standards established by the Civil Service Commission and the Department of the Army, placing the appropriate grade on the job after careful consideration of all phases.

7. What is the basis for determining grades?

The sole basis for determining grades is the level of difficulty of the officially assigned duties and responsibilities and the qualifications required by such duties and responsibilities.

8. How are jobs titled?

Graded jobs are titled in accordance with a manual of occupational categories established by the Civil Service Commission. Ungraded job titles are assigned in accordance with a manual of job families and series established by the Department of the Army.

MEDAL OF HONOR

HN John E. Kilmer, U. S. Navy, has posthumously been awarded the Medal of Honor for saving the life of a wounded marine at the cost of his own. While serving with a Marine rifle company, Kilmer was wounded during a heavy enemy mortar barrage. Despite his wound he crawled among the shell bursts to administer to a stricken marine. As he was treating his patient the area came under intensified fire. Kilmer threw his body over that of the wounded marine. The rifleman lived but Kilmer was killed by the artillery fire. Before this he had "repeatedly braved intense enemy mortar, artillery and sniper fire" to move among the wounded men and administer aid. In losing his life Kilmer upheld the finest traditions of the Navy hospital corpsmen who are often called upon to risk their own lives to aid those who cannot help themselves—the wounded. (AFPS)

3 Courses Available!

College Group Study Classes Begin on Post Next Month

Plans for three college group study classes to be given on the Presidio for military personnel are being formulated by Lt. Col. George C. Johnson, Post TI&E officer. The eight-week session will extend from 14 September to 5 November.

Courses to be offered will be Human Biology and Health, Consumer Economics and The Western Scene. As there are no prerequisites for the courses, personnel need not be a high school graduate to enroll.

Human Biology and Health is a lower division course which will present an interpretation of man through biological principles, structure and function with deviations from the norm, development, heredity, and disease, its nature, transmission, prevention and bodily resistance. Classes will be held from 1830 to 2100 on Mondays and Wednesdays, beginning 14 September.

Subjects to be studied during the Consumer Economics course will include American standards of living and culture, budget making, economics of consumption and ideal standards of living. This upper division course will meet Mondays and Wednesdays from 1830 to 2100, beginning 14 September.

The Western Scene is an upper division course that will consider American literature, folklore and kindred fields of the frontier with special emphasis on the California Gold Rush days and the Barbary Coast. Beginning 15 September, this class will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1830 to 2100.

Three semester hours of resident credit will be given for each course by San Francisco State College.

Classes will be limited in enrollment and those planning to attend should indicate their interest in the courses by notifying the Education Center, Building 117.

Army

T.I.C.

Topic

Simple principles behind the Army's organization and the doctrines of attack, and the close relationship between these concepts and the analysis of terrain will be pointed out during the Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units next week.

The Army's present triangular organization, so named because of three interchangeable elements present at all levels, is the organization found to work best on today's battlefields. By reason of this organization, each infantry unit has a finding and fixing force, a maneuvering force and a reserve force.

The discussions will bring out how the organization of combat units is designed to accomplish the "four F's" of combat: find and fix the enemy, fight him, and finish him.

Terrain, including about everything seen on a battlefield, will be considered as another valuable tool of the soldier. In the American Army today, capture and control of dominant terrain features is considered so important to battlefield success that each feature is definitely assigned to some one unit for capture or control.

Post conferences will conclude with a typical combat situation showing how terrain and organization actually work together to help win battles.

Col. Nell Wickliffe
To visit local facilities.

Chief of WMSC To Tour Presidio 5 to 7 September

Colonel Nell Wickliffe, chief of the Women's Medical Specialist corps since December 1951, will visit at the Presidio 5 through 7 September. The following two days will be spent at Letterman Army hospital.

Colonel Wickliffe, one of three full colonels in the women's branches of service, will arrive in San Francisco on 31 August, following which she will attend the three-day American Dietetic association convention at the Statler hotel, Los Angeles, from 1 through 3 September.

She is the second person to hold the position as chief of the Army's 700 dietitians, physical therapists and occupational therapists, who make up the WMSC.

Graduated with a B.S. in home economics from Winthrop College for Women, Rock Hill, South Carolina, class of 1924, Colonel Wickliffe entered a dietetic internship at Walter Reed Army hospital in 1929.

In 1930 she was assigned to the station hospital at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, where she served for 16 years. She became chief dietitian at Walter Reed in 1946 and served there until her transfer to the Far East command two years later.

Colonel Wickliffe was awarded the Legion of Merit on 20 November 1951, upon completion of a three-year tour of duty as chief dietitian of the Japan Logistical command and dietetic consultant to the Far East command. Her citation said in part:

"Despite the influx of battle casualties and a severe shortage of hospital personnel, (Major) Wickliffe effected a reorganization of food service operations in hospitals throughout the command. . .

"She . . . expertly assisted the Quartermaster section in the preparation of master menus and rations for the various nationalities represented among the United Nations fighting forces."

Fort Jackson, S.C., has eight Army specialist schools. They teach courses for supply clerks, clerk-typists, light truck drivers, auto mechanics, field wiring specialists, radio operators, food service supervisors and bandmen.

Post High School Courses to Start Fall Term Soon

Fall session of high school courses for all military personnel of the Presidio who have not received a high school diploma will begin 14 September, the Post Education Center announces. On-post classes will be available in English, Mathematics, U. S. History and Constitution and General Science.

After the completion of 20 units of work or four subjects and successful completion of the General Educational Development test, those enrolled in the course will qualify for a high school diploma from the San Francisco Unified School District.

To qualify for a diploma by June, 1954, personnel need attend only two semester, two nights a week, or 192 hours for the total course. The Education Center points out that ordinarily students spent 130 weeks or approximately 4,000 hours in high school before getting a diploma.

Those desiring to earn a diploma by January, 1954, must enroll in four classes and attend each class one night a week, Monday through Thursday.

No expense is involved for personnel enrolling in the course. Text books are furnished.

Personnel desiring to attend should contact the educational counselor in Building 117, Extension 3189, to sign up for classes.

Regular class attendance is required and if military duty interferes, make-up work is classified as attendance. An average standard score in the high school GED test of 45 with no score below 35 must be attained upon completion of the course.

During the last semester of on-post high school classes, fifteen qualified for diplomas.

New Legislation!

Surviving Kin Can Benefit From Your Retirement Plan

New York—The "Uniform Services Contingency Option Act of 1953"—the law which permits the survivors of retired members of the Service to share their retirement pay—becomes effective Nov. 1.

Regulations governing the administration of this act will be released shortly, the Defense Department has announced. Until that time personnel are requested to hold off on all queries, the Department added.

The law applies to members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard and uniformed personnel of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, Public Health Service, either in Regular or Reserve components, and those drawing retainer pay such as the Navy's Fleet Reserve. It is aimed at alleviating the present situation in which retirement pay ceases upon the death of the retired person.

The new legislation will allow service personnel to set up an annuity for their survivors by utilizing part of their retirement pay for that purpose.

There are four basic options or plans which the person wishing to provide for his survivors may take. They are:

(1) An annuity payable to his widow until she dies or is remarried.

(2) An annuity payable to his child, or children—equally divided between them—while under 18 and unmarried.

(3) An annuity payable to the widow and surviving children so long as the widow lives unmarried or there is an unmarried child under 18.

(4) An annuity payable in accordance with any of these plans with the stipulation that if there are no beneficiaries eligible to receive annuities, full retired pay would be restored and no further deductions made.

The combinations of these various plans and their administration will be explained fully when the joint regulations are issued.

The total cost of the plan to the government is expected to be no more than the normal retirement costs. The retired serviceman would be drawing less pay during his lifetime in order that his survivors may share in a portion of his retirement pay after his death.

To activate the option plan the individual on active duty must elect his option before completion of 18 years service. If he already has 18 years service he must elect within 180 days of the effective date of the law which is Nov. 1, 1953. Persons already retired must also elect within 180 days after its effective date. (AFPS)

40th Division in Memorial Mass for Korea Casualties

Hundreds of 40th Infantry division soldiers gathered on a grassy hillside at Hunter Liggett Military reservation last Friday to observe Solemn Requiem Mass for men of the Division who died in Korea.

Catholic chaplains of the Southland National Guard conducted the Mass with the assistance of 25 Franciscan padres from nearby Mission San Antonio de Padua, who served as the choir.

During its six months of service in the Korean battle line under the banner of the National Guard, the Sunburst Division counted 82 men killed, eight of them Southern California Guardsmen.

First man to give his life was SFC Kenneth Kaiser, Jr., Los Angeles, member of the 160th Infantry Regiment. Chaplain (Captain) Robert Crane, former Ontario, California, Episcopal minister, was also among the number, killed by an exploding Chinese mortar shell.

Celebrant of the Mass was Chaplain (Major) Alfred J. Kilp, professor of biology at Loyola University and head of the 40th Division's corps of chaplains.

Deacon was Chaplain (Captain) Albert J. Duggan, 223rd Infantry Regiment, and pastor of St. Francis Catholic church in Azusa, and sub-deacon, Chaplain (Captain) Thomas A. Gannon, also of the 223rd, who is the Catholic chaplain at the Rancho Los Amigos sanitarium near Downey, California.

M/Sgt. "Tiny" Kochel
He packs a lot of weight.

Sergeant Seeks 'Biggest MP' Title With Gigantic Girth

Various Military Police organizations about the country have recently been in an argument as to which unit boasts the biggest MP in the country.

The Presidio's 505th Military Police Battalion, whose personnel naturally claim the biggest and the best of anything there is, have assigned to them the man-mountain to beat all man-mountains.

And so far there have been no entries from any other MP units to come anywhere near the behemoth proportions of the 505th's M/Sgt. Hiram "Tiny" Kochel:

Height: Six feet, three inches. Waist: 52 inches. Chest: 48 inches. Neck: 18½ inches. Weight: After conscientious dieting on the Sergeant's part, it has now been whittled from an original 393 pounds to a more respectable 338. Can you beat these dimensions?

And despite the above proportions, Sgt. Kochel isn't by any means a rocking-chair heavy. An avid sportsman, he has an athletic award for every inch of his belt. Soccer, football, and softball are his specialties, and he only recently pitched the Ft. Benning softball team to victory in the Third Army play-offs.

At present, assigned as instructor with the 505th MP Training Center across the Bay at Fort Baker, the Sergeant is handling the hurling chores for the MP softball squad which is to represent the Presidio at the forthcoming All-Sixth tourney.

Kochel's home is in Reading, Pa., and prior to his Presidio assignment he was stationed with Escort Det. 6, at the Oakland Army Base.

Transportation Officer Effects $88,350 Saving

Major Robert L. Cline, Transportation officer at Camp Irwin, California, has recently been cited for his saving to taxpayers of $88,350.

This was done by negotiating a change in rates for rail transportation of tanks from Barstow, California, to Tooele Ordnance depot, Warner, Utah. Saving to the government on each tank amounts to $883.50.

Said Major Cline, "everyone doesn't have the opportunity to effect large savings of this nature, but cost consciousness in the overall operation can save many times this amount. No job is too small to disregard cost consciousness."

"CONQUEST OF COCHISE," F*, means conflict between cavalry troops who are stationed on the Mexican border to stop Indian raids into Mexico. and the Apache warriors led by the crafty Cochise.

"TERROR ON A TRAIN," F*, runs rampant when it is discovered that a time bomb has been planted in a train load of naval mines traveling through England.

"THE DIAMOND QUEEN," F*, is laid primarily in India. When a diamond cutter accidentally destroys a large stone that was to have been set in the crown of Louis XIV, the cutter's son journeys to India in search of a replacement—and finds many other things as well!

"SPACEWAYS," F*, is a science-fiction film, still highly in the realm of imagination, but it proves what could happen as rocket research progresses.

"CHINA VENTURE," F*, provides tingling suspense, when a small task force, which enters the jungle to repatriate a high ranking Japanese prisoner from guerrillas, discovers that the guerrilla leader demands a ransom which they haven't got.

"RETURN TO PARADISE," F*, stars Gary Cooper as a rough-and-ready soldier of fortune who lands on a Pacific island and decides to stay awhile. Love and conflict follow his landing large ashore.

Fort Baker Dance Series to Honor Six Army Posts

A series of six weekly dances with the overall title of "Assignment USA," will be featured at the Fort Baker Service Club beginning Tuesday, 1 September, and continuing through Tuesday, 6 October.

Each week, an Army post in a specific section of the United States will be honored, and the locale of the post will be the basis upon which atmosphere in the form of decorations, entertainment and refreshments will be carried out.

"The Big Blow," honoring Fort Sam Houston, Texas, will be featured at the first dance. The Texas theme will be carried out by providing chuckwagon-style refreshments and western type entertainment at intermission time.

Randy Nison, San Leandro, cow-girl singer, and the Marin Hoedowners with Paul Otis as caller, will provide western ballads and exhibition square dancing. Music for dancing will be furnished by the Gene Stanziano combo.

A series of large "locale scenes," painted by Pvt. Paul Garnier and Pvt. Wesley Smith, Jr., of A Company, Military Police Training center, will be spotlighted at the appropriate dance for which they were drawn. Also an outline map of the United States will be used to denote "transfer" from one post to another.

The remaining dances in the series will be: "Banjo Bounce," Camp Gordon, Georgia, 8 September; "Boardwalk Ball," Camp Kilmer, New Jersey, 15 September; "Desperado Drag," Fort Sheridan, Illinois, 22 September; "Gamma Ray Gamble," Desert Rock, Nevada, 29 September; "Stormy Weather Stomp," Fort Lewis, Washington, 6 October.

BOOK CORNER

POOR MAN'S GUIDE TO EUROPE by David Dodge. How to live better, go farther, and have more fun for less money! A masterpiece of miserly know-how that's fun to read before you go, while you're going, when you get there, after you come back—and if you never go at all!

THE DARK ANGEL by Mika Waltari. A fictional eye-witness chronicles in details the preparations for the siege of Constantinople in 1453 and the carnage that followed. The narrative power and historical accuracy of the author's "Egyptian" in this new novel will please his fans.

THE INSIDE STORY by Fritz Redlich, M.D., and June Bingham. Unfamiliar and startling ideas on psychiatry are presented in familiar and humorous form, with cartoons adding a new depth and meaning. The psychiatric spyness is turned on the psychiatrists as well as average human beings.

THE WIRE GOD by Jack Willard. A powerful and grim novel about the rise of a conscienceless western town telegrapher, from the time he first won promotion by stealing copy, through a sordid succession of opportunistic grasplings of power, to the very top of a world press service.

THE EMPEROR'S LADY by F. W. Kenyon. A turbulent novel based on the life and loves of the Creole beauty, known to history as Empress Josephine, who captivated the most powerful man in the world. First she laughed at him, then married him to pay off her debts, and eventually realizes too late that she had met her match in the little Corsican by falling in love with him.

505th MP's Thrash Letterman Nine In Preparation for All-Sixth Tourney

The 505th Military Police softballers, soon to represent the Presidio at the All-Sixth Army Championships, sizzled through their third week of team practice, thrashing out a 7-4 victory over the neighboring Letterman Army Hospital nine on Tuesday.

Named to this week's line-up against Letterman were "Tiny" Kochel, pitcher; Fred Goss, catcher; George Asepermy, first base; Joe Papp, second base; Milt Garfield, third base; Raymond Le Van, short stop; Charles Kenny, left field; Francis Hoskins, center field; and "Boots" Butsumyo, right field.

Biggest strength for the MP's lay in their batting and pitching potentials, which alternated between keeping the bases loaded through most of their offensive game, and battering their adversaries to few hits on the defense.

Letterman led 4-3 up to the bottom of the fifth bracket, whereupon Kochel, an ace of a heavy-sticker as well as a great hurler, thrashed out the tying home run.

The seventh frame saw catcher Goss knock a hefty centerfield homer, unsacking teammates Kenny and Le Van to turn in the winning markers of the game.

Biggest guns for Letterman proved to be Holloway, Rendano and Gersch, while Rex Snider mounded for the medics.

Continuing his practice schedule for next week, 505th manager Le Van is busy drumming up more preparatory games for the team.

The Championships will be staged here at the Presidio 14-19 September, when the MP's will meet teams from every installation in the Sixth Army area.

FORMER "LITTLE ALL AMERICAN" fullback from the University of Southern California, Addison Hawthorne stays in condition while on two weeks maneuvers with the 311th Logistical Reserve Command from Los Angeles. Hawthorne's unit was recently in training at Camp Roberts. A sergeant with the reserve outfit, the ex-Pasadena City College grinner is now studying sociology at U.S.C.

Engineer Softball!

45th Boaters Sneak 8-7 HQ Victory; 21st Lambasts 99th

By Sgt. Frank Sloan

A new team heads the Engineer Softball League this week. Headquarters Company of the 30th took the lead—but last Friday suffered a tight 8-7 loss to the hardplaying 45th Boat Company.

Headquarters' hurler Herzog managed to stay out of trouble in the opening innings, but in the fourth bracket the boaters' bats blasted into the lead.

After a slump to the bottom of the seventh—with the 45th trailing 6-7—the boaters shook off the jinks and with two eager men on base, Hernandez beat a pile-driving single to score both runs.

The dependable Puig connected for the only homer in the game on behalf of the 45th at the bottom of the fifth inning. Recently back from Alaska, the six foot, 250-pound slugger serves ably as clean-up hitter for the team.

Also last Friday the 21st Engineers swamped the 99th in an 8-3 victory. Cobb served on the mound for the 21st.

The following team standings are based on results of all three rounds of the Fort Scott Softball season.

Team	Won	Lost
Headquarters Company	6	3
21st Engineers	5	4
45th Boat Company	5	4
Surveyors	3	5
99th Engineers	3	6

Army Downs Airforce

The German International Amateur Golf Championship in Frankfurt this year developed into an American inter-service battle. Army Sgt. E. T. Gonzales defeated Air Force Sgt. John R. Ford two and one in the 36-hole final.

Marines to Steelers

Three ex-Marine footballers are due to play with the Pittsburgh Steelers this season. They are Ted Gillman, linebacker from William and Mary; George Radosevich, All-Service star and linebacker from University of Pittsburgh, and Leo Elter, halfback from Villanova.

We Need Boxers!

The 23rd Annual San Francisco Golden Gloves bouts are drawing near. With the purpose of preparing some fighters from this installation for entrance in these matches, Post Special Services has scheduled a meeting for all persons interested in boxing for 1 September, 1130 hours, in the Post Gym, Bldg. 122. A training schedule will be drawn up at that time. Coach and manager for the Presidio contingent will be professional fighter Pvt. Jimmy Hays.

Sabrejets in Bendix

Two Air Defense Command fliers will enter the annual Bendix Trophy Race, Sept. 5, ADC Hq. announced. The entrants, Lt. Col. Winton W. Marshall, Davis-Monthan AFB, Ariz., and Maj. Stevens H. Turner, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, are accorded good chances of breaking present records in the air race from Edwards AFB, Calif., to Dayton, Ohio. Each will pilot a F-86F Sabrejet, a slight variation of the plane that recently set a new speed record of 715.7 mph over the California desert.

A New Gimmick

Football is getting increasingly more complicated. Harvard players this fall are going to know their positions on the bench as well as on the field. The Ivy League school is using the proposal of Coach Ray Elliott of Illinois as a means of keeping the limited substitution straight. Under the plan each player removed from the field must sit in the "ineligible" area, marked off by a painted line, until he can return to the game at the start of the next period.

Watch 'em Go!

Red Raiders Outweigh, Outrun 1952 Team in Practice Drills

The Red Raiders look as if they're out for blood.

After watching the team work out in its afternoon practices for a scant two weeks, veteran Presidians are prophesying a great football season for this year's team.

Root of the prophecy lies in the over-all improvement over last year's aggregation.

The backfield has gained speed and alacrity—the line is bigger and heavier than last year, particularly at the end positions—and the manpower reserve is probably twice what it was last season.

And perhaps a more important side of this year's team appears in its vigorous determination and team spirit—something very apparent even in the basic drills.

Head coach Roland Daigle and line mentor Bill Carey currently are concentrating on calisthenics, work on the charging machine and blocking dummies, signal practice and some passing drills—a traditional loosening-up schedule.

Daigle doesn't think they're ready to try any bone-crushing tackles and blocks on anything more animate than a dummy just yet. But the dummies still take a heck of a beating.

Next Saturday will see the first of the inter-squad scrimmage sessions.

Several players from last year's Raiders are returning to the Presidio fold this season. For Sgt. Dick Jackstadt, this will be his third year in the crimson jersey. It is expected that he will return to his regular quarterback spot which he held in '51 and '52.

Other returnees include Leonard Hoaglund, tackle; Dallas Lamb, line-punching half-back and a backfield choice again this year, and head coach and half-back Lt. Roland Daigle.

Daigle's Army footballing started back in '41 with the 1st Cavalry Division, and continued through his service with the Camp White team in '42, Fort Bliss Rockets in '47, 1 Corps Bullseyes in '48, and the 21st Infantry in '49.

He should have enough experience under his belt by now to pilot this year's rugged Raiders to a season of victories.

99th Keglers Take Lead at Fort Scott; HQ Co. Down 21st

In the Fort Scott bowling league this week we find the 99th Engineers in first place for percentile averages with .625 for games played.

Not too far behind are the 21st Soltech keglers with .607 for a second place showing. The Surveyors push in hot pursuit with .600.

As a reminder for you low-level bowlers, there are only three weeks left in the season before the luckier teams bowl their final strike and cross the finish line.

In last Tuesday's game between the 21st Soltechs and the Surveyors, Beaman of the Soltechs tallied a score of 448 pins out of three games rolled. Cardson, also of the Techs, totaled 422 points for high-point man of the night.

During the games last Tuesday night, Headquarters Company skunked the 21st Alibis by winning four out of four games.

Looks like the 21st are running out of alibis!

—Sgt. F. Sloan.

Wanted: Audience

The Presidio Red Raider football team practices from 1400 to 1600 hours on week days, 0900-1100 Saturdays, on the Post's Main Athletic Field, located in front of the Presidio Theater. Personnel on the Post have a standing invitation to come out and see their team work out in these sessions. The spirit and determination which has been so obvious in the last two weeks, and which make even the rudimentary workouts fun to watch, show a team which is vastly better than last year's and a good bet against any of this season's competitors. It's a team worthy of the Post. Come out and give the boys a boost!

A Cherry Point, N. C., Marine team win the 300-meter medley relay by a close 3:21.9, less than six seconds slower than the record. This trio was Cpl. Charles Small, breaststroke; Cpl. Bill Sonner, backstroke, and Lt. Lou Benza, free style.

SPORTS PULSE

By Pfc. Bruce Lansbury

Readers will notice the one-column box in the sports pages of the Star-Presidian this week giving notice of the meeting scheduled for all boxers, or personnel interested in boxing, in the Post Gym, Eldg. 122, at 1130 hours, 1 September.

The fellow who'll be coaching and in charge of training the Presidio's aspirant Golden Glovers, and who will probably be in their corner the night the bell sounds the opening of the 23rd Annual San Francisco Golden Glove bouts, is a professional fighter by the name of Jimmy Hays.

Pvt. Jimmy Hays

Jimmy is a 21-year-old welter-weight from Los Angeles, where he first went into professional fighting three years ago.

In his first 35 bouts as a pro prior to his entry into the Army, he lost only two, and one of these to top-ranking Ramon Ruentes—it was only Hays' fourth bout. Known mostly for his appearances in the Olympic Stadium at Los Angeles, Hays is under the managerial thumb of Paul White.

Jimmy's experience as a trainer is no less impressive. On his being drafted into the Service in August of '52 at Fort Ord, California, Special Services there, recognizing his ring background, put him in charge of the A&R section in the 1st Infantry Regiment. In this capacity he trained a regiment boxing team which was difficult to beat.

Hays has recently taken over the training chores of Presidio amateur hope Jesse Hale, who is also a welterweight and claims the interest of Hays' professional boxing colleague, Lou Gage. Hale will be more or less of a charter member on the Presidio squad when Golden Glove time comes around. But aside from the welter berth, there remain positions in all the weight classifications: Flyweight, 112; Bantamweight, 119; Featherweight, 125; Lightweight, 132; Light Welterweight, 139; Welterweight, 147; Light Middleweight, 156; Middleweight, 165; Light Heavyweight, 178, and Heavyweight, over 178.

There's no telling at this point just what sort of pugilistic material Jimmy will find to work with on Post, but if a guy has the fighter's instinct in him, we're quite sure Hays has the experience and no-how to draw it out and make the best of it.

It seems this is the season for Service rifle and pistol competition—which brings us to Captain Richard H. Gadd, who is currently assigned as Motor Officer with the 30th Engineers at Fort Scott.

Captain Gadd was one of the 60 contestants to participate in the recent pistol eliminations at Fort Benning, Georgia, to determine membership on the All-Army Pistol Team. Contestants came from all of the 48 states and various foreign stations such as Germany, Panama and Puerto Rico to enter.

Of the 60 competing, Captain Gadd finished 11th. But while the All-Army team was to consist of 12 members, two of these were not to have fired in previous Nationals—which put Captain Gadd out of the running.

He gained some measure of compensation when he journeyed south later on and fired with the Army team in the El Paso, Texas, Southwest Regional Pistol Championships, winning a medal and three silver spoons—which are standard awards in the pistol matches. Subsequently he entered the West Georgia State Championships and came away with 14 medals and a sharpshooter's certificate. I figure he proved his point.

In his career as a marksman, Gadd has won approximately 100 medals, plus numerous cups, trophies and other awards. Locally he has fired with the Presidio Gun Club small bore team in the San Francisco "D" League.

Camp Roberts' 7th QM Wallops Reserve Comm. For Post Softball Title

Bespectacled Pvt. Bill Mataya of Camp Roberts' 7th Quartermaster Battalion whiparmed his team to the Post softball crown recently by turning back the defending champions from the Roberts' Reserve Command 8-2.

The victory earned the 7th QM the right to represent Camp Roberts in the All-Sixth Army Softball Championships at the Presidio, 14-19 September.

Mataya struck out nine and walked three in winning his fourth straight tilt in the final game of the double-elimination tourney.

Ft. Ord Warriors Bid for All-Sixth Title in Victory Over Rival Roberts

Diamond action at the currently-contested All-Sixth Baseball tourney at Fort Ord this week saw the Fort Ord Warriors, California Semi-Pro champions, in an unsullied victory sweep toward the All-Sixth title and a crack at the coming All-Army crown.

Biggest thrill of the week occurred in the tourney's fourth round when the Warriors grabbed a 5-4 decision in a spine-tingler against the previously unbeaten Camp Roberts All-Stars.

Until the eighth inning the Warriors' hurler Bob Ross had blanked the Robertsmen to nary a run and allowed only two hits, setting down 10 batters via the strikeout.

It was in the ninth frame that Ross' masterful control hit a sudden dip. He allowed two walks. Then Robertsmen Don Watson slapped out a single to send the game into the extra innings.

In the bottom of the 10th Warrior Frank Oneto iced the game when he singled to score Porter, who had doubled deep into the centerfield pasture.

Ordman Tom Morgan, who relieved Ross in the ninth, picked up the win. Cless Henkle, who replaced Grob in the same frame, was saddled with the loss.

Other fourth round action saw an extra-inning nightcap by the Fort Lewis-Presidio of San Francisco groups. Lewis took the game 6-3, but they had to score four runs in the top of the 10th to subdue the stubborn Presidians in a contest that was deadlocked from the halfway mark.

Fort Lewis, aiming to end it once and for all, exploded in their half of the tenth with Ed Bryan homering with one aboard, culling three errors in their favor, and a single by Keystone sacker Scot Wilson. Both pitchers, Lary for Lewis and Stanton for the Presidio, went the limit.

The loss to Fort Lewis put the Raiders out of further contention for the Sixth Army championship.

Previous to the fourth round action the Raiders had suffered a 15-11 defeat at the hands of the tough Roberts nine. The Raiders outhit the Robertsmen 15 to 14, but couldn't seem to push across the runs that counted.

A late-game Raider rally grew loud when, within four runs of the win and with the bases loaded, hurler Payne for Roberts whiffed two Presidians to end the inning and the game. Chucker Arkie Stanton again mounded for the Presidians, while Robertsmen Ulrich got credit for the win.

Brightest light for the San Franciscans turned out in their 23-3 lambast victory over the Yuma Test Station. The game showed the real dynamite behind the Presidio bats, with Jacobs, Klopp and Fucile getting the tournament's highest laurels for their hitting.

Other tournament meetings prior to Tuesday's fourth round, featured Ord's 12-2 drubbing over Yuma, and Roberts' 9-0 victory over Camp Hanford.

Combat Command A Grabs Six-Race Sweep, Roberts' Swim Crown

Combat Command A remained swimming champs for the second consecutive year by scoring twice as many points as all other regiments combined in the Camp Roberts post swim meet recently.

Paced by Pvt. Jerry Broede, John Mikell and Nelson Fabry, the champs splashed to victory in six of the nine events and finished second in the remaining three.

Broede won both the 200 and 400 meter freestyle and anchored the winning 300 meter relay team. Mikell took the 200 meter breaststroke, placed second behind Broede in the 200 meter freestyle and swam anchorman on the victorious 400 meter relay team. Fabry captured the 200 meter freestyle and was member of the winning 400 meter relay team.

John Wolf of Reserve Command, winner of the 100 meter backstroke, and Stan Annog, 50 meter dash king also from Reserve command, were the only men able to crack the Combat Command A monopoly.

The winners had a total of 62 points, followed by Reserve Command with 25 and Division Artillery with 10.

At press time this week, a game was scheduled between Fort Lewis and Camp Roberts, the winner of which will clash with the unbeaten Fort Ord Warriors in the tournament's final round.

Sixth Army Netters Dominate All-Army West Point Matches

By mid-week the All-Army Tennis Tournament at West Point, New York, found the Sixth Army netters dominating the first and second days of competition, placing three men in the tourney's quarter finals.

Sixth Army tennisers M/Sgt. William Milliken, Madigan Army Hospital; Lt. Jack Shoemaker, San Luis Obispo; Pfc. John Bisch, Fort Ord, and Pvt. Dick Osburn, Fort Lewis, easily routed their opponents in the first round play.

In the tourney's second day, all but Osburn survived to go into the quarter finals. The Fort Lewis Private lost a climactic 11-9 set to Sidney Schwartz of the Second Army for his final defeat.

Bill Milliken went into the quarter finals with his 7-5, 6-4 rout over Captain Edward Miller of Second Army. Shoemaker downed Lt. Singleton Keesler of Third Army, 6-3, 6-3, while Bisch overcame Cpl. Keith Kimble of Fifth Army 4-6, 8-6, 6-4.

First round elimination of doubles found Fifth Army and the U. S. Army in the Caribbean teams dropped from further competition. The Sixth Army team of Shoemaker and Osburn passed successfully into the second round doubles.

Hunters Get the Bird

Game farms and holding pens operated by the California Department of Fish and Game produced a total of 5,400 upland game birds which were released throughout the State during the first two weeks of August.

Merced, Stanislaus and Madera counties received 2,300 birds of the 14-day release total.

Jack Dempsey won 18 fights and lost one in 1918. He lost to Willy Meehan in four rounds, September 13, 1918, at San Francisco, California.

"RECAP K PROCESSING" is the name given the special handling at Fort Mason of former prisoners of war returning by ship from Korea. This dockside processing by experienced personnel teams from Camp Stoneman speeds the repatriates on their way home as quickly as possible. The freed prisoners shown above being processed were among the 328 former POWs to arrive last Sunday aboard the General Nelson M. Walker. This special processing will be used again tomorrow when 450 freed prisoners will return home on the transport General W. F. Hase. (Army photo by Cox.)

Special Process Method Speeds First POW's Past Barrage Of Red Tape

With a minimum of ceremony and a maximum of efficient planning, the Army welcomed back the first 328 former prisoners of war to return by ship Sunday morning at Fort Mason by enabling them to do in the swiftest way possible what was uppermost in all their thoughts—to get home.

After the 12-day voyage directly from Inchon, the port of Seoul, the repatriates aboard the Navy transport General Nelson M. Walker passed under Golden Gate Bridge shortly after 0700. Here the ship was met by an Army ferry boat, carrying the Sixth Army band and a Marine band to serenade them as the ship proceeded on to Fort Mason.

Fireboats shooting streams of water high into the air also escorted the transport to the pier. Dockside a huge sign greeted them with "Welcome Home."

It was 0915 when the first former prisoner, Pfc. Roosevelt A. Lunn of Baltimore, came down the gangplank. He was greeted by Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, Sixth Army commander, and Mayor Elmer E. Robinson of San Francisco. General Swing remained at the end of the gangplank to shake the hands of the other repatriated prisoners as they disembarked.

Then came the emotion-packed reunions of the men whose families were able to be at the pier when they arrived.

The men whose relatives were not at the pier were taken to a warehouse where the Red Cross had set up a canteen and were offered free telephone calls home and Western Union wires. Within two hours, 212 of them telephoned loved ones all over the United States at Red Cross expense.

"Recap K Processing," the name for the special handling of the freed prisoners, began at 1030 as the first names were called through a portable microphone.

Preparations for this special processing were begun several weeks ago by officials of the Sixth Army, Camp Stoneman and the San Francisco Port of Embarkation. Headed by Colonel L. A. Ayers, deputy post commander of operations at Camp Stoneman, thirty members of experienced personnel processing teams from Stoneman handled the necessary paper work.

Those with families waiting on the pier were processed first so they could leave San Francisco with their families.

Each of the freed prisoners went through seven phases of his processing: an interview to check his service record against his self-identification, an interview to make out his travel orders, a session with the civilian travel agents, two stops at pay windows, a stop at a desk selling travelers' checks, and a final visit to travel agents to pick up his tickets.

Airlines had reserved 260 seats on flights out of San Francisco and blocks of seats had been ordered in advance on all train and bus lines. Fifty civilians were on hand to book the transportation.

Twenty-four repatriates passed through "Recap K" in the first hour, but this rate was increased considerably during the day.

Those whose families did not meet them were taken by bus to the Presidio Service club where they were served food and given long distance telephone calls before returning to Fort Mason. One of the biggest attractions at the club were the home-town newspapers which had been collected for them to read.

Some of those remaining at the warehouse were able to eat at the Fort Mason Officers' Mess before completing processing.

Back pay of the former prisoners amounted to $728,679. The men had their choice of being paid by government check or in cash and set off for home with $565,000 in checks and $163,679 in cash. Individual payments varied from $200 to $5,605.

PIPERS IN SEATTLE provided a colorful escort for the 10 men of Scottish descent who were sworn in at the Highland Games, feature of the Seattle, Washington Seafair Week. The Pipe Band, which is stationed at the Presidio of San Francisco, marched in six parades during the week-long celebration, performed on a half-hour television show and appeared at a number of other festivities. Upon their arrival at Boeing Field, Pipe Major Sergeant William E. Allen (far right) is interviewed by John Callahan, assistant publisher of the "Seattle Post Intelligencer," (second from left). At left is Mr. Bruce Gillespie, Seattle, official Seafair host to the band. Center are Major Roy N. Rheams, commanding officer of the Seattle recruiting main station who arranged for the appearances of the band, and Captain Alvin S. McKean, Seattle PIO at Seattle RMS, who swore in the 10 men at the Highlands games. (Army photo by Woods, Seattle.)

Part of my home town of St. Cloud, Minnesota, came home on the General Walker last Sunday.

And though I had never met Sgt. Vernon Henning before, I knew I would never have a better chance.

No one from his family could be on hand to meet the tall, lean good-looking man who at first seemed to show few traces of his 33 months as a prisoner of war in North Korea.

So I went.

My first glimpse of the emotion he had lived up came when I introduced myself and offered him some recent copies of our home town paper, the St. Cloud Daily Times.

They contained a picture of his parents, seated near the telephone, jubilant over the news they had just heard—Vern had been released and was coming home!

In Vern's eyes they were standing right there with him in that shed at Fort Mason. He showed the pictures to every buddy who would have a looksee.

To me he said, "I'm sure glad to see Mom up and around. I heard she was pretty sick awhile back."

We sat there almost all day—waiting as one does in the Army.

The setup for processing the men quickly was excellent, but no unit could have processed those 328 anxious, eager men fast enough. It was 1600 when an Army vehicle whisked Vern over to Oakland Air base, there to board a plane, first for Camp Carson, Colorado, and then home for 30 days.

So while we waited—we talked. I can't tell you anything about how Vern spent those 33 months in a POW camp.

I didn't ask.

Instead, we talked about home. Home is a town that has the Mississippi river in its back yard. It is very hot in the summer and very cold in the winter. And approximately 28,000 people live there.

I told him about the new Rox ball park, the several new churches that had been built, the Pioneer days celebration which is now being held every summer for three days.

"Wait till you see Carl's new super market just down the street from your house," I told him. "It's really something. And they've put a family of swans in Lake George out in front of the high school."

He wanted to write something down. Instead he handed me his pen and asked me to write it.

Then I saw emotion again. His hands, which hadn't stopped wringing those newspapers, were trembling badly.

I wrote.

He smiled. He smiled all day—almost constantly. He was full of wonder and almost disbelief that he was really here.

I tried to get him to eat. "Not hungry," he kept saying. He smoked instead.

We drank umpteen cups of coffee which the nice Red Cross ladies gave us.

I mentioned that back home the papers had kept referring to him as "Cpl. Henning." "That's because I made sergeant the end of December, 1950, and I had already been captured. I didn't know myself until I was released that I was a sergeant."

Vern's going to stay in the Army, too, only this time he hopes to revert to his former MOS in administrative work. "I was with General MacArthur's headquarters in the Philippines during World War II," he told me. "This time I thought I'd join the Infantry and really get into the battle. Now I've had it."

Wish I could be home for the reunion. He phoned home and his brother Jim, who's in the Army back east is coming home, and brother Wilfred from Winona, Minnesota will be there; in fact all his brothers and sisters will be home.

I know that's all in this world Vern could possibly want.

WAAC Officer to End 30 Years of Service

After thirty years of Army service, Major John A. Walder, presently assistant G-4, Western Army Antiaircraft Command, will retire 31 August at Fort Baker.

Major Walder, who served as an enlisted man until 1941 and as a warrant officer until 1943, was commissioned a first lieutenant, AUS, in August, 1943. He has been a member of the Artillery or Coast Artillery throughout his period of service and has seen duty at the majority of Artillery posts throughout the United States, Hawaii and Alaska.

Major Walder's decorations include the American Defense Service Medal with clasp, the Asiatic Pacific Theater Campaign Medal, the World War II Victory Medal and the Armed Forces Reserve Medal.

A retirement parade and ceremony honoring Major Walder will be held at the Fort Baker parade ground on 31 August at 1500.

Medal of Honor Winner!

Heroic Gallup Sergeant Free; Will Arrive Home Tomorrow

A 27-year old Gallup, N. M. POW and Medal of Honor winner, Sgt. Hiroshi H. Miyamura, will arrive in San Francisco aboard the U.S.N.S. Marine Adder tomorrow.

A corporal when captured by the Communists on April 25, 1951, Sergeant Miyamura was promoted while a prisoner.

Announcement of the award of the Nation's highest decoration had been withheld by the Department of the Army until his safe return was assured.

Included in the group expected to greet the 62nd winner of the Medal of Honor in Korea announced by the Army since the outbreak of hostilities, will be his wife, Mrs. Tsuruko Terry Miyamura of Gallup, other members of his family and Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, Sixth Army Commander.

A veteran of World War II, during which he served 18 months in the Mediterranean Theater of Operations with Company D of the famed 442nd Regimental Combat Team, Sergeant Miyamura was recalled to active duty from the Army Reserve in September, 1950. He went to the Far East the following month and was subsequently assigned to Company H, 7th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Infantry Division in Korea.

The citation accompanying his Medal of Honor follows:

"Corporal Hiroshi H. Miyamura, distinguished himself by conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty in action against the enemy near Taejon-Ni, Korea, on 24 and 25 April 1951.

"On the night of 24 April, Company H was occupying a defensive position when the enemy fanatically attacked threatening to overrun the position. Corporal Miyamura, a machine gun squad leader aware of the imminent danger to his men, unhesitatingly jumped from his shelter wielding his bayonet in close hand-to-hand combat killing approximately 10 of the enemy.

"Returning to his position he administered first aid to the wounded and directed their evacuation. As another savage assault hit the line, he manned his machine gun and delivered withering fire until his ammunition was expended. He ordered the squad to withdraw while he stayed behind to render the gun inoperative."

He then bayoneted his way through infiltrated enemy soldiers to a second gun emplacement and assisted in its operation. When the intensity of the attack necessitated the withdrawal of the company, Corporal Miyamura ordered his men to fall back while he remained to cover their movement.

"He killed more than 50 of the enemy before his ammunition was depleted and he was severely wounded. He maintained his magnificent stand despite his painful wounds, continuing to repel the attack until his position was overrun. When last seen, he was fighting ferociously against an overwhelming number of enemy soldiers. Corporal Miyamura's indomitable heroism and consummate devotion to duty reflect the utmost glory on himself and uphold the illustrious traditions of the military service."

Far-Reaching Beacon

The Army Signal Corps has developed a miniaturized radar beacon for rockets which reach more than 50 miles into the sky. The beacon sends signals back to radar sets on the ground, giving the position of the rocket in flight.

19 Sixth Army Enlisted Men Die In Plane Crash

Nineteen enlisted men aboard a chartered plane flying from Fort Ord to McChord Air Force Base, Tacoma, Wash., were killed Tuesday when the two-engine craft crashed on a mountainside 27 miles from the trip destination. The two civilian crew members were also killed.

The plane left Monterey Tuesday afternoon and was reported overdue and missing after it passed Portland Tuesday evening.

The burned wreckage was located in second growth timber at an elevation of 3000 feet. Fifteen bodies were found immediately and there was no indication that others had survived.

The soldiers were enroute to new assignments at Fort Lawton, Wash.

Listed as the plane's passengers were: Cpl. Lloyd L. Stanlake, Fresno, Calif.; Pfc. Charles A. Gale, Los Angeles, Calif.; SFC Henry L. Foss, Montebello, Calif.; Pvt. Joseph Gaynard, Jr., Long Beach, Calif.; Pfc. Jose Ruelas, San Fernando, Calif.; Sgt. John Davis, Jr., St. Paul, Minn.; Cpl. Henry P. Zimmerman, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Pvt. Joseph M. Briscoe, St. Louis, Mo.; Rvt. Carl C. Butler, Des Moines, Iowa; Pvt. Albert Davis, Conroe, Texas; Pvt. Ezekiel Turk, Jr., Sikeston, Mo.; Cpl. Leamon E. Schulz, Zearing, Iowa; Pvt. Rojelio Nunez, Winton, Calif.; Cpl. Raymond C. Siver, Jr., Byram, Conn.; SFC Gustav S. Wickelgren, Detroit Lakes, Minn.; Cpl. Ted K. Matsuyoshi, Mesa, Ariz.; Pfc. Freeman C. Montgomery, Coarsegold, Calif.; Pfc. Willie L. Lemell, Los Angeles; and Pvt. William R. Mohr, San Francisco.

Industrial College Will Give Three Conferences On National Resources

Preliminary plans are being made now for three National Resources conferences to be given in the Sixth Army area by the Industrial College of the Armed Forces. These conferences will be attended by military leaders, mostly Reservists, of the Army, Navy and Air Force and local civilian leaders.

The Military Districts of Idaho, Montana and Washington will be included in the first conference to be held in Boise, Idaho, from 19 October through 30 October. The second conference will be in San Jose, Calif., from 17 through 29 January, 1954, with personnel from the California, Oregon and Nevada Military Districts. Members of the Southern California, Arizona and Utah Military Districts will attend the meeting to be held 4-16 April at Pasadena, Calif.

Approved applications within quotas allotted each military district will be forwarded to reach Sixth Army Headquarters, ATTN: AMGCT-6, not later than 21 September 1953 for the Boise course, 21 December 1953 for the San Jose course and 7 March 1954 for the Pasadena course. Final approval of selected Reserve officer will be made by Headquarters Sixth Army.

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA Friday, 4 September, 1953

TO PAY RESPECTS to Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, first director of the WAC (then WAAC) more than 35 members of various branches of women's armed services came to call this week as Mrs. Hobby arrived in San Francisco to give the opening address at the National Hospital association convention being held here. The meeting on 1 September paralleled the 10th anniversary of the federalizing of the WAC on 1 September 1943. Shown above l. to r.: Captain Gertrude

Murray, WMSC, Medical Section, Headquarters Sixth Army; Major Harriet N. Moses, WAC Staff advisor, G-1 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army; Ensign Susie Brossy, 12th Naval District Headquarters, San Francisco; Mrs. Hobby, Lt. Colonel Kathleen McClure, Headquarters 4th Air Force, Hamilton Air Force base, and Lt. Betty Lou Simpson, ANC, Medical Section, Headquarters Sixth Army. (Army photo by Hilmer)

Cabinet Member Recalls WAC Days In Visit with Bay Area Service Women

Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, first director of the WAC (formerly the WAAC) and presently the only woman cabinet member, got a quick glimpse of west coast service women and their varied activities this week.

She was in San Francisco briefly, to give the opening address at the National Hospital Association convention, but found time to talk informally with those who are still carrying on one of the projects dearest to her heart—the WAC.

Coincidentally, the meeting on 1 September paralleled the 10th anniversary of the federalizing of the WAC, which occurred on 1 September 1943. It was at that time commanded by Colonel Hobby. Upon her retirement from the corps in July 1945, she was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal, the first woman ever to win it.

More than 35 women officers representing not only the WAC, but the Air Force and Navy as well, had an opportunity to meet and speak with the small, intense woman, who practically throughout her entire lifetime, has ruled the destinies of hundreds of thousands of persons, both in military and civilian life.

Her tact in administration, her attention to minute details and her vast ability to organize make her a natural for positions which require 24-hour-a-day alertness.

Before she was old enough to vote, Mrs. Hobby was codifying bank laws for the Texas state banking commission and was appointed a clerk in the legislature's judiciary committee.

Chosen by the speaker of the house (in Texas) as legislative parliamentarian at the age of 20, she became so expert on the subject of parliament that she was able to write a book on the subject.

Her cabinet post as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare makes her grand boss over such things as the Social Security Administration which cares for the needy, the aged, the disabled and children's welfare.

She heads up the Public Health Service, which provides for medical research centers, hospitals and asylums. Through the Office of Education, Mrs. Hobby administers funds to land-grant colleges and supervises the teacher-exchange program with foreign countries.

New Army Study

The Army's basic structure will undergo a study by a newly-appointed committee of prominent civilians to see if any changes are necessary in light of today's conditions.

Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens appointed the committee in line with President Eisenhower's message to Congress April 30, transmitting Reorganization Plan No. 6 of the 1953 plan relating to the Defense Department.

Still Working!

Army maintenance facilities renovated more than 117,972 tons of WWI ammunition and salvaged 227,617 tons of material during the past year.

These duties only scratch the surface to which her phenomenal skill will be bent.

Another field in which she has worked furiously and gained distinction, principally as an organizer, is the newspaper business. Presently she and her husband, William Pettus Hobby, own and publish the Houston "Post," and while in Washington, the paper is air-mailed to her daily.

Mrs. Hobby is the mother of two children, William Pettus Jr., 21, a student at Rice Institute, and Jessica, 17, a student at Miss Hewitt's in Manhattan.

Two POW Groups Will Arrive Here Today, Tomorrow

Two ships carrying a total of 471 Americans freed from prisoner of war camps will arrive at Fort Mason from Korea this weekend to bring to 1,236 the number of repatriates returned by ship to San Francisco during the past two weeks.

First of the two ships to arrive will be the Navy hospital ship USS Haven, scheduled to dock at Pier 2 West about 1100 today, carrying 104 freed prisoners and 371 other military patients. Tomorrow, the Marine Adder is due in with 367 POWs and 1,475 military personnel returning on rotation.

Another 850 repatriates are enroute now to San Francisco by ship. The transport General John Pope will dock at Fort Mason early next week with 428 POWs and another 322 boarded the transport General Black in Korea Tuesday.

Sick and wounded former prisoners are being flown from Tokyo to Travis Air Force Base.

Canines Are Proving First Rate Soldiers

Kobe, Japan—A feeling of tense expectancy was mixed with the inky blackness of the night at the sprawling U. S. Army supply depot here.

Alert watch dogs—their long, pointed ears cocked for the slightest noise—walked up and down in front of locked warehouse doors.

Suddenly a vicious snarl broke the stillness. With a lightning leap, one of the dogs shot through the air and sank his long, sharp teeth into the arm of a shadowy form crouched near a window.

Instantly a shrill whistle sounded and seconds later a military policeman seized the thief.

The canine sentry which attacked the thief was one of 63 German Shepherds at the depot. With 50 handlers and 65 military policemen, they replaced infantrymen who previously had guarded the warehouses.

Several years ago, during a single four-month period, $500,000 worth of Army supplies were stolen from the depot. But since the dogs began pounding their beats nothing has been stolen.

Their acute senses of smell and hearing make Army dogs excellent fire detectors. On one occasion a sentry dog discovered a fire soon after it started in an Army warehouse in Yokohama. His barking alerted his handler and prevented destruction of the building whose contents were worth millions of dollars.

Of the Army's 1,750 dogs, most are on duty in Europe and the Far East. The majority are sentries, but some lead scouting patrols in Korea and a few serve as messengers.

The dogs—bought by the Army Quartermaster Corps for $150 each at kennels in different parts of the United States—are trained at Camp Carson, Colo., and Lenggries, Germany.

The cost of training and maintaining one dog is much less than the training and upkeep of an enlisted man. As further evidence of saving, one watch dog can replace from two to nine guards, depending upon the type of installation.

Extremely aggressive dogs are picked for sentry duty. Scout dogs qualify for their jobs because of their keen alertness and acute sense of smell. They are especially valuable to the infantryman in combat because they lead patrols into no man's land where they warn their soldier masters of concealed enemies and lessen the danger of ambush.

A highly intelligent dog which shows a strong desire to please his handlers is trained as a messenger. These dogs learn to carry ammunition and other supplies up to 30 pounds. They also are trained to lay field telephone wire from a spool mounted on a pulling harness.

Each dog takes three weeks basic training to become familiar with its handlers and learn simple commands. This is followed with from eight to 12 weeks of specialized training in the particular work for which the dog is suited. Training is done with the dog wearing a collar or a harness so that he learns to associate this equipment with an "on duty" status.

Sentry dogs learn to attack a person upon command from their handlers. A man called an "agitator" teases the dog with a small stick. The handler urges the dog to watch the agitator. As soon as the dog makes an aggressive move toward him, the agitator retreats. The dog is urged to chase the man and is lavishly praised when he obeys all commands.

Next the dog learns to attack the agitator's padded arm. Then—while on a leash—he attacks the man's padded suit. Finally he is allowed to attack without restraint so his handler is free to use a weapon. The dog releases his victim on command.

Scout dogs learn to use their sense of smell to detect intruders. In training, a soldier—posing as the intruder or enemy—is stationed upwind from the dog in a training area. As soon as the animal picks up the scent of the intruder, he gives a sign, such as springing slightly forward or straining on the leash. Each dog has its own way of letting his handler know he has picked up the scent.

When the handler learns his dog's sign, he must prevent the animal from barking, growling or making another noise which might prove fatal to both dog and handler in time of war.

Next the handler urges the dog to move stealthily toward the "enemy," who starts to run. Held on leash, the dog and his handler chase the intruder, but the dog is trained to stop if the handler gives the command.

Messenger dogs are the only type which learn to work with two handlers. The dog is taught to run from one to the other while carrying a pack loaded with ammunition or supplies. Gradually distance between the handlers increases and the handler who receives the dog is hidden from sight. Lesson repetition and runs of varied distances over different routes develop his dependability as a messenger. (ANF)

Area-Wide Participation!

Forms Control Program Nets Estimated $37,000 Savings

Taxpayers were saved an estimated $37,000 between 1 December, 1952, and 15 June, 1953, by the Sixth Army area Forms Control program established and operated by the Adjutant General Section, Sixth Army.

This program was launched following a survey in 1952 which revealed that all installations in the Sixth Army area were devising local forms for various operations which in a majority of cases were duplications of other installation forms. These forms were printed by the Defense Printing Service at Ogden, Utah at considerable expense to the government.

The survey also revealed that the only Department of the Army directive available on forms control was TM 12-600, Forms Control and Standardization, published in 1947, which was obsolete because of changes in printing regulations and procedures.

Establishment of the Forms Control program was directed by the Adjutant General, Sixth Army, in November 1952, as a result of this survey which indicated the need to eliminate the duplications of forms and the resultant cost to the government.

Detailed policies and reporting procedures for the Forms Control program were set forth in Sixth Army Manual M6-22, Printing Publications and Forms Control, published on 1 December 1952. The manual directed that forms control officers be designated at all Class 1 installations and activities down to include battalion-size units.

The first quarterly report was submitted by all installations on 31 March 1953, showing an estimated savings of $25,000 through the elimination of a total of 22 forms by consolidation and 1936 forms by discontinuance.

Fort Ord led other installations of the area for the first period with a total of 1225 forms eliminated. Fort Lawton abolished 293 forms to place second while Fort MacArthur was third with 11 forms eliminated by consolidation and 126 by discontinuance. In fourth place was Headquarters Sixth Army by eliminating four forms through consolidation and discontinuing another 102. California Military District was fifth with six forms eliminated by consolidation and 43 forms discontinued.

Estimated savings of $12,000 were made during the second quarters ending 15 June, 1953, during which period a total of 27 forms were eliminated by consolidation and 554 forms discontinued throughout the Sixth Army area.

Fort Ord again led the other area installations during the second quarters with four forms eliminated by consolidation and 184 forms discontinued. The achievements of the other top installations were: Headquarters Sixth Army, three eliminated by consolidation and 95 discontinued; Presidio of San Francisco, 47 discontinued; Fort Lawton, one eliminated by consolidation and 42 discontinued, and Fort MacArthur, five eliminated by consolidation and 27 discontinued.

Mighty Midget Mine

Seoul—The Army now has a tiny land mine so small it can be carried in the palm of the hand, yet it is capable of blowing the foot off anyone stepping on it.

The new mine is non-metallic, neutral in color and cannot be located by mine detectors. It costs only $2.50.

Soldier Adopts Three

With the 1st Cav. Div., Japan—Three Japanese children who have known no other home except an orphanage during a major part of their young lives have been adopted by Lt. and Mrs. Roy E. Moon of California.

Married eight years, the Moons had long desired children. When they saw one of the children from the Guardian Angel Orphanage in Sapporo, they made inquiries into the procedures of adopting Japanese children.

They had not considered taking three, but at the orphanage they were unable to decide between 4-year-old David, 16-month-old Jacqueline and John, who was born at the orphanage six months ago.

The children will be allowed to remain with their new parents for a three months' probation period before the final adoption papers are prepared.

Lt. Moon is assigned as Range and Claims officer for Headquarters Battery, Division Artillery, in the Chitose area. His wife works in the Special Services office.

VA to Suspend Gratuity Payment For 10 Months

Washington—GI loan gratuity payments have been suspended for the 10-month period from Sept. 1, 1953 to June 30, 1954 as required by Public Law 149.

In compliance with this law the Veterans Administration has announced that those veterans who obtain GI loans after Aug. 31, 1953, will not receive the gratuity payments. Previously, veterans were given a payment equal to four per cent of the guaranteed portion of the loan up to maximum of $160. These payments were credited to the loan accounts of the veterans by the lenders.

Gratuity payments may still be allowed where the loans have been initiated prior to the cutoff date of Aug. 31, 1953, only if they fall in the following categories:

1)—A loan on which the VA has issued an evidence of guaranty or insurance or has issued a certificate of commitment dated prior to Sept. 1, 1953.

2)—A loan which has been closed and actually paid out in full prior to Sept. 1, 1953, by a supervised lender.

3)—A VA direct loan which has been closed or when the VA has issued a notice of approval or a commitment prior to the cutoff date.

Gratuity payments may be resumed July 1, 1954, unless Congress takes action to further suspend or cancel the payments.—(AFPS)

The Army recently signed a contract for more than 12,000,000 pounds of iodized salt. This mountain of salt will be consumed in less than six months by Army and Air Force men throughout the world and by indigenous personnel in Korea.

Gen. Partridge Views Construction Program At Yuma Test Station

A tour of the construction program in progress at Yuma Test Station was made recently by Major General Frank H. Partridge, Sixth Army Deputy Commander, and his party.

The Research and Development area, the reservation around the Imperial dam and the Post proper were covered.

Colonel Walter W. Abbey commanding officer of Yuma Test station, escorted the group which included General Partridge, Colonel W. J. Epes, Sixth Army Comptroller; Colonel Dan Gilmer, Assistant chief of staff, G-3 Section; Colonel H. E. Fillingler, Sixth Army Engineer and Lt. H. L. Sauermann, the General's aide, all from the Presidio of San Francisco.

Colonel Francis S. Crane, Post surgeon; Colonel Frank Dupree Jr. executive officer; Colonel J. Stratton, commanding officer of the Ordinance Climatic Test detachment, and Major John N. Tucker Sr., Post engineer; all of Yuma Test Station.

Answer Box

Only cars #1, #2, and #6 survived the mad melee on Page 1, the others became statistics in the Tuesday morning headlines. If you are planning a trip over the long holiday weekend you can avoid becoming a statistic by memorizing and observing the following simple rules for safe driving: (1) Keep your hands on the wheel and your eyes on the road; (2) Observe speed limits; you'll be better late than dead. (3) Don't tail-gate the car ahead; stay far enough behind it to have room for an emergency stop. (4) Drive on your own side of the road; you can't win in a head-on collision. (5) Give the other driver a break even when you have the legal right of way. (6) Take it easy on the curves. (7) Don't toothpick your eyelids when you get sleepy; a roadside rest may save your life. (8) Never pass another car without a clear view ahead. (9) Make that 'one for the road' a cup of coffee or a pot of tea. (10) Always remember that good manners make a safe driver.

BRAINY MONSTER is the new addressograph machine pictured above. And the Sixth Army Adjutant General's section will be the first government agency to have an opportunity to see the machine in operation as it is tested for possible incorporation into the office procedure. The machine will report for duty beginning 1 October for a three-months trial period. It will be fed typewritten cards on which is given pertinent information which can be picked up electronically and recorded on various types of documents. Use of the machine is expected to result in savings of several million dollars.

It Almost Talks!

6A AG Section to Test 'Brain' Machine for Military Use

Whether it saves time, money, manpower, or all three, a "thinker" can truly be said to be a find.

The Sixth Army Adjutant General's section will soon have an opportunity to experiment with a "mechanical thinker" when the Addressograph Electronic and Transfer Printer comes to visit, for the first time, a government agency.

Beginning on 1 October, the complicated, aggressive machine that all but speaks, will be on its best behavior for a three-months period, with the possibility of a permanent home in the AG Section.

Earlier this year, officials in AG, recognizing the potential impact of the increasing workload on Military Districts as a result of the constant build-up in Reserve strength, initiated a study on the practicability of utilizing business machine procedures.

When the system, which utilizes mechanical equipment for administering the Reserve program, was developed, officials at Headquarters Sixth Army believed it to be of such importance, that it was presented to Department of the Army for approval.

Major C. E. Hutcheson, chief, machine records division, AG Section, Headquarters Sixth Army, made the presentation and the result was that DA directed that a full scale "pilot test" be conducted in the Sixth Army area.

Major Hutcheson was appointed chairman of the test with Major L. F. Schutt and Mr. O. J. Smith, AG Section, as assistants. Operations of the machines during their trial period will be recorded for re-use and adoption throughout the country.

Not only is it hoped that a more effective Reserve program will result, but that a saving of several million dollars in tax money will follow.

Utilizing 3 by 7 cards as media for repetitive writing, name and address information is simply typewritten on the card. Each card may consist of 180 typed characters for use in repetitive facsimile writing, plus 80 columns of statistical punched hole information for use in selections and statistical accumulation.

The cards will be mechanically selected by using punched holes, according to predetermined classifications such as date of birth, branch of service, mobilization availability category and others. These cards will then be fed into the Addressograph printer where the typewritten information will be picked up electronically and recorded on various types of documents.

According to Major Hutcheson, use of the machine is expected to expedite accomplishment of primary personnel administrative operations of the Military Districts as well as reduce the cost of administering the Reservist while not on active duty.

"It will also make available to the district commander a means of keeping the Reservist informed of current activities, and thereby stimulate more unit participation in the Reserve program.

"And, if necessary, a mobilization recall program can be administered more speedily and effectively."

QM Reservists Train

Camp Roberts, Calif.—Summer training instruction for sixty-six California reservists presently attending the Quartermaster Reserve school here will be climaxed with the observance of the attack course demonstration. This exercise demonstrates the highlevel teamwork and efficiency of a division, utilizing the combined striking power of artillery, infantry, tanks and close ground support aviation provided by Air Force P-51s using napalm bombs.

Refurbish Quota System to Solicit Service Donations

Washington—Reestablishment of the quota system for raising funds on military posts for charitable organizations has been authorized by a recent directive of the Department of Defense. The quota system was in operation from 1948 until 1951, when it was abolished.

Local goals or quotas will be determined by local commanders to represent "a fair proportion of the total fund required in relation to the goals established for the local civilian groups in the area."

These quotas are to be set only as low as installation levels. They will not be established for sub installations or units on various posts.

Solicitations are to be continued on an impersonal basis and "no action which might be coercive or contrary to the principles of voluntary contribution" will be permitted.

An average of 1,200 soldiers per month have been returned to the United States from overseas on emergency leave since June 25, 1950.

Civilian News Notes

Editor's Note: Following is the second of two series of questions and answers prepared by L. F. Scanlon, assistant chief, civilian personnel, in an effort to explain the basic concepts and workings of the Salary and Wage Administration program in the Army.

9. What is the purpose of the job description?

Job description is a written statement of facts about a particular job. It is a legal document which supports the payment of employees. It is used as a basic document in the development of various personnel programs, performance evaluation, channels of promotion, levels of competition for reduction in force purposes, and provides an employment record on the employee.

10. Does the job description limit the performance of duties by the employee?

No. A job sheet is not a contract with the employee. Management has a right to change an assignment. The job sheet reflects these changes, never causes them. If changes are major, then the job should be re-studied.

11. Do certain words or phrases in job descriptions influence the grade?

No. The wording of the job description should be a factual statement of work actually performed or about to be performed in a particular work situation, being written in sufficient detail to reflect the level of difficulty of the duties and responsibilities and the relationship with other jobs in the same area and those with which the job comes in contact. Job sheets should consist mainly of simple declarative sentences in language understandable for all.

12. "Why isn't my grade as high as hers when I have more work to do?"

The grade is based on the level of difficulty of assigned duties and responsibilities. The volume of workload is not considered a factor in evaluating jobs, particularly when all the work performed is at the same level. That becomes a management problem of manpower utilization.

13. What influence have seniority, efficiency, and dependability on the grade of job?

Because of those qualities an employee may attract and be capable of performing more difficult duties and responsibilities, but factors such as time spent on the job and the manner of performance are not considered evaluation factors.

14. How is the salary and wage program maintained?

It is maintained through job analysis survey of each organization annually, through intermittent reviews to insure correct assignment of titles and grades in various units and through individual action requests reflecting major changes in jobs or establishing new jobs.

15. What part do supervisors play in the salary and wage program?

Supervisors are the key persons in the program. They are responsible for planning work assignments, establishing organizations on a sound basis, providing job information to analysts, certifying to completeness and accuracy of job descriptions, initiating requests for review of positions upon major changes, and informing subordinates of fundamentals of the program.

16. What part do employees play in the program?

Employees are responsible for providing fully detailed and accurate information to analysts concerning their assigned duties and responsibilities. Employees are assured greater equity in pay by furnishing such information.

17. Who regulates the salary and wage program?

Representatives of the Civil Service Commission, Office, Secretary of the Army, and Command headquarters make periodic surveys in which they check the accuracy of job evaluations made by the civilian personnel office and the propriety of the administration of the program. They are empowered to direct corrective action when jobs are found to be not in conformance with grade level standards.

18. How is the employee protected against errors in job classification?

An employee who does not agree that his position has been properly evaluated, based on actual work performed, may submit a "complaint" through his supervisor to the Commanding officer requesting reconsideration of his current title and/or grade. The employee will be given full opportunity to state his case. If the employee is not satisfied with the decision he may appeal to higher headquarters. Such appeals may go successively through command channels to Office, Secretary of the Army.

Command Changes

Lt. Gen. John E. Dahlquist has been named Chief of Army Field Forces. He previously had held the assignment as Acting Chief. Maj. Gen. Floyd I. Parks, former Chief of Information, has been named CG of the Second Army, Ft. Meade, Md. The new Chief of Information will be Maj. Gen. Gilman G. Mudgett, now Deputy C/S of the Far East Command. The Fourth Army will also get a new CG. He is Lt. Gen. I. D. White, former CG of the X Corps in Korea. Previously, Gen. White had been scheduled to command the Second Army.

15th Regiment Plans Pictorial History of Combat Operations

Korea—Combat operations of the 15th "Can Do" Infantry Regiment during 1953 will be chronicled in a complete history with pictures now being prepared by regimental personnel. Dedicated to officers and men of the regiment killed in action, the history will contain pictures of all unit personnel.

During the regiment's six months of continuous front line duty from the end of January to the Armistice, the most notable accomplishments included defense of Outpost Harry and the sweeping operation plugging the gap left in UN lines by the overwhelmed Capitol ROK Division in the last weeks of the war.

Vacation Ends 14 Sept.!

Post 'School Kids' to Register For Fall Terms Next Week

Children of the Presidio and Fort Scott will have a final week of vacation before the fall terms of the San Francisco public schools begin on 14 September, but their parents will have to register them at their schools next week.

Registration at all schools will be held next Tuesday, Thursday and Friday (8, 10 and 11 September) between 0900 to 1200 hours and 1300 to 1500 hours.

Children of residents of Presidio, Letterman and Fort Scott housing areas going to elementary school, kindergarten through the sixth grade, may attend either the Winfield Scott school, Divisadero street between Beach and North Point streets, or Grant school on Pacific avenue between Broderick and Baker streets. At the Grant school, students will be accepted through the eighth grade also.

Those in the seventh through the ninth grades will attend the Marina Junior high school at Fillmore and Bay streets. High school students in the tenth through the twelfth grades will be enrolled at Galileo high school, Francisco street and Van Ness avenue.

Transportation for children of personnel at the Presidio and Fort Scott has not been definitely determined due to recent changes in Army regulations which prohibit the Army from furnishing transportation to schools, except on isolated posts, unless reimbursement is made by the city school system.

Under this provision, the San Francisco Unified School District will determine which students will be given transportation and which will not. Although Army vehicles will be used for those determined eligible by the school district, reimbursement for the cost will be made by the city.

Transportation will definitely not be furnished children of personnel living at Fort Miley or Fort Funston.

Registration of students from Fort Miley will be at the following schools: Lafayette Elementary school, 36th avenue and Anza street; Presidio Junior high school, 30th avenue between Geary and Clement streets, and George Washington high school, 32nd avenue and Anza street.

Schools to be attended by children of Fort Funston are: Ulloa Elementary school, 42nd avenue and Vicente street; Aptos Junior high school, Upland drive and Aptos avenue, and Lincoln high school, 24th avenue and Rivera street. (Bus schedules will appear in next week's Star-Presidian.)

The first home of the Army Engineering School was established at Fort Totten, N.Y., in 1868. At that time the fort was the only military engineer depot in the country.

MPs in TV Show

First showing of "Report from the Provost Marshal General," a sequence of the Army's "Big Picture" television series, will be televised tonight (4 September) from 2130 to 2200 over station KGO-TV. This program will bring viewers the story of military police operations from around the world as the MPs fulfill their official slogan of "Service to the Command." The showing will also mark the beginning of the fifth 13-week series on the "Big Picture," which reports in motion pictures to the nation on the Army's role in combat, training, research and development.

Recently Assigned

Lt. Colonel J. Merwin Lustig has recently been assigned to the office of the Comptroller, Headquarters Sixth Army.

In Ankara, Turkey, for the past two and one-half years, Colonel Lustig was with the Joint Military Mission for Aid to Turkey.

During World War II, the colonel served two years in Iceland followed by two years in England. As post fiscal officer and agent finance officer, he closed out Jefferson Barracks, Missouri, following his return to this country.

Reporting next to the Pentagon, Colonel Lustig served there four and one-half years in the National Guard bureau, budget and fiscal office. He has been in the Army for the past 13 years.

Lt. Col. Charles E. Bear returned recently from a 19-months tour of duty with the Artillery section, 8th Army, Seoul, Korea.

He has now taken over duties as chief, military personnel division, G-1 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

In the Army for the past 28 years, Colonel Bear served in the Okinawa campaign during World War II, and, following the Armistice, spent a year in Korea on occupation duty.

This is also his second tour of duty at the Presidio, having been with the G-1 Section prior to his duty in Korea. For his service with the 8th Army, Colonel Bear has been awarded the Legion of Merit.

Lt. Colonel John E. Taylor has taken up duties as claims judge advocate, Headquarters Sixth Army.

His new assignment follows three years of service in the Far East during which he served 18 months in Korea with KMAC as senior advisor to the judge advocate general of the South Korean Army. This was followed by 18 months as staff judge advocate of the famed First Cavalry Division, in Hokkaido, Japan.

Colonel Taylor has been awarded the Korean Distinguished Service Cross as well as the Bronze Star Medal. He has a total of 13 years of active duty and in World War II, served three years in the Southwest Pacific.

Captain Gordon S. Stene has just returned from a three-year tour of duty in Berlin, Germany, where he served as first club officer and later as administrative and executive officer, Special Services branch, Berlin Military Post.

He is now assigned as assistant club officer of the Presidio Officers club.

In World War II, Captain Stene was an Infantry platoon leader with the 5th Division, 2nd Regiment, in the European theatre. He has been awarded the Purple Heart, the Combat Infantry Badge and appropriate theatre ribbons.

Captain Stene has a total of nine years of active duty service.

FOR THE KNOW HOW in personnel management and administrative techniques, these men are attending the Sixth Army Personnel Management and Administrative Specialists' school at the Presidio of San Francisco. The six-weeks course is designed to teach Sixth Army area personnel all phases of operations in preparing and maintaining morning reports, duty rosters, enlisted and officer records, special and general orders and military correspondence. Above, instructors (standing) are shown working with a class. They are M/Sgt. Edwin Bartcher, NCO in charge of the administrative laboratory, left, and Cpl. William Christie, assistant instructor, right. (Army photo by Weiss.)

Specialist in 6 Weeks!

6th Army Management School Has Unique Training Procedure

Are you a career soldier?

Are you planning for your advancement?

If you can answer "yes" to these two questions, then you realize the importance of professional training in your specific career field.

To enable interested units and individuals in the Sixth Army area to improve their administrative proficiency, the headquarters has established a Personnel Management and Administrative Specialists' school for personnel who desire specialized training in personnel administration and management.

To date, 10 classes have completed the six-weeks course which means that there are more than 245 successful graduates of the school working in personnel assignments throughout the Sixth Army area.

The school, located at the Presidio of San Francisco, contains a novel and highly successful phase of laboratory-controlled actual on-the-job training known as the administrative laboratory. While the first four weeks of the course is devoted to lecture, conference and practical work exercises, the last two weeks are spent in this laboratory.

In the "lab" the students are given realistic situations which parallel actual problems with which they will be faced in the field. They maintain morning reports, duty rosters, enlisted and officer records. They originate company, special and general orders. And they learn to compose and set up military correspondence.

Graduates are returned to their parent units trained to perform duties either as Administrative Specialists, MOS 1816, or Personnel Management Specialist, MOS 1290, depending upon their aptitude and progress in school.

Sixth Army memorandum Number II, dated 2 January, 1953, lists the prerequisites for the course and gives all the details for applying.

Or a phone call to the school secretary, Ext. 4446, will also give you complete details.

Scientific Approach

All a good umpire needs these days is a lie detector at home plate. To settle the charge he spat into an umpire's face, Manager Jack Tighe of the Buffalo International League club demanded and took a lie detector test which indicated his innocence.

Honor Grad Sets New .45 Pistol Score at MPTC

The ninth class to graduate from the Military Police Training center, Fort Baker, received diplomas on 29 August.

Graduating "C" Company, composed of 190 men, heard Colonel William F. Magill, Deputy Post Commander, Presidio of San Francisco, speak on present world conditions as they affect each individual in uniform.

Honor graduate was Pvt. Gerald A. Janke, who not only registered a scholastic average of 86.25, but scored a 328 out of a possible 350 in .45 calibre pistol firing, to set a new record at the MPTC.

Pvt. Janke spent two of his high school years in the ROTC program and has spent the past two years as a Mormon missionary in Hawaii. During his training at the MPTC, he served as a trainee squad leader and was chosen best MP of the week in two out of the seven weeks of the course.

Top 10 graduates included Pvts. Janke, Frank C. Kasper, Glen B. Goodrich, George W. Montague, Richard A. Burgess, William A. Schanbacher, Richard W. Hill, Dorian A. Niemi, Andre L. Pickly Jr., and James J. Ahern.

Army T.I.C. Topic

"You and I, U.S.A." Armed Forces Talk, Number 446, will be discussed during the Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units next week.

This article was written by Andre Fontaine, a free-lance writer who in the past five years has contributed articles to most of the Nation's largest magazines. While getting material for some of these, he made trips as a reporter to Army, Navy and Air Forces bases all over the country as well as to offices in the Pentagon.

Mr. Fontaine writes about things he saw and learned during these trips and tells about the answers he has found to the question which every male citizen of service age must eventually answer for himself: "Why should I serve?"

He stresses that all Americans must understand the Nation's aims, the need to support these aims, and the need to use American manpower fairly and efficiently in national defense.

It's a WAC!

"Soldier of the Month" for August at the San Francisco Port of Embarkation is PFC Wilda Kuncie, first WAC to win the Portwide monthly competition. Assigned as a telephone operator at the Fort Mason exchange, PFC Kuncie was presented a certificate by Colonel S. W. Thompson, Deputy Post Commander, as well as a cash award and a three-day pass.

Here n' There

The Army plans to maintain 20 divisions, 18 regimental combat teams, 117 anti-aircraft battalions, and other supporting elements during fiscal 1954.

The Army maintains 69 depots in the United States and 68 depots in overseas areas to receive, store and issue military supplies and equipment.

The Army's re-enlistment rate which, at the beginning of the war in Korea was approximately 58 per cent, declined to a low of 18 per cent in December, 1952. It now is slightly more than 20 per cent.

Regular Army soldiers account for approximately 42 per cent of the more than 1,500,000 men now on duty with the Army.

The Banjo Bounce!

The "Banjo Bounce," second in the series of six weekly dances honoring Army posts throughout the country, will be held Tuesday (8 September) at the Fort Baker Service club. Camp Gordon, Georgia, will be the honorary post, and the intermission specialty will be a watermelon eating contest. Decorative panels done by Pvt. Paul Garnier and Pvt. Wesley Smith Jr., A Company, Military Police Training center, will adorn the service club. Entertainment will be furnished by Frank Robinson with his banjo and southern folk song presentation, while the Gary Johnson Combo will furnish music for dancing.

Cinema Previews

"SKY COMMANDO," F*, is full of the hair-raising experiences in which a combat camera crew indulges while following bombers to record the results of their raids.

"THE ACTRESS," F*, stars Spencer Tracy as a determined home-minded father and Jean Simmons as his stage-struck daughter who wants to be an actress. It's a battle throughout to see who will finally win.

"WAR PAINT," F*, pictures the struggle of a cavalry troop as it hastens to reach an Indian tribe with a peace treaty within nine days, thereby preventing an uprising. The treachery of both man and nature combine to deter their progress.

"MEXICAN MANHUNT," F*, depicts the frenzied efforts of a hunted murderer to escape across the border.

"99 RIVER STREET," M, stars John Payne, who, washed up as a fighter, turns to cab driving and ends up with the biggest scrap of his life when a murderer tries to make him the fall guy.

"ALL AMERICAN," F*, is concerned with the aspirations of a would-be college football star who starts out as a non-conformist and finds himself with a terrific struggle on his hands.

Named for Job

Fort Hood, Texas—Army personnel officers here knew just the job for Private Clayton P. Catch-The-Bear of Wakpala, S. D., when he joined the First Armored Division.

Catch-The-Bear, a full blooded Sioux Indian, is a direct descendant of those Sioux whose tactics defeated General George A. Custer at the Battle of The Little Big Horn.

Catch-The-Bear was made a member of a tactics committee.

The Army plans to operate 13 replacement training centers and maintain seven training divisions during fiscal '54. The divisions and training centers will be used to train approximately 438,000 inductees and enlistees the Army expects to receive during the year. The Army also plans to conduct 500 courses at 58 service schools to train its specialists and technicians.

Poisonous Publicity

Fort Hood, Texas—Poison ivy and poison oak are the subject of an intensive advertising campaign at this Army post.

Lieutenant Colonel Richard H. Ross, of 926 Shelby St., Seattle, Wash., First Armored Division Surgeon, became alarmed at the number of skin rash cases he was having to treat. He found many soldiers did not know what the poison plants look like.

One poster—showing the plants and close-up pictures of their leaves—will be put up in each company area.

A Prize Package!

Jean Peters isn't the prize in the Freedoms Foundations "What America Means to Me" letter contest but $1000 cash will be awarded to the serviceman or woman who submits the top entry. The lovely star is shown as she scans some of the letters already submitted. Letters are to be of 500 words or less and should be mailed to Awards Editor, Armed Forces Radio Service, Los Angeles 38, Calif. Letters must be received by midnight Oct. 15, 1953. Otherwise, they will be considered for next year's awards. To be eligible, you must be on active duty in the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard.

THIS IS THE FIRST PICTURE of the new pilotless jet plane, the XM-21 "Firebee." A joint project of the Army, Navy and Air Force under the AF Air Research and Development Command, the Firebee flies at nearly super-sonic speeds and will be used primarily as a target for defense weapons. It can simulate the maneuvers of jet planes and is adaptable for ground-to-air or air-to-air firing. It is operated remotely from the ground and is powered by a Fairchild J-44 jet engine which takes over after the Firebee is launched.

ing season. They have the experience which will pay off in touchdown dividends as the season progresses. Carey is an alumnus from the champion '49, '50 and '51 Michigan eleven, while Daigle has 13 years of Army football to his credit. (Photo by Hilmer.)

Red Raiders Prepare for Tough Mix In Opener with Chico State on 19th

The Presidio Red Raiders' fall football agenda commences officially on 19 September. On that day they go against the tough Chico State eleven.

Up north in Chico Ernie Busch, head coach of the college gridders there has the community bustling with pre-season football chatter and has created enough interest in the local team to make advanced ticket sales soar to a new high.

Chico's head mentor will be starting his second season, and besides the scheduled tilt with the rejuvenated Raiders, has on his program the longest season since pre-war days.

His opponents include the California Aggies, Humboldt State, Treasure Island and—as far as we're concerned, the toughest—our own treasured Presidio boys.

A tough season for a tough team. But the Raiders are tougher.

We'll take this time and space to count some of our own blessings, the first of which appears in the person of Sgt. Dick Jackstadt, currently working with the 21st Engineers at Fort Scott.

This will be Jackstadt's third year with the Raiders and maybe, from his point of view (and I hope ours), it will be his best. He gets out of the Army in January!

Up to that separation date, Dick's main purpose in life will be undertaken from his quarterback spot with the locals. We hope he'll bulldog enough yardage up to his release to insure a winner's season for the Raiders.

His football experience dates way back to '44, when he was quarterback with the Klamath Falls, Oregon, High School eleven for four years.

In '48 he made the All-Southern Oregon Conference at quarterback, and from '49 to '50 clobbered a multitude of lines on behalf of the Wenatchee Jr. College team.

Football is his main interest, but in the spring of '44 through '48 Dick also sparkled on the Klamath Falls track team, his forte being the 440.

On leaving the service he intends to enter Washington State and major in physical education.

Cpl. Dallas Lamb is another old timer from the Presidio ranks, having shone in his customary halfback spot with last year's locals. Dallas hails from Wauseon, Ohio, where he played four years with the high school team there before going into the service. In 1949 he was picked for the All-Northwest Ohio eleven.

After a stint in Korea, Lamb was assigned to the Presidio and is presently working for the 459th Ack Ack at Fort Baker.

The pre-game practice sessions with the Raiders went into some tackling practice this week, bringing the team their first taste of body contact to date.

On Saturday, at 1330, the Presidians will be divided into two squads for scrimmage. (B. L.)

Raiders' Scrimmage

The Presidio Red Raiders will hold their first practice scrimmage tomorrow, Saturday, on the Fort Scott Athletic Field. All personnel, military and civilian, are encouraged to attend. The practice game will feature two teams made up from the ranks of the Presidio ballplayers. The starting whistle will blow at 1330.

Championship Near!

21st Nine Sinks Boaters 7-6; HQ Still Tops With 13-12 Win

By SGT. FRANK SLOAN

Going an extra inning in the Fort Scott Softball League last week, the 21st Engineers steamed the 45th Boat Company into submission by one run to cop the lead, 7-6.

After seven slug-for-slug innings, the teams found themselves on even ground forcing an eighth inning play-off.

Beaman, the company clerk for 21st Engineers, showed a terrific rallying spirit by connecting a bounding single to drive in Saddler who was at third, for the winning run.

Saddler, who has been making a good showing throughout the season, blasted a round-tripper deep into right field in the fourth inning for the only homer of the game.

With hurler Cobb at work the 21st are a hard combination to lick, but Cobb is going on a two-week leave this week-end. So Ditto, the team's ever-ready shortstop, will probably do mound duty while Cobb is absent.

So far the Engineers have six wins and no losses,—wonder what will happen now? Only two more weeks to go in the season before the final play-offs!

Last week the Surveyors were swamped 13-12 by Headquarters Company in a game played at Fort Scott, Headquarters practically walked to victory, taking 12 Annie Oakleys in all when the Surveyors' team lost control of the mound. The winning pitcher gave up 13 hits, but no strolls anywhere.

Moore of the Surveyors started the game off in the very first inning with a round-tripper, while Bluestein of Headquarters got a rip-roaring grand slam in the fifth.

Still leading throughout the League in homers Puig of the 45th holds tight with five, while Headquarters' Wilson has four for second place crown.

Team standings to date:

Team	Won	Lost
Headquarters	7	3
21st Engineers	6	4
45th Boat Company	5	5
Surveyors	3	6
99th Engineers	3	7

505th Dims G.E.

The 505th MP softball team, Presidio representatives to the forthcoming All-Sixth tourney, ran undefeated in their second week of practice games with a 4-2 defeat over the General Electric nine, Class "B" champions of San Francisco. The evening game, played under lights at Rolfe Field, saw hurler "Tiny" Kochel, sporting uniform number 338, effectively manacle the opposition bats to three hits, and demonstrated a remarkably tight defense for the MP's. A three-run second inning cinched the victory. Asepermy was struck by a pitch. Hoskins followed him onto the sacks. Whereupon Milt Garfield came through with a clutch double. The third run was scored on an untimely miscue in the G.E. infield. In later action Asepermy knocked teammate La Vigne in for the final marker. Teams interested in booking the MP's for games are invited to call Mgr. Captain Raymond Le Van, 505th MPTC, at extension 58-558.

Army Pistoleers Grab Top Placings In Eastern Matches

Results of the recently fired Pistol team matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, show the United States Army marksmen out in front of the other services and civil police.

In the .45 calibre pistol matches, the championship was won by the Navy "Blue" team, with an aggregate of 1120 points, seconded closely by the Army's No. 1 line of marksmen, who registered 1118.

The Marine "Red" team turned in 1115, the U. S. Border Patrol 1115, the U. S. Coast Guard No. 2 team 1109. A second Army contingent placed seventh in the same feature with 1106.

In the .22 calibre Pistol matches the Army's No. 1 team fired in champion form to cop the trophy with 1163 points. The Marine "Red" team followed with 1155, with the L. A. Police at 1155, the Detroit Police No. 1 team, 1146.

The U. S. Marines (Red) copped their only title for the day with 1147 points in the center fire pistol shoot. The Army followed two points in arrears with 1145, while the California Highway Patrol grabbed 1131 for third place.

Bud Wilkinson, one-time Minnesota guard and quarterback, played in the College All-Star classic and then returned in 1949 to coach the collegians.

Sgt. Leads Keglers

Fort Scott bowling rolled to a standstill this week, with teams unable to find competition during a busy week. Statistics show that Sgt. Frank R. Walden, maple-mangler with the 21st Alibis, is the top kegler with a 162 average. His nearest rival is only a strike behind him.

Ken Klopp at .449 Is Red Raiders' Highest Batsman

Hard-hitting Presidio outfielder Ken Klopp thrashed a grand total of 30 connections out of 67 times at bat for his short stint with the Raiders this year—a .449 per cent average—and emerged from the ranks of the locals as the season's heaviest hitter.

Hard behind Klopp were Bob Hill, pitcher, with 7 for 18, .388; outfielder Gene Jacobs, 60 for 157 and .382, and Ed Williamson, third baseman 53 for 141 and .376.

Other Raider batting and pitching averages for the season ran as follows:

have to go pretty far to match Lt. Roland Daigle, Presidio's coach and Post Sports Officer, in both coaching experience and ability.

Daigle's Army football goes way back to pre-World War II days. The day the Japs bombed Pearl Harbor he was out playing with the First Cavalry Division "Lancers," at Fort Bliss, Texas, and since then he has amassed seven years of the most impressive football coaching. The Army is likely to produce out anyone for a long time.

In 1948 he was playing with the I Corps "Bullseyes" in Japan, as right halfback. He and the well-known Sam Reynolds, later to make the halfback spot on the 1952 All-Army team, became notorious in the Far East as the "Touchdown Twins"—a couple of free-wheeling line-crashers who were always counted upon to bring in at least 21 points between them in every game they played.

It was in 1948 that Daigle ran up an astronomic 75-odd points for the season, while between the two of them he and Reynolds amassed a grand total of 127.

That year they met the tough First Cavalry Division for the mythical Far-Eastern Championship for ground troops and whipped them. And it was Sergeant "Pop" Daigle, a non-com then, who presented to Major General Joseph Swing, I Corps Commander, as a keepsake, the winning football at the Clifford Stadium in Kyoto, Japan.

In 1949 Daigle's footballing was no less impressive. He played for a different team—the 24th Division "Gimlets" this time—and while none of his teammates were professional athletes, nor even nationally-known collegiates, he seemed to mark them with his customary spell of victory.

Out of ten games played, they lost only one. Daigle won a trophy as the league's leading scorer with a 70-odd points to his credit, was named as the Outstanding Back in Japan for that year, and his team battled its way to the regimental league championship.

Then the Korean war came, and Daigle was busy as an infantryman. He was commissioned as lieutenant and led a rifle platoon.

After Korea it was the Presidio. This fall marks his second season with the local gridders. As far as the Raider coach knows, it will be a far superior season too, taking into account the new girth of manpower, which is better in quantity and quality over last year, and the gritty spirit that prevails. Beside several of last year's sparks, the present line-up includes an excellent choice of backfield and line material from some of the West's finest schools—boys with six and seven years of serious football under their belts.

We were out on the field again this week and took our place with a small group of onlookers to watch the Presidio boys at work.

On Tuesday in particular there seemed to be a smell of blood in the air. We were immediately conscious of the resounding thud of colliding bodies, the slap of pad on pad. With the forthcoming Chico State game on the 19th bringing the season at last into focus, they had thrown the tackle dummies and charging machine out and had buckled down to the serious and often bloody business of body contact.

The backfield men were practicing carrying the ball. They charged a series of five tackles. If the first one threw them they rose and went head-on at the next one, head down, legs churning, until they had reached the end of the line. The tackles were big men—burly and with a glint of seriousness in their eye.

Overseeing them was "Pop" Daigle. There was a glint in his eye too. We wonder if he sensed victory in the bullet lunges and galloping legs that spelled practice on Tuesday afternoon, but which may later carry the Presidio team to championship—the same fire that carried the "Bullseyes" and "Gimlets" and "Pop" Daigle to victory in the Far East.

We hope so.

Ted Tied Twice

Ted Williams is credited with having worn a tie for the second time in his entire civilian life when he appeared at the $100 per plate Boston "welcome home" dinner in his honor where $125,000 was raised for the child cancer fund. His only other appearance in a tie was at the annual dinner of the Boston baseball writers of 1950.

The coveted Camp Commander's Trophy, awarded at Camp Roberts each year to the regiment which amasses the most points throughout the athletic season, has two claimants this year instead of one.

Combat Command A, trailing by over 80 points midway in the season, climaxed a long uphill grind with a successful second half of play to tie 7th Quartermaster for first place in the final Commander's Cup race standings recently.

Ord Warriors Nail Roberts All-Stars 5-0, Grab All-Sixth Baseball Crown

The Fort Ord Warriors, California Semi-Pro Champions, thrashed their way undefeated through All-Sixth Army baseball competition last week, rounding out their performance with a 5-0 clincher victory over the top-ranking Camp Roberts All-Stars.

Their last triumph confirmed the Warriors as All-Sixth Army champions and insured the Ordmen a place as Area representatives at the All-Army baseball tourney at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, next month.

The shut-out over the Roberts-men came behind the masterful three-hit mounding of Warrior

Bob Thollander, whose hurling was supported by an equally good, errorless fielding.

Thollander stunned the All-Star stickers by whiffing eight and allowing only one runner to advance past the first sack during the whole game.

Dick Weigand, All-Star hurler shackled with the loss, turned in a sterling performance, giving up but four hits.

One of these connections, however, was a tremendous three-run homer by Ord outfielder and ex-Detroit Tiger, Jay Porter. The hit cleared the 400-foot mark with two aboard in the fourth inning.

the second frame, when catcher Jim McKeegan flied to the center-field pasture to bring home Bill Pinkard.

The eighth canto gave the Warriors their final run. Bill Hansen reached the basepaths on a Roberts miscue, and Pinkard singled to bring his teammate home for the tally.

Following the final game both the victors and runners-up were presented individual medals and team trophies.

Other teams represented in the six-day meeting were the Presidio of San Francisco, Fort Lewis, Camp Hanford, and Yuma Test Station.

Army Marksmen Fire High Scores in International Shoot

Two Army men finished high in the results of the recently-held International Free Rifle Match at Camp Perry, Ohio.

They were 1st Lt. Mark Radke of Lincoln, Nebraska, who finished third in the Marksman class, and Captain William Brophy of New Hampshire, who placed Sixth in the Expert class.

Radke is a member of the Army team from Europe, while Brophy is a member of the U. S. Army Rifle team and is stationed at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds Maryland.

The soldiers were competing against a field of 178 entrants. The International consisted of 20 shots in each position, prone, kneeling and standing, at 300 meters.

The Army firers, as well as their competitors, were fortified for the match and for subsequent events by the five-day small arms firing school which ended just prior to the competition, after re-emphasizing the principles of effective rifle marksmanship.

Area Duo Wins All-Army Title; Ft. Lee Private Singles Champ

Two Sixth Army netmen and a single ace from the Second Army Area smashed their way to top honors in the recent All-Army Tennis Championships at West Point, New York.

First in the Army, winning the singles title in a hard-fought, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4 match over Sixth Army's Lt. Jack Shoemaker, was Brooklynite Private Sidney Schwartz, who is currently stationed at Fort Lee, Virginia.

Schwartz was ranked fourteenth nationally in the 1952 ratings by the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association.

The tough Sixth Army duo of Shoemaker and San Luis Obispo and Pvt. John Osburn of Fort Lewis earned the doubles title in their victory over the Second Army combination of Schwartz and Captain Edward Miller with a hard-won 6-3, 6-1, 1-6, 6-2.

All-Sixth Team Too!

Sixth Army Marksmen Take Major Role in National Tests

When the National Rifle Matches got underway at Camp Perry, Ohio, last Monday, the Sixth Army was ably represented in both quality and quantity.

Besides our own five-man rifle team, five other Sixth Army marksmen had been chosen to compete on the 13-man All-Army team.

Sixth Army men named to the crack All-Army team were: Major William C. Burns, Camp Roberts; Captain Hjalmer J. Erickson, Fort Ord; 2nd Lt. Robert W. Lang, Camp Roberts; M-Sgt. Jacob Svela, Fort Lawton and SFC William O. Williams of Camp Roberts.

Members of the Sixth Army Rifle Team are: Major William M. Westfall, team captain from Fort Lewis; Captain Lester E. Byrd, Camp Roberts; 2nd Lt. Donald D. Kammer, Fort Ord; WOJG Robert T. Ambler, Fort Ord and M-Sgt. Eugene F. Spradlin of Camp Roberts.

Team positions are the result of rugged unit competition which started last May and was conducted throughout Sixth Army. Fourteen top scorers in the unit contests were then ordered to Fort Benning for a crack at berths on the All-Army team.

Eight Sixth Army deadeyes survived the rugged firing at Benning, earning a chance to compete alongside the All-Army team in the Southeastern Regional Highpower

Their excellent showing in the Southeastern Matches resulted in five members being named to the All-Army team.

The remaining members turned in top scores and will make up part of the team that Sixth Army is sending to the National Matches. Since early August they have been training at Fort Benning and progress reports indicate they will prove one of the toughest teams to beat in the "big shoot."

Forty-two deer, the largest 104½ pounds, have been bagged at the Hunter Liggett Military Reservation since deer season began 8 August. This report came recently from Captain William Bear, Headquarters, Hunter Liggett, where deer hunting is being allowed on a limited scale for servicemen on active duty. To hunt at Hunter Liggett, the serviceman must have a permit from Headquarters, Hunter Liggett, as well as the state-required deer tags and a California State license. Limit is two bucks, forked horns or better.

Lt. Colonel Monroe Becomes Chief of Information Section

Lt. Colonel Stephen C. Monroe has been named chief of the Information section, Headquarters Sixth Army, succeeding Colonel James Notestein who retired from active duty on 31 July.

Active in public relations in San Francisco prior to entering the Army in 1942, Col. Monroe served in the China-Burma-India theatre of operations during World War II.

In 1946, he returned to San Francisco and was assigned to Headquarters Sixth Army as assistant public information officer. Upon the establishment of the Armed Forces Public Information office in downtown San Francisco in November 1948, Col. Monroe was named to represent the Army in that unification project.

His next assignment took him to Alaska in the summer of 1950, where he was chief of information for the U. S. Army in that territory.

Since his return to San Francisco, Col. Monroe had been serving as executive officer of the Information section.

POW 'Swallows' Red Germ-Warfare Lies

Inchon, Korea — Communist propaganda on germ warfare directed at American POWs was spiked by a group of sharp captives in a prison camp near the Yalu River about a year ago.

Upon his return here, Sfc. Edward Hewlett, who was captured while fighting as a member of the 2nd Inf. Div., told about the propaganda classes which captives were forced to attend. During one of them the Chinese Communists were trying to convince the prisoners that the Air Force was dropping germs over North Korea.

Pictures were shown of Red workers picking up allegedly infected insects in fields. When the captives openly scoffed at the idea, the instructor one day brought to the lecture hall what he termed "evidence." It was a small bug in a glass container.

"This is an insect bearing deadly germs to kill the people of North Korea and the Chinese Volunteer Army who came to protect them in their time of need," the instructor explained. "Here, you may see for yourself," he added, offering the glass container.

Some looked at it wondering if the Communists might have dusted it with a poisonous powder. However, one American calmly reached into the container, picked up the insect, and dropped it into his mouth.

This set the Communists into a panic. The captives were told that the bug-swallower would die and that they would become infected from him. The man was taken to a hospital and reports were issued saying he was near death. When he was released—looking amazingly healthy—he was warned that he would be killed if he disclosed that he had not been the least bit sick.

Needless to say, that was the end of germ warfare propaganda at that POW camp. (AFPS)

Service Authors Are Encouraged To Submit Articles To Digest

Washington—Men and women of the United States armed forces are invited to submit stories about service life by Reader's Digest. The magazine will pay $100 for each contribution accepted for publication.

Stories are to be limited to true anecdotes of personal experiences or about people or places where troops are stationed. A maximum length of 300 words has been established, but the magazine prefers shorter ones.

Contributions should be typewritten and submitted to the Armed Forces Editor, Reader's Digest, Pleasantville, N. Y. Manuscripts will not be returned or acknowledged.

All-Purpose ID Card For Army Facilities Set for Nov. Issue

Washington—The Army has vealed that henceforth all messary, exchange, movie, lat medical service, and similar lege cards will be consolidated a single Privilege Identification Card.

Requirements for possession the new catch-all card are lined in SR 600-210-65. After tial issue, which is expected sometime around the first of vember, the card will be re-issued annually on July 1st.

The new card will be issued authorized patrons of Army facilities.

Personnel on active military duty will not receive the card, unless they are authorized commissary privileges. They need only to present the regular identification card, DD Form 2A, to make use of the other privileges which are available, the Army says.

The new card does not replace the civilian photographic identification badge, the Army emphasizes, and it is not to be used as a membership permit for messes and their related activities.

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA Friday, 11 September, 1953

AN INTER-SERVICE WELCOME HOME for a freed POW was given M/Sgt. Ralph E. Krueger, Black River Falls, Wisc., by his father Carl Krueger, of San Francisco, chief boatswain, retired. This was one of the many reunions that took place last Friday when the Navy hospital ship Haven docked at Fort Mason returning 103 sick and wounded prisoners of war from Korea. (Army photo by Weiss.)

Nearly 1000 former prisoners of war reached San Francisco by ship during the past week, as the last 303 able-bodied repatriates sailed from Seoul's port of Incheon Tuesday.

The fifth and largest group of former American war prisoners, 442 of them, arrived at Fort Mason aboard the Navy transport General John Pope Wednesday. On Sunday, the Navy transport Marine Adder docked at Fort Mason with 367 repatriates aboard.

When the Navy hospital ship Haven arrived last Friday with 103 sick and wounded aboard, the cheering and waving that has greeted the other POWs as they came down the gangplank was silenced as the first ten men were brought down slowly on litters. These men had tuberculosis, from months of semi-starvation and exposure in Communist prison camps.

Four more transports are now on their way from Incheon to San Francisco and will arrive at Fort General R. L. Howze, which is expected in San Francisco a week from Saturday or Sunday.

The United Nations Command announced Tuesday that only eight of the 3,597 Americans returned in Operation Big Switch now remain in Korea. The eight are getting medical treatment.

In addition to those returning to San Francisco by ship, seriously sick and wounded repatriates have been flown to Travis Air Force Base.

All the former POWs arriving by ship are being processed at Fort Mason by Camp Stoneman personnel under a special system in order to speed them on their way home. They are brought to the Presidio Service club to eat and wait for transportation.

Army Extends Time for Reserves to Get Size

Washington—Army Reserve units have been given more time to attain minimum strength goals by the Army Department. The time extension permits units activated before July 1, 1953 to reach maintenance status by Mar. 31, 1954. However, units activated after July 1, must reach full maintenance status within the nine-month period required by existing Army regulations.

Major Vet Groups Urge POW Bonus For Korean Veterans

Major veteran groups have announced their intentions to go all out in an effort to persuade Congress to authorize special bonus payments to returning prisoners of war similar to the ones paid to POW's of World War II.

Amvets, American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars have indicated they will seek equal bonuses for the more than 3,000 American servicemen who were held prisoner by the Chinese and North Korean Reds.

World War II prisoners of war were awarded $2.50 per day for each day spent in confinement. Congress authorized a $1.00 a day for substandard diet and $1.50 per day for time spent under forced labor or inhumane treatment.

Mason within the next ten days. The first of these to arrive will be the Marine Phoenix, scheduled to dock Sunday morning.

Press Conference!

Chief Hits Benefit Reductions; Scores 'Bad Morale' Factors

In his first official press conference since taking the reins as Army Chief of Staff, General Matthew B. Ridgway said in soldier-plain talk that persistent attempts to eliminate service-men's benefits are hurting morale and making it extremely difficult to maintain an adequate officer corps.

He also scored baseless and derogatory criticism of officers as factors that play havoc with proper relationship between officers and enlisted ranks. He singled out the term "brass" as one of the word wedges splitting service harmony and said that he fears a weakened officers corps caused by increasing unwillingness of young officers to make the Army a career.

General Ridgway has ordered a study to find out why a large number of last year's West Point plebes resigned.

He said that the means were at hand to reverse the current trends and saw as immediate necessities: 1) A military pay increase; 2) Repeal of the appropriations bill rider barring commissaries entirely in urban areas. General Ridgway said that a study made three years ago when he was deputy chief of staff showed that Army personnel would have spent $1.25 outside for every commissary dollar spent; 3) Provide more extensive medical care for dependents.

General Ridgway also said that the Army's policy where news is concerned will be to make the full facts available within the limits of security.

Defense Group Will Check NATO During 30-Day Inspection

Deputy Secretary of Defense Roger M. Kyes is currently on a 30-day inspection tour of various U. S. military installations in Europe. Secretary Kyes will also utilize this opportunity to familiarize himself first-hand with NATO and Military Defense Assistance Program matters. Greenland, Iceland, England, Germany, Austria, Trieste, Italy, Greece, Turkey, France, and Spain are on his itinerary.

He will be accompanied by Assistant Secretary of Defense Frank C. Nash, Under Secretary of the Air Force James H. Douglas, and Gen. Graves B. Erskine.

Promotion Quota Of September Is Highest in Months

Promotions during September for the top four enlisted grades throughout the Army will total 73,450, an increase of slightly more than 20,000 over last month. The breakdown is E-7, 700; E-6, 2,850; E-5, 18,100, and E-4, 51,800.

This increase in the national figure is expected to be reflected in the quotas for the Sixth Army area. Area quotas are restricted until the end of the month.

During August the Sixth Army was allotted a total of 4,951 promotions to the top five grades. Included were: 27 to master sergeant; 100 to sergeant first class; 559 to sergeant, 1,617 to corporal and 2,648 to private first class.

September's increase was the first substantial raise since July, when the quota dropped sharply after months of progressively increasing quotas throughout the Army. The figure remained practically the same during August.

From January through June the quota increased from 64,000 to the peak of 105,450.

August was the last month for which "combat criteria" applied for enlisted promotions in Korea. The result—beginning this month—is that all EM will be considered on an equal basis.

The promotion criteria now in effect for all GIs:

Promotion to E-4 (corporal)—six months' service as an E-3, two months in an E-4's spot.

Promotion to E-5 (sergeant)—eight months as an E-4, two months in an E-5's spot.

Promotion to E-6 (sergeant first class)—10 months in E-5, two in an E-6 post.

Promotion to E-7 (master sergeant)—12 months in E-6, two in an E-7 job.

AT A GLANCE

IN GERMANY, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer won overwhelming support for his pro-Western policies in Sunday's election. A turnout of more than 26,000,000 of 33,000,000 eligible voters shut out the Communists without a single seat in the new parliament and smashed an attempted Nazi comeback. Adenauer's Christian Democrat party won a clear majority in the new 484 member lower house, the first time any German party has accomplished that feat since World War I.

IN YUGOSLAVIA, President Marshal Tito has called for the internationalization of the strategic Adriatic port city of Trieste, with the cession to Yugoslavia of the rest of the free territory. The Trieste area, which was Italian before World War II, is coveted by both Italy and Yugoslavia. Although the latest proposal for settling the problem was not officially answered by Italy, there was ample evidence of Italian anger at the plan.

IN AUSTRIA, evacuation of 15,000 to 20,000 Russian troops, comprising one third of the Russian occupation force, from Austria was reported this week. The Russians are expected to ask the United States, Britain and France to do the same. It is thought possible that the Russians plan to withdraw all but a "token" battalion from Austria by the end of next month. The British have scheduled withdrawal of two battlions starting next January, leaving one battalion in the country.

IN BULGARIA, a new program to support collective farming with direct financial aid, reduction of compulsory crop deliveries, higher state credits and better pay for collective workers was announced Tuesday by Communist Premier Vulko Tchernenkow. The announcement was made in a speech marking the ninth anniversary of the "liberation" of Bulgaria by the Red army.

IN EGYPT, Britain and Egypt were reported slowly nearing agreement on ways of settling the old dispute over the future defense of the Suez Canal. The two countries have been trying informally to set up a basis of agreement which would satisfy both British insistence that the vital waterway must be securely protected and Egyptian demands that British troops must leave the canal zone. The informal talks have been going on in Cairo.

IN MANILA, the return of President Elpidio Quirino from the United States has launched the third presidential campaign in the postwar Philippine republic. Quirino will be opposed by Ramon Magsaysay in what is expected to be a bitter campaign to win the election on 3 November. Magsaysay received international attention for his fighting campaign against the Communist Huk guerrillas.

IN KOREA, the United Nations Command awaited a reply from the Communists to an Allied demand for a prompt accounting of 3,404 prisoners the UN says are still in Red captivity. The list, including the names of 944 Americans, was handed to the Reds at an 86-minute meeting of the Armistice Commission. The Communists reserved the right to reply later, then countered with a demand for the return of 27,000 North Koreans, who are the men released from Allied camps last June on the orders of South Korean President Syngman Rhee.

IN HONG KONG, British authorities said a British naval launch was fired on near the British crown colony near Communist China. The crew suffered casualties including six killed and a destroyer was sent to take the wounded men to Hong Kong. Neither the exact location of the shooting nor the attacking force was identified by the British. It was presumed the incident took place somewhere in the vicinity of Communist-occupied islands which surround Hong Kong.

IN SOUTH KOREA, a young Polish civilian, an interpreter with a neutral nation's inspection team, made a dramatic and successful bolt for freedom Thursday. The man turned himself over to United States authorities just as his plane was warming up to take him and other members of the team back to North Korea. The 28-year-old Pole said he was afraid to go back to Communist control and that his bid for freedom was his last chance. The Army gave him political asylum and flew him to Seoul.

IN GERMANY, preliminary land operations, involving American and Allied troops, started Thursday as preparations were completed for one of the largest naval exercises ever held in peacetime to be staged later this month by the Atlantic fleets of the United States and eight other nations. The maneuvers will sweep from Norfolk, Virginia, to the Arctic circle. The exercise is designed to test naval tactics for convoy duty, and sea and aerial assault operations. In addition to more than 70 American warships taking part, other naval units will participate from Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, The Netherlands, Norway, Portugal and the United Kingdom.

IN CYPRUS, the British island off the southern coast of Turkey, an earthquake Thursday caused over 30 deaths and injuries to 100 in various villages. Houses in the area were damaged extensively, and telephone communications were disrupted. Southeast of Cyprus, Haifa and other places in northern Israel felt the earth tremors, but no casualties or damage were reported.

IN FRANCE, the government of Premier Joseph Laniel has begun action about tax evasion of millions of well-to-do French tax dodgers. It is estimated that only 3,800,000 French bother to pay income taxes and of this number, 75 per cent have no choice, since they are wage earners whose salaries are reported by their employers. The government is striking at the many Frenchmen who have hidden fortunes abroad and pay no taxes on this wealth. It is estimated a total of $1,700,000,000 has been hidden abroad.

IN ENGLAND, a War Office spokesman has said about 15 per cent of British prisoners of war in Korea absorbed enough Communist indoctrination to be classified as sympathizers. The spokesman said there were "absolutely no plans for disindoctrination" of those POWs who have been influenced by the Communists. "They'll all be returned to their homes," he said, "where we expect that most of them will be cured."

Army AG Survey Finds Most Satisfied

Washington—What does the soldier think of his job? The Army Adjutant General's Office, in a survey of 4,000 enlisted men leaving the service, got this answer:

Most soldiers are satisfied with their jobs, work at tasks for which they were trained, and think their work is necessary.

Questionnaires were completed anonymously.

Men at 18 Army installations were selected so that each section of the country as well as different types of Army installations would be represented.

Few significant differences emerged between attitude of men drafted and volunteers for the Regular Army.

Some of the questions and answers:

Q. Do you feel that the job or training you performed longest in the past year was necessary to the Army or not?

A. Draftees: almost all was necessary, 66 per cent; some was not, 20 per cent; a lot was not, 8 per cent; most was not, 4 per cent; none was, 2 per cent.

RA's: almost all was necessary, 70 per cent; some was not, 15 per cent; a lot was not, 8 per cent; most was not, 5 per cent; none was, 2 per cent.

Q. How satisfied were you with your Army job?

A. Draftees: very satisfied, 18 per cent; satisfied, 57 per cent; dissatisfied, 18 per cent; very dissatisfied, 7 per cent.

RA's: very satisfied, 24 per cent; satisfied, 53 per cent; dissatisfied, 16 per cent; very dissatisfied, 7 per cent.

Q. Did you spend most of your duty time in the past year working on the job for which you received Army training?

A. Draftees: yes, most of the time, 61 per cent; about half, 15 per cent; most of duty time on other duties, 24 per cent.

RA's: yes, most of duty time, 56 per cent; about half, 12 per cent; most of duty time on other duties, 32 per cent.

Q. In general, do you think a soldier with ability has a good chance for promotion in the Army?

A. Draftees: very good chance, 16 per cent; fairly good chance, 41 per cent; not much chance, 35 per cent; undecided, 8 per cent.

RA's: very good chance, 26 per cent; fairly good chance, 36 per cent; not much chance, 30 per cent; undecided, 8 per cent.

It's an old joke in the Army that most operations boil down to "Hurry up and wait." Is there any truth in the saying? Here's a clue:

Q. During the last year in the Army, did you have to spend too much time waiting around and doing nothing?

A. Draftees: yes, about every day, 8 per cent; yes, quite often, 21 per cent; not very often, 71 per cent.

RA's: yes, about every day, 10 per cent; yes, quite often, 19 per cent; not very often, 71 per cent.

How about popularity of the different branches of the Army? Among the men questioned, duty with the Engineers scored most desirable.

Q. During your time in the Army, which branch would you have selected if you had been allowed to select it?

A. All separatees: Engineers, 17 per cent; Ordnance, 13 per cent; Quartermaster, 12 per cent; Signal, 10 per cent; Transportation, 10 per cent; Artillery, 9 per cent; Medical, 7 per cent; Infantry, 5 per cent; Military Police, 5 per cent; Armor, 3 per cent; other, 9 per cent.—(ANF)

Transportation Corps Develops Tugboat That Goes Sideways

Washington—A tugboat that will travel sideways as well as forward and backward has been developed by the Army Transportation Corps.

An experimental model of the new boat was launched in the Ohio River Aug. 21 at the Dravo Corp. Shipyards. The vessel is 120 feet long and is powered by two 1000-hp engines. It is intended primarily for use in moving barges carrying military cargo on overseas inland waterways.

In place of the conventional propellers the craft has two rotating discs built into the bottom of the stern. Vertical blades projecting from the discs also can be rotated to control movement of the tug in any direction.

The vessel, which needs no rudders, was developed by the Transportation Corps Research and Development Station, Ft. Eustis, Va.

New Code Developed

Marine Captain Nils B. Forseburg of the Department of the Pacific has developed a new single impulse code that bids to be a vast improvement over the old Morse system of dots and dashes. The new system is said to simplify transmission and save an estimated 25 per cent in power.

DEADLINE IS WEDNESDAY NOON

WELCOMED AND HONORED TOO was Sgt. Hiroshi H. Miyamura, as he stepped off the U.S.N.S. Marine Adder Saturday afternoon when it docked at Fort Mason, California. The welcome was from his wife, Mrs. Tsuruko Terry Miyamura, and his father, Yaichi Miyamura, shown with the sergeant. The honors were from Lt. General Joseph M. Swing, Sixth Army Commander, who presented him with an aide, Sgt. Gerald L. Evans, (far right) a member of Detachment A, Fort Scott, to be his guide through a weekend of sight-seeing around San Francisco. At later ceremonies, Sgt. Miyamura a prisoner of war for 28 months, will be presented with the Congressional Medal of Honor, the nation's highest award for bravery, a fact that was a carefully guarded secret until the sergeant's safe return was assured. Right now it's home to Gallup, New Mexico for the re-united family and a whole new future. (Army photo by Woods.)

ORDNANCE OFFICERS and key civilian technicians are shown above while at the Presidio this week attending the Army Field Forces Ordnance Staff and Command Field Maintenance and Supply Management course. Two similar courses are scheduled to be held in the Sixth Army area, one at Fort Lewis, Wash., and the other at Fort MacArthur, Calif. The Presidio course was conducted by the 46th Ordnance group. (Army photo by Weiss.)

New Push-Button Targets In Test Stage For Army

Fort Benning, Ga.—The Army now is testing a new portable push-button firing range designed to save time, money and manpower.

The Ground Combat Assessor is an electro-mechanical training device which consists of four targets remotely controlled from an operator's console behind the firing lines.

Each target is operated separately. The touch of a button raises it into position and an electrical timing device pre-sets the time it will remain in place. The target automatically disappears at the end of the pre-set time.

The remote scoring system is operated by a small microphone mounted on each target just below the firing line. The mike picks up the sound of the bullet striking the target. This sets off an electrical impulse which is carried back to the electronic counter at the console.

Infantry officials say the GCA will require fewer operators than ranges now in use at many Army installations. It also can be moved from place to place with a minimum of time and trouble, and its electronic score-keeper saves manpower.

Simple Dignity Marks Funeral of Wainwright In Arlington Cemetery

"He gave more than his life to the service of his country."

This is the epitaph that marks for posterity the grave of General Jonathan M. Wainwright in Arlington National Cemetery.

The "loyal warrior" and "hero of Bataan" was given a traditional cavalryman's funeral and buried among the trees near the graves of his parents, this week.

Hundreds of mourners joined with the Nation's top military and defense leaders in a final farewell to the Medal of Honor winner.

Military leaders who attended the funeral included the present Chiefs of Staff; Generals of the Army George C. Marshall and Omar N. Bradley former chiefs, and Major General E. P. King, Ret., who was with General Wainwright during the siege of Bataan and subsequent Japanese imprisonment which followed its fall.

Ordnance officers assigned to field maintenance and supply units and installations of the Sixth Army, as well as key civilian Ordnance technicians, are at the Presidio this week attending a 38-hour course of the Army Field Forces Ordnance Staff and Command Field Maintenance and Supply Management.

Patterned after the course conducted at the Ordnance school, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland, the Presidio course is being given by members of the 46th Ordnance group under the direction of Lt. Colonel James R. Hooper, commanding officer of the group, assisted by Captain Hugh R. Watson.

Those here to attend the course are: Maj. Lloyd L. Longey, 6013 ASU, Fort Lawton, Wash.; Col. Russell B. Fontaine, Hq. 6006 Sta Comp, Fort Lewis, Wash.; Mr. William A. Voorhies, Post Ordnance, Camp Stoneman, Calif.; Lt. Col. George M. Nolen, 6017 ASU, Camp Hanford, Wash.; Capt. Lawrence O. Hand, Hq Sixth Army Ord Section, PSF, Calif.

Lt. Col. Arthur E. Keller, Hq Sixth Army Ord Section, PSF, Calif.; Maj. Stanley H. Miller, 6012 ASU, Camp Stoneman, Calif.; Maj. Leonard J. Brand, 6941 ASU, Camp San Luis Obispo, Calif.; Lt. Howard R. Hodges, 6941, Camp San Luis Obispo, Calif.; Maj. Blaine Mathis, 6514 ASU, Oregon Mil Dist, Hq Vancouver Barracks, Wash.; Maj. William G. Wurcz, 6002 ASU, PSF, Calif.; Lt. Harrison E. Fite, 6002 ASU, PSF, Calif.; Maj. John A. Morgan, 548th EOD Control Det, PSF, Calif.

Mr. Rex L. Blair, Camp Roberts, Calif.; Lt. Jimmie A. Davis, 6003 ASU, Fort Ord, Calif.; Capt. William Whetton, 6003 ASU, Fort Ord, Calif.; Maj. Arnold Swenson, 6515 ASU, Fort Douglas, Utah; Lt. Col. George W. Allyn, 6016 ASU, Yuma Test Station, Ariz.; Lt. Col. John J. Hunt, Hq III Corps, Fort MacArthur, Calif.; Maj. Walter A. Tobias, Hq Sixth Army Ord Section, PSF, Calif.

Maj. Ray A. Riddle, 6100 ASU, Camp Roberts, Calif.; Capt. James R. Bryant, 6100 ASU, Camp Roberts, Calif.; Capt. Emmett A. Chaput, Hq 46th Ord Gp, PSF, Calif.; Capt. Rollin B. Craig, 6015 ASU, Desert Chemical Depot, Tooele, Utah; Maj. Kenneth L. Meyer, 6513 ASU, PSF, Calif.; and Maj. Earl C. Zerbach, 6916 ASU Sacramento Signal Depot, Calif.

The Army operates 42 bakeries on its various military posts.

Pasco Engineer Depot To Store for Air Force

Colonel L. B. Wilby, commanding officer of the Pasco Engineer depot, Pasco, Washington, has announced that information has been received from the office of the chief of Engineers that the Air Force has accepted allocation of several warehouses at the depot.

Slightly less than one-half of the total warehouse space at Pasco is involved.

Details of timing and additional personnel strength have not yet been determined, but representatives of the Air Materiel command are expected to visit Pasco in the near future to work out these details.

Military Police Play Unusual And Important Battle Roles

Seoul—Quick change artistry might well be added to the impressive list of accomplishments credited to the Army's Military Police.

The MP's transition from spit-and-polish state-side duties to rugged action in battle areas is a little-known part of their valuable functions.

The common misconception is that MP's spend most of their time checking soldiers' passes, or patrolling cities and trains. This, however, is only a minor phase of their mission. Their primary duties are to render assistance, furnish information, maintain order, direct traffic and provide security, giving emphasis to their motto, "Of the Troops and For the Troops."

It is in war zones, however, that MP's meet their real test. Under the five duties above come many and complex problems in a combat zone.

They must direct vital traffic moving to and from fighting fronts, keep roads cleared, round up stragglers, handle hordes of civilian refugees, take charge of, search, classify, secure custody and move prisoners, provide security for command posts, and cooperate with military government in re-establishing civil police systems and law and order in occupied areas.

Drama and courage typify the carrying out of these and myriad other duties.

For example, MP's of the Seventh Infantry Division in Korea kept traffic moving over a supply route junction near Heartbreak Ridge on a 24-hour schedule under Bavarian Willow Run!

Army Runs World's Largest Tank-Automobile Rebuild Shop

Munich, Germany—The Army's "Detroit on the Isar" has been turned into a Bavarian Willow Run to produce thousands of tank, jeep, and truck engines and power-train assemblies. It is the largest tank-automotive rebuild shop in the world.

Located between Munich and Dachau, the Karlsfeld Ordnance Depot—as it is known officially—occupies a fenced in area of 273 acres, 243 of which are in operational use for supply, storage, and industrial operations.

Prior to its capture by American soldiers in 1945, the plant turned out an average of 600 aircraft engines each month for the German Air Force.

Today—under direction of 25 Army officers, 19 enlisted men and 25 civilian technicians—the plant supplies the Army's European Command with thousands of engine and power-train units rebuilt and assembled by 6,000 German nationals, displaced persons, and refugees.

Indicative of the activity at the Bavarian Willow Run are records which show that over a six-year period more than 135,000 rebuilt engines came off the plant's assembly line.

The saving in dollars is tremendous. In the reclamation branch alone, a saving of $740,000 was realized over an eight-month period. Records show that for $1.60 the plant can reclaim a jeep cylinder block that would cost $127.34 new. For $6.50 it reclaims jeep crankshafts priced new at $24.57.

Success of the Karlsfeld Ordnance Depot as a major re-build center is due primarily to two accomplishments:

1. Adoption of mass-production methods for complete re-building of all types of Army engine and power-train units.

2. Education of the Western German manufacturers to mass-produce spare parts with U. S. dimensions, threads, and, in many cases, U. S. material specifications.

There are three main structures in which most of the rebuilding is carried on. In one building, an assembly line reclaims World War II parts which have been stored for years. Every conceivable method is used to restore the parts to maximum efficiency. Crank-cases, engine blocks, pistons—all undergo practically the same process.

In another building, engines from all over the European Command are gathered, inspected, and run through one of three main re-build lines.

Procedure in each of these lines is essentially the same. The engine block—stripped of accessories—is run through a chemical wash machine. The block then is disassembled completely, with shafts, pistons, etc., being routed through cleaning, inspection and reclamation and then on to the final assembly line. The stripped block is cleaned, tested for cracks or other defects, and re-bored. Crankshafts are straightened and re-ground.

The assembly process then begins. Pistons, rings, and connecting rods are checked carefully in sets and assembled. Other parts and accessories are assembled at stations in an orderly sequence down the line.

When completely assembled, the re-built engine is given a comprehensive test run on a dynamometer test stand. Engines which pass the test are painted, preserved, and packed for long-term storage. The engines then are turned over to the Supply Group and issued to using units.

The power-train re-build shop operates under the same assembly-line system, but each type of power train is processed on a separate line.

In all, there are 1,200 approved re-claiming methods and separate procedures for parts at the Army's "Detroit on the Isar." (ANF)

7 Intelligence Courses Slated in Washington

Seven courses at the Strategic Intelligence School in Washington, D. C., for training officers in high level intelligence have been announced in a memorandum from Headquarters Sixth Army this week.

A quota of ten officers, five each for the Active Army and the United States Army Reserve, has been established for each course. A top secret security clearance is a prerequisite for attendance.

Applications are to be forwarded to reach Sixth Army Headquarters, not later than eighty days prior to the reporting date. Reporting dates of the courses are: 6 Nov. 1953, 5 Feb. 1954, 10 May 1954, 9 Aug. 1954, 8 Nov. 1954, 7 Feb. 1955 and 9 May 1955.

Red mortar and artillery fire virtually all the time.

From December, 1951, to February, 1952, a narrow, one-way road was manner by MP's, stationed at either end to control supply trucks moving to and from troops of the 31st and 32nd Regiments. These troops, in number equivalent to one and a half battalions, could be supplied only by passing through this defile, which was in full view of a Red observation post, on Hill 656.

The perilous dash covered approximately seven-tenths of a mile. Trucks and jeeps kept 200 yards apart and never more than three or four were let through at one time. Everything required to maintain the isolated troops was brought in by this means. The vehicles didn't return empty, either. Wounded personnel were evacuated in jeeps and empty brass shell cases were returned in trucks to salvage dumps.

The MP "traffic cops" maintained their perilous defile in bitterly cold weather with temperatures dropping to 25 degrees below zero. Besides the "jaywalking" by Red 81 and 120-millimeter mortars and 76-millimeter artillery, the defile occasionally was under small arms rifle fire.—(ANF)

VERY SPECIAL CAKE is served to Brigadier General Edward J. McGaw, commanding general, WESTARAACOM. It's "Organization day" cake, and commemorates the third anniversary (4 September) of the founding of the Western Army Antiaircraft Command, with headquarters at Fort Baker. Mrs. Marion J. Valentine, secretary in the organization's G-3 Section, serves the general, who took over the command in March of this year. The cake was built and baked by personnel assigned to Headquarters, 740th AAA Battalion. (Army photo by Hilmer.)

WAAC Commemorates Third Anniversary With Ceremony

Commemoration of the third anniversary of the Western Army Antiaircraft Command was marked by a brief ceremony at its headquarters at Fort Baker on 4 September.

Addressing officer, enlisted and civilian members of the headquarters staff, Brigadier General Edward J. McGaw, commanding general, WESTARAACOM, reminded his audience of the accomplishments of the command, which he said, "has transformed the targets of military importance on this coast from 'sitting ducks' into porcupines with quills of steel."

Brief remarks were also given by Major Wilbur D. Rudy, radar officer, M/Sgt. Henry E. Reitz, G-3 Section, and Mrs. Hermina D. Lee, secretary to General McGaw, representing the officer, enlisted and civilian members of the headquarters respectively.

All of the speakers were introduced by Lt. Benjamin M. Berkowick, who is acting assistant chief of staff, G-1 Section.

The WAAC was founded in 1950, and had its first offices at Hamilton Air Force Base. The present headquarters was established at Fort Baker in 1951, and is responsible, together with the Western Air Defense Force, an Air Force arm, for the antiaircraft defenses of the entire West Coast.

Enrollments High For Fall College Classes on Post

Advance enrollments in the three college group study classes beginning on-post next week have been high, the Post Education Center reports. One class has been filled and no more enrollments can be accepted, but a few may still be enrolled in the other two courses.

Classes for which enrollments will be accepted are Consumer Economics and Human Biology and Health. The class for which the limit in number of students has already been accepted is The Western Scene.

The course in Consumer Economics will be conducted in Room 21 of the Food Service School on Mondays and Wednesdays from 1830 to 2100. This is an upper division course that will cover American standards of living and culture, budget making, economics of consumption and ideal standards of living.

Human Biology and Health is a lower division course which will present an interpretation of man through biological principles and related subjects. This class will meet from 1830 to 2100 on Mondays and Wednesdays in the conference room of Post Headquarters, Building 36.

The Western Scene is an upper division course in Humanities. Classes will be held in Room 21 of the Food Service School on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1830 to 2100.

Three semester hours of resident credit will be given for each course by San Francisco State College. As there are no prerequisites for the courses, personnel need not be a high school graduate to enroll.

Recently Assigned

Major John H. Gallant has been assigned as chief, plant Engineering branch, communications division, Signal section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Prior to this the major served 14 months at Headquarters Third Army, Atlanta, Georgia, followed by three months in the G-4 Section at Camp San Luis Obispo, California.

With more than 16 years Army service, Major Gallant has served overseas in four different tours of duty, one in Hawaii, one in Alaska, and two in the European theatre.

His World War II service in the ETO earned for him three campaign stars, and following the end of the war, he returned there for another tour of three years during which time he was wire officer, Headquarters EUCOM, and assistant Signal officer for ADSEC.

Captain William E. Scanlon has recently taken over duties in the active Army branch, G-3 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

He has just completed two years service at Camp Roberts, California, where he was G-3 training officer.

And in Korea, Captain Scanlon served a year with the 2nd Division, 23rd Infantry Regiment. His World War II service was in the European theatre.

Captain Scanlon has been decorated with the Silver Star, the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart. He has been in the Army for 12 years.

Lt. Donald E. Pointer, who spent the past 16 months in the Far East, is now a platoon leader with Detachment A, Fort Scott.

His Korean service included eight months with the 2nd Division, 38th Infantry Regiment, following which he spent eight months at Camp Drake, Japan, as Battalion S-4, First Replacement depot.

Lt. Pointer's service dates back to World War II, when, as an enlisted man, he served in the Pacific theatre with the 24th Division. Upon his return to Missouri at the close of the war, he enlisted in the National Guard, and received a direct commission. In 1951, he applied for active duty.

Decorations awarded the lieutenant include the Bronze Star medal, the Army Commendation ribbon with Metal Pendant, the Combat Infantry Badge and appropriate theatre ribbons.

Lt. Stephen F. Barton has taken up duties with the Quartermaster Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

For his 20 months of service with the 443rd Base Depot in Korea, Lt. Barton has been awarded the Army Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant.

Lt. Barton was an enlisted Marine in World War II, and served in the Pacific theatre with the Marine Corps, for two and one-half years.

He received his commission from the ranks of ROTC at Utah State Agricultural college and returned to active duty two and one-half years ago.

Lt. Howard M. Wiser has received his initial duty assignment as clothing sales officer, Post Quartermaster section, Presidio of San Francisco.

For the past five and one-half months he has been attending the Associate Company Officers school at Fort Lee, Virginia.

A native of Oakland, California, Lt. Wiser received his commission through participation in ROTC at the University of California at Berkeley from which he was graduated with a degree in business administration.

WOJG Arthur E. Miller, a veteran of 15 years Army service, 10 of them as a master sergeant, has become unit administrator for Headquarters company, Presidio of San Francisco.

His most recent assignment was with the 187th Airborne RCT in Korea and Japan for 25 months. It was while in Korea in 1952 that he received his warrant.

In World War II, WOJG Miller served with the 82nd Airborne in the European theatre.

Decorations presented him for his service with the 82nd include the Silver Star Medal, the Bronze Star Medal, the Combat Infantry Badge, the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Master Parachutist award.

Post High School Course Cuts Time Needs for Diploma

Military personnel of the Presidio who have not received a high school diploma will be offered the opportunity of earning a diploma from the San Francisco Unified School district in the shortest possible time when on-post classes begin next Monday (14 September).

Ordinarily students spend 130 weeks or approximately 4,000 hours in high school before being graduated. Personnel enrolled in the on-post course need attend only two semesters, two nights a week, or 192 hours for the total course, to qualify for a diploma by June, 1954.

Those desiring to earn a diploma by January, 1954, must enroll in four classes and attend each class one night a week, Monday through Thursday.

After completion of 20 units of work, or four subjects, personnel must attain an average standard score in the General Educational Development test of 45 with no score below 35 to be eligible for the diploma.

Classes will be held in the Post Education Center, Building 117. Text books will be furnished and no expense is involved for those enrolled.

Regular class attendance is required and if military duty interferes, makeup work is classified as attendance.

Subjects to be offered will include English, Mathematics, General Science and U. S. History and Constitution.

NC Accidents Down

The non-combat accident rate for the Army's civilian and military personnel and employees at Army plants operated by private contractors shows a nine per cent drop for the first six months of 1953 over figures for the last half of 1952. From January to June 37,900 such accidents occurred in contrast with 41,400 for the last six months of 1952.

The Army operates its own coffee roasting plants at Atlanta, Chicago and Seattle. Coffee for troops stationed in the European Command, Hawaii and the Canal Zone is shipped in the green bean state and roasted locally.

'Another Way Out' Play Production Set Monday Night

"Another Way Out," one-act comedy satire by Lawrence Langner, will be presented by the Presidio Players Monday, (14 September) at 2000 in the Presidio Service club.

This is the second production to be given by the group, the first being "Fame and the Poet," some weeks ago. Pfc. Curtiss Hungerford, Sixth Army Band member, has directed both plays.

Hilarious situations arise when Poveroy Pendelton, a renowned writer, played by Cpl. Richard Barnett, is challenged by the alluring Parisian fashion designer, Baroness de Marville, portrayed by Miss Mary Lowe, and when Miss Valerie Balsalmo, the sculptress, discovers that her model, Pfc. Louis Carroll, is actually a dictionary salesman, well! Things happen!

Pfc. Shirley Keith plays the stable and re-assuring maid who tries desperately to keep the whole mess on an even keel. Whether or not she succeeds is for the audience to discover!

Interested military or civilian personnel who would like to take part in any phase of these theatre activities may attend the weekly meetings held on Wednesdays at 2000 in the Service club lounge.

Guests at the last meeting were Mr. and Mrs. John Brebner of KPIX-TV, formerly directors of the "Old Vic" theatre in London.

505th Softballers Lose to Letterman, Slaughter Tough San Leandro Dodge

The battling 505th MP softballers, scheduled to represent the Presidio in next week's All-Sixth Army tournament, suffered their first loss of the entire season this Tuesday and later in the week took revenge in a 23-7 rout of one of the toughest teams in Bay Area competition.

They dropped their first game to Letterman in the second of a three-game series. Their victory was against the highly-touted San Leandro Dodge nine.

The final score in the Letterman game ran 4-2, and evinced a sterling performance on the mound for LAH's Greg Snyder, who managed to nail some of the Presidio's toughest bats to a meager two hits.

The Letterman gang racked up a total of six connections and six walks off the opposition's hurler Hoskins, while MPs Goss and Garfield accounted for the losers' only hits.

The greatest weakness for the MPs lay in the fact that their big pitching asset, Sgt. "Tiny" Kochel, who has up to now done the mound chores for the 505th, was absent from the game. He was resting his arm for the important test Wednesday evening against the San Leandro Dodge team.

Other key players missing from the MP line-up on Tuesday were team manager Captain Raymond Le Van and Lt. Lee Brandenburg.

The LAH and 505th crews meet again this Friday afternoon on the Presidio's Main Athletic Field for the final contest in the three-game series.

Wednesday's game against the San Leandro Dodge men saw the return to the Presidio mound of Sgt. "Tiny" Kochel. The 23-7 score reflected the return, too. In defense of the San Leandro nine, they were missing their star hurler that afternoon.

The weak Dodge pitching gave the MP's biggest bats a chance for a workout. Presidians Francis Hoskins and Joe Papp pounded out a pair of roundtrippers, while Kochel registered four hits for four times at bat.

The MP's scheduled another game with the Dodge people for tomorrow at 1400 hours, here on the Main Athletic Field. Anybody who wants to know what sort of softballing material is going into the Presidio uniforms at next week's All-Sixth competition ought to try to get out to see them in action tomorrow. It would be worth their while. (B. L.)

Wanna Go?

Presidio personnel wishing to travel with the Red Raiders to their practice football game in Petaluma tomorrow may apply at Post Special Services for transportation. If a large enough group wish to go, military transportation will be made available. The game will be played at 2015 hours, and will be the first outside competition for the Raiders this season.

Looking for Trouble

Monumental bad judgment was shown by three Placer County, California, youths hunting doves on 31 August, the day before season opening. They bagged their illegal bird only 150 yards from a California Department of Fish and Game pistol range, and the 18 wardens there converged on the young culprits. The boys, highly bewildered, got off with a warning.

Ft. Bragg Victors

Two paratroopers from the 82nd Airborne Division, Andy Sears and Gene Hoch, spearheaded Fort Bragg to the Third Army Swimming Championship in a grueling three day contest at Camp Gordon, Ga., recently.

The Third Army champions nearly doubled the score of their nearest rival, Camp Gordon, who finished in second place.

Red Raiders Charge Petaluma In Practice Game Tomorrow

The Presidio Red Raider football team will finish off a week's afternoon scrimmage today in preparation for tomorrow's practice tilt against the Petaluma eleven, to be played in Petaluma at 2015 hours.

Last Saturday's first scrimmage session didn't make the boys shine as brightly as team coaches Roland Daigle and Bill Carey had hoped, and this week has been an intensifying of those points which were muffed on Saturday.

One Raider calculated to give the Petaluma crew a lot of trouble tomorrow is hard-running Dave Marcelli, currently attached to the 505th Military Police Battalion here on post.

Dave has been playing football in a big way since his start in '45 as a student at San Francisco's Poly High. For the two years following he earned the respect of the

Probably the heaviest man on the Presidian roster, and one calculated to give this season's opposition a lot of trouble from his position of tackle, is veteran Raider Leonard Hoaglund.

Hoaglund hails from Colorado, where he played four years of high school football with the Grand Junction eleven. This was followed by another two years at Mesa College, Colorado, and another season with Utah University.

Hoaglund's service with the Raiders this year will be cut short in October, which is his release-date from the Army.

First Army Champs

The Fort Dix All-Stars won the First Army baseball tournament recently by defeating Fort Monmouth, 5-2, in the final game behind the six-hit pitching of Pvt. Dick Brodowski.

Brodowski, former Red Sox rookie, helped win his own game by knocking in two runs in the three-run 7th with a single to center. Monmouth's Pfc. Guy Grasso was the losing pitcher.

Earlier in the tourney Brodowski defeated Monmouth, 11-2, to bring about the additional game in the double-elimination event.

AN OLD FACE on the local gridiron is Leonard Hoaglund's, (right), who will be playing his second year of football for the Presidio this fall. His position is tackle. Dave Marcelli (left) is a new man on the Presidio roster. A player for the semi-pro San Francisco Broncos prior to the Army, Marcelli will be packing the pigskin from his customary halfback position this season. He has played eight years of high school, college and pro football.

Fort Wood 'Toppers Win Semi-Pro Title From Wichita Team

Wichita, Kans.—The Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., Hilltoppers crushed the home town Wichita Boeing Bombers 7-1 for a clean sweep of seven games in the 19th National Baseball Congress tournament and earned a world's semi-pro championship.

Right hander Bill Black, ex-Detroit Tiger rookie, turned in his third win of the tournament in spacing 10 hits against the Bombers as his Army mates pounded out six runs on four hits and a walk in the third inning.

The Hilltoppers twice turned back the defending championship team, Military District of Washington Colonials, in the two-week long double-elimination tournament: first 8-1 in early rounds and again 5-3 in a semi-final game.

The Colonials, in the previous round, bumped the San Diego, Calif., Navy Skyriders 10-2 for their second loss. Other Service teams in the 32 team tournament included: San Diego Marines, out in the fifth round; Kirtland AFB, N. M., early losers to the Hilltoppers; Cherry Point, N. C., Marines, eliminated in the fourth round.

Ord Loses Two 1-Run Heartbreakers In All-Army Games, Leaves Tourney

In Fort Sam Houston this week, scene of the All-Army baseball championship, the Fort Ord Warriors, Sixth Army champions and California semi-pro champs, suffered a two-game losing spree in their initial engagements against the Camp Atterbury, Indiana, Fifth Army Champions, and the Brooke Army Medical Center Comets, Fourth Army Champions.

The two losses put the Warriors out of the running for the All-Army title.

In the Atterbury game, the two teams battled through 10 innings before the winners pushed across the winning tally to take the game 10-9. Atterbury was behind 9-2 but scored three runs in the eighth inning and four in the ninth to even the score.

Three of the ninth inning runs came off hits allowed by Pvt. Tom Morgan of El Monte, California, ex-New York Yankee pitcher, who came in with two men on base and one out.

Atterbury got two on in the 10th with none out, and Pvt. Leonard Vandyhay of Loyal, Wisconsin, drove in a run with a single.

Yost Qualifies on Local Contingent To NAG Tourney

Army Private First Class Dick Yost of Portland, Ore., successfully qualified as a Northern California Representative in the United States National Amateur Golf Championship to be played in Oklahoma City, Okla., beginning Sept. 14.

The 23-year-old Yost shot 73-75-148 over the long, treacherous fairways at the California Country Club yesterday to tie for second with Jim Molinari, San Francisco's golfing policeman, and Stan Heywood, host club member.

Among the 32 golfers shooting for a berth in the national tournament, Grant Spaeth, 21-year-old Stanford University player, was low qualifier with a par, 71-73-144. Only five representatives were allowed from Northern California.

Approximately 1250 golfers across the nation attempted to qualify, but only 177 will make the grade among the 200 places available. Twenty-three players, mostly members of the British and American Walker Cup teams were exempt from qualifying.

Yost will attempt to better his performance in last year's National Amateur tournament at Seattle, Wash., where he reached the quarter finals before being bumped out by Jack Westland, the eventual winner and 1953 defending champion.

The soldier is Sixth Army golfing champion, and placed fifth in All-Army competition last month.

Veteran Ump Presides

George Barr, commissioner for the All-Army baseball tournament, underway at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., this week, will be remembered as the veteran National League umpire who stood behind the plate in the 19 inning scoreless game between Brooklyn and Cincinnati, the longest tie game on record in major league history.

defeat while Pfc. Tom Brewer of Cheraw, South Carolina, was the victor.

The second Ord loss went to the Brooke AMC Comets, 6-5, and was witnessed by a nightcap crowd of over 3000 fans. It was the most thrilling game of the Army world series to date.

Pfc. Hy Cohen of Brooklyn, New York, fanned 17 Ordmen and gave up four hits, all extra base blows except one. Pfc. Dave Gregg and Pfc. Robert Doe each collected two hits of the victors' total of nine.

Fort Ord got the jump with one in the first bracket, taking advantage of two walks and an error. The Comets bounced back for two in their half of the same inning on three singles and an error. Ord returned with three runs in the top of the second on singles by Tom Morgan and Ed Serrano, and a double by Jim McKeegan.

The victors' big inning was the seventh. Singles by Jerome Dahlke and Cohen were followed by a triple off Dave Greggs. Both runners scored when Ron Delbianco doubled. Ord scored its final tally in the eighth when Serrano doubled and scored on an error.

Army Teams Dominate Top Eleven At NRA; Marines Bag Team Title

Five Army teams, all of them from areas within the United States, were among the top eleven teams in Monday's National Trophy Match, the concluding event of the 1953 National Rifle Association's shooting championships at Camp Perry, Ohio.

After Monday's Congress sponsored match, some 175 Army men, members of their sister services and hundreds of civilian marksmen began making their way back to their units and to their homes in all parts of the world.

The National Trophy Match was won by the Camp Pendleton, California, Marines, who fired a score of 930 out of a possible 1000.

The highest Army team was from Fort Riley, Kansas, whose members fired a score of 899 to take sixth place. Its members were: Sgt. Harland V. Rennolds, Detroit; 1st Lt. Minoru Kojima, Pasadena, California; 1st Lt. Willard W. Reed, W. Va., and 2nd Lt. Thomas W. Moore of Des Moines, Iowa.

Taking the gigantic shoot's tests in chronological order, the tourney's first day saw International Free Rifle Match honors go to Lt. Mark Radke of Lincoln, Nebraska, who finished third in the Marksman class, and Captain William S. Brophy of New Hampshire, who placed sixth in the expert class.

In the second day of firing, M/Sgt. Francis B. Conway, of Worcester, Mass., and member of the U. S. Army team, hit the bullseye 20 times without a miss to win the Coast Guard Rapid Fire Trophy Match. Conway outshot 621 contestants for the prize, while five other Army shooters placed high on the list of winners in that day's three matches.

Three Army riflemen dominated the Navy Cup Match, one placed fourth in the Members' Trophy Match, and another finished second in his division of the Coast Guard shooting event.

Finishing second in Division B of the Coast Guard match and fifth in the entire field was Lt. Col. Elgin Radcliff of Pennsylvania, Army's Pacific team member stationed at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii.

The Army also took second, third and fourth places in the Service weapon division of the Navy Cup Match. Finishing in that order were Captain John W. Kolb of Little Rock, Arkansas, Fort Ord's Captain Hjalmar Erickson, and Major Ben C. Curtis of Chicago. The match winner was Marine M/Sgt. Mark Beebe of San Diego.

Captain Joseph Sainato, European team member from Harding, West Virginia, fired 99 out of a possible century to be fourth in the Service weapon division of the Members' Trophy match.

In the tourney's next-to-last day three members of the U. S. Army team won special certificates for their marksmanship in the International Aggregate Match. The Army winners were: Captain Murvale O. Belson of Macon, Georgia, who finished eighth place with 669 out of 800; M/Sgt. Francis B. Conway, 18th place; and Captain William Brophy, 20th place.

The winner of the Aggregate was Emmet O. Swanson of Minneapolis, a Lt. Colonel in the Marine Reserve. He won the Meister Trophy with 734 points out of a possible 800.

In other competition that day, the Army personnel failed to make as impressive a performance as they did in the preceding day's events. However, nine Army shooters did score high enough to finish within the first ten in the Service weapon division of the events conducted.

The winners, all of whom received bronze medals, were competing against approximately 500 firers.

In the Service Rifle division of the Marine Corps Cup match, sixth, seventh and eighth places went to Captain Edward M. Leach, of the Alaska team; Captain Charles S. Gordon, Missourian Fifth Army team member, and Pfc. Jerome Seubert of Milwaukee, also a member of the Fifth Army team.

The match went to Ammon E. Bedl, of Hummelton, Pennsylvania, who fired a perfect score.

In the same division of the Leech Cup Match, third, fourth, fifth and sixth places were taken by Sgt. Richard Parker, European team member; 1st Lt. Wilton R. Boies of Costa Mesa, California, also of the European team; 2nd Lt. Howard R. Woosley of Kansas City, Missouri, Fourth Army team member, and Captain Richard J. Winn, of Altadena, California, who fired for the Alaska team. Tenth place was taken by Captain Joseph Sainato.

One Army rifleman, a member of the Alaska team, finished among the top ten scorers in the Service weapon division of the Scott Trophy Match. He was Lt. Col. John H. Belles, of Pottstown, Pennsylvania. Finishing in eighth place, Col. Belles shot a 98, compared to the perfect century, which won the match for Parris Island Marine Pfc. Diamond R. Austin.

Out of the 65 teams entered, our own Sixth Army Rifle Team finished in a hard-fought for and coveted seventh place.

Other positioning of Army teams saw Fifth Army in eighth; U. S. Army in tenth; Third Army, 11th; Pacific team, 14th; European team, 15th; Seventh Army, 20th; Alaskan team, 22nd; and Fort Belvoir, 24th.

The tournament's final match concluded the championship competition at Camp Perry—an Ohio State National Guard installation some 80 miles west of Cleveland.

The Army firers left the grounds with five championship trophies and innumerable medals.

A Big Affair

Next Monday marks the opening of the 1953 All-Sixth Softball Championship, which is to be held here at the Presidio, 14-19 September. Special Services, Sixth Army, reports an imposing list of entries, which includes Alaska Communications System, Seattle, Washington; Fort Lewis, Washington; Fort Lawton, Washington; Dugway Proving Grounds, Utah; Camp Irwin, California; Camp Stoneman, California; Fort Ord, California; Camp Roberts, California; Letterman Army Hospital, San Francisco, and last, but by no means least, the Presidio of San Francisco. Pairings will be made on Monday morning.

Heavystickers Vie

In Fort Ord batting championship, J. W. Porter and Bob Klingner are having a close battle. Both are hitting around the .350 mark.

Rhode Island, ex-Boston Brave lefthander, yielded only three hits as the Fort Lee, Va., Travelers, Second Army champions, turned back the Fort Jackson, S. C., Golden Arrows 4-1.

The Fort Belvoir, Va., Military District of Washington Champions drubbed the Brooke AMC 13-4. Cpl. Tom Poholsky of Detroit, Mich., ex-St. Louis Cardinal right-hander, was the winner, as he limited BAMC to seven safeties.

The Brooke team fielded a total of four hurlers in their attempt to staunch the Belvoir bats. They included Pfc. Don Newcombe, ex-Brooklyn Dodger pitcher, Pfc. Ralph Butler of Washington, D. C., Pfc. John Wals of Baltimore, Md., and George Susce, of Sarasota, Fla.

Fort Jackson sparked against the Fort Shafter Commanders, shellacking them 8-0. Sgt. Joe Landrum, ex-Brooklyn Dodger right-hander, held the Commanders to one hit. Pvt. Maynard Throneberry, ex-Boston outfielder, homered with one on base in the sixth bracket.

The Shafter Commanders lost their second game to the Fort Dix First Army champions to be put out of the running with Fort Ord.

Dodgers Host POWs

The Brooklyn Dodgers set up a chow line in the Ebbets Field clubhouse for three guests, all repatriated POWs. Shown (clockwise) are Dodgers Clem Labine, Carl Erskine, Jackie Robinson and Preacher Roe, Korean veterans Sgt. Wesley Murray, Sgt. Pedro Pereira and Cpl. Leonard Chiarelli.

ROTC CADETS IN SCHOOLS of the Sixth Army area will be enrolling this month in programs that have been revised to conform with budgetary limitations established by Congress last year. More than one thousand students in this Army area received commissions upon their graduation at the end of the last school year. The ceremony at the University of California, Berkeley, shown above, is typical of those held at other schools throughout the Sixth Army. (Army photo by Weiss.)

Army Moves To Tighten Regulations For Junior, Senior ROTC Programs

Opening of fall terms of the schools in the Sixth Army area this month will launch new junior and senior ROTC programs revised to conform with the over-all plans to reduce officer strengths made necessary by budgetary limits set by Congress this year.

Most of the adjustments concern the senior program. However, the necessary modifications are not expected to change the program to any great extent from that of last year.

"March On," Joint Military TV Show, Begins Third Year

"Operation Television," a joint television enterprise combining Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine and Coast Guard activities, will resume productions in Seattle over KING-TV, with the initial airing set for 26 September at 1900.

The series, ready to begin its third year, is entitled "March On," and is directed and produced by Mr. Lee Schulman, program director for KING-TV. Members of the production staff include Cpl. James M. Henneberry, Army; S/Sgt. Edmund B. Meyers, USAF; Lt. Commander Thomas S. Herbert, USN.

In 1952, the program was awarded first place in the local and regional classification for a public affairs program as awarded by the Institute for Education by Radio-Television, Ohio State university.

Military talent from installations in the Seattle-Tacoma Puget Sound area donate their time and services, while KING-TV donates the very necessary 30 minutes plus their technicians, and cooperative businessmen in the area give the props and other materials used in the shows.

"Service Salute," usually a seven-minute film, each week focuses on a special activity of the service branch chosen to be saluted, and spot news events are also featured, thus combining information with entertainment.

Enrollments in the junior program are limited by the establishment of quotas for each military district. These quotas are at approximately 90 per cent of the fall enrollment of last year.

Department of the Army has announced that every effort will be made to commission and call to active duty all Army ROTC graduates in the class of 1954.

However, members of the class of 1955 have been warned of the probability that not all Army ROTC graduates may be given commissions.

"If ceilings on the strength of the officer corps should preclude the calling in of all 1955 graduates as officers, we will necessarily have to withhold commissions from the excess," James P. Mitchell, Assistant Secretary of the Army, has stated. "In addition, and for related reasons, we can give no assurance that a graduate will be commissioned in the branch he has pursued as his choice."

Members of the class of 1955 have been informed the Army intends to make as adequate provisions as possible for recognizing the training and potential qualifications of those who may complete the course but cannot be immediately commissioned.

In order to control more effectively branch assignments of newly commissioned officers, enrollment quotas for third year students have been allotted to branch material ROTC unit by branch. These quotas are predicated upon the capabilities of the ROTC program and not on the projected needs of the active Army.

The number of commissions to be granted 1955 graduates will depend upon the situation existing at the time of graduation. Those not commissioned will receive a certificate of completion of the course.

Quotas for enrollment of members of the class of 1955 are generally adequate to accommodate most qualified graduates of the basic course. Enrollments in the Transportation Corps, Military Police and Quartermaster Corps units are curtailed because of existing over-production in those branches.

The revised program calls for strict compliance to the physical, moral and academic standards in selection and retention of cadet. A system of specially designed classification tests is now being devised to assist in determining whether or not individual cadets should be continued in the program. These tests will be given third-year students this fall and thereafter during the spring term of the second-year.

The Army's Third Infantry Division—the Marne Division—suffered more casualties in World War II than any other division. Its troops earned 34 Medals of Honor in 531 days of battle.

Honors Galore!

20-Year-Old Master Sergeant Is 'Soldier of Year' at Roberts

To be a master sergeant—and only 20 years old—is something.

To be a master sergeant, 20 years old, and "Soldier of the Year," is more than something.

M/Sgt. Floyd M. Underwood is the man. And he has been named the most outstanding enlisted man of the 7th Armored Division at Camp Roberts.

Colonel Willis E. Vincent, Post personnel officer and chairman of the selection board, said "the choice was based primarily on who had contributed the most to the accomplishments of the entire Camp Roberts command."

When the office of chief of field forces inspection team visited Camp Roberts last June, Sgt. Underwood at that time was cited in its report for "outstanding individual performance."

Honors accorded the sergeant over the past weekend included presentation of a Certificate of Achievement by Major General Robert F. Sink, commanding general of the 7th Armored Division, and a review of marching units of the Camp Roberts Leader's course.

He was also guest of honor at a civic luncheon arranged by James Madden of the Paso Robles, California, Army advisory committee, had a weekend visit to the Hacienda at Hunter Liggett Military reservation, received a three-day pass and expense-paid trip to Los Angeles and Hollywood, and was presented a special gift from the Division.

Sgt. Underwood joined the Army when he was 17, in his home town of Detroit, Michigan. After basic training at Camp Atterbury, Indiana, he went to Korea where he served with the 2nd Infantry Division as an automatic rifleman.

He rose from private first class in April to master sergeant in December of 1951, and from assistant squad leader to platoon sergeant.

After being assigned to Camp Roberts in early 1952, he attended cadre school and then became field first sergeant of Service battery, 489th Armored Field Artillery battalion.

Sgt. Underwood then went east to attend physical training school at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, following which he returned to Camp Roberts and was assigned to Division Faculty as principal instructor of the physical training group as well as group operations sergeant.

There were eight other men considered for the award with Sgt. Underwood. They included: M/Sgt. Vernon Bartell, M/Sgt. Yomo Hirata, M/Sgt. Harold A. Willcockson, Sgt. Robert L. Militante, M/Sgt. Archie F. Fuqua, Cpl. Donald P. Robertson, M/Sgt. Edward J. Mulcahy, and M/Sgt. Jimmie Allen.

Touring Congressman Here as Reserve Major

Major Alfred D. Sieminski, Democratic congressman from New Jersey, presently on active duty at the Presidio, has been visiting various installations around the Bay area.

The major, accompanied Brigadier General Edward J. McGaw, commanding general of the WAAC, toured the defenses at Headquarters, 30th AAA group recently.

A graduate of Princeton university with a degree in political science, the congressman served as an Infantry major in World War II, and was in the Italian campaign in 1942 and later was assigned to the Austrian Military government.

He was in Korea in 1950 when elected to the 82nd Congress and is a member of the House appropriations committee.

Microbe Hunters Combat Disease

Seoul—A small group of U. S. Army medical men in Korea is fighting armies of tiny disease-bearing enemies.

The 12-man research unit, the 219th Medical Detachment, is studying the habits of rodents and insects in order to find new ways to prevent and fight disease.

In their one-year battle against enemies of health, the unit's two entomologists—authorities on insects—and 10 preventive medicine scientists have recorded more than 73,000 identifications of rats, lice, mites, fleas and mosquito larvae and adults.

In doing this work, they travelled thousands of miles over insect-infested areas of South Korea.

Among the 219th's most important studies is its current research on hemorrhagic fever, also known as Manchurian Fever. This mysterious disease—occurring in limited areas of Korea and other parts of Northeast Asia—was contracted by hundreds of United Nations troops in Korea during the past three years. Exact cause of the disease is not known, but some medical authorities believe it may be a virus transmitted by chiggers or mites that live on rodents.

To catch these rodents, members of the 219th Detachment—accompanied by Republic of Korea policemen—are setting rat traps in Korean houses, stables, barns, and kitchens and stringing lines of traps along streams, on hills and in rice paddies.

The men use a unique trap designed to catch rodents alive. It is made of a beer can fastened to the household type of mouse trap. When the rodent springs the baited trigger, the beer can lid snaps shut.

The unit also is testing the effectiveness of aerial spraying. This work is done in two valleys north of Taegu which are similar to that city in environment and weather. By comparing the number of insects in aerial-sprayed Taegu with those in neighboring untreated valleys, the detachment will be able to estimate the value of the spraying process.

Other research requires washing captured rodents in a special mixture to free them from their parasites, making microscopic studies of mites and insects and catching mosquitoes in "killing tubes" to determine their relation to diseases.

The 219th scientists hope to determine how a deadly mosquito known as culex tritaeniorhynchus spends its winter. This mosquito is the suspected carrier of the dreaded Japanese B encephalitis—a form of inflammation of the brain. If its wintering habits were known, control measures could be used at a time when it is not so prevalent as in the summer.

The unit's research on this mosquito already has helped preventive medical officers determine what measures should be taken to control the threat of Japanese B encephalitis, malaria and other mosquito-borne epidemics.

Entomologists of the 219th also discovered the culex rubiens mosquito in Korea. This brought to 24 the total of recorded species of mosquito in that country. They found the pest mosquito in Korea is culex pipiens which breeds practically anywhere but, so far as is known, is not a disease carrier.

These and other discoveries of the 219th Medical Detachment have helped to harness disease in Korea and protect the health of United Nations soldiers and the civilian population.

"THE LITTLEST HELPER," two and one-half year old "Butch" didn't want to be left out when the Utah Army Reservists came a-calling for clothing to send to the needy in Korea. All Armed Forces Reservists participated in staging the statewide drive for Korean relief. More than 125,000 pounds of clothing were gathered during the two-week campaign. Names of local Reservists were not provided.

That's 125,000 Pounds! Utah Reservists Gather 168 Tons of Clothing for Korea

Ever see 125,000 pounds of clothing—all in one spot?
That much clothing filled eight 21-ton capacity semi-trailers.

And that of course, adds up to 168 tons of clothing—all going to Korea.

This gigantic project was executed by Armed Forces Reservists on active duty training at Fort Douglas and neighboring bases in the Salt Lake City, Utah area.

Reservists from the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines, and the Utah National Guard, snappy in their Class A uniforms, made more than 1,500 calls at homes and fire stations throughout the area over a period covering two weekends.

These Reservists all volunteered their weekend time for this project, with the exception of the 697th and 699th Army Reserve Transportation companies which were on active duty on-the-job training during the two weekends. Assistance was given the Reservists by the Regular establishments of all services.

Held under the auspices of American Relief for Korea incorporated, it was the official clothing drive for the state of Utah. Colonel William C. McFadden, Chief Utah Military district, said that the drive went way beyond all expectations, and that he was "exceedingly pleased."

Ex-Policeman Makes Former Training Pay Military Dividends

White Sands Proving Ground, N. M.—Jocular remarks about the "square pegs in round holes" placement of military personnel can be refuted by Private First Class Joseph F. Berni, stationed here with the Military Police Corps.

Berni, a resident of Lindenhurst Village, N. Y., formerly was a New York policeman before he came into the Army last August.

"This job is like old home week," said Berni as he pounded his beat, and to prove he had lost none of his police technique, he recently captured five prisoners who had escaped from the Proving Ground area.

Berni, relieved of duty and enroute to Las Cruces via bus, recognized the prisoners from the description given the Provost Marshal's office. Unarmed, he left the bus, rounded up all five and turned them over to authorities.

31 Million Saved As Army Closes 23 Installations

Washington—The Army has taken steps to save American taxpayers an estimated $31,000,000 a year by closing 18 Army installations.

The installations which have already been closed or are in the process of being closed are:

1. Camp Edwards, Mass.
2. Camp McCoy, Wis.
3. Camp Cooke, Calif.
4. Camp Drum, N. Y.
5. Fort Custer, Mich.
6. Fort Huachuca, Ariz.
7. Fort Hancock, N. J.
8. Fort Worden, Wash.
9. Fort Flagler, Wash.
10. Fort Adams, R. I.
11. Fort Crockett, Texas
12. Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, Pa.
13. Army Transmitter Station, Alexandria, Va.

A portion of Fort Lawton, Wash., has been closed in the interests of economy.

Five additional camps slated for closing during the forthcoming year are:

1. Camp Breckenridge, Ky.
2. Camp Roberts, Calif.
3. Camp San Luis Obispo, Calif.
4. Camp Rucker, Ala.
5. Camp Atterbury, Ind.

All these stations except Forts Worden and Flagler, Wash., Fort Adams, R. I., and Fort Crockett, Texas, will be kept on a standby status. (ANF)

Figures Show How Army Assigns Men

Washington—More than 658,000 of the Army's 1,500,000 men and women were stationed overseas during the past year.

The remainder of the Army's strength was dispersed approximately as follows:

General reserve	253,000
Trainees	224,000
Operations within the United States	117,000
Training instructors	105,000
Transients	79,000
Students	40,000
Patients	22,000
Department of the Army, administrative area	17,000
Special foreign activities	17,000
Cadets, United States Military Academy	1,700

Pay-Off Is Fast!

Repatriates Returning by Ship Receive Back Pay Promptly

Back pay is an important item to any soldier, but it is particularly important to the men returning home from many months in the prison camps of Korea.

And the repatriates arriving at Fort Mason by ship are receiving their back pay with remarkable speed during the streamlined processing set up to send them on their way as quickly as possible.

This promptness with which they are paid is the result of the system established by Army finance to handle their accounts.

When a prisoner was captured his pay card was sent by his unit to the finance officer at Inchon where it was photostated and then forwarded to the Settlements Division, Finance Section, United States Army, at Indianapolis, Indiana.

He was given credit for combat pay for the entire month during which he was captured and for three additional months, unless his missing-in-action status changed within that period.

All during the period of his captivity, the prisoner's pay card was kept current by the Inchon finance office with new cards opened every six months even though there was no activity to record. Any information, such as promotion after capture, that affected his pay was posted to the card.

The prisoner's pay card at the Settlements Division was also kept up to date. Here, too, any changes affecting his pay were noted. The changes most likely to be posted in this office were establishment of new allotments by dependents.

When the prisoner was repatriated, a regular pay card was opened by the Inchon finance office from his photostatic records.

Upon his repatriation, each prisoner was promoted one grade, depending upon his grade and length of captivity. Effective date of these promotions was 1 May 1953.

When he left Inchon, the freed prisoner was given his pay card and a statement of account showing what was due him. With these records, which he carries with him, he is able to be paid upon his arrival.

Most of the former prisoners do not arrive at Fort Mason pen-

Peas-in-a-Pod!

Eta Jima, Japan—Those famous peas-in-a-pod are going to have to move over for Army Privates George and Martin Junga of 40 Magyar St., Toledo, Ohio.

The Jungas, who took an Army stenographer's course here are about as identical as twins can get—and it's not just skin deep.

The proof? In their shorthand test both men made 100 per cent. In an administrative quiz the Jungas, seated on opposite sides of the room, both scored 97 per cent, each missing one question—the same one.

niless, having received partial payments after their release or from finance officers aboard ship. However, a few receive their first money here.

The men are paid in both cash and by check. They are urged to keep the cash payments to $300, but will be given more or all that is due them in cash if they request it.

Officials here notify the Settlements Division of the repatriate's next station upon his return from furlough and his regular pay card is sent to the finance officer at this station. When he arrives at his new station, the former prisoner will have an adjusted record.

Finance personnel of Fort Mason, Letterman Army Hospital, Oakland Army Base and the Presidio are all participating in the handling of the payments and the issuance of their travel pay. As much work as possible is done before the arrival of the ships from rosters issued in advance.

The speed with which the men receive their pay and travel money is attributed by one officer to "long days and hard nights" of work by finance personnel.

Quick Citizenships!

Naturalization Is Made Easier For Alien Personnel at Army

Applications for quick United States citizenship for alien personnel of the Army are now being received by the San Francisco district office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service and other offices of the Service in the Sixth Army area.

Colonel William C. Holley

Col. William Holley Named Commander Of 30th Engineers

Colonel William C. Holley has become the new commanding officer of the 30th Engineer Base Topographic battalion. He replaces Lt. Colonel James W. Free, who is presently awaiting an overseas assignment, after having served with the 30th Engineers since May 1950.

Colonel Holley's last assignment was as Post Engineer, Indiantown Gap Military reservation, Pennsylvania, where he served from October 1951 to July of this year.

In Korea, Colonel Holley commanded the advance party of the famous 1st Cavalry Division, entering at the outset of the fighting in the summer of 1950, and was the Division Engineer of the 1st Cavalry and Battalion Commander of the 8th Engineer Combat battalion for the year ending March 1951.

During World War II, from December 1942 through November 1945, Colonel Holley was Division Engineer of the 91st Infantry Division and commanding officer of the 316th Engineer Combat battalion of the 91st. The 91st fought from the vicinity of Rome on up the Italian peninsula.

The colonel has been decorated with the Silver Star Medal, the Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Bronze Star for Valor, the Air Medal, the Korean theater ribbon with four campaign stars, and the ETO ribbon with three campaign stars.

Receiving his BS degree with the Corps of Engineers from Oregon State college, class of 1938, Colonel Holley entered the Army on 1 July of that year. He later received his MS in engineering from Harvard university.

He has just returned from a visit to the forward echelon of the 30th Engineer battalion which is now doing survey work in Alaska for the Army map service.

Automatic Screening

Washington—The Army's portable, automatic screening audiometer tests the hearing ability of 50 soldiers within two minutes.

Under the new law passed by the last Congress, non-citizen members of the Army must have served at least 90 days after 1 June 1950 and before 1 July 1955 to qualify. They must have been lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence or lawfully admitted and have been a resident for a period of not less than a full year before having entered into service.

Application forms are available at all Immigration and Naturalization offices in the Sixth Army area—in San Francisco, at 630 Sansome street. These forms include an application and supplement, a certification of military service and a certification of character by the individual's commanding officer.

After the completed forms have been returned to the Immigration and Naturalization office, the naturalization officials begin an investigation, including a check with the Adjutant General.

When this investigation is finished, the applicant is called for a hearing during which he will be tested on his knowledge of such subjects as American history and the Constitution. He will be accompanied to the hearing by two officers or two non-commissioned officers as character references.

The oath of allegiance will be administered later in court. The citizenship may be revoked later if the individual is discharged from the service under conditions other than honorable.

Naturalization officials estimate a period of from six to eight weeks will be required for the processing unless complications occur to extend the necessary time.

Presidio personnel may secure advice in submitting their application from Mr. Ralph P. Sheldon, legal assistance counsellor, in the office of the Post Judge Advocate, Building 201. Mr. Sheldon already has assisted 15 persons in filing their applications since the law became effective last month.

An official in Washington has estimated the Army has between 9,000 and 10,000 alien personnel.

Low Ranks Now Need Approval to Re-enlist

Washington—Regular Army enlistments and re-enlistments of personnel in the bottom three pay grades will be limited to individuals who can get okay from their respective unit commanders for reassignment in their own units.

Under recent changes in AR 615-360, June 24, 1953, covering general provisions in EM discharges, a statement from the CO to the effect that a lower three grader will be accepted in his old unit is necessary for enlistment or re-enlistment. This was spelled out in paragraph 5a (3) (e), SR 615-105-1.

November Quota Set

Army draft quota for November has been set at 23,000 according to the Defense Department. This is the same figure which has been called for the past few months. The Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force do not intend to place calls with Selective Service for November.

Serving Those Who Serve A Nation!

Vol. 2, No. 16 PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA Friday, 18 September, 1953

HOME WELCOMINGS for returning former prisoners of war will take place for the final time Tuesday when the last of eight Navy transports carrying repatriates arrives in San Francisco. The reunion shown above occurred Sunday as Cpl. Carl D. Peterson was greeted by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Peterson of Hermleigh, Texas, after his return on the Marine Phoenix. Two More Shiploads POWs Arrive; Last Group Will Be Home Next Week

When the Navy transport General R. L. Howze docks at Fort Mason early next week, the last of more than three thousand American repatriated prisoners of war to be returned to this country by ship will have arrived in San Francisco.

The General Howze is scheduled to reach the Golden Gate Tuesday with 303 freed prisoners aboard. In the meantime, the General A. W. Brewster carrying 301 former POWs is due at Fort Mason Sunday.

Two shiploads of returning repatriates arrived earlier this week, the General William Black with 428 POWs on Wednesday and the Marine Phoenix with 374 former prisoners on Sunday. The group aboard the General Black was the second largest to be returned at one time and included 351 Army, 56 Air Force, 16 Marine Corps and five Navy personnel.

Eight Navy transports, operated by the Military Sea Transport Service, and the Navy Hospital Ship Haven have been used to return the men from Korea.

The first shipload of repatriates, 328, in all, arrived in San Francisco on 23 August aboard the General Nelson M. Walker. Next followed the General William F. Hase with the largest group totaling 437. The Navy Hospital Ship Haven with 103 sick and wounded freed prisoners docked at Fort Mason 4 September. The two other transports to arrive prior to this week were the Marine Adder carrying 367 POWs on 6 September and the General John Pope with 442 more on 9 September.

The total number of repatriates to be returned to this country by ship will be 3,083 by the time the final transport docks Tuesday. The United Nations Command has announced that 3,597 Americans were returned during Operation Big Switch. Those seriously ill were flown to Travis Air Force Base and then taken to Army hospitals nearest their homes.

Immediately after the arrival of the ships, the returning pris-sons are started through a special processing system so that they can start on their ways home as fast as possible. The processing is done by a team of 60 technicians and officers from Camp Stoneman in a warehouse adjacent to the pier where the ships dock.

The normal procedure of sending returnees to Army stations nearest their homes before granting leave was changed to permit each to leave for his home, directly from the dock. Leave orders for the repatriates are issued prior to docking of the transports and are distributed during the processing. Those whose families are at the dock to meet them are processed first so they may leave immediately.

The men who have to wait for their turn to be processed are brought to the Presidio to rest. If they have to wait for transportation after being processed, they are returned to the club until their departure time.

The processing, which normally takes at least 24 hours, is usually completed in less than half that time.

Orth Appointed

Franklin L. Orth, Milwaukee attorney, has been appointed Special Assistant for Reserve Forces to the Secretary of the Army. He will be concerned with the programs for all civilian components including the Army Reserve, National Guard and Reserve Officers Training Corps. During WWII he served in Burma, where he commanded an Infantry combat team.

Weekly World News
AT A GLANCE

AT THE UNITED NATIONS, Mme. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, sister of India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, was chosen president of the U.N. General Assembly Tuesday to become the first woman to preside over the 60-nation Assembly. She is a veteran U.N. delegate and also has served her country as Ambassador to Washington and to Moscow. . . . Prior to election of a new president, the Assembly approved a resolution by the United States to postpone for the rest of the year all proposals to seat Red China in the United Nations. The delegates also voted against a move by the Soviet delegation to remove Nationalist China and give the Peiping regime a seat.

IN KOREA, the United Nations command still had received no reply by Thursday from the Communists on the issue of 3,404 Allied prisoners, including more than 900 Americans, believed still held in captivity. Communist propaganda broadcasts have called the list "faked," indicating the Reds will reject the Allied demand for an accounting. . . . The Communists served notice Wednesday that Red planes would start flying from a new airfield only 30 miles from Seoul and warned in advance that aircraft might "accidentally" fly over forbidden demilitarized territory. . . . The city of Seoul was revived Thursday as the capital of South Korea. The government and national assembly completed their return after three years of wartime exile.

IN INDO-CHINA, Premier Pen Nouth says Cambodia wants independence, plus military aid from France and the United States, to fight the Communist-led Vietminh. He avoided discussion of a neutral offer he broadcast last Friday to the 10,000 or so Rebel troops operating within the little kingdom that is one of the three associated states in Indo-China. Official French sources in Saigon said the French-Cambodian negotiators, attempting to define the role of an independent Cambodia in the seven-year-old Indo-China war, have reached agreement on the main issues, though nothing has yet been signed and further talks are necessary. . . . Meanwhile, French union troops in Laos captured two command posts seized by Communist-led rebels in last spring's drive on the royal capital. The action was part of the precautionary operations being pressed in anticipation of a new Vietminh offensive, which is expected within the next couple of weeks. Though most of the Moscow trained men withdrew from Laos last spring, some stayed behind on potential invasion routes to Southern Laos and Cambodia.

IN TOKYO, a government spokesman announced Tuesday that the United States has agreed to a Japanese proposal for relaxing restrictions on trade with Communist China. Eleven items were dropped from the contraband list including caustic soda and soda ash, ammonium sulphate, titanic oxide, mixed paint, leather and rubber belts, filament electric bulbs, wire netting, microscopes for medical and school uses and film projectors. The Japanese government had asked for American agreement to exclude 20 items from the list, but the United States agreed to only eleven.

IN SWITZERLAND, the wife and three children of missing British diplomat Donald MacLean disappeared Friday from their home in Geneva and police speculated that they may be behind the Iron Curtain. MacLean and a fellow diplomat dropped out of sight at Rennes, France, 26 May 1951, and have not been heard from since that time. Police found the first clue to the missing family Thursday when the woman's car was located in a garage in Lausanne.

IN WEST GERMANY, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer began a diplomatic offensive to save the lagging European Army plan by proposing immediate negotiations to settle French-German differences. In a letter to French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, the Chancellor said "The time has now come for our two nations to settle their differences." Adenauer considers French fears of West Germany's growing strength and the long French-German controversy over the future of the coal-rich Saar basin as the principal stumbling blocks to ratification of the proposed European Defense Community pact.

IN EAST GERMANY, a mutiny by 2000 members of the East German People's Police was crushed by Russian tanks and troops, a Western Berlin information bureau reports. The Soviet Zone police reportedly rebelled against their Russian training officers at Pinnow barracks near Angermunde. When the mutiny broke out, both Soviet and East German police officers barricaded themselves in a barracks and called for reinforcements. . . . An East German newspaper in Potsdam reported Thursday the burning of a Communist state food store by East Germans enraged over the Red seizure of American food parcels. A sign was erected on the ruins saying, "Potsdamers, help to expose the Fascist arsonists."

IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA, the nation's Communist government reorganized itself along the latest Soviet lines. Tightening of controls over the police and agriculture was among the effects of a wholesale shift of ministers. The number of ministries was cut from 30 to 16. Fourteen of the original ministers were consolidated into seven and a 12-man governing presidium of ministers apparently was dissolved and replaced by a group of six men.

IN RUSSIA, nine of the Soviet government ministries have been affected by a reorganization this week. Three ministers, abolished last March in the reshuffle following the death of Joseph Stalin were reestablished last Wednesday. They are highway transport, geology, and aviation production. Tuesday five new ministries were formed and the function of a sixth—agriculture and procurement—was considerably altered. Tuesday's changes dealt with foodstuffs, manufactures, consumer goods, domestic and foreign trade and state farms.

IN EGYPT, a state of emergency was proclaimed after the government announced it had uncovered a plot by an unnamed foreign power to overthrow the regime of President Mohammed Neguib. A government spokesman said the aims of the plotters included the formation of an Egyptian front to overthrow the existing regime by spreading a spirit of hatred and opposition and restoration of the monarch or, at least, removal of leaders in the present regime.

Billions for Defense!

A total of $28.6 billion was obligated by the Defense Department during the fiscal year 1953 for the procurement of major equipment and supplies, military construction and expansion of military production facilities. The Army obligated $6.5 billion, Navy $7.8 billion, and the AF $14.2 billion, while interdepartmental construction led to obligation of $0.1 billion.

Officers Recently Assigned

Lt. Colonel Howard A. Gorman has become the new chief, Pictorial division, Signal section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

He has served the past 39 months in the Far East where he was both assistant executive officer, Signal section, and Pictorial division director for GHQ, later renamed US Army Forces, FEC, Japan.

In World War II, Colonel Gorman served in the ETO, office of the general purchasing agent. He was the Army representative named to deal with the Dutch and Belgian governments on matters of "Reverse Lend-Lease."

Colonel Gorman has had 12 years of Army service.

Lt. Colonel Bernard J. Nagle, battalion commander, 7th Armored Division, Camp Roberts, California, for the past seven months, is now with the survey branch, manpower division, G-1 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

In Korea at the outset of hostilities, Colonel Nagle served in the civil affairs section of 8th Army (UNCAC) from August 1950 to October 1951. For his service there he received the Bronze Star Medal.

Returning to Japan, the colonel then spent 16 months in Japan as comptroller of the Eta Jima Specialist school.

Colonel Nagle has been in the Army for the past 12 years.

Chaplain (Major) Orlando V. Hayne, Protestant Army chaplain, has joined the Sixth Army Chaplains group and will serve service personnel stationed at Fort Mason.

Post chaplain at the Camp San Luis Obispo, California, Signal school for the past five months, Chaplain Hayne has spent eight of

A Hint to the Wise!

VA Offers 10 Tips to K-Vets Planning to Re-Enter School

Washington—The following ten tips for veterans planning to go back to school under the Korea GI Bill have been handed out by the Veterans Administration:

1. The veteran should give careful thought to his choice of training, being sure it will lead to the desired goal. The law allows the individual to change his program only once.
2. He may request vocational counseling to help arrive at a training choice. To apply he needs only to fill in the appropriate space on the VA application form for GI training.
3. The course must be state-approved. Any VA regional office can give this information.
4. To save time and trouble the Vet should find out in advance if he can be admitted to the school before he files his application with the VA.
5. Applications for training certificates should be sent to the VA as early as possible.
6. Check applications thoroughly before mailing them to the VA. Time may be lost through errors or missing information. A photostat or certified copy of separation papers should accompany application.
7. Forms should be sent to the nearest regional office, not VA headquarters in Washington.
8. A veteran with dependents who requests allowance for dependents must provide proof of dependency when it is requested by the VA. For a wife, he must furnish a marriage certificate, and for a child, a birth certificate.
9. The trainee should have enough money to tide him over for at least the first two months of schooling. Before the VA can make a payment, it must receive certification from the school and the veteran that he was actually in training for the month for which the check allowance is paid. Payment is made after the end of each month of training completed.
10. Veterans are reminded to submit certification of training to the VA as soon after the end of each month as possible. (AFPS)

Stoneman Hosp. Head Named College Chief

Colonel Lawrence B. Hanson, commanding officer of the Camp Stoneman Army hospital, was named a member of the American College of Hospital Administrators in San Francisco last week.

The 49-year-old Colonel Hanson, a veteran of World War II and Korea, has been at Camp Stoneman since July 1952. He was commissioned in the Army Medical corps in 1929, following ceremonies at the University of Iowa where he received his degree in medicine.

In 1952, Colonel Hanson earned his Masters degree in hospital administration at the University of California.

Sports Flash

The 505th MP's slugged their way to a fourth straight victory of the tournament in Thursday afternoon's 6-3 thriller against Fort Ord. The victory makes the Presidians finalists in the All-Sixth Army affair.

In concurrent action on diamond two Camp Irwin thrashed the Letterman Army Hospital nine 11-5, eliminating LAH from play.

These results will produce a semi-final meeting between once-beaten Irwin and once-beaten Fort Ord this morning, and the winner will clash with the unbeaten 505th MP's for the tournament crown.

The 505th took their first win against the Fort Lawton Bulldogs Monday. The first appearance of the locals produced an animated and screaming crowd of 1500 who had turned out to give the Presidians full backing in their try for the Area title.

Biggest bat for the MP's was "Chief" Asepermy, who knocked three for three off Lawton chucker Paul Moosman. The game registered a total of nine safe hits for the Presidians.

In fielding the MP's worked a tight, well-precisioned defensive game.

Second win of the week for the Presidians came in their 8-5 victory over Dugway Proving Grounds.

Dugway led 5-3 into the sixth inning, whereupon the 505th combined two walks and a pair of errors to tie the score and load the bases.

With two outs Lt. Joe Papp came to the plate and thrashed a strategically-placed single to left field. An overthrow to home brought in the winning run and put Papp on second.

An insurance run was scored seconds later when heavysticker Asepermy poled a safe single to score Papp and clinch the game.

The high-point in Wednesday's 505th-Letterman Army Hospital game came in the bottom of the seventh and last bracket. LAH had the bags loaded and two out. Catcher Goss for the MP's caught one of the medic runners off first base, and between secondacker "Boots" Butsumyo and shortstop Asepermy, who had dashed in to cover the play, it took several seconds for the locals to make that final out.

They Came for the Title!

Dugway Shows Good Strength Though Not the Kind to Beat

One of the sharper-looking outfits entered in the All-Sixth softball shindig this week turned out to be the Dugway Proving Grounds contingent, who registered with tournament officials under the managership of Captain Sidney Gerstenhaber 13 of the best diamond specialists that installation had to offer.

Dugway showed brilliantly against the 466th AAA nine, lambasting them to a resounding 24-6 score. Less luck met them in their two later games, when they were beaten first by the tough Presidio MP's, 8-5, then on Wednesday by Camp Irwin, 13-9, which caused their elimination from the tournament.

Biggest bats for Dugway were Pvt. Bob Sauerberg, short stop, who hit .350 with the team before entering the Sixth Army contest, and Pfc. Cal Giangrossi, of Glassmere, Pa., who has experience in Chattanooga, AA Ball and averaged .325 with the Dugway group.

Certainly not one of the lightest bats on the Dugway Proving Ground's roster of artillery this week was Gino Ferrarse, who hails from Framingham, Massachusetts.

As a youngster, just out of Curry College, Ferrarse chalked up quite a remarkable list of major league teams who were ready to take him on.

Just prior to his entry in the Service in '49 he spent a spring on the road with the Brooklyn Dodgers. In his short-stop position with them, he batted out a pre-season .296, then in March of that year donned khaki.

Ferrarse also saw some action in the Cardinal, Indian and Red Sox training camps, and his ambition these days, naturally, is to return to professional ballplaying. He expects to sign with the Cardinals.

Army Pistol Team Takes Nat'l Trophy At Camp Perry

Camp Perry, Ohio—An Army pistol team fired 1,103 points out of 1,200 possible to edge the Los Angeles police squad with their 1,099 for the National Team Trophy. The Marine Corps was third with 1,083.

In the National Trophy individual match sponsored by the Army, Marine Corps M/Sgt. Jules C. Palmer scored 287 points out of 300 possible for top honors. He fired a 95 in the 50-yd. slow fire, 97 in the 25-yd. time fire, and 95 in the 25-yd. rapid fire.

Army CWO O. K. Weinmeister, Ft. Knox, Ky., finished second with 281; Lt. Col. Walter Walsh, Marine Corps, third with 280.

The champion Army National Trophy team included: CWO Weinmeister; Maj. D. C. Curtis; M/Sgt. Huelet E. Bennett, U. S. Military Academy; and Capt. Lawrence E. Enterkin.

Prize Bulldog

Fort Lawton's valuable shortstop is Ernest Blanco—who is valuable to more people than Lawton. Before the Service he played with the Fort Smith, Arkansas, pro team in Western Association "C" ball, batting .274 in '52. He will go back into baseball after the Army and has a Cleveland contract plus bonus to go on.

American sportswriters and sportscasters have elected Byron Nelson, Ben Hogan and Sam Snead to the PGA hall of fame, the PGA of America announced recently.

GINO FERRARSE looks mighty rugged here, and his bat usually speaks for itself, but the strong lefthander's Dugway team was eliminated by Camp Irwin.

Irwin Guns

Two ballplayers prized highly by Camp Irwin's team manager Lt. George Wooten are pitcher John Lyszyk—whose name is almost as impressive as his curve ball—and Dick Colone. Lyszyk hails from Pittsburgh, Pa., while Colone is from Detroit, Michigan.

Colone played two years of pro ball in the Middle West before his entry into the Army and as a pitcher held a 13-6 record prior to Service. Owned by the Detroit Tigers, he plans to go to Montgomery, Ala., for AA Baseball when he is released.

A Tough Go

It happened in the bottom of the seventh inning in the softball tilt between Camp Stoneman and the Alaska Communications System. Both teams previously had suffered one loss each, and to drop this game meant elimination from the tournament.

Stoneman's pitcher and heavysticker Cpl. John Lovell came up to bat with two men out and the bases loaded. The outcome of the game seemed to rest on his shoulders.

Lovell took three straight balls from ASC hurler Delbert Wickline, then two strikes.

On the pay-off pitch Lovell connected solidly for what appeared to be a safe single between second and third base. But as the ball plunged through the gap in the sacks, Gene Woods, Stoneman thirdacker, running from second to third, inadvertently ran into it, producing an automatic out and the end of the ball game.

MIGHTY "CHIEF" ASEPERMY, 505th Military Police ace shortstop, takes a hefty wallop at Paul Moosman's pitch in the tourney-opener for the Presidio representatives against the Fort Lawton nine on Monday. With the aid of bats like Asepermy's and a tight defensive skein built up by the MP infield, the Presidio favorites won 10-0. Lawton catcher shown here is Bruce Erickson. (505th photo)

Fans Term Tourney Play---The Greatest!

They Might Have Made It!

Roberts Suffers Pair of Swift Defeats, Eliminated from Play

Biggest surprise upset of the All-Sixth Army softball contest here this week proved to be the sudden elimination of the Camp Roberts 7th Quartermaster representation.

The QM nine had only recently swept to the Roberts softball title in an easy 8-2 victory over the runner-up Reserve Command team to earn the right to represent the installation in the Area test. And it seemed that if any team had the place next to Ord and the Presidio as a pre-tourney favorite the 7th QM did.

But as luck would have it, Roberts drew the Ord team for their first game on Tuesday and took their initial beating, 6-2, then and there.

The Alaska Communications System boys, a bunch of tight-knit, hard-playing sportsmen in spite of their over-all diminutive stature, played seven innings of die-hard ball to produce the second Roberts loss of the week, a squeaking 2-1 victory, to eliminate them for good.

The ACS nine had previously been the first-game victims of the Fort Lewis contingent in a 7-0 loss that same morning.

Much of the hopes of the Roberts team had rested on the shoulders and strong right arm of one Bill Mataya, the whipping hurler who had mowed down all opposition in the intramural tests down south.

But again luck intervened. Mataya was suffering from a severe cold this week and his chucking, as he admitted, was never up to par.

The hitting side of the picture for the Robertsmen fought a losing battle against Ord and ACS defense. Pvt. Merrill Schelich, clean-up man for the Roberts All-Stars baseball team, which posted second in the recent All-Sixth title games, had joined the team. Schelich was a consistent long-ball hitter and power man at plate, and this week served defensively on the first base pad.

Besides Schelich, the QM heavy guns were augmented by outfielder Pvt. Dave Fuchs, the team's leading hitter with a .372 season average, rightfielder Pvt. Marvin Jonas and CF Pvt. James Charquet.

Manager Cpl. Cliff Nall fielded a smooth-working infield combination of Pvt. Vernon Steward at third, Pvt. Keith Johnson at short, Pvt. Ward Bonnett at second, with Schelich at first.

Lawton Hurler

Fort Lawton's prize softball chucker, Paul Moosman, played semi-pro softball in the Washington, Mo., City League before entering the Service. He registered a 17-3 win-loss record in 1951, and plans to return there to school on his release from the Army.

By PFC. BRUCE LANSBURY
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

A rough total of one hundred and sixty-eight softballers from twelve of the Sixth Army's installations took to the Main Athletic Field here at the Presidio on Monday, their over-all purpose being to hurl, scramble and belt their respective team colors to the 1953 All-Sixth Army Softball Championship.

They came from almost every state in the union, from Framingham, Massachusetts, to San Francisco, California. Boys with and without previous competitive experience—here a Factory and Church-Leaguer, there a Brooklynese-talking bonus player with the Giants. But whatever their playing experience, they came to beat the best the Sixth Army had to offer.

The prospect at Monday morning's mass meeting in the Presidio's gym looked mighty tough. As Lt. Roland Daigle, sports official, and Sixth Army representative WOJG Urban Araujo explained at the time, there were 22 to 24 games to be played out by this afternoon, the number depending on how the eliminations developed.

That meant four games in the morning, four in the afternoon, with two matches going on simultaneously, back-to-back, on the Presidio's diamonds one and two. It meant that the games had to start at 0830 sharp, and there was still no promise that a few of them wouldn't have to be run after dinner.

It sounds like something of a baseball mill—but a champion had to be found.

And this afternoon a championship team will be found. They'll be awarded the Sixth Army Commander's Trophy, symbol of their Area title, and then they'll get a crack at the all-important All-Army championship to be held in the Military District of Washington 5-10 October.

Teams entered are: Presidio of San Francisco (represented by the 505th Military Police Battalion training cadre); Fort Lawton, Washington; Dugway Proving Grounds, Utah; 466th AAA, March AFB, Riverside, California; Camp Irwin, California; Camp Stoneman, California; Sharpe General Depot, Stockton, California; Letterman Army Hospital, San Francisco; Alaska Communications System, Seattle, Washington; Fort Lewis, Washington; Camp Roberts, California, and Fort Ord, California.

Watch That Sizzler!

Fort Ord Enters Tournament Strong in Pitching Department

The Fort Ord softball team came to the All-Sixth tournament here at the Presidio this week loaded for bear.

The Braves entered the championship games as representatives of the Ord installation by virtue of their final two-round defeat over the Ord Finance Section, 10-0 and 3-1, which made them kingpins in the Post intra-mural league there.

They were runners-up in the local Pacific Grove Softball League Championship, losing the title on a decision by the umpire, which some of the tourney's participants, his wind-up alone is enough to put the batter off.

Lige Morris, who has no such eccentricity to embellish his style, settles for a supersonic curve. Most of his pitches cut the plate at such a terrific speed his opponents hardly have time to generate a swing.

And as a softball hurler Lige already has quite a background. The former Ord Braves infielder (hardball) aided the Taft, California, Merchants hurl their way to the World Professional Softball crown in 1947. Morris pitched gratis then, wanting to retain his amateur standing for high school sports.

In 1950 Lige was signed by the Cleveland Indians and until his induction played with the Yuma nine in the Southwest International League and the Bakersfield Indians (Class C) of the California League.

Whatever the outcome of this week's wild softball melee up on the Presidio's Main Field it's a cinch every batter on the entire Sixth Army roster will go away with a memory of Lige Morris, Lee Cameron—and the Ord team as a whole.

MANUEL FIERRO is the fast-moving third-base specialist with the Fort Ord nine. Fierro hails from Delano, California, and pitched for the Bakersfield Indians prior to his entry into the Army. (Photo by Weiss) gave the crown to their opponents on a 1-0 win. Both teams had been tied for first place at the time and were replaying a protested game. A first-rate, hard-playing team, the Braves aren't used to losing.

And their power as a team is due in no small part to their tremendous pitching assets. In this week's games they fielded a dual mound threat in the persons of Lee Cameron and Lige Morris.

Cameron features perhaps the zaniest wind-up to be found in the tournament. The righthander brings the ball around the back of his head to his left ear, then swings fast and hard to produce a sizzling curve which is difficult to see, let alone hit. According to

United Crusade Plans Presidio Drive; Kickoff Talk Monday

The United Crusade will open on the Presidio and its sub-posts on 25 September.

To get the ball rolling, a kick-off meeting has been set for Monday (21 September) at 1300 in the Post theatre.

There, Colonel William S. Magill, deputy post commander and chairman of the Presidio drive, will brief section chiefs and unit commanders on how the campaign will be handled this year, the goals, and, most important, the purposes for which the donations will be used.

For the first time there will be four simultaneous Bay area crusades covering five counties this year, to raise a combined total of more than $10,000,000 to care for the needs of 225 health and welfare agencies.

Lt. General Joseph M. Swing, Sixth Army commander, has been named chairman of the Army section, which, together with the other services in the area, will cover an estimated 50,000 military personnel.

"Since our Army personnel stationed and living here are a part of the Bay area community," Colonel Magill said, "they should feel the obligation to help in this most worthwhile campaign, as well as civilians who make their permanent homes here."

"In order to determine what is an equitable gift to the Crusade," the colonel continued, "the Labor Management committee has devised a scale based on each salaried person in the Bay area."

"To reach the goal, which for San Francisco alone is $6,167,500, it has been determined that each person must give one to one and one-half day's pay."

"If this amount is not forthcoming," said Colonel Magill, "then the splendid work which these supported agencies carry out must necessarily be curtailed."

Armed forces services such as USO, youth character-building activities, disaster relief, care for the aged, hospital and clinic care, research and disease prevention, assistance to families in need, and child care and shelter are a few of the many activities which are maintained solely by contributions to United Crusade.

Major Ella Wilton, assistant Presidio drive chairman, stated that pledge cards for contributions will be distributed next week, and that payments may be made over a period covering three pay periods if desired.

"Give Once—the United Way," is the 1953 campaign slogan.

Army "Big Train" Given Chance to Serve Once More

Washington—The most unusual Army veteran of World War II has been recalled to duty at Walter Reed Army Medical Center here.

A hospital train—"decorated" with campaign ribbons and a battle star for the action in Europe—now is a schoolroom for medical technicians, pharmacists, ward masters, mess stewards, cooks and clerks.

The train has eight ward cars equipped to carry 240 casualties, one dining room-pharmacy car, three cars used for train-staff quarters and a car to provide power for the entire train.

Known as the Third Hospital Train during World War II, it transported more than 33,000 patients over 33,265 miles between frontlines and rear hospital areas in Europe.

T.I.C. Topic

How loyalty, integrity and sense of duty in personal behavior bring the rewards of honor to the individual serviceman and those with whom he serves will be discussed during the Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units next week.

Because of conditions of life in the Armed Forces, standards of behavior cannot be left to individual preference. Servicemen live and work together in closer association than civilians do, and the effectiveness of an outfit depends that every member of the group operate according to honorable standards of an exceedingly high order.

Honor is defined in the Armed Forces Talk, No. 448, "The Importance of Honorable Service," which will be used for the conferences, as "the set of principles and the self-discipline by which an individual knows and does what is right—whether in combat, other Service activities, or off-duty hours."

At the conclusion of service, the kind of service given will determine the type of discharge to be received by each individual. The kind of discharge determines eligibility for veterans' preference in Federal employment, for payments for service-connected disability, for a pension, and for many other benefits and privileges, both State and Federal.

Talk gives the following summary of the subject: "The rewards of honorable service will be not only personal success, but satisfaction in the way you serve the Nation that is depending upon you."

Former Army Private Appointed Top Man At Military Academy

West Point, N. Y.—A former Army private first class who later became a second lieutenant has been appointed Cadet First Captain and Brigade Commander in the West Point class of '54.

John C. Bard, the ranking U. S. Military Academy cadet, served in the Transportation Corps from August 1946, to July 1947 when he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Signal Corps. He held the commission until appointed to West Point in 1950, from Michigan's 17th Congressional District.

A total of 732 plebes, Class of 1957, were presented to the Corps of Cadets in a West Point retreat review, Sept. 1, after they had completed eight weeks of indoctrination training.

The fourth classmen will be integrated into regular cadet companies where they normally will remain for their entire tenure at the Academy. (AFPS)

HEADQUARTERS COMPANY TOP MARKSMEN in the pistol firing competition held by the 505th Military Police Battalion last week are shown above. Medals were presented each man by Lt. Colonel Keene Saxon, commanding officer of the 505th. High score, 335 out of a possible 350, was made by Master Sergeant Merley L. Hutson, the team captain. Members are 1 to r: Pfc. Marshall H. Hogue, Pfc. Jack Bridges, Pfc. Rudy O. Rendon, CWO Donald B. Cassell, Lt. Melvin R. Ferrera, Colonel Saxon, Sgt. Hutson, Sfc. Solomon G. Torres, M/Sgt. Robert Tripp, Pfc. William T. Bradshaw, Pfc. William B. Lansbury and Pfc. William L. Jagger.

"Heap Big Shot!"

505th Sergeant is Top Man in Both Pistol, Rifle Competition

A master sergeant with more than 22 years of service, was top man in both the pistol and rifle competition held last week by the 505th Military Police battalion.

M/Sgt. Merley L. Hutson, team captain in both competitions, scored 335 out of a possible 350 in the pistol shoot and 188 in the rifle firing.

A veteran of Korean service, Sgt. Hutson was in the Pacific theatre in World War II and has received the Purple Heart as well as numerous theatre ribbons. He has been with the 505th since June of this year.

Other members of the pistol team, which will compete against Post marksmen, include, Lt. Melvin R. Ferrera, 322; SFC Solomon G. Torres, 321; PFC Lloyd E. English, PFC Charles A. Layne, Jr., PFC William B. Lansbury, PFC William L. Jagger, PFC Marshall H. Hogue, PFC Norbert R. Mattiesen, PFC William T. Bradshaw, and PFC Robert D. Brennan, Jr.

High marksmen in the rifle competition with Sgt. Hutson were PFC Milo W. Bengston, 181; CWO Donald B. Cassell, 180, PFC Sakaye Okamura, Pvt. Paul S. Ashdown, PFC Jack W. New, PFC Oliver E. Cardinez, M/Sgt. Luther Deshazo, Pvt. Deane S. Jones and SFC Solomon G. Torres.

Headquarters company was the winning company in pistol shooting, while Company B won in the rifle showing. The winning companies were awarded engraved plaques, while the team members were presented medals by Lt. Colonel Keene Saxon, commanding officer of the 505th.

Captain Earl J. Martin, S-3, 505th, directed the competition.

Play-off Scheduled

The final playoff in the 1953 All-Sixth Army Softball Championship will take place this afternoon on the Presidio's Main Athletic Field in front of the Presidio Theatre, at 1330 hours. All civilian and military personnel who are free at that time are heartily invited to attend the game that culminates this week's 24-game series and watch the Sixth Army Champions emerge. Considering the talent entered this year and the furious pace the tourney has held so far, the play-off promises to be the highlight of the week. Immediately following the game the Sixth Army Commander's Trophy will be presented to the winning team.

Airborne Exercise 'Skydrop I' Planned For November-June

Washington—An extensive airborne field exercise will be conducted by the Army from November 1953, to June 1954 at Ft. Bragg, N. C., and Ft. Campbell, Ky.

The exercise has been designated Skydrop I and it will be a sequel to Exercise Test Drop carried out last year. Its purpose will be to evaluate developments in airborne combat techniques and to provide practical field training.

It will consist of a series of separate but related problems concerning establishment and operation of airheads, heavy equipment drops and aspects of atomic weapons operations. Exercise Skydrop I will be carried out by regimental combat teams but will involve division and corps staffs. Troops will come from units of the XVIII Airborne Corps, which include the 82nd and 11th Airborne Divisions. Maj. Gen. Joseph P. Cleland will serve as maneuver director.

3 Honor Guard Members to Judge SF ROTC Contest

The Honor Guard of the Presidio is sending three men to participate as judges in the forthcoming San Francisco High School Football Pageant Parade, to take place in San Francisco's Kezar Stadium tomorrow, Saturday, 19 September.

The three men have all had extensive experience as members of various drill units while in the service, and were furnished by Detachment A on that basis.

The judges will be 1st Lt. Harvey E. Wilkes, Sfc. William Cruikshank, and Sgt. Eli E. Vaughn.

Lt. Wilkes is leader of the Fourth Platoon, of which Sfc. Cruikshank and Sgt. Vaughn are members. The Football Pageant Parade, an annual event marking the opening of the San Francisco High School football season, is a drill contest involving ROTC units from all of San Francisco's High Schools.

Income Tax Plays No Favorites, Hits Service Men, Too

Indianapolis, Ind.—Uncle Sam's income tax collector isn't overlooking men in uniform.

Just like Joe Citizen they never see many of their pay dollars—the bite is put on before they ever step up to the pay table.

The biggest single payment ever made by the Army for Federal income taxes withheld from the pay of Army personnel was made this year—more than $132,000,000.

The check—written for $132,127,691.13 by Brigadier General Emmett J. Bean, Commander of the U. S. Army Finance Center—was received in payment by the Director of Internal Revenue in Indianapolis, where the Center is located.

This fabulous amount was collected from members of the Armed Forces, both officers and enlisted, who are subject to Federal income tax as is every other citizen.

The Army, like any other large business organization, must account to the Director of Internal Revenue and make periodic payments of taxes collected from its soldiers. (ANF)

Foreign duty pay for Army enlisted men varies from $8 to $22.50 a month, depending on the individual's rank. Commissioned officers are not entitled to draw foreign duty pay.

"AND THAT MAKES IT POSSIBLE," explains Sigurd Rascher, saxophone virtuoso, "to expand the saxophone range from two and one-half to four octaves." And he's done it too! SFC Fred Rose, assistant Sixth Army band leader, is getting the benefit of Mr. Rascher's wide experience here, as did the other members of the band, when he stopped here on Monday (14 September) to hold a clinic with them. Mr. Rascher, who has made numerous recordings and played every musical center in the United States and Europe as well as in India and Australia, is considered one of the foremost in saxophone psychology today. He likewise devotes a great deal of time to playing before high school and college bands in instructional clinics. (Army photo by Woods)

BOOK CORNER

SAGEBRUSH CASINOS: THE STORY OF LEGAL GAMBLING IN NEVADA by Oscar Lewis. Mr. Lewis' books are always worthwhile and this latest effort from his pen conforms to tradition. A combination of guidebook to Nevada's famous gambling casinos, colorful anecdotes, player's chances and an appraisal of state controlled gambling—with side glances at vice, crime and the divorce mills.

PERSIAN ADVENTURE by Anne Sinclair Mehdevi. It was one thing for an American girl, steeped in Puritan traditions, to marry a glamorous Persian and live in cosmopolitan New York and quite another to be transplanted to Persia where a rich, feudal society tenaciously clung to its ancient customs. Her adventures and painful experiences are recounted with humor and discernment.

LONDON CALLING NORTH POLE by H. J. Giskes. The former Chief of German Military Counter-Espionage in Holland reveals the incredible story of Operation North-Pole, in which the Germans secretly controlled London's Secret Service radio links with the resistance movement in Holland and countered Allied efforts to drop weapons and men to the Dutch underground. Interesting story of an almost unbelievable episode of World War II.

KINGFISHERS CATCH FIRE by Rumer Godden. Self-willed widow, Sophie Barrington Ward, takes her family to a rundown villa in Kashmir to recoup her losses. Her misguided attempts to westernize the natives causes one of them to feed her poison and others to critically injure her daughter. A remarkably effective mixture of beauty and horror by the author of "Black Narcissus."

THE BABYLONIANS by Nathaniel N. Weinreb. The dramatic tale of Babylon during the reign of Nebuchadnezzar and the menace of Egyptian expansion. Fore-shadowing the advent of Christianity the author captures the ancient world in all its splendor, poverty, barbarism and misery. An historical novel of depth, excellent characterization and hot action.

Who is 'Most Wanted'?

A Rogues gallery of "most wanted" men at Fort Baker, will precede the fourth in a series of six dances honoring Army posts throughout the country, on Tuesday (22 September) at 2000 at the Fort Baker Service club.

Named the "Desperado Drag," the dance will honor Fort Sheridan, Illinois, and will feature a real "desperate underworld" skit to be presented by a group of enlisted men from Fort Baker.

Each week, a large colored "local scene," done by Pvs. Paul Garner and Wesley Smith Jr., of the MPTC, is added to the decor of the club, and a map of the United States is used to denote transfer from one post to another.

Comforts of Home!

Presidio Service Club Offers Ex-POWs Chance to Relax

Hometown newspapers . . . television . . . bowling . . . pool . . . long distance telephone calls . . . homemade candy and cookies.

These are some of the things former prisoners of war are enjoying for the first time in many, many months while they wait at the Presidio Service Club for their turn to be processed or while "sweating out" their departure by plane, train or bus for home.

Shortly after the transports returning the repatriates from Korea dock at Fort Mason, those who are not to be processed immediately are taken by bus to the club where they can pass away the time in comfort and ease.

Every effort is made by the club staff to entertain the men, but no formal program or schedule is followed. They are urged to avail themselves of any of the club's facilities in which they are most interested.

Facilities of the club are extensive—poolroom, bowling alley and rooms for table games, writing, television and record playing. In the spacious main lounge, the men may settle back in easy chairs to read papers or to just visit.

Hometown newspapers are of particular interest to the men, some of them finding pictures of themselves on the front pages. The Post library staff assembles nearly 500 editions of papers from practically every state in the country.

In addition to the papers, the library supplies a collection of nearly 300 pocket edition books and some 400 magazines. From these, they may pick something to read at the club or to take with them on their trip.

For those who get hungry before chow, the club serves coffee, milk, fresh fruits, ice cream and homemade cookies and candies. Free cigarettes, soft drinks and gum are also distributed.

Ten telephone booths have been installed upstairs in the club where the returning POWs may make free telephone calls, the cost being paid by the Red Cross. If they would rather send a telegram, the Red Cross will pay for the wire.

Many of the men view television for the first time in the club's TV room. Next door, they can listen to the latest phonograph recordings or play the radio.

Those who want to write letters are given free postage and paper. If they would rather send a vocal message, they can use a tape recording to make a record of their greeting.

Cinema Previews

"THE ROYAL AFRICAN RIFLES," F*, is an adventure story in which a shipment of guns is stolen from a British warship in Bombasa harbor, Africa, in 1914. The action centers around efforts to retrieve them.

"THE BIG HEAT," M+, is tense, suspenseful drama in which a crooked cop, unable to face his past, kills himself. "The mob," then try to keep the truth from getting out while a police sergeant works valiantly to expose the whole crooked setup.

"MOGAMBO," F*, technicolor extravaganza laid in steamy Africa, follows the adventures of a hunting party, who, in addition to their other problems, are forced to take on a wandering show girl.

Red Raiders Outpass, Outrun Strong Leghorn Team to Grab Opener, 14-6

An intercepted pass and a 21-yard touchdown run brought the Presidio Red Raider footballers out on top, 14-6, in their first game of the season last Saturday against the Petaluma Leghorns.

The first TD of the game came in the first quarter when the Leghorns cracked the Presidio defense with a remarkably confusing play involving a hidden ball, fake end-run and a surprise pass.

Leghorn Gene Sweeters, qb, whose signal-calling and passing had the locals in trouble more than once, and fullback Bill Calhoun, were most instrumental in the Petaluma offense.

It wasn't till the beginning of the final quarter, with the score still 6-0, that Presidio's fast-running Dave Marcelli, 180-pound ex-Bronco halfback, cracked the Leghorn defense for a 21-yard TD rush. Dick Jackstadt completed the conversion.

In the last part of the fourth quarter, with seven minutes left to go in the game, big Bob Hooks, Presidio's right end, intercepted a throw and ran it back 40 yards for the second touchdown. Jackstadt again scored the extra point.

For the Presidio the big ground-gainers proved to be Marcelli, Jack Bridges, hb, and second-year veteran with the locals, Dallas Lamb, fb.

Go with the Raiders!

Tomorrow the Presidio Red Raiders meet Chico State at Chico at 2000 hours in their first regularly scheduled football game of this season. Those personnel wishing to travel with the Raiders and who need transportation for the trip are urged to contact Special Services, Bldg. 122, for accommodations. Military transportation will be furnished only in the event a large enough party wish to go.

Sixth Team Effort Sparks Army Try For Rifle Crown

Sixth Army riflemen walked off with a fair share of hard-won honors in the recently concluded National Rifle matches at Camp Perry, Ohio. Captained by Major William M. Westfall of Fort Lewis, and coached by 2nd Lt. Donald D. Kammer, Fort Ord, the local sharpshooters fired a rousing 895 points to finish seventh in a field of 65 of the nation's top teams. Other team members included: Captain Lester E. Byrd, Camp Roberts; WOJG Robert T. Ambler, Fort Ord; and M/Sgt. Eugene F. Spradlin of Camp Roberts.

Two more Sixth Army marksmen bolstered the All-Army team which finished tenth. They were: Major William C. Burns, Camp Roberts; Captain Hjalmer J. Erickson, Fort Ord.

Sergeant First Class William O. Williams finished tenth in the individual competition which drew 548 expert contestants. He was awarded a gold medal for his fine score of 236 (13 V's).

Captain Hjalmer J. Erickson won WOJG Robert T. Ambler won Bronze Medals or Bronze Bars for finishing 60th and 70th with respective scores of 230 (14 V's), and 230 (7 V's).

In aerial offense, qb Dick Jackstadt passed nine times, completing five of them, while on the receiving end 200-pound Jerry Wilson caught four straight before dropping the ball.

Wilson, Hooks, and big Bill Carey, Presidio's safety man, all succeeded in pass interceptions.

The game was officially listed as a practice scrimmage by both teams. It was played before close to 2000 spectators in a muggy, hot atmosphere — something the San Franciscan-trained Raiders were unaccustomed to. In all, the game gave coach Lt. Roland Daigle a pleasant surprise in the way of team potential, and seemed to promise a good future for them.

It is well to remember the brilliant record of the highly-touted Leghorn eleven has accumulated in the past six years as a leading amateur team.

From 1946 to '52 they have accumulated an over-all record of 57 wins, 12 losses and 3 ties—an impressive 2255-point total as against 669 for their opposition.

In '52 alone they tallied for 290, against 83 points for the opposition.

Last year's Petaluma boys numbered Hamilton Field, Camp Cooke, the Oakland Owls, Santa

Cruz Sea Hawks and San Jose Packers among their foes. They beat them all except for the Packers — their only loss — and they came back to beat them in a second meeting.

This year, only Bill Spaletta, hb, remains from the original '47 squad which started the Petaluma team to state and even national pigskin prowess unrivaled by any other amateur football team.

A return engagement with the Petaluma Leghorns will be featured on Sunday afternoon, 8 November, on the Fort Scott Athletic Field, Presidio.

Belvoir Engineers Whip Ft. Lee To Win All-Army Baseball Title

The last day of the All-Army Baseball Championship at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, saw the Fort Belvoir, Va., Engineers of the Military District of Washington, become the new Army world-wide baseball champs.

As a result of its victory, the Belvoir team will play in the Inter-Service tourney at the Marine Corps' Quantico, Va., base.

They defeated the Fort Lee, La., Travellers, Second Army Champions, 5-2, in an eleven-inning game last Saturday, to go through the tourney undefeated.

Sgt. Henry McLaughlin of Alexander, Va., lanky righthander, let the Travellers down with four hits and blanked them after the second bracket when they scored two runs.

Belvoir scored one in the fourth and one in the fifth, its big inning coming in the 11th, when the Engineers connected for four hits and three runs off Traveller hurler Pfc. Jack Heinen of Cleveland, Pa., who had limited the winners to four hits up to that time. Belvoir produced a total of eight hits for the game.

In the semi-finals, the Fort Lee team had turned back the Fort Jackson S. C., Golden Arrows, Third Army Champions, 11-8 on Friday night. It was a thrill-packed, nerve-racking 12-bracket contest.

The Jackson team had advanced to the semis by virtue of their 5-1 victory that morning over the Fourth Army Champs, the Brooke Army Medical Center Comets. Previously they had whipped the Camp Atterbury, Indiana, nine 12-2, Bob Smith, lefthander from Woodville, N. H., picking up the win. It was Smith's 12th consecutive victory this season against no losses.

The second game of the quarter-finals saw the Brooke Medical Center take a 6-4 win from Fort Dix in another 12-inning game. Pfc. Hyman Cohen of Brooklyn, N. Y., was the winning pitcher, besides driving in BAMC's two winning tallies in the top of the 12th with a well-timed single.

Winter's Near!

Presidio Casaba League Set, Opening Game 28 September

In a couple of weeks the Fort Scott Gymnasium will be the scene of the seasonal havoc created by the Presidio intramural basketball contests.

A general notice on the season's 28 September opening was recently forwarded to all units on Post, and it is hoped by Major Lula R. Linder, Presidio Athletic Officer, that a quantity of teams will be entered for this year's casaba league.

The intra-mural league will consist of two divisions, the American and National, in either of which teams will be placed after rosters have been submitted to the Post Athletic Office.

The two divisions will be played in halves, with the winner of the first half playing the winner of the second in a one game playoff, and in the event of a tie in the first or second half, a one game playoff will be held.

The winners of the two divisions will play a two out of three game series for the intra-mural championship.

Meanwhile, units desiring to enter the basketball league are requested to forward to the Athletic Office, prior to Monday, 21 September, a complete roster of team members by name, rank and serial number.

Team squads will not be limited to the number of personnel that may participate, except that a player must be assigned to that unit before he is permitted to be a member of its team.

Companies or comparable unit basketball teams representing an organization or combination of organizations not exceeding 250 men are eligible. Units with more than 250 may field two teams.

Coaches of teams will attend a meeting to be held at the Post Special Services building, 122, at 1130 hours, Monday, 21 September, at which time additional league information will be given.

All games will be played at the Fort Scott Gymnasium, Bldg. 1226, on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays.

James Gordon Bennett, Jr., staged the first game of polo on American soil, an indoor match, at Dickel Riding Academy, New York City, in 1878.

EX-ALL WESTERN CONFERENCE GUARD, Pfc. Harvey Garcia (left) of the Red Raiders and the 505th MP Battalion will sock the Chico State line hard and fast tomorrow, showing some of the performance that made him an outstanding high school and college grid star prior to his Army service. Besides being picked on the All Western team, Harvey made All-State as guard in the same year, 1951, and captained the team. 237-pound, six foot two inch tackle Teresse Tyler is stationed with the 21st Engineers at Fort Scott, and is big enough to tighten off any projected line-punching by the Presidio's opponents in the future. Teresse played two years of college ball before entering the Army, and plans to return to school on his discharge. (Army photos by Hilmer)

Who is 'Most Wanted'?

A Rogues gallery of "most wanted" men at Fort Baker, will precede the fourth in a series of six dances honoring Army posts throughout the country, on Tuesday (22 September) at 2000 at the Fort Baker Service club.

Named the "Desperado Drag," the dance will honor Fort Sheridan, Illinois, and will feature a real "desperate underworld" skit to be presented by a group of enlisted men from Fort Baker.

Each week, a large colored "local scene," done by Pvs. Paul Garnier and Wesley Smith Jr., of the MPIC, is added to the decor of the club, and a map of the United States is used to denote transfer from one post to another.

Comforts of Home!

Presidio Service Club Offers Ex-POWs Chance to Relax

Hometown newspapers . . . television . . . bowling . . . pool . . . long distance telephone calls . . . homemade candy and cookies.

These are some of the things former prisoners of war are enjoying for the first time in many, many months while they wait at the Presidio Service Club for their turn to be processed or while "sweating out" their departure by plane, train or bus for home.

Shortly after the transports returning the repatriates from Korea dock at Fort Mason, those who are not to be processed immediately are taken by bus to the club where they can pass away the time in comfort and ease.

Every effort is made by the club staff to entertain the men, but no formal program or schedule is followed. They are urged to avail themselves of any of the club's facilities in which they are most interested.

Facilities of the club are extensive—poolroom, bowling alley and rooms for table games, writing, television and record playing. In the spacious main lounge, the men may settle back in easy chairs to read papers or to just visit.

Hometown newspapers are of particular interest to the men, some of them finding pictures of themselves on the front pages. The Post library staff assembles nearly 500 editions of papers from practically every state in the country.

In addition to the papers, the library supplies a collection of nearly 300 pocket edition books and some 400 magazines. From these, they may pick something to read at the club or to take with them on their trip.

For those who get hungry before chow, the club serves coffee, milk, fresh fruits, ice cream and homemade cookies and candies. Free cigarettes, soft drinks and gum are also distributed.

Ten telephone booths have been installed upstairs in the club where the returning POWs may make free telephone calls, the cost being paid by the Red Cross. If they would rather send a telegram, the Red Cross will pay for the wire.

Many of the men view television for the first time in the club's TV room. Next door, they can listen to the latest phonograph recordings or play the radio.

Those who want to write letters are given free postage and paper. If they would rather send a vocal message, they can use a tape recording to make a record of their greeting.

Cinema Previews

"THE ROYAL AFRICAN RIFLES," F*, is an adventure story in which a shipment of guns is stolen from a British warship in Bombasa harbor, Africa, in 1914. The action centers around efforts to retrieve them.

"THE BIG HEAT," M+, is tense, suspenseful drama in which a crooked cop, unable to face his past, kills himself. "The mob," then try to keep the truth from getting out while a police sergeant works valiantly to expose the whole crooked setup.

"MOGAMBO," F*, technicolor extravaganza laid in steamy Africa, follows the adventures of a hunting party, who, in addition to their other problems, are forced to take on a wandering show girl.

WAC Due for Trim

A four page regulation titled "Training of Enlisted Women in Field Units" (SR 350-565-1) is expected to make members of the Women's Army Corps form conscious. The new regulations put emphasis on exercise and "whole-some dietary habits" as ideal methods to take the bulges out of regulation skirts.

Red Raiders Outpass, Outrun Strong Leghorn Team to Grab Opener, 14-6

An intercepted pass and a 21-yard touchdown run brought the Presidio Red Raider footballers out on top, 14-6, in their first game of the season last Saturday against the Petaluma Leghorns.

The first TD of the game came in the first quarter when the Leghorns cracked the Presidio defense with a remarkably confusing play involving a hidden ball, fake end-run and a surprise pass.

Leghorn Gene Sweeters, qb, whose signal-calling and passing had the locals in trouble more than once, and fullback Bill Calhoun, were most instrumental in the Petaluma offense.

It wasn't till the beginning of the final quarter, with the score still 6-0, that Presidio's fast-running Dave Marcelli, 180-pound ex-Bronco halfback, cracked the Leghorn defense for a 21-yard TD rush. Dick Jackstadt completed the conversion.

In the last part of the fourth quarter, with seven minutes left to go in the game, big Bob Hooks, Presidio's right end, intercepted a throw and ran it back 40 yards for the second touchdown. Jackstadt again scored the extra point.

For the Presidio the big ground-gainers proved to be Marcelli, Jack Bridges, hb, and second-year veteran with the locals, Dallas Lamb, fb.

Go with the Raiders!

Tomorrow the Presidio Red Raiders meet Chico State at Chico at 2000 hours in their first regularly scheduled football game of this season. Those personnel wishing to travel with the Raiders and who need transportation for the trip are urged to contact Special Services, Bldg. 122, for accommodations. Military transportation will be furnished only in the event a large enough party wish to go.

Sixth Team Effort Sparks Army Try For Rifle Crown

Sixth Army riflemen walked off with a fair share of hard-won honors in the recently concluded National Rifle matches at Camp Perry, Ohio. Captained by Major William M. Westfall of Fort Lewis, and coached by 2nd Lt. Donald D. Kammer, Fort Ord, the local sharpshooters fired a rousing 895 points to finish seventh in a field of 65 of the nation's top teams. Other team members included: Captain Lester E. Byrd, Camp Roberts; WOJG Robert T. Ambler, Fort Ord; and M/Sgt. Eugene F. Spradlin of Camp Roberts.

Two more Sixth Army marksmen bolstered the All-Army team which finished tenth. They were: Major William C. Burns, Camp Roberts; Captain Hjalmer J. Erickson, Fort Ord.

Sergeant First Class William O. Williams finished tenth in the individual competition which drew 548 expert contestants. He was awarded a gold medal for his fine score of 236 (13 V's).

Captain Hjalmer J. Erickson and WOJG Robert T. Ambler won Bronze Medals or Bronze Bars for finishing 60th and 70th with respective scores of 230 (14 V's), and 230 (7 V's).

In aerial offense, qb Dick Jackstadt passed nine times, completing five of them, while on the receiving end 200-pound Jerry Wilson caught four straight before dropping the ball.

Wilson, Hooks, and big Bill Carey, Presidio's safety man, all succeeded in pass interceptions.

The game was officially listed as a practice scrimmage by both teams. It was played before close to 2000 spectators in a muggy, hot atmosphere—something the San Franciscan-trained Raiders were unused to. In all, the game gave coach Lt. Roland Daigle a pleasant surprise in the way of team potential, and seemed to promise a good future for them.

It is well to remember the brilliant record of the highly-touted Leghorn eleven has accumulated in the past six years as a leading amateur team.

From 1946 to '52 they have accumulated an over-all record of 57 wins, 12 losses and 3 ties—an impressive 2255-point total as against 669 for their opposition.

In '52 alone they tallied for 290, against 83 points for the opposition.

Last year's Petaluma boys numbered Hamilton Field, Camp Cooke, the Oakland Owls, Santa Cruz Sea Hawks and San Jose Packers among their foes. They beat them all except for the Packers—their only loss—and they came back to beat them in a second meeting.

This year, only Bill Spalletta, hb, remains from the original '47 squad which started the Petaluma team to state and even national pigskin prowess unrivaled by any other amateur football team.

A return engagement with the Petaluma Leghorns will be featured on Sunday afternoon, 8 November, on the Fort Scott Athletic Field, Presidio.

Belvoir Engineers Whip Ft. Lee To Win All-Army Baseball Title

The last day of the All-Army Baseball Championship at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, saw the Fort Belvoir, Va., Engineers of the Military District of Washington, become the new Army world-wide baseball champs.

As a result of its victory, the Belvoir team will play in the Inter-Service tourney at the Marine Corps' Quantico, Va., base.

They defeated the Fort Lee, La., Travellers, Second Army Champions, 5-2, in an eleven-inning game last Saturday, to go through the tourney undefeated.

Sgt. Henry McLaughlin of Alexander, Va., lanky righthander, let the Travellers down with four hits and blanked them after the second bracket when they scored two runs.

Belvoir scored one in the fourth and one in the fifth, its big inning coming in the 11th, when the Engineers connected for four hits and three runs off Traveller hurler Pfc. Jack Heinen of Cleveland, Pa., who had limited the winners to four hits up to that time. Belvoir produced a total of eight hits for the game.

In the semi-finals, the Fort Lee team had turned back the Fort Jackson S. C., Golden Arrows, Third Army Champions, 11-8 on Friday night. It was a thrill-packed, nerve-racking 12-bracket contest.

The Jackson team had advanced to the semis by virtue of their 5-1 victory that morning over the Fourth Army Champs, the Brooke Army Medical Center Comets. Previously they had whipped the Camp Atterbury, Indiana, nine 12-2, Bob Smith, lefthander from Woodsville, N. H., picking up the win. It was Smith's 12th consecutive victory this season against no losses.

The second game of the quarter-finals saw the Brooke Medical Center take a 6-4 win from Fort Dix in another 12-inning go. Pfc. Hyman Cohen of Brooklyn, N. Y., was the winning pitcher, besides driving in BAMC's two winning tallies in the top of the 12th with a well-timed single.

Winter's Near!

Presidio Casaba League Set, Opening Game 28 September

In a couple of weeks the Fort Scott Gymnasium will be the scene of the seasonal havoc created by the Presidio intra-mural basketball contests.

A general notice on the season's 28 September opening was recently forwarded to all units on Post, and it is hoped by Major Lula R. Linder, Presidio Athletic Officer, that a quantity of teams will be entered for this year's casaba league.

The intra-mural league will consist of two divisions, the American and National, in either of which teams will be placed after rosters have been submitted to the Post Athletic Office.

The two divisions will be played in halves, with the winner of the first half playing the winner of the second in a one game playoff, and in the event of a tie in the first or second half, a one game playoff will be held.

The winners of the two divisions will play a two out of three game series for the intra-mural championship.

Meanwhile, units desiring to enter the basketball league are requested to forward to the Athletic Office, prior to Monday, 21 September, a complete roster of team members by name, rank and serial number.

Team squads will not be limited to the number of personnel that may participate, except that a player must be assigned to that unit before he is permitted to be a member of its team.

Companies or comparable unit basketball teams representing an organization or combination of organizations not exceeding 250 men are eligible. Units with more than 250 may field two teams.

Coaches of teams will attend a meeting to be held at the Post Special Services building, 122, at 1130 hours, Monday, 21 September, at which time additional league information will be given.

All games will be played at the Fort Scott Gymnasium, Bldg. 1226, on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays.

James Gordon Bennett, Jr., staged the first game of polo on American soil, an indoor match, at Dickel Riding Academy, New York City, in 1878.

EX-ALL WESTERN CONFERENCE GUARD, Pfc. Harvey Garcia (left) of the Red Raiders and the 505th MP Battalion will sock the Chico State line hard and fast tomorrow, showing some of the performance that made him an outstanding high school and college grid star prior to his Army service. Besides being picked on the All Western team, Harvey made All-State as guard in the same year, 1951, and captained the team. 237-pound, six foot two inch tackle Teresse Tyler is stationed with the 21st Engineers at Fort Scott, and is big enough to frighten off any projected line-punching by the Presidio's opponents in the future. Fans Term Tourney Play --- The Greatest!

They Might Have Made It!

Roberts Suffers Pair of Swift Defeats, Eliminated from Play

Biggest surprise upset of the All-Sixth Army softball contest here this week proved to be the sudden elimination of the Camp Roberts 7th Quartermaster representation.

The QM nine had only recently swept to the Roberts softball title in an easy 8-2 victory over the runner-up Reserve Command team to earn the right to represent the installation in the Area test. And it seemed that if any team had the place next to Ord and the Presidio as a pre-tourney favorite the 7th QM did.

But as luck would have it, Roberts drew the Ord team for their first game on Tuesday and took their initial beating, 6-2, then and there.

The Alaska Communications System boys, a bunch of tight-knit, hard-playing sportsmen in spite of their over-all diminutive stature, played seven innings of die-hard ball to produce the second Roberts loss of the week, a squeaking 2-1 victory, to eliminate them for good.

The ACS nine had previously been the first-game victims of the Fort Lewis contingent in a 7-0 loss that same morning.

Much of the hopes of the Roberts team had rested on the shoulders and strong right arm of one Bill Mataya, the whipping hurler who had mowed down all opposition in the intramural tests down south.

But again luck intervened. Mataya was suffering from a severe cold this week and his chucking, as he admitted, was never up to par.

The hitting side of the picture for the Robertsmen fought a losing battle against Ord and ACS defense. Pvt. Merrill Schelich, clean-up man for the Roberts All-Stars baseball team, which posted second in the recent All-Sixth title games, had joined the team. Schelich was a consistent long-ball hitter and power man at plate, and this week served defensively on the first base pad.

Besides Schelich, the QM heavy guns were augmented by outfielder Pvt. Dave Fuchs, the team's leading hitter with a .372 season average, rightfielder Pvt. Marvin Jonas and CF Pvt. James Charquet.

Manager Cpl. Cliff Nall fielded a smooth-working infield combination of Pvt. Vernon Steward at third, Pvt. Keith Johnson at short, Pvt. Ward Bonnett at second, with Schelich at first.

Lawton Hurler

Fort Lawton's prize softball chucker, Paul Moosman, played semi-pro softball in the Washington, Mo., City League before entering the Service. He registered a 17-3 win-loss record in 1951, and plans to return there to school on his release from the Army.

By PFC. BRUCE LANSBURY
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

A rough total of one hundred and sixty-eight softballers from twelve of the Sixth Army's installations took to the Main Athletic Field here at the Presidio on Monday, their over-all purpose being to hurl, scramble and belt their respective team colors to the 1953 All-Sixth Army Softball Championship.

They came from almost every state in the union, from Framingham, Massachusetts, to San Francisco, California. Boys with and without previous competitive experience—here a Factory and Church-Leaguer, there a Brooklynese-talking bonus player with the Giants. But whatever their playing experience, they came to beat the best the Sixth Army had to offer.

Pvt. Maynard Nadler turned in two brilliant games as catcher, while Pvt. Gerry Van Wyngardner and Fuchs served as relief chucks for Mataya.

The prospect at Monday morning's mass meeting in the Presidio's gym looked mighty tough. As Lt. Roland Daigle, sports official, and Sixth Army representative WOJG Urban Araujo explained at the time, there were 22 to 24 games to be played out by this afternoon, the number depending on how the eliminations developed.

That meant four games in the morning, four in the afternoon, with two matches going on simultaneously, back-to-back, on the Presidio's diamonds one and two. It meant that the games had to start at 0830 sharp, and there was still no promise that a few of them wouldn't have to be run after dinner.

It sounds like something of a baseball mill—but a champion had to be found.

And this afternoon a championship team will be found. They'll be awarded the Sixth Army Commander's Trophy, symbol of their Area title, and then they'll get a crack at the all-important All-Army championship to be held in the Military District of Washington 5-10 October.

Teams entered are: Presidio of San Francisco (represented by the 505th Military Police Battalion training cadre); Fort Lawton, Washington; Dugway Proving Grounds, Utah; 466th AAA, March AFB, Riverside, California; Camp Irwin, California; Camp Stoneman, California; Sharpe General Depot, Stockton, California; Letterman Army Hospital, San Francisco; Alaska Communications System, Seattle, Washington; Fort Lewis, Washington; Camp Roberts, California, and Fort Ord, California.

Watch That Sizzler!

Fort Ord Enters Tournament Strong in Pitching Department

The Fort Ord softball team came to the All-Sixth tournament here at the Presidio this week loaded for bear.

The Braves entered the championship games as representatives of the Ord installation by virtue of their final two-round defeat over the Ord Finance Section, 10-0 and 3-1, which made them kingpins in the Post intra-mural league there.

They were runners-up in the local Pacific Grove Softball League Championship, losing the title on a decision by the umpire, which some of the tourney's participants, his wind-up alone is enough to put the batter off.

Lige Morris, while he has no such eccentricity to embellish his style, settles for a supersonic curve. Most of his pitches cut the plate at such a terrific speed his opponents hardly have time to generate a swing.

And as a softball hurler Lige already has quite a background. The former Ord Braves infielder (hardball) aided the Taft, California, Merchants hurl their way to the World Professional Softball crown in 1947. Morris pitched gratis then, wanting to retain his amateur standing for high school sports.

In 1950 Lige was signed by the Cleveland Indians and until his induction played with the Yuma nine in the Southwest International League and the Bakersfield Indians (Class C) of the California League.

Whatever the outcome of this week's wild softball melee up on the Presidio's Main Field it's a cinch every batter on the entire Sixth Army roster will go away with a memory of Lige Morris, Lee Cameron—and the Ord team as a whole.

MANUEL FIERRO is the fast-moving third-base specialist with the Fort Ord nine. Fierro hails from Delano, California, and pitched for the Bakersfield Indians prior to his entry into the Army. (Photo by Weiss)

gave the crown to their opponents on a 1-0 win. Both teams had been tied for first place at the time and were replaying a protested game.

A first-rate, hard-playing team, the Braves aren't used to losing.

And their power as a team is due in no small part to their tremendous pitching assets. In this week's games they fielded a dual mound threat in the persons of Lee Cameron and Lige Morris.

Cameron features perhaps the zaniest wind-up to be found in the tournament. The righthander brings the ball around the back of his head to his left ear, then swings fast and hard to produce a sizzling curve which is difficult to see, let alone hit. According to

United Crusade Plans Presidio Drive; Kickoff Talk Monday

The United Crusade will open on the Presidio and its sub-posts on 25 September.

To get the ball rolling, a kick-off meeting has been set for Monday (21 September) at 1300 in the Post theatre.

There, Colonel William S. Magill, deputy post commander and chairman of the Presidio drive, will brief section chiefs and unit commanders on how the campaign will be handled this year, the goals, and, most important, the purposes for which the donations will be used.

For the first time there will be four simultaneous Bay area crusades covering five counties this year, to raise a combined total of more than $10,000,000 to care for the needs of 225 health and welfare agencies.

Lt. General Joseph M. Swing, Sixth Army commander, has been named chairman of the Army section, which, together with the other services in the area, will cover an estimated 50,000 military personnel.

"Since our Army personnel stationed and living here are a part of the Bay area community," Colonel Magill said, "they should feel the obligation to help in this most worthwhile campaign, as well as civilians who make their permanent homes here."

"In order to determine what is an equitable gift to the Crusade," the colonel continued, "the Labor Management committee has devised a scale based on each salaried person in the Bay area."

"To reach the goal, which for San Francisco alone is $6,167,500, it has been determined that each person must give one to one and one-half day's pay."

"If this amount is not forthcoming," said Colonel Magill, "then the splendid work which these supported agencies carry out must necessarily be curtailed."

Armed forces services such as USO, youth character-building activities, disaster relief, care for the aged, hospital and clinic care, research and disease prevention, assistance to families in need, and child care and shelter are a few of the many activities which are maintained solely by contributions to United Crusade.

Major Ella Wilton, assistant Presidio drive chairman, stated that pledge cards for contributions will be distributed next week, and that payments may be made over a period covering three pay periods if desired.

"Give Once—the United Way," is the 1953 campaign slogan.

Army "Big Train" Given Chance to Serve Once More

Washington—The most unusual Army veteran of World War II has been recalled to duty at Walter Reed Army Medical Center here.

A hospital train—"decorated" with campaign ribbons and a battle star for the action in Europe—now is a schoolroom for medical technicians, pharmacists, ward masters, mess stewards, cooks and clerks.

The train has eight ward cars equipped to carry 240 casualties, one dining room—pharmacy car, three cars used for train-staff quarters and a car to provide power for the entire train.

Known as the Third Hospital Train during World War II, it transported more than 33,000 patients over 33,265 miles between frontlines and rear hospital areas in Europe.

T.I.C. Topic

How loyalty, integrity and sense of duty in personal behavior bring the rewards of honor to the individual serviceman and those with whom he serves will be discussed during the Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units next week.

Because of conditions of life in the Armed Forces, standards of behavior cannot be left to individual preference. Servicemen live and work together in closer association than civilians do, and the effectiveness of an outfit demands that every member of the group operate according to honorable standards of an exceedingly high order.

Honor is defined in the Armed Forces Talk, No. 448, "The Importance of Honorable Service," which will be used for the conferences, as "the set of principles and the self-discipline by which an individual knows and does what is right—whether in combat, other Service activities, or off-duty hours."

At the conclusion of service, the kind of service given will determine the type of discharge to be received by each individual. The kind of discharge determines eligibility for veterans' preference in Federal employment, for payments for Service-connected disability, for a pension, and for many other benefits and privileges, both State and Federal.

Talk gives the following summary of the subject: "The rewards of honorable service will be not only personal success, but satisfaction in the way you serve the Nation that is depending upon you."

Former Army Private Appointed Top Man At Military Academy

West Point, N. Y.—A former Army private first class who later became a second lieutenant has been appointed Cadet First Captain and Brigade Commander in the West Point class of '54.

John C. Bard, the ranking U. S. Military Academy cadet, served in the Transportation Corps from August 1946, to July 1947 when he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Signal Corps. He held the commission until appointed to West Point in 1950, from Michigan's 17th Congressional District.

A total of 732 plebes, Class of 1957, were presented to the Corps of Cadets in a West Point retreat review, Sept. 1, after they had completed eight weeks of indoctrination training.

The fourth classmen will be integrated into regular cadet companies where they normally will remain for their entire tenure at the Academy. (AFPS)

HEADQUARTERS COMPANY TOP MARKSMEN in the pistol firing competition held by the 505th Military Police battalion last week are shown above. Medals were presented each man by Lt. Colonel Keene Saxon, commanding officer of the 505th. High score, 335 out of a possible 350, was made by Master Sergeant Merley L. Hutson, the team captain. Members are 1 to r: Pfc. Marshall H. Hogue, Pfc. Jack Bridges, Pfc. Rudy O. Rendon, CWO Donald B. Cassell, Lt. Melvin R. Ferrera, Colonel Saxon, Sgt. Hutson, Sfc. Solomon G. Torres, M/Sgt. Robert Tripp, Pfc. William T. Bradshaw, Pfc. William B. Lansbury and Pfc. William L. Jagger.

"Heap Big Shot!"

505th Sergeant is Top Man in Both Pistol, Rifle Competition

A master sergeant with more than 22 years of service, was top man in both the pistol and rifle competition held last week by the 505th Military Police battalion.

M/Sgt. Merley L. Hutson, team captain in both competitions, scored 335 out of a possible 350 in the pistol shoot and 188 in the rifle firing.

A veteran of Korean service, Sgt. Hutson was in the Pacific theatre in World War II and has received the Purple Heart as well as numerous theatre ribbons. He has been with the 505th since June of this year.

Other members of the pistol team, which will compete against Post marksmen, include, Lt. Melvin R. Ferrera, 322; SFC Solomon G. Torres, 321; PFC Lloyd E. English, PFC Charles A. Layne, Jr., PFC William B. Lansbury, PFC William L. Jagger, PFC Marshall H. Hogue, PFC Norbert R. Mattiesen, PFC William T. Bradshaw, and PFC Robert D. Brennan, Jr.

High marksmen in the rifle competition with Sgt. Hutson were PFC Milo W. Bengston, 181; CWO Donald B. Cassell, 180, PFC Sakaye Okamura, Pvt. Paul S. Ashdown, PFC Jack W. New, PFC Oliver E. Cardinez, M/Sgt. Luther Deshazo, Pvt. Deane S. Jones and SFC Solomon G. Torres.

Headquarters company was the winning company in pistol shooting, while Company B won in the rifle showing. The winning companies were awarded engraved plaques, while the team members were presented medals by Lt. Colonel Keene Saxon, commanding officer of the 505th.

Captain Earl J. Martin, S-3, 505th, directed the competition.

Play-off Scheduled

The final playoff in the 1953 All-Sixth Army Softball Championship will take place this afternoon on the Presidio's Main Athletic Field in front of the Presidio Theatre, at 1330 hours. All civilian and military personnel who are free at that time are heartily invited to attend the game that culminates this week's 24-game series and watch the Sixth Army Champions emerge. Considering the talent entered this year and the furious pace the tourney has held so far, the play-off promises to be the highlight of the week. Immediately following the game the Sixth Army Commander's Trophy will be presented to the winning team.

Airborne Exercise 'Skydrop I' Planned For November-June

Washington—An extensive airborne field exercise will be conducted by the Army from November 1953, to June 1954 at Ft. Bragg, N. C., and Ft. Campbell, Ky.

The exercise has been designated Skydrop I and it will be a sequel to Exercise Test Drop carried out last year. Its purpose will be to evaluate developments in airborne combat techniques and to provide practical field training.

It will consist of a series of separate but related problems concerning establishment and operation of airheads, heavy equipment drops and aspects of atomic weapons operations. Exercise Skydrop I will be carried out by regimental combat teams but will involve division and corps staffs. Troops will come from units of the XVIII Airborne Corps, which include the 82nd and 11th Airborne Divisions. Maj. Gen. Joseph P. Cleland will serve as maneuver director.

3 Honor Guard Members to Judge SF ROTC Contest

The Honor Guard of the Presidio is sending three men to participate as judges in the forthcoming San Francisco High School Football Pageant Parade, to take place in San Francisco's Kezar Stadium tomorrow, Saturday, 19 September.

The three men have all had extensive experience as members of various drill units while in the service, and were furnished by Detachment A on that basis.

The judges will be 1st Lt. Harvey E. Wilkes, Sfc. William Crukschank, and Sgt. Eli E. Vaughn.

Lt. Wilkes is leader of the Fourth Platoon, of which Sfc. Crukschank and Sgt. Vaughn are members. The Football Pageant Parade, an annual event marking the opening of the San Francisco High School football season, is a drill contest involving ROTC units from all of San Francisco's High Schools.

Income Tax Plays No Favorites, Hits Service Men, Too

Indianapolis, Ind.—Uncle Sam's income tax collector isn't overlooking men in uniform.

Just like Joe Citizen they never see many of their pay dollars—the bite is put on before they ever step up to the pay table.

The biggest single payment ever made by the Army for Federal income taxes withheld from the pay of Army personnel was made this year—more than $132,000,000.

The check—written for $132,127,691.13 by Brigadier General Emmett J. Bean, Commander of the U. S. Army Finance Center—was received in payment by the Director of Internal Revenue in Indianapolis, where the Center is located.

This fabulous amount was collected from members of the Armed Forces, both officers and enlisted, who are subject to Federal income tax as is every other citizen.

The Army, like any other large business organization, must account to the Director of Internal Revenue and make periodic payments of taxes collected from its soldiers. (ANF)

Foreign duty pay for Army enlisted men varies from $8 to $22.50 a month, depending on the individual's rank. Commissioned officers are not entitled to draw foreign duty pay.

Weekly World News
AT A GLANCE

AT THE UNITED NATIONS, Mme. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, sister of India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, was chosen president of the U.N. General Assembly Tuesday to become the first woman to preside over the 60-nation Assembly. She is a veteran U.N. delegate and also has served her country as Ambassador to Washington and to Moscow. . . . Prior to election of a new president, the Assembly approved a resolution by the United States to postpone for the rest of the year all proposals to seat Red China in the United Nations. The delegates also voted against a move by the Soviet delegation to remove Nationalist China and give the Peiping regime a seat.

IN KOREA, the United Nations command still had received no reply by Thursday from the Communists on the issue of 3,404 Allied prisoners, including more than 900 Americans, believed still held in Red captivity. Communist propaganda broadcasts have called the list "faked," indicating the Reds will reject the Allied demand for an accounting. . . . The Communists served notice Wednesday that Red planes would start flying from a new airfield only 30 miles from Seoul and warned in advance that aircraft might "accidentally" fly over forbidden demilitarized territory. . . . The city of Seoul was revived Thursday as the capital of South Korea. The government and national assembly completed their return after three years of wartime exile.

IN INDO-CHINA, Premier Pen Nouth says Cambodia wants independence, plus military aid from France and the United States, to fight the Communist-led Vietminh. He avoided discussion of a neutral offer he broadcast last Friday to the 10,000 or so Rebel troops operating within the little kingdom that is one of the three associated states in Indo-China. Official French sources in Saigon said the French-Cambodian negotiators, attempting to define the role of an independent Cambodia in the seven-year-old Indo-China war, have reached agreement on the main issues, though nothing has yet been signed and further talks are necessary. . . . Meanwhile, French union troops in Laos captured two command posts seized by Communist-led rebels in last spring's drive on the royal capital. The action was part of the precautionary operations being pressed in anticipation of a new Vietminh offensive, which is expected within the next couple of weeks. Though most of the Moscow-trained men withdrew from Laos last spring, some stayed behind on potential invasion routes to Southern Laos and Cambodia.

IN TOKYO, a government spokesman announced Tuesday that the United States has agreed to a Japanese proposal for relaxing restrictions on trade with Communist China. Eleven items were dropped from the contraband list including caustic soda and soda ash, ammonium sulphate, titanic oxide, mixed paint, leather and rubber belts, filament electric bulbs, wire netting, microscopes for medical and school uses and film projectors. The Japanese government had asked for American agreement to exclude 20 items from the list, but the United States agreed to only eleven.

IN SWITZERLAND, the wife and three children of missing British diplomat Donald MacLean disappeared Friday from their home in Geneva and police speculated that they may be behind the Iron Curtain. MacLean and a fellow diplomat dropped out of sight at Rennes, France, 26 May 1951, and have not been heard from since that time. Police found the first clue to the missing family Thursday when the woman's car was located in a garage in Lausanne.

IN WEST GERMANY, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer began a diplomatic offensive to save the lagging European Army plan by proposing immediate negotiations to settle French-German differences. In a letter to French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, the Chancellor said "The time has now come for our two nations to settle their differences." Adenauer considers French fears of West Germany's growing strength and the long French-German controversy over the future of the coal-rich Saar basin as the principal stumbling blocks to ratification of the proposed European Defense Community pact.

IN EAST GERMANY, a mutiny by 2000 members of the East German People's Police was crushed by Russian tanks and troops, a Western Berlin information bureau reports. The Soviet Zone police reportedly rebelled against their Russian training officers at Pinnow barracks near Angermunde. When the mutiny broke out, both Soviet and East German police officers barricaded themselves in a barracks and called for reinforcements. . . . An East German newspaper in Potsdam reported Thursday the burning of a Communist state food store by East Germans enraged over the Red seizure of American food parcels. A sign was erected on the ruins saying, "Potsdamers, help to expose the Fascist arsonists."

IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA, the nation's Communist government reorganized itself along the latest Soviet lines. Tightening of controls over the police and agriculture was among the effects of a wholesale shift of ministers. The number of ministries was cut from 30 to 16. Fourteen of the original ministers were consolidated into seven and a 12-man governing presidium of ministers apparently was dissolved and replaced by a group of six men.

IN RUSSIA, nine of the Soviet government ministries have been affected by a reorganization this week. Three ministers, abolished last March in the reshuffle following the death of Joseph Stalin were reestablished last Wednesday. They are highway transport, geology, and aviation production. Tuesday five new ministries were formed and the function of a sixth—agriculture and procurement—was considerably altered. Tuesday's changes dealt with foodstuffs, manufactures, consumer goods, domestic and foreign trade and state farms.

IN EGYPT, a state of emergency was proclaimed after the government announced it had uncovered a plot by an unnamed foreign power to overthrow the regime of President Mohammed Neguib. A government spokesman said the aims of the plotters included the formation of an Egyptian front to overthrow the existing regime by spreading a spirit of hatred and opposition and restoration of the monarch or, at least, removal of leaders in the present regime.

Billions for Defense!

A total of $28.6 billion was obligated by the Defense Department during the fiscal year 1953 for the procurement of major equipment and supplies, military construction and expansion of military production facilities. The Army obligated $6.5 billion, Navy $7.8 billion, and the AF $14.2 billion, while interdepartmental construction led to obligation of $0.1 billion.

Officers Recently Assigned

Lt. Colonel Howard A. Gorman has become the new chief, Pictorial division, Signal section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

He has served the past 39 months in the Far East where he was both assistant executive officer, Signal section, and Pictorial division director for GHQ, later renamed US Army Forces, FEC, Japan.

In World War II, Colonel Gorman served in the ETO, office of the general purchasing agent. He was the Army representative named to deal with the Dutch and Belgian governments on matters of "Reverse Lend-Lease."

Colonel Gorman has had 12 years of Army service.

Lt. Colonel Bernard J. Nagle, battalion commander, 7th Armored Division, Camp Roberts, California, for the past seven months, is now with the survey branch, manpower division, G-1 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

In Korea at the outset of hostilities, Colonel Nagle served in the civil affairs section of 8th Army (UNCAC) from August 1950 to October 1951. For his service there he received the Bronze Star Medal.

Returning to Japan, the colonel then spent 16 months in Japan as comptroller of the Eta Jima Specialist school.

Colonel Nagle has been in the Army for the past 12 years.

Chaplain (Major) Orlando V. Hayne, Protestant Army chaplain, has joined the Sixth Army Chaplains group and will serve service personnel stationed at Fort Mason.

Post chaplain at the Camp San Luis Obispo, California, Signal school for the past five months. Chaplain Hayne has spent eight of

A Hint to the Wise!

VA Offers 10 Tips to K-Vets Planning to Re-Enter School

Washington—The following ten tips for veterans planning to go back to school under the Korea GI Bill have been handed out by the Veterans Administration:

1. The veteran should give careful thought to his choice of training, being sure it will lead to the desired goal. The law allows the individual to change his program only once.
2. He may request vocational counseling to help arrive at a training choice. To apply he needs only to fill in the appropriate space on the VA application form for GI training.
3. The course must be state-approved. Any VA regional office can give this information.
4. To save time and trouble the Vet should find out in advance if he can be admitted to the school before he files his application with the VA.
5. Applications for training certificates should be sent to the VA as early as possible.
6. Check applications thoroughly before mailing them to the VA. Time may be lost through errors or missing information. A photostat or certified copy of separation papers should accompany application.
7. Forms should be sent to the nearest regional office, not VA headquarters in Washington.
8. A veteran with dependents who requests allowance for dependents must provide proof of dependency when it is requested by the VA. For a wife, he must furnish a marriage certificate, and for a child, a birth certificate.
9. The trainee should have enough money to tide him over for at least the first two months of schooling. Before the VA can make a payment, it must receive certification from the school and the veteran that he was actually in training for the month for which the check allowance is paid. Payment is made after the end of each month of training completed.
10. Veterans are reminded to submit certification of training to the VA as soon after the end of each month as possible. (AFPS)

Stoneman Hasp. Head Named College Chief

Colonel Lawrence B. Hanson, commanding officer of the Camp Stoneman Army hospital, was named a member of the American College of Hospital administrators in San Francisco last week.

The 49-year-old Colonel Hanson, a veteran of World War II and Korea, has been at Camp Stoneman since July 1952. He was commissioned in the Army Medical corps in 1929, following ceremonies at the University of Iowa where he received his degree in medicine.

In 1952, Colonel Hanson earned his Masters degree in hospital administration at the University of California.

They Came for the Title!

Dugway Shows Good Strength Though Not the Kind to Beat

One of the sharper-looking outfits entered in the All-Sixth softball shindig this week turned out to be the Dugway Proving Grounds contingent, who registered with tournament officials under the managership of Captain Sidney Gerstenhaber 13 of the best diamond specialists that installation had to offer.

Dugway showed brilliantly against the 466th AAA nine, lambasting them to a resounding 24-6 score. Less luck met them in their two later games, when they were beaten first by the tough Presidio MP's, 8-5, then on Wednesday by Camp Irwin, 13-9, which caused their elimination from the tournament.

Biggest bats for Dugway were Pvt. Bob Sauerberg, short stop, who hit .350 with the team before entering the Sixth Army contest, and Pfc. Cal Giangrossi, of Glassmere, Pa., who has experience in Chattanooga, AA Ball and averaged .325 with the Dugway group.

Certainly not one of the lightest bats on the Dugway Proving Ground's roster of artillery this week was Gino Ferrarse, who hails from Framingham, Massachusetts.

As a youngster, just out of Curry College, Ferrarse chalked up quite a remarkable list of major league teams who were ready to take him on.

Just prior to his entry in the Service in '49 he spent a spring on the road with the Brooklyn Dodgers. In his short-stop position with them, he batted out a pre-season .296, then in March of that year donned khaki.

Ferrarse also saw some action in the Cardinal, Indian and Red Sox training camps, and his ambition these days, naturally, is to return to professional ballplaying. He expects to sign with the Cardinals.

Irwin Guns

Two ballplayers prized highly by Camp Irwin's team manager Lt. George Wooten are pitcher John Lyszczyk—whose name is almost as impressive as his curve ball—and Dick Colone. Lyszczyk hails from Pittsburgh, Pa., while Colone is from Detroit, Michigan.

Colone played two years of pro ball in the Middle West before his entry into the Army and as a pitcher held a 13-6 record prior to Service. Owned by the Detroit Tigers, he plans to go to Montgomery, Ala., for AA Baseball when he is released.

Army Pistol Team Takes Nat'l Trophy At Camp Perry

Camp Perry, Ohio—An Army pistol team fired 1,103 points out of 1,200 possible to edge the Los Angeles police squad with their 1,099 for the National Team Trophy. The Marine Corps was third with 1,083.

In the National Trophy individual match sponsored by the Army, Marine Corps M/Sgt. Jules C. Palmer scored 287 points out of 300 possible for top honors. He fired a 95 in the 50-yd. slow fire, 97 in the 25-yd. time fire, and 95 in the 25-yd. rapid fire.

Army CWO O. K. Weinmeister, Ft. Knox, Ky., finished second with 281; Lt. Col. Walter Walsh, Marine Corps, third with 280.

The champion Army National Trophy team included: CWO Weinmeister; Maj. D. C. Curtis; M/Sgt. Huelet E. Bennett, U. S. Military Academy; and Capt. Lawrence E. Enterkin.

Prize Bulldog

Fort Lawton's valuable short-stop is Ernest Blanco—who is valuable to more people than Lawton. Before the Service he played with the Fort Smith, Arkansas, pro team in Western Association "C" ball, batting .274 in '52. He will go back into baseball after the Army and has a Cleveland contract plus bonus to go on.

American sportswriters and sportscasters have elected Byron Nelson, Ben Hogan and Sam Snead to the PGA hall of fame, the PGA of America announced recently.

A Tough Go

It happened in the bottom of the seventh inning in the softball tilt between Camp Stoneman and the Alaska Communications System. Both teams previously had suffered one loss each, and to drop this game meant elimination from the tournament.

Stoneman's pitcher and heavysticker Cpl. John Lovell came up to bat with two men out and the bases loaded. The outcome of the game seemed to rest on his shoulders.

Lovell took three straight balls from ASC hurler Delbert Wickline, then two strikes.

On the pay-off pitch Lovell connected solidly for what appeared to be a safe single between second and third base. But as the ball plunged through the gap in the sacks, Gene Woods, Stoneman third sacker, running from second to third, inadvertently ran into it, producing an automatic out and the end of the ball game.

FORT LEWIS chucker Bill Richie is an ace in any man's language, but he didn't have enough on the ball to buckle the Fort Ord artillery. Lewis lost game 9-3. (Weiss)

GROVER C. ALEXANDER pitched four one-hitters in 1915, a record.

Howie Waugh of Tulsa led the nation in 1952 for rushing. The "Hurricane" fullback carried the ball 164 times for 1372 yards and an average of 8.37 yards per play.

"THE LITTLEST HELPER," two and one-half year old "Butch" didn't want to be left out when the Utah Army Reservists came a-calling for clothing to send to the needy in Korea. All Armed Forces Reservists participated in staging the statewide drive for Korean relief. More than 125,000 pounds of clothing were gathered during the two-week campaign. Names of local Reservists were not provided.

That's 125,000 Pounds!

Utah Reservists Gather 168 Tons of Clothing for Korea

Ever see 125,000 pounds of clothing—all in one spot? That much clothing filled eight 21-ton capacity semi-trailers.

And that of course, adds up to 168 tons of clothing—all going to Korea.

This gigantic project was executed by Armed Forces Reservists on active duty training at Fort Douglas and neighboring bases in the Salt Lake City, Utah area.

Reservists from the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines, and the Utah National Guard, snappy in their Class A uniforms, made more than 1,500 calls at homes and fire stations throughout the area over a period covering two weekends.

These Reservists all volunteered their weekend time for this project, with the exception of the 697th and 699th Army Reserve Transportation companies which were on active duty on-the-job training during the two weekends. Assistance was given the Reservists by the Regular establishments of all services.

Held under the auspices of American Relief for Korea incorporated, it was the official clothing drive for the state of Utah. Colonel William C. McFadden, Chief Utah Military district, said that the drive went way beyond all expectations, and that he was "exceedingly pleased."

Ex-Policeman Makes Former Training Pay Military Dividends

White Sands Proving Ground, N. M.—Jocular remarks about the "square pegs in round holes" placement of military personnel can be refuted by Private First Class Joseph F. Berni, stationed here with the Military Police Corps.

Berni, a resident of Lindenhurst Village, N. Y., formerly was a New York policeman before he came into the Army last August.

"This job is like old home week," said Berni as he pounded his beat, and to prove he had lost none of his police technique, he recently captured five prisoners who had escaped from the Proving Ground area.

Berni, relieved of duty and enroute to Las Cruces via bus, recognized the prisoners from the description given the Provost Marshal's office. Unarmed, he left the bus, rounded up all five and turned them over to authorities.

31 Million Saved As Army Closes 23 Installations

Washington—The Army has taken steps to save American taxpayers an estimated $31,000,000 a year by closing 18 Army installations.

The installations which have already been closed or are in the process of being closed are:

1. Camp Edwards, Mass.
2. Camp McCoy, Wis.
3. Camp Cooke, Calif.
4. Camp Drum, N. Y.
5. Fort Custer, Mich.
6. Fort Huachuca, Ariz.
7. Fort Hancock, N. J.
8. Fort Worden, Wash.
9. Fort Flagler, Wash.
10. Fort Adams, R. I.
11. Fort Crockett, Texas
12. Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, Pa.
13. Army Transmitter Station, Alexandria, Va.

A portion of Fort Lawton, Wash., has been closed in the interests of economy.

Five additional camps slated for closing during the forthcoming year are:

1. Camp Breckenridge, Ky.
2. Camp Roberts, Calif.
3. Camp San Luis Obispo, Calif.
4. Camp Rucker, Ala.
5. Camp Atterbury, Ind.

All these stations except Forts Worden and Flagler, Wash., Fort Adams, R. I., and Fort Crockett, Texas, will be kept on a standby status. (ANF)

Figures Show How Army Assigns Men

Washington—More than 658,000 of the Army's 1,500,000 men and women were stationed overseas during the past year.

The remainder of the Army's strength was dispersed approximately as follows:

General reserve	253,000
Trainees	224,000
Operations within the United States	117,000
Training instructors	105,000
Transients	79,000
Students	40,000
Patients	22,000
Department of the Army, administrative area	17,000
Special foreign activities	17,000
Cadets, United States Military Academy	1,700

Pay-Off Is Fast!

Repatriates Returning by Ship Receive Back Pay Promptly

Back pay is an important item to any soldier, but it is particularly important to the men returning home from many months in the prison camps of Korea.

And the repatriates arriving at Fort Mason by ship are receiving their back pay with remarkable speed during the streamlined processing set up to send them on their way as quickly as possible.

This promptness with which they are paid is the result of the system established by Army finance to handle their accounts.

When a prisoner was captured his pay card was sent by his unit to the finance officer at Inchon where it was photostated and then forwarded to the Settlements Division, Finance Section, United States Army, at Indianapolis, Indiana.

He was given credit for combat pay for the entire month during which he was captured and for three additional months, unless his missing-in-action status changed within that period.

All during the period of his captivity, the prisoner's pay card was kept current by the Inchon finance office with new cards opened every six months even though there was no activity to record. Any information, such as promotion after capture, that affected his pay was posted to the card.

The prisoner's pay card at the Settlements Division was also kept up to date. Here, too, any changes affecting his pay were noted. The changes most likely to be posted in this office were establishment of new allotments by dependents.

When the prisoner was repatriated, a regular pay card was opened by the Inchon finance office from his photostatic records.

Upon his repatriation, each prisoner was promoted one grade, depending upon his grade and length of captivity. Effective date of these promotions was 1 May 1953.

When he left Inchon, the freed prisoner was given his pay card and a statement of account showing what was due him. With these records, which he carries with him, he is able to be paid upon his arrival.

Most of the former prisoners do not arrive at Fort Mason pen-

Peas-in-a-Pod!

Eta Jima, Japan—Those famous peas-in-a-pod are going to have to move over for Army Privates George and Martin Junga of 40 Magyar St., Toledo, Ohio.

The Jungas, who took an Army stenographer's course here are about as identical as twins can get—and it's not just skin deep.

The proof?

In their shorthand test both men made 100 per cent. In an administrative quiz the Jungas, seated on opposite sides of the room, both scored 97 per cent, each missing one question—the same one.

niless, having received partial payments after their release or from finance officers aboard ship. However, a few receive their first money here.

The men are paid in both cash and by check. They are urged to keep the cash payments to $300, but will be given more or all that is due them in cash if they request it.

Officials here notify the Settlements Division of the repatriate's next station upon his return from furlough and his regular pay card is sent to the finance officer at this station. When he arrives at his new station, the former prisoner will have an adjusted record.

Finance personnel of Fort Mason, Letterman Army Hospital, Oakland Army Base and the Presidio are all participating in the handling of the payments and the issuance of their travel pay. As much work as possible is done before the arrival of the ships from rosters issued in advance.

The speed with which the men receive their pay and travel money is attributed by one officer to "long days and hard nights" of work by finance personnel.

Quick Citizenships!

Naturalization Is Made Easier For Alien Personnel at Army

Applications for quick United States citizenship for alien personnel of the Army are now being received by the San Francisco district office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service and other offices of the Service in the Sixth Army area.

Colonel William C. Holley

Col. William Holley Named Commander Of 30th Engineers

Colonel William C. Holley has become the new commanding officer of the 30th Engineer Base Topographic battalion. He replaces Lt. Colonel James W. Free, who is presently awaiting an overseas assignment, after having served with the 30th Engineers since May 1950.

Colonel Holley's last assignment was as Post Engineer, Indiantown Gap Military reservation, Pennsylvania, where he served from October 1951 to July of this year.

In Korea, Colonel Holley commanded the advance party of the famous 1st Cavalry Division, entering at the outset of the fighting in the summer of 1950, and was the Division Engineer of the 1st Cavalry and Battalion Commander of the 8th Engineer Combat battalion for the year ending March 1951.

During World War II, from December 1942 through November 1945, Colonel Holley was Division Engineer of the 91st Infantry Division and commanding officer of the 316th Engineer Combat battalion of the 91st. The 91st fought from the vicinity of Rome on up the Italian peninsula.

The colonel has been decorated with the Silver Star Medal, the Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Bronze Star for Valor, the Air Medal, the Korean theater ribbon with four campaign stars, and the ETO ribbon with three campaign stars.

Receiving his BS degree with the Corps of Engineers from Oregon State college, class of 1938, Colonel Holley entered the Army on 1 July of that year. He later received his MS in engineering from Harvard university.

He has just returned from a visit to the forward echelon of the 30th Engineer battalion which is now doing survey work in Alaska for the Army map service.

Automatic Screening

Washington—The Army's portable, automatic screening audiometer tests the hearing ability of 50 soldiers within two minutes.

Under the new law passed by the last Congress, non-citizen members of the Army must have served at least 90 days after 1 June 1950 and before 1 July 1955 to qualify. They must have been lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence or lawfully admitted and have been a resident for a period of not less than a full year before having entered into service.

Application forms are available at all Immigration and Naturalization offices in the Sixth Army area—in San Francisco, at 630 Sansome street. These forms include an application and supplement, a certification of military service and a certification of character by the individual's commanding officer.

After the completed forms have been returned to the Immigration and Naturalization office, the naturalization officials begin an investigation, including a check with the Adjutant General.

When this investigation is finished, the applicant is called for a hearing during which he will be tested on his knowledge of such subjects as American history and the Constitution. He will be accompanied to the hearing by two officers or two non-commissioned officers as character references.

The oath of allegiance will be administered later in court. The citizenship may be revoked later if the individual is discharged from the service under conditions other than honorable.

Naturalization officials estimate a period of from six to eight weeks will be required for the processing unless complications occur to extend the necessary time.

Presidio personnel may secure advice in submitting their application from Mr. Ralph P. Sheldon, legal assistance counselor, in the office of the Post Judge Advocate, Building 201. Mr. Sheldon already has assisted 15 persons in filing their applications since the law became effective last month.

An official in Washington has estimated the Army has between 9,000 and 10,000 alien personnel.

Low Ranks Now Need Approval to Re-enlist

Washington—Regular Army enlistments and re-enlistments of personnel in the bottom three pay grades will be limited to individuals who can get okay from their respective unit commanders for re-assignment in their own units.

Under recent changes in AR 615-360, June 24, 1953, covering general provisions in EM discharges, a statement from the CO to the effect that a lower three grader will be accepted in his old unit is necessary for enlistment or re-enlistment. This was spelled out in paragraph 5a (3) (e), SR 615-105-1.

November Quota Set

Army draft quota for November has been set at 23,000 according to the Defense Department. This is the same figure which has been called for the past few months. The Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force do not intend to place calls with Selective Service for November.

HOME WELCOMINGS for returning former prisoners of war will take place for the final time Tuesday when the last of eight Navy transports carrying repatriates arrives in San Francisco. The reunion

Two More Shiploads POWs Arrive; Last Group Will Be Home Next Week

When the Navy transport General R. L. Howze docks at Fort Mason early next week, the last of more than three thousand American repatriated prisoners of war to be returned to this country by ship will have arrived in San Francisco.

The General Howze is scheduled to reach the Golden Gate Tuesday with 303 freed prisoners aboard. In the meantime, the General A. W. Brewster carrying 301 former POWs is due at Fort Mason Sunday.

Two shiploads of returning repatriates arrived earlier this week, the General William Black with 428 POWs on Wednesday and the Marine Phoenix with 374 former prisoners on Sunday. The group aboard the General Black was the second largest to be returned at one time and included 351 Army, 56 Air Force, 16 Marine Corps and five Navy personnel.

Eight Navy transports, operated by the Military Sea Transport Service, and the Navy Hospital Ship Haven have been used to return the men from Korea.

The first shipload of repatriates, 328, in all, arrived in San Francisco on 23 August aboard the General Nelson M. Walker. Next followed the General William F. Hase with the largest group totaling 437.

The Navy Hospital Ship Haven with 103 sick and wounded freed prisoners docked at Fort Mason 4 September. The two other transports to arrive prior to this week were the Marine Adder carrying 367 POWs on 6 September and the General John Pope with 442 more on 9 September.

to be returned to this country by ship will be 3,083 by the time the final transport docks Tuesday. The United Nations Command has announced that 3,597 Americans were returned during Operation Big Switch. Those seriously ill were flown to Travis Air Force Base and then taken to Army hospitals nearest their homes.

oners are started through a special processing system so that they can start on their ways home as fast as possible. The processing is done by a team of 60 technicians and officers from Camp Stoneman in a warehouse adjacent to the pier where the ships dock.

The normal procedure of sending returnees to Army stations nearest their homes before granting leave was changed to permit each to leave for his home, directly from the dock. Leave orders for the repatriates are issued prior to docking of the transports and are distributed during the processing.

Those whose families are at the dock to meet them are processed first so they may leave immediately.

The men who have to wait for their turn to be processed are brought to the Presidio to rest. If they have to wait for transportation after being processed, they are returned to the club until their departure time.

The processing, which normally takes at least 24 hours, is usually completed in less than half that time.

Franklin L. Orth, Milwaukee attorney, has been appointed Special Assistant for Reserve Forces to the Secretary of the Army. He will be concerned with the programs for all civilian components including the Army Reserve, National Guard and Reserve Officers Training Corps. Budget Cuts Will Hit Entire Army Area

★ ★ ★ Fiscal Year Slash Forces Tightening Of Economic Belt

Lieutenant General Joseph M. Swing, Sixth Army Commander, said today that a drastic cut in Sixth Army funds for the fiscal year 1954 by Department of the Army will result in a reduction in the number of civilian personnel employed at 38 Army installations in eight western states.

Although no overall figure on the number of civilians to be separated is yet available, the most substantial cuts are being made among repairs and utilities (R&U) personnel. These are being reduced in varying numbers upwards to 50 per cent at different installations.

At the Presidio of San Francisco, available funds for Post Operating personnel resulted in a reduction of somewhat less than 100 positions (slots). Since some of these positions are not now being filled, actual loss in employees will be between 60 and 70 persons.

Civilian employees affected by the reduction in force will be given the full 30 days' notice but will not be continued in a work status beyond the required two work weeks. Funds are not available to permit retention in a work status for a longer period. Employees who must be dropped from the rolls will be removed from work status on or before 14 October.

Personnel officials have been instructed to accord separated employees their fullest support in protecting job rights, retention credits and assisting them in finding other employment. The Army has no wish to spoil an outstanding record as a fair employer.

Sixth Army has provided guidance to installations for a new civilian personnel and funding program. This overall program for the Sixth Army area will result in the following reductions in functions and activities:

1. Post Headquarters will effect a 10 per cent reduction in civilian personnel cost by reducing civilian overtime; a reduction in civilian guards; reduction in postal and messenger service; use of stenographic and typist pools; consolidation of related functions and activities and reduction in personnel. There will also be a maximum reduction in TDY travel for all personnel and maximum curtailment of schools.

2. Logistic services and operations must effect a 10 per cent reduction in all technical service field maintenance by consolidating maintenance operations; elimination of duplicate facilities; reduce 10 per cent all supply and storage activities; consolidate supply and storage operations; reduce inventories to authorized levels; consolidate property accounting activities to reduce administrative overhead; restrict repairs and utilities activities and effect a 35 per cent reduction in motor pool operations.

3. Savings in the Signal sections will be effected by reducing toll, TWX, commercial telegraph charges and telephone service charges by at least 20 per cent; reducing number of rented commercial telephones by 30 per cent; curtailing maintenance to the minimum consistent with operational requirements; reducing long distance telephone calls by use of TWX and mails; reduction of civilian overtime and a 30 per cent reduction of film library and photo laboratory activities.

MOST PLEASANT SURROUNDINGS that Major General William F. Dean, the nation's highest ranking former POW, has had in many a month are the members of his immediate family, who met the general at Travis Air Force base Tuesday, on his return from the Far East. Shown with him, l. to r.: Mrs. June Williams, his daughter; Mrs. Elizabeth Dean, his mother; the general with his grandson, Robert Dean Williams, and Mrs. Mildred Dean, the general's wife. General Dean spent three years as a prisoner of war in North Korea, and has been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for his heroic deeds. (Army photo by Cox.)

Was Prisoner 3 Years!

General Dean Embraces Family, Homeland 1st Time in Six Years

Major General William F. Dean, the nation's highest ranking former prisoner of war, is home.

He stepped from a plane at Travis Air Force base Tuesday night (22 September) to be greeted by all the members of his family except a son, William Jr., a cadet at West Point.

First to rejoin him was his wife, Mildred, who had kept a three-year vigil of hope for his safe return. It was she who received the Congressional Medal of Honor awarded the general, at a White House ceremony with President Truman on 9 January, 1951.

Also present to greet the general was his 73-year-old mother, Mrs. C. W. Dean, his daughter, Mrs. Robert C. Williams, wife of Army Captain Robert C. Williams, and the littlest Dean of all, two-year-old Robert Dean Williams, who had of course, never seen his granddaddy before. He climbed aboard the general's shoulders and made himself at ease right away.

Expressing with deepest emotion, his happiness at being back in the United States and "home," General Dean spoke for a short while with reporters at the airport before leaving with his family for their home in Berkeley, California.

The 54-year-old general, who has not seen his homeland for six years, three of which were spent in ungracious solitude in a North Korea prison compound, said he has no immediate plans for the future. He may or may not elect to stay in the Army.

The former commander of the 24th Division will be the honored guest at a Berkeley city reception tonight, which will be attended by other former POW's in the Berkeley area as well as local Congressional Medal of Honor winners.

WACs Get Choice!

Enlisted members of the WAC have been offered the opportunity to re-enlist for assignment in the Army area or installation of their choice. Designed to encourage Army careers for women, provisions of the new regulations are in keeping with options offered last summer to male re-enlistees. Choice of the area of assignment is dependent on re-enlistment in the Regular Army within 90 days of discharge and the existence of a vacancy in the proper grade and job speciality.

Army Announces Atomic Gun Units Going to Europe

Washington—A battalion of 280-mm mobile guns, the Army's latest and largest field artillery weapons, will shortly be sent to Europe for support of NATO defense forces under Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther.

Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens named the 868th FA Bn., Ft. Bragg, N. C., as the first of several 280mm battalions planned for Europe. They will be assigned to U. S. units already on the continent.

Mr. Stevens stated that the shipment of these battalions to Europe has been in the planning stage a long time and is part of established U. S. policy to make available highly-trained and well-equipped balanced forces for support of NATO.

"No single weapon will solve the military problems of western defense or deter aggression," Sec. Stevens stated. He pointed out that although the 280mm gun strengthens the defense shield of NATO it cannot be regarded as a substitute for other weapons and forces required for the defense of Europe.

The 868th FA Bn., now finishing training at Ft. Bragg, will be stationed in Western Germany to train and maneuver with NATO forces. It will be placed at the disposition of the Supreme Allied Commander Europe, as will the other 280mm organizations scheduled to arrive later. (AFPS)

★ ★ ★ Civic Leaders Laud Military Policeman For High Calibre

Tomorrow — Saturday 26 September, 1953 — will mark the twelfth anniversary of the Military Police Corps. In honor of the occasion, members of the 505th MP Battalion, under command of Lt. Col. Keene Saxon, scheduled a full calendar of special observances which began Tuesday and will continue through 2 October.

Launching the local anniversary was a television broadcast entitled, "Your Sixth Army Military Policemen," which went out over station KPIX Tuesday evening. It was filmed through the cooperation of the 505th MP Battalion, the Armed Services Police Detachment and the 60th Criminal Investigation Detachment.

The film followed a typical trainee through his course at the Military Training Center, Fort Baker, to his assignment at the Presidio where he performs duties of security of the installation and service to the troops. Also depicted were the duties and services of members of the Armed Services Police Detachment.

Social activities began Thursday with an anniversary reception given by the Sixth Army Provost Marshal office at the Presidio's Officers' Club. Lt. Col. L. F. Claps, Sixth Army Provost Marshal, extended invitations to members of the Headquarters staff to join in the observance.

Army Commander's Message

To the Military Police Corps:

During the past twelve years the Military Police Corps has grown from a small, hastily selected group of officers and enlisted men to a closely knit, well organized, thoroughly and highly trained group of men and women whose motto, "OF THE TROOPS AND FOR THE TROOPS," constantly practiced, stands as a solemn reminder to all that respect, in order to be deserved, must be earned.

These men and women of the Military Police Corps today can be justifiably proud of their heritage and of their achievements, attained through diligent and zealous efforts to promote good relationships with their fellow members of the Armed Services and with the civilians with whom they are in daily contact.

I wish to congratulate the members of the Military Police Corps within Sixth Army on this, their twelfth anniversary, and I sincerely hope they will continue to carry out their mission as they have done so creditably in the past.

J. M. SWING,
Lieutenant General, USA,
Commanding.

Today, military police will be featured on the Del Courtney show to be televised at 1330 over station KPIX. Military guests on the program will include SFC Harper S. Taggart and SFC Geery Scourtis, both of the 505th MP Battalion, (Continued on page 4)

THE REAL THING! WELL—almost. When a tiny flare is set off inside the building and things begin to turn red and smoke, then Fireman Peter A. Bruhn quickly sends out his miniature fleet of fire apparatus and daring firemen, who turn on their hoses (the real thing too!) and pftttt—out goes the fire. Mr. Bruhn has spent two years building the above display, and everything operates just like downtown. All models are built to scale and the lil' hoses can send up a spray of water for a distance of 40 feet. It will all be on display in front of the Presidio Fire station during the first week in October—National Fire Prevention week. (Army photo by Weiss.)

It Really Works!

Presidio Fire Department Has 'Junior Grade' for Small Fires

By Gloria Hetherington
Star-Presidian Feature Editor

The Presidio Fire department just won't be outdone! They have equipment to fit your every fire. Now if you discover you have a big fire, of course you'll want the big trucks and full equipment.

But—
If you discover a little bitty fire say in Susie's doll house, then you want the "special equipment," operated by Fireman Peter A. Bruhn. Now this miniature fire department is not make-believe. Far from it. Four working models of fire apparatus, i.e., two trucks, a chief's car, and a water tower, complete with fire hydrants that discharge real water, are ready to rush out at the sound of a siren.

The entire "department" will be on display in front of the fire station during National Fire Prevention week which is the first week in October.

In addition to the apparatus, there is a model six-story "burning" building, a replica of a city street and dozens of tiny firemen and spectators, to attain just the right atmosphere.

The vital statistics on this replica, which required some 4,000 hours of work, are indeed fascinating.

Hand made, mostly of German silver, the models are scaled at three-fourths of an inch to one foot.

The water tower, for instance, will discharge a stream of water nearly 40-feet, and with sufficient force to knock over a tiny chair at that distance!

Internal and external gears, the size of an ordinary ring, operate the tower and top nozzle. Tiny valves control the water supply and a miniature Gleason valve is on the side of the truck.

There are eight inlets for hoses and Mr. Bruhn has fashioned lengths of hose from virgin rubber tubing; necessary to withstand from 70 to 100 pounds of water pressure that can be achieved.

The trucks carry the regulation number of ladders and all other fire-fighting equipment found on San Francisco's long streamlined trucks. And the hydrants are exact replicas of those found all over the city.

A series of extension ladders, ranging from 65 feet down to 12 feet and constructed of spruce with rungs of toothpicks, are carried in the ladder berths. When "fighting a fire," they can be unfurled to their full length in a wink.

All of Mr. Bruhn's apparatus have rubber tires, fire extinguishers, life-lines, red lights, bells, sirens, axes and helmets—the latter the size of your thumbnail.

George Geller, Presidio Fire chief, explained that the craftsmanship of Mr. Bruhn attracted the attention of a Hollywood studio, which offered him a job building small sets and models of cities.

But Mr. Bruhn elected to stay with his first love—fire enjuns! "I still don't have my fire model display entirely completed," he commented. "But the boys in the department here with me have certainly cooperated and given me a hand with getting it in shape for display."

Bruhn, who retired as a lieutenant from the San Francisco Fire department in 1950, after 25 years of service, has been the recipient of many official commendations for meritorious and heroic conduct. His post was Number 28 Engine.

He served as assistant fire chief at Fort Mason, California, before coming to the Presidio in January of this year. He presently resides in San Francisco with his wife and grown daughter.

Ideas pay off! Cash awards for adopted suggestions have been recently paid to the following Presidio employees:

Saul Goldstein, Central Dental Laboratory, $20.00, presented by Lt. Col. William O. Orsinger, Commanding Officer, Central Dental Laboratory, for his suggestion concerning articulation of master casts and investing of partial denture patterns. This award was in addition to an initial award of $35.00 previously received by Mr. Goldstein.

Mrs. Vlasta DePeu, Comptroller Section, California Military District, $10.00 for her suggestion of using colored tissue for central files and initiating office "comeback" copies of outgoing correspondence.

Frank D. Celeste, Signal Repair Shop, $10.00, presented 8 July, 1953, by Col. Ariel B. Cooper, Signal Officer, for his suggestion concerning the rehabilitation of worn sleeve and plunger on used Model 14 Typing Reperforator.

Eric B. Banner and Dan A. Dougherty, $35.00 and $25.00 respectively, presented 18 August, 1953, by Maj. William G. Wurz, Post Ordnance Officer. Mr. Banner received his award for suggesting a change-over of solenoid switches on Chevrolet passenger cars. Mr. Dougherty suggested a reflector for night gauge on equilibrator reservoir 120mm AA gun.

Charles E. Blunt, Quartermaster Section, $20.00, presented 4 September, 1953, by Lt. Col. Bayard A. Miller, Post Quartermaster, for designing and fabricating a mimeograph cylinder cleaning unit.

Carol E. Lester, G-3 Section, WAAC, Fort Baker, $10.00, presented on 4 September, 1953, by Brig. Gen. Edward J. McGaw, Commanding General, WAAC, for her suggestion concerning the placement of a signboard at the bottom of the hill leading to the East Gate, Fort Baker.

Francis C. Hughes and Joseph Blaser, Post Engineer Section, $25.00, presented 15 September, 1953, by Lt. Col. Richard J. Mays, Executive Officer, Post Engineer Section, for their suggestion concerning a heating device for removal of asphalt tile.

At a ceremony held at Post Headquarters 12 August, 1953, Miss Mildred B. Szymanske and Mrs. Evelyn S. Smith, Post Comptroller Section, received awards from Col. W. F. Magill, Jr., Deputy Post Commander. Miss Szymanske received a Sixth Army Certificate of Achievement for outstanding performance of duties and Mrs. Smith a letter of commendation for receiving an Outstanding Performance Rating.

Thomas LeRay, G-3 Section, Hq Sixth Army, on 31 July, 1953 received a Sixth Army Certificate of Achievement from Col. Wayland B. Augur, Deputy Chief of Staff for operations.

Emil S. Lindeberg, Post Engineer Section, who retired after 18 years of Federal service, was presented with a Sixth Army Certificate of Achievement by Lt. Col. Richard J. Mays, Executive Officer, Post Engineer Section at a ceremony on 15 September, 1953.

Miss Dorothy J. Bond, Engineer Section, Headquarters Sixth Army, was awarded a Sixth Army Certificate of Achievement.

99th Repro Squad Wins Drill Contest, Three-day Pass Too

Members of the first squad from the first platoon of the 99th Engineer Base Reproduction Company won first-place honors and a three-day pass to boot last Saturday when their group won a competition to determine the best squad in the 30th Engineer Topographic Battalion.

The winners took 85 points out of a possible 100—a three-point edge over their closest rival the first squad of the first platoon from Headquarters Company, 30th Engineers. The second squad of the first platoon of the 542nd Engineer Base Survey Company nabbed third.

Thirty-six squads took part in the competition, which was divided into 18 stations. The contest was judged on correct dress, appearance of soldier, and drill.

Members of the second and third-ranking squads also won three-day passes from their companies for their efforts.

Members of the top squad were: Sfc. Raymond Decker, Squad Leader, Pfc. Arthur Gant, Pfc. Henry Palmer, Pfc. Larnard Lane, Pfc. Armando Reza, Pfc. Sandy Russell, Pfc. Kymert Witcher, Pfc. Nelson Thibeaux, and Pfc. Billie Ingram.

Mayor Robinson Salutes MP's Record

"It is with great pleasure that I salute the Military Police on this 12th Anniversary of their founding.

"As Mayor of San Francisco, I am thoroughly aware of their great contribution to the maintenance of law and order in this city and their record and demeanor reflect great credit upon the military establishment and I am confident that with each succeeding anniversary their place and importance in the military establishment will be accorded greater and greater recognition.

"Elmer E. Robinson, Mayor, San Francisco."

This program was put into effect in the Sixth Army area on 15 March, 1951, following the initial success of the plan when it was introduced in Honolulu in 1949. It was set up when a joint agreement was reached between the Commanding General of the Sixth Army and the commanders of the other services.

These units are designed to eliminate much duplication of work among the various services and to provide more efficient service at a lower cost. Their primary mission on both town and train patrols is to maintain discipline, enforce orders and render assistance.

The Armed Services Police Detachment, Metropolitan San Francisco-Oakland East Bay Area, under command of Lt. Col. Charles A. Fanning, MPC, is quartered at the U. S. Naval Station, Treasure Island. This central headquarters contains the communications, records, supply and transportation sections of the unit, as well as barracks, unit mess and recreation facilities for the crew, and is the center of operations for the Train Division.

Two division headquarters are maintained, one in downtown San Francisco and the other in Oakland. The personnel assigned to each of these stations include a division officer, duty officers, desk sergeants, office staff, patrolmen, patrol wagon drivers and wagon guards, all of whom wear the uniform of their respective branches of service.

This detachment has 25 patrol vehicles which are utilized on town patrol and headquarters administrative duties. Since last March, these vehicles have traveled a total of 1,605,000 miles.

All of the vehicles are radio equipped and are controlled by the communications center at the headquarters on Treasure Island, which operates 24 hours daily.

The Train Division was added to the detachment in September, 1951. It is responsible for train patrol duties between San Francisco and Portland, Gallup, Ogden, Los Angeles, Bakersfield, and Barstow.

Governing of the detachment is under the direction of the Senior Armed Forces Disciplinary Control Board, Western Area, located at the Presidio of San Francisco. Its membership is composed of senior representatives of the Army, Navy, Coast Guard and Air Force. The board is designated as the coordinating agency between the senior commanders of the services concerned and the detachment.

Local MP's Stay Right Up to Date With New Devices

Presidio's busiest street intersections took on a new look this week as military policemen began using black and white traffic control boxes to stand on while directing traffic. The foot-high boxes will be used at five major points on the post during the morning and evening rush hours.

These traffic control boxes are just one of the numerous improvements made during the past few months to increase the efficiency of the activities of the Presidio Provost Marshal section under the direction of Lt. Col. James H. Ashcraft, Post Provost Marshal, and Capt. Bryan P. Seale, Assistant Provost Marshal.

Other improvements have included the construction of a large MP desk and the installation of an electrical car locator which shows the cars in operation at any given time and which is controlled by the desk sergeant. Also, one room of the office has been made into a large cell for keeping detainees for short periods of time.

Since 11th Century!

MP's Duties Trace Back to Beginnings of Military History

While the Military Police Corps, celebrating its twelfth anniversary on 26 September, is one of the Army's youngest branches, armies have had men to perform military police duties from the very beginnings of military history.

The office of Provost Marshal can be traced back at least to the 11th century and the Norman conquest of England. In those days, the Provost was appointed personally by the King to handle disciplinary problems, safeguard royal interests, and, so far as possible, maintain order behind the lines.

A Provost Marshal was appointed "to the Army of the United Colonies" by "His Excellency General Washington" in January 1776. Two years later, a Congressional resolution established a Provost Corps to be "mounted on horseback and accoutered as Light Dragoons."

For nearly 80 years after the Revolution few references to military law enforcement personnel have been found. But in the Civil War, a Provost Marshal of the Union forces was appointed. In addition to being the chief military policeman, he had to operate the first nation-wide conscription of troops.

Also during the Civil War, the Veteran Reserve Corps was established in 1862 by the Federal government and charged with performing military police duties and maintaining internal security. By 1866, this corps had been disbanded, the Office of the Provost Marshal General abolished and military police work again performed by unit commanders.

This situation existed until the entry of the United States into World War I. As troops of the American Expeditionary Forces began to arrive in France in 1917 the necessity for military police supervision and control became apparent.

A Provost Marshal was appointed to General Pershing's staff in 1917. The following year the War Department approved the formation of a Military Police Corps for the duration of the emergency. Though a permanent corps was recommended after the war, none was formed.

When World War II appeared imminent in 1940 and 1941, the Army again recognized the need for a uniform and centrally directed policing group. On 31 July 1941, the Secretary of War directed The Judge Advocate General to establish the Office of the Provost Marshal General and to create a Corps of Military Police.

The new corps had to be created from almost nothing. The first components were made up of persons who had been on military police duty in other branches of the Army.

The first Military Police school opened in 1942 at Fort Myer, Virginia; and at Fort Riley, Kansas, the MP Replacement Training center soon began turning out trained policemen. The schools were combined and moved to Fort Custer, Michigan, and later to Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia. Finally, MP training was moved to Camp Gordon, Georgia, where it is today.

Graduation exercises for a class of 195 men completing the course at the Military Police Training Center this week will be held tomorrow at Fort Baker. The Sixth Army Band will be present to play for the parade which will precede the exercises. A member of the 505th MP Battalion will address the graduates.

Final anniversary activity will be the 505th MP Battalion party to be held next Friday at the Presidio Non-Commissioned Officers' Club. The affair will be attended by all officers and men of the battalion.

Modern Design!

CID Personnel Utilizes Latest Development in Criminology

All civil type felonies involving military personnel, whether victims or offenders, are investigated by the Military Police, Criminal Investigation Detachment. The 60th CID at the Presidio is under command of Capt. Joseph J. Dalto.

The many and varied devices of modern criminology are all utilized by the detachment personnel in their work. Among these are newest fingerprint techniques, infra red photography, ultra violet photography and the lie detector, the latter being employed to eliminate suspects and is used only with the consent of the examinee.

CID works in close liaison with Federal, state and local agencies, as well as the post military police units. Such agencies include the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Secret Service, and narcotics, customs and postal organizations.

Numerous laboratories for processing of evidence are available to the detachment, one of the most modern being that at Camp Gordon, Georgia, headquarters of the Military Police Corps. Others are the Sixth Army Medical Laboratory at Fort Baker, the Federal Bureau of Investigation laboratory in Washington, D. C., and the State of California laboratory at Sacramento.

Oakland Police Chief Congratulates MPs

"The Oakland Police Department wishes to congratulate the Military Police Corps on their 12th Anniversary.

"We feel that the Military Police have done an outstanding job since their inception and we have particularly noted the high caliber of men filling their ranks. Many of these men have joined the Oakland Police Department upon their discharge from the military service.

"Our relationship with the men of the Military Police Corps has always been very cordial and they have been very helpful both from the CID level and the patrol level.

"We appreciate the help they have given us.

"Lester J. Devine, Chief, Oakland Police Department."

Over 2,000 Graduates!

Fort Baker's MPTC Provides Future MP's Sound Training

Nearly 2000 military police have been graduated from the Military Police Training Center at Fort Baker during the ten months since the school's opening on 18 December 1952.

This center is one of six of its kind in the United States and the only one on the West Coast.

Training at the center is supervised and conducted by the officers and men of the 505th Military Police Battalion, under the command of Lt. Col. Keene Saxon. Capt. Raymond E. LeVan is the officer in charge.

During the eight-weeks course, trainees assigned after completing their basic training receive instruction for the first time in military police subjects, such as authority and jurisdiction, duties of military police, handling of prisoners of war, and guard-house and confinement.

They also complete those general military subjects in which they received instruction prior to reporting to MPTC. They are taught various weapons, techniques of firing those weapons, principles of military intelligence, map and aerial photo reading, squad tactical training and a variety of other subjects.

The rifle range at Fort Barry serves the training center for rifle and carbine firing. To add to these facilities, the center constructed a pistol and submachine gun range with 30 firing points.

MPTC's driving training area is at Fort Scott next to the west toll plaza gate. This includes a practice convoy circle, a series of driving obstacles, parking stalls, and three hill climbs which permit 20 vehicles to use the course at one time.

Although their training primarily entails instruction in military police subjects, physical fitness of the men is stressed throughout the course. The school's physical training area has a confidence course with 18 obstacles ranging from a 40-foot climb to rolling logs and

SF Police Laud MP's on Anniversary

"Congratulations on your 12th Anniversary.

"The San Francisco Police Department has had the full cooperation of the U. S. Military authorities and the Military Police in matters affecting our common problems. Our relations have been most cordial and this Department has a high regard for the ability and competency in law enforcement by this fine organization—the Military Police.

"By working in close harmony with the military police, and by continuance of the fine cooperation, the solving of our future problems will be minimized.

barbed-wire entanglements. Instruction is also given in unarmed defense, popularly known as judo.

One week of the training is a bivouac at Hunter Liggett Military Reservation, adjacent to Camp Roberts, Calif. Here they learn care and maintenance of weapons and equipment in the field. Both day and night convoy problems are given and the men are taught the use of reflectorized batons to direct traffic during blackout conditions.

In preparation for future assignments, the trainees also are given "on-the-job" training as assistant military policemen with security patrol duties, duty at the guard house and at the MP desk.

MP Insignia Was Trial, Error Choice

Military Police wear a collar insignia that is nearly twenty years older than the Military Police Corps, which observes its twelfth anniversary Saturday. Following assignment of National Guard personnel to the military police, a drawing of the insignia was signed in 1922 by General Pershing, then The Chief of Staff.

When planning the device, draftsmen started by drawing crossed police clubs, but at saluting distance the MP could not be distinguished from the Field Artilleryman. Next was tried the medieval military club—the mace, but they looked like crossed potato mashers.

Final decision was to use the first standardized, quantity production military pistol with interchangeable parts, the Harpers Ferry Arsenal Army Flint-Lock Pistol, Model 1806, caliber .54. These pistols were the army officers' side arm and holster pistols of a century and a half ago, made in pairs, single shot, of heavy caliber.

Law Rules Civilian Drivers Liable for On-Post Violations

Civilian drivers are now being cited for failure to observe traffic laws while driving on Presidio streets and a United States commissioner is holding weekly court sessions on post to take punitive action in these cases.

Issuance of citations to civilians follows several years of legal dispute over the matter. The final decision was that the vehicle laws of the State of California apply on post by virtue of the Assimilated Crimes Act.

Between 1 September, when the law was first applied, through 21 September, eighty-eight complaints were filed, according to Capt. Bryan P. Seale, Assistant Post Provost Marshal. The majority of these were for failure to stop at Stop signs.

FIELD OF VISION TEST, being given Cpl. Norman LaVigne by Lt. Thomas A. Keane, is one of the many tests which all trainees must take before being issued a driver's license at the Military Police Training Center at Fort Baker. Other tests include depth perception, reaction time and general knowledge of rules and regulations for driving.

Fumblesome Red Raiders Humbled by Chico Varsity 14-7 in Season's First

You can add our own Red Raiders to the list of upset victims which spread the national gridiron picture last week end.

A one-time strident and confident Raider football squad left the Chico State stadium at Chico, California, humbled and with the wind knocked out of them, 14-7, last Saturday night.

They had gone out onto the field the favorites in the eyes of all including Chico—Chronicle pundit Art Rosenbaum to the contrary—outweighing the Chico line-up by about ten pounds and with the brunt of experience in their favor.

Behind them was the 14-6 defeat inflicted on the tough Petaluma Leghorns in their practice game the previous week end, and the 14-6, win over last year's Chico eleven, accredited to a supposedly vastly weaker Presidio crew. It looked like the odds were in their favor.

But the Chico collegians, with three of their top men sidelined by pre-game injuries, worked up enough of the old college try to ram two TD's through the Raider defense before the end of the first half.

And it wasn't until the waning last quarter that the Presidians gathered momentum enough to crack a repelling Chico forward wall and go over for their one and only marker of the game.

It was in the opening of the second quarter that the Chico collegians intercepted a Presidio pass—one of the four they pilfered in the progress of the game—and three plays later speedy Frank Ferraiuolo, Chico right half, ran 32 yards to paydirt and the contest's first

TD. Qb Hal Higgins made good the conversion.

The locals received the subsequent punt on their own 20. They forced the ball to their 40, but the Chico line held. The Presidians kicked on four, forcing the Chico offense to open on their 30.

From there they marched the ball to the Presidio 10, fumbled, recovered, and summarily scored their second marker on a short pass over center, Hal Higgins to Mike Adams. Higgins made the second conversion good.

The Raiders had to wait till the middle of the fourth quarter to make their big try. They received a Chico punt on their 30-yard line. Dave Marcelli shot a short pass to Roland Daigle to bring the fight to the 35, and on the next play Daigle bore the pigskin to the opposition end-zone. Dick Jackstadt made a successful conversion.

Raider chances for a second and tying TD in the closing minutes of the game were lost once by a fumble and another time by a pass interception—the last a heartbreaking turn of events on the Chico 15-yard stripe.

Statistics show a decided edge for the Presidians in force of ground attack—185 yards earned in rushing as against Chico's 139—but whatever territory was gained by successful ground or aerial sorties was invariably thrown away through fumbling or pass interception. And the Chicoites took advantage of every opening the Presidians gave them.

For the seven fumbles recorded against the locals—half of them on receipt of kicks—the collegians lost only two balls. The Presidians suffered six penalties to the Chico team's two.

A Close Fight!

21st Soltechs Bowl to League Title; Alibi Walden Top Kegler

By SGT. FRANK SLOAN

This week marks the end of another season for the Fort Scott Bowling League, with the maple-polishing 21st Soltechs as the victors of the keggers.

Leading throughout most of the season, the 21st Techs rolled 19,579 total pins and 26 wins to nab the champion's top-spot from their nearest rivals by a slim one-game margin.

Ace keggers for the winning team were Merrill, with a total of 4003 pins rolled for an average of 133, and Beaman averaging 132, with a total of 3971 pins.

Sgt. Walden, mangling the pins for the rival 21st Alibis, was the high-point man in the League with an average of 151.

Rolling the cannon-ball for a close 25-win second place were the Surveyors, who threatened the lead all through the season.

Tying for third place, the 99th Engineers and Headquarters Company both had 21 wins and 19 losses. Since only first- and second-place trophies are to be awarded, there will be no play-off between the two teams.

Other members of the champion team were Lewis, with an average of 131, Corson, with 130 and Carlson, with 125.

Following are final scores:
Team	Won	Lost
21st Soltechs	26	14
Surveyors	25	15
99th Engineers	21	19
Headquarters Company	21	19
21st Alibis	16	24
30th Officers	13	27

O'Briens Inducted

Johnny and Eddie O'Brien, South Amboy, New Jersey, fabulous basketball and baseball twins, left last week for their third dual careers of 1953—with the United States Army this time.

The inseparable brothers, stars of Seattle U's basketball team and more recently bonus rookies with the Pittsburgh Pirates, were on the bus with 27 other inductees when it left for Camp Kilmer.

Hunting More Popular

Hunting is becoming an ever more popular sport in California, despite the yearly shrinking of the area available for hunting.

A total of 588,150 people bought hunting licenses for 1952-53 figures show, and this was an increase of 10 per cent over the previous year, and more than double the State's mushrooming 4.4 per cent increase in population.

License sales for 1941-42, the biggest pre-war year, have been outdistanced by 77 per cent, while the State's population has grown 56 per cent in the same period.

New Game Regs. Give Cal. Hunters Split Fowl Season

California's 200,000 licensed duck hunters can look forward this winter to the most liberal waterfowl hunting regulations since World War II.

President William J. Silva of the California Fish and Game Commission announced that his five-man group has selected a split season of two 34-day hunting periods in order to "give the best possible break to all segments of the State's hunting and agricultural groups."

The 1953 seasons will run from noon, 16 October, to sunset, 18 November; and from noon, 8 December, to sunset, 10 January, 1954.

For the first time since 1940, the U. S. Department of the Interior granted California hunters an open season on jacksnipe. Given a 15-day hunting period choice between 1 October and 10 January, the California commissioners selected 8 December (noon) to 22 December. Daily bag and possession limit is eight jacksnipe.

The Commission had a choice between a straight 75-day waterfowl hunting season and the twin 34-day seasons. The latter was chosen, Silva said, to allow hunters to harvest birds which might cause serious early and late season crop damage. It will also permit better hunting for the unattached hunter and offer a chance to shoot late-arriving geese.

Last year, California hunters shot during a straight 70-day waterfowl season.

Post Casaba Season to Open Monday; Heavy Schedule Seen

The 1953 Presidio intra-mural basketball season gets underway Monday in the Fort Scott gym.

All of 20 teams from units distributed about the Post from Fort Cronkhite to Fort Scott had been entered in the race by mid-week, and the season promises to be the busiest in years.

By the look of things casaba-minded troops from the Presidio will take part in a record 180 tilts. These games will probably be held five days a week, as opposed to the four the Athletic Office had originally set, with three games scheduled per evening.

Even these plans are tentative, since Special Service expected more applications for admission into the loop's two leagues—the American and National—by today.

Units that have already submitted one or more teams under the 250-man organizational strength ruling include the 30th Engineers, Harbor Defense, 11th TC, 505th MP Bn, Det A, 459th AAA, 9th AAA, 102 MRU, and the Fort Scott Hill Toppers.

Members of the Post team to be entered in the All-Sixth Army casaba competition at the start of the year will be chosen on an All-Star basis from the teams participating in the intra-mural play.

Back the Raiders!

The Presidio Red Raiders meet the University of California Ramblers, the Berkeley frosh squad, tomorrow at 1400 hours on the Fort Scott Athletic Field here at the Presidio.

All military and civilian personnel are encouraged to back the locals in this their second official tilt of the season.

The Rambler line-up will probably be sparked by quarterback Hugh Maguire, with S. Bordonaro and Tom Kramer his running mates in the left and right halfback positions, and Pete Crebbin in the fullback slot.

The Ramblers have already lost a season-opener against the highly-touted Alameda Naval Air Station "Hellcats" 33-13.

The new defensive pass interference ruling in football gives the offensive team only enough yardage for a first down. Under the old rule, the defensive team was penalized 15 yards from the point of infraction.

QUESTIONS

- Who is taller, Pee Wee Reese of the Brooklyn Dodgers or Phil Rizzuto of the New York Yankees?
- Which team has won more games in the Notre Dame-Army football series?
- Was Citation or Stymie the top money winner?
- Which sport in the U. S. has the largest paying spectator attendance?
- What were the results of the three Tony Zale-Rocky Graziano fights?

ANSWERS

- Reese stands 5-10; Rizzuto, 5-6.
- Notre Dame, 23 victories; Army, seven with four ties during 1913-47. No game was played in 1918.
- Citation won $1,085,760; Stymie, $918,485.
- Basketball with 105 million attendance annually. Softball attracts from 125-130 million but only 7,500,000 are "paid attendance."
- Zale retained his middleweight title on a sixth round KO in New York (1946) and lost it in Chicago (1947) by a KO in the sixth. In Newark a year later, Zale won back his title with a KO in the third.

Fort Ord, All-Sixth Softball Champs, Eye MDW's All-Army Play in October

By PFC. BRUCE LANSBURY
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

The 1953 All-Sixth Army Softball tourney rushed to a climactic finish here last Friday when two of the toughest teams this area may hope to see in a long while ran head-on into a thrilling diamond duel for top tournament honors.

The tourney finals were the scene for a double-header by the once-beaten Ordsters and the ne'er-thrashed and hard-fighting 505th Military Police Battalion, the Presidio representation.

The Braves beat the MPs twice in a row to cop the tournament and the Sixth Army Championship.

The championship finals had been preceded by a week of wholesale softball on Presidio's diamonds number one and two—a score of contests in which 12 teams and 168 individual players had participated for all their worth.

Ord had moved into the finals by virtue of a semi-final victory over the plucky Camp Irwin were the real threats in the tournament.

Close to 1500 spectators saw this fourth straight victory for the locals—Fort Lawton, Dugway Proving Grounds and Letterman were their previous victims—and Ord's first defeat. They cheered MP Fred Goss' decisive first-inning three-sacker and Ord leftfielder Kennedy's bobble which brought in O'Garra, Asepermy and Garfield for three runs and ultimately cost the visitors the game.

It was a three-hitter for MP "Tiny" Kochel, who pitched for the home team throughout the tournament, while the Presidians connected eight times off hurler Lige Morris.

Friday's first Ord-Presidio contest saw the Braves take the game 6-2, thereby necessitating a final round play-off.

Fred Goss came up trumps once more. The MP catcher, in spite of a severely lacerated right hand, scored a triple, a single and a walk for three times up, while teammate Joe Papp tripled in the third inning to help spark a momentarily meager Presidio offense.

Ordmen Fierro and Cooney batted three for four, while Morris homered, to help build the winners' total of eleven hits.

Then came the pay-off—the final game of the tournament that spelled the championship for either team—and Ord won, 3-2, to nab the conference trophy and a crack at October's All-Army title.

Both contingents displayed a remarkably tight defense, with the Presidians allowing runs only in the second, third and final frame. The locals themselves were held scoreless till the bottom of the final inning, when with a last magnificent effort the MP bats produced two markers—but not enough to swing a tie or a verdict in their favor.

Biggest stick was once more Ordman Fierro. He clobbered a homer in the second inning to produce the first run of the game.

Brightest moment of the game for the Presidio came when "Chief" Asepermy, indefatigable short-stop for the MP's, cut down three Ord runners successively at the home plate. The "Chief" was perhaps the most valuable player for the Presidians throughout the tourney with his consistent hitting and expert ball-handling.

The Ord Braves will move shortly to the Military District of Washington, which will be the scene of the All-Army Softball Tournament, 5-10 October.

They travel with the good wishes and hopes of their tournament buddies, the many fans they made in the play here last week, and the entire Sixth Army Area. Good luck to the Braves!

Braves Close Season

In their final outing for the 1953 season, the Fort Ord Braves whipped the Watsonville Merchants, 9-5, for the Mission League baseball crown. Bill Koski chalked up the win for the locals, allowing five runs on 10 hits.

Only One Presidian!

Sixth Army Well Represented In Golden Gloves Tournament

At Winterland on Thursday night a packed arena saw the start of what promises to be one of the finest of all Golden Gloves tournaments in a long while.

Entries on opening night included 20 top amateur heavyweights, plus a liberal representation in all the weight divisions.

The Army khaki was especially well represented this year, with pugilists from some of the Sixth Army's major installations donning the mitts in the novice, junior and senior classifications.

Last year a powerful Sixth Army threshing machine cut a clean swath through Northern California's best crop of amateurs and harvested seven champions from 17 entries.

Fighters listed in the GG contest include heavyweights Albert Frazer of Stoneman and Fred Robinson, Fort Ord. Frazer's traveling mate is outstanding welter threat Ray Gill, who dropped a crucial fight in last year's Golden Gloves to Presidian Lou Gage (now a promising professional) and compensated with a berth on the All-Sixth ring contingent the following month.

Only one boxer is carrying the Presidio colors into the current GG fray, and he is Pfc. Jesse Hale. Hale went untrained into the All-Sixth bouts last year and lost in the semis to a better-conditioned Camp Roberts opponent. This year, under the tutelage of pros Jimmy Hays and Lou Gage, he plans bigger things.

The annual Examiner-sponsored glove tourney will continue 28 September, 1 and 5 October.

Alamitos Nine Grabs Inter-Service Crown From Fort Belvoir

The Los Alamitos, California, Naval Air Station won the 1953 Inter-Service baseball championship with a win over the Fort Belvoir nine, in the annual tournament held at the Marine base at Quantico, Va.

The Alamitos team reached the Inter-Service affair by virtue of a victory over the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force of Little Creek, Virginia, 4-3, in the All-Navy games held at Jacksonville, Florida, recently.

Captain Warren E. Sausser, Lt. Howard P. Hill, Mr. Ronald W. Eldred and Mr. Charles B. McDonald, Camp Roberts, California; Captain Raymond W. Wade and WOJG Willie E. Morgan, Camp San Luis Obispo, California.

Lt. Charles B. Zumwalt, Mr. Kenneth J. Bulgreen and Mr. Herman T. Olsen, Fort Ord, California; Captain John S. Wilson, Dugway Proving Ground; Mr. Theodore A. Allen, Camp Stoneman, California.

The school will now go to Fort Lewis, Washington, to conduct three classes beginning on 5 October and continuing through 23 October. Instructors will then return to the Presidio for approximately one week prior to conducting a class at Fort MacArthur, California.

Student load at Fort Lewis is expected to be approximately 86 officers and 14 civilians. They will come from the Yakima Firing center, Yakima, Washington; Camps Hanford, Lawton and Lewis, Washington; Seattle Port of Embarkation, Washington Military District, Auburn General depot, Oregon Military district, Vancouver Barracks, Washington and the Montana Military district, Helena, Montana.

The Army's famous Lyster Bag for carrying drinking water in the field was devised in 1913 by Major William J. Lyster.

New Army 'Climastat' Suit Has Automatic Heat Control

Washington—The "climastat suit" is the newest addition to the Army's rapidly-growing list of cold-weather equipment.

The new suit is an automatically controlled version of the coldbar suit revealed earlier this year. The climastat outfit gives a wider range of protection under varying cold-weather conditions than does its predecessor.

The difference between the two suits is in the number of layers and the use of perforations in the new model. Where the coldbar suit has but one layer, the climastat has two. The two layers are arranged and stitched together so that the perforations do not coincide in the separate layers.

Army Quartermaster technologists explain that the two layers of plastic insulation with staggered perforations keep the wearer warm by an air seal surrounding his body while he is inactive.

When the wearer is active, a forced pumping action results, providing ventilation through the holes and ridding the body of excess heat and moisture. The water-repellent outer jacket and trousers prevent the entrance of outside moisture from rain or snow.

Like the coldbar, the climastat suit can be worn beneath the regulation wind-resistant, water-repellent field packet and field trousers made of cotton fabric. It also has flotation characteristics sufficient to keep a fully equipped man afloat.

During the past winter, some 1,800 coldbar suits were tested by troops in Korea. These were found to be particularly well adapted to special cold-weather conditions found on amphibious landings, patrols, and during extended exposure without shelter. Both suits eliminate the problem of drying clothes under field conditions.

A limitation to general use of the coldbar suit is overheating which may occur if the garments are worn by men in moderate temperatures or while engaged in vigorous activity. The climastat overcomes this problem. (AFPS)

"Gamma Ray Gamble"

The "Gamma Ray Gamble," honoring that sunny Army spot, Camp Desert Rock, Nevada, will be the fifth in a series of six dances presently in full swing at the Fort Baker Service club. The dance is set for Tuesday (29 September) at 2000. Some "hot" music is also in the offing!

The Army issued 143,044 Combat Infantryman's Badges during a recent nine-month period.

YOU DON'T NEED to be a literary genius to write the winning letter in the "What America Means To Me" contest. Sound ideas and clear thinking, rather than literary form, may win you the principal prize of $1,000 offered by the Freedoms Foundation. Send a letter of not more than 500 words to the Awards Editor, Armed Forces Radio Service, Los Angeles 38, Calif. It must be received before midnight Oct. 15, 1953. Any received after that date will be considered for the next year's awards. Be sure it bears your signature, rank, service number and organization. You must be on active duty in the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps or Coast Guard to be eligible.

Sixth Army Craftsmen Compete in Local Art, Crafts Show This Week

As a part of this year's San Francisco Art Festival, now in progress, an educational exhibit showing the various phases of the Sixth Army arts and crafts program will be featured.

M/Sgt. Arthur J. Payne, stationed at Fort Baker headquarters, will have a display of his wood sculpture, and there will be oil paintings by members of the Fort Cronkhite Art club.

In addition, photographs by Major Leslie C. Wood, Sixth Army Special Services, and Lt. Ward F. Redshaw and M/Sgt. Harry L. Cox, Sixth Army Photo laboratory, will also compete.

The entire exhibit is set up in Union Square and Maiden Lane in downtown San Francisco, and the Sixth Army exhibit is in the TWA office, Maiden Lane at Stockton.

Running from 24 through 27 September, the show will present thousands of paintings and drawings, as well as sculpture, ceramics, weaving and metal works.

Army T.I.C. Topic

Just how the Army spends the 13½ billion dollars it requested of Congress this year to carry out its missions will be explained during the Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units next week. Information used will be from Troop Topics, No. 20-162, "Where the Money Goes."

The major portion of the Army's money goes into pay, food, clothing, equipment, transportation and similar costs. The balance goes into such general costs as Korean fortifications, operation of major headquarters, posts, camps and stations, construction, research and development and reserve activities.

Money to run the Army comes from taxes on individual incomes, corporation earnings and sales of merchandise and services. The amount of these taxes paid by soldiers will be discussed during the conferences.

These explanations of the Army's budget request for fiscal '54 will point out why certain conservation measures are stressed so strongly and why so much emphasis is placed on better maintenance and supply discipline.

As a taxpayer, each soldier has a definite, personal interest in seeing that the Army gets everything it can out of its dollars. "When you save money for the Army you save money for yourself," summarizes the Troop Topics.

UN Troops Are Given Freedom House Award

New York—United Nations soldiers who fought in Korea have been chosen by the Freedom House as recipients of its annual Freedom Award for 1953.

The award will be a bronze plaque bearing the inscription, "Dedicated to Those Who Fought in Mankind's First Collective Action Against Aggression and Tyranny."

Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U. S. representative to the UN, will make the presentation to UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld on Nov. 22, at the Hotel Commodore in New York.

K-Veteran Enrollment May Hit 200,000 During September '53

More than 200,000 ex-servicemen are expected to enroll in various colleges and universities this month under the provisions of the Korean G.I. Bill. This will be the first time since WWII that a substantial number of veterans have come to college campuses.

By the end of the 1953-54 academic year, college officials predict that between 225,000 and 250,000 discharged vets will be enrolled. Close to $200,000,000 in Government tuition and maintenance grants will be received by the vet-students.

The Government is expected to spend another $100,000,000 on an additional 100,000 men and women who plan to enter vocational and secondary schools.

Men and women who entered the military service since June 27, 1950 are entitled to the benefits of the Korean G.I. Bill, which became effective Aug. 20, 1952. (AFPS)

Quick Processing!

Better Planning Will Increase Soldiers' Effectual Service Time

Washington—The Army plans to increase the amount of effectual service by enlisted personnel.

Under a new program fewer days will be spent in processing and travel.

Individuals enlisted or inducted on and after Oct. 1 nor◊mally will arrive at reception stations closest to their home within two days following entry into the Army. Processing there will take about three days and, in most instances, will be accomplished at the installation at which they will be given basic training.

While they are at the reception station, only the minimum of necessary clothing will be distributed to the new soldiers. However, each will be fitted for his Class "A" uniform, one of which will be issued after the second week of training.

The remainder of the uniform issue will be distributed about five weeks later. Since the majority of trainees experience changes in their physical measurements, it is believed this system will preclude many uniform alterations and replacements at a later date.

Selection for specialized training, which previously took place during the first three days of Army Service, now will be made between the fourth and sixth week of basic combat training.

After completing the first eight weeks of basic training, individuals will be given 14 days leave. Previously only seven days leave at home was guaranteed after completion of the entire basic training period.

Although the new plan does not provide for leave upon completion of basic training, trainees will have more time at home while on this basic training leave, as the distance between the training post and home will be comparatively short.

Upon termination of leave, the majority of trainees will return to the same installation where they took basic combat training for their advanced individual training. The remainder will conclude training at other posts where different types of specialized training are provided.

Following completion of the 16-week basic training period, individuals will be assigned to units in the U. S. or overseas. Those assigned overseas will move in groups directly to overseas replacement stations and, where appropriate, in Carrier Companies composed of four-man teams.

Existing personnel processing activities will be redesignated.

Reception centers will become reception stations; Army personnel centers will become overseas replacement stations and overseas returning stations; reception stations will become reassignment stations, and transfer centers will become transfer stations. (AFPS)

Social Worker Needed

Position vacancy for one male Social Worker (Parole), GS-185-7, exists at U. S. Disciplinary Barracks, Lompoc, California, Headquarters Sixth Army has announced. Those interested and qualified may apply by forwarding Standard Form 57, directly to: Civilian Personnel Officer, Branch USDB, Lompoc, California.

Acting Director

C. Herschel Schooley has been appointed Acting Director of the Office of Public Information, Department of Defense.

Congressmen Tour New Sixth Army Armory In LA

Los Angeles. — Three Congressmen on the Subcommittee on Civil Functions and Military Construction, Committee on Appropriations, House of Representatives, inspected the new Los Angeles USAR Armory now under construction at Hazard Park, Soto and Zonal Ave., last week.

Headed by Chairman Glenn R. Davis, the Subcommittee group consists of Congressmen Elford A. Cederberg and John J. Riley. Here for an inspection of various civil and military construction projects in the continental United States during the current recess of the Congress, the Subcommittee was accompanied by Frank Sanders, Executive Secretary of the Subcommittee; Brig. Gen. C. H. Chorpene, Office, Chief of Engineers; Col. P. D. Berrigan, South Pacific Division, Corps of Engineers; and Col. Arthur H. Frye, Jr., Los Angeles District, Corps of Engineers.

They were welcomed by Col. Warren A. Robinson, Chief, So. Calif. Sub-Dist., Fort MacArthur; Col. Frederick K. Hearn, Senior Army Advisor; Lt. Col. Kenyon R. Skinner, Officer - in - Charge, So. Calif. Det., Calif. Army Reserve Advisory Group, 1525 So. Figueroa St., and Major John M. Haskin, G-4 Officer.

Planned for opening on December 15, the Los Angeles Armory will be a two-story building of contemporary design, with facilities for 1,000 Army Reservists. Consisting of class rooms, offices for Unit Advisors, a kitchen, reception hall, storage space, and a drill field, the Armory will house the many Reserve units from the Figueroa St. office, including: Infantry Regiments, Engineer Brigades, Gen. Hospital, Logistical Command, Military Government, Military Intelligence, Ordnance Battalions, Anti-Aircraft Artillery, and Research and Development.

The Congressional Subcommittee completed their inspection of local projects last Saturday.

Bright Young Men Needed for Army's New Atomic Fields

In further recognition of the importance of atomic weapons in the Army, Secretary Robert T. Stevens has announced that qualified high school graduates may now enlist in the Regular Army specifically for atomic weapons training.

While making this known Secretary Stevens stressed the fact that this training is also open to enlisted men serving on active duty providing they meet the requirements and have at least 18 months left on active duty after completion of one of the four courses in atomic weapons.

The requirements are outlined in C.4 to SR 615-25-15; C.4 to SR 615-25-20 and SR 615-120-23.

Korean Veterans Get New Benefits For Civil Service

Korean veterans whose military service prevented them from obtaining a probational appointment to a federal job and who were honorably discharged from the Armed Forces before 17 July this year must apply on or before 14 October if they want to be restored to the eligible list, announces the U. S. Civil Service Commission's regional office at San Francisco.

Those who may apply for restoration to the eligible list are persons who were on a U. S. Civil Service eligible list after 30 June, 1950 and who served in the Armed Forces after that date. A new Federal law provides they must apply within 90 days after 16 July, 1953 or termination of active duty or termination of hospitalization, whichever is later.

Benefits for veterans meeting those requirements include the following:

1. Restoration to the eligible list will give him a chance at the kind of job he had qualified for but could not take because of going into the Armed Forces.
2. He will receive priority in being considered for the kind of job for which he is qualified.
3. If and when appointed, he will receive a probational appointment, giving an opportunity for permanent status, instead of an indefinite appointment.
4. He will receive seniority and pay benefits equal to what he would now have if he had not gone into the Armed Forces.

Test New Drug

Seoul—Army doctors now are testing the new antimalaria drug—Daraprim—on American soldiers in Korea.

Medical researchers say if Daraprim could be used all over the world in two rainy seasons, malaria would be obliterated as a plague.

Tests have shown that six Daraprim tablets completely remove malaria from an infected person. This breaks the chain of infection from man to mosquito to man.

Washington Institute Offers Courses for Reserve Pathologists

Orientation courses to acquaint Reserve pathologists with current practice of laboratory medicine in the Army, Navy and Air Force throughout the world are offered by the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, Washington, D. C.

These courses, which are offered only to trained pathologists, may be taken at any time during the calendar year and are generally of two weeks' duration. All Reserve pathologists of potential Chief - of - Laboratory Service calibre are urged to take this course.

Applications are to be submitted to Headquarters Sixth Army, ATTN: AMGCT-6, so as to arrive sixty days prior to reporting date requested. Prior concurrence of The Director, Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, will be obtained by Army headquarters before approval is granted.

Restate Regulations Governing Gifts to Military, Civilians

Army regulations governing the donation and acceptance of gifts for all military and civilian personnel were reproduced in a staff memorandum issued this week by Headquarters Sixth Army.

These regulations provide that no officer, clerk or employee in the United States Government employ shall at any time solicit contributions from another for a gift to those in a superior official position. They are also prohibited from making any donation as a present to any official superior.

Officials or clerical superiors may not receive any gifts presented to them as a contribution from persons in Government employ receiving a less salary than themselves.

The regulation provides that all violators shall be summarily discharged from the Government employ.

Also prohibited is the acceptance by officers, or with the approval of the officer by members of their immediate families, of contributions, gifts or substantial loans from persons not in the Army establishment or the employ of the Government in recognition of services rendered, or from firms with whom the officers have negotiated as agents of the Government. Officers are to exercise their influence over members of their immediate families to insure that such contributions or gifts are not received or accepted.

Weekly World News AT A GLANCE

IN BERLIN, Lord Mayor Ernst Reuter, leader of Western Berlin's fight against Communism, died unexpectedly at his home Tuesday of a heart ailment. A Social Democrat, Reuter rallied the people to resistance against the Russian blockade of 1948-49. Often mentioned as a possible next president of the West German Republic, he worked closely with the conservative Bonn government in trying to reunite a free Germany.

IN SPAIN, a 20-year aid-for-bases agreement between the United States and Spain was signed last weekend, giving the United States the right to develop and use naval and air bases in Spain in return for economic, technical and military aid. A total of $266,000,000 in aid will be supplied Spain under the Mutual Security program in the current fiscal year, which ends next 30 June. Of this 141 million will go for military equipment and the rest for defense support. The Spanish bases offer a reserve position behind the forward lines of Western European defenses, which are in Germany. The agreement climaxed 18 months of formal negotiations and longer unofficial discussion.

IN ITALY, the national council of Italy's largest party, the Christian Democrats, elected ex-Premier deGasperi political secretary, the top party post. The veteran statesman, head of all Italy's postwar governments until Pella took over in August, actually had been party leader also, but a former Cabinet member had held the secretaryship for many years.

IN ENGLAND, the Labor party re-elected six left-wing Bevanites to its National Executive Committee, but reduced their influence by also naming to the policy-making board three trade unionists known for their moderate views. The followers of Aneurin Bevan, Labor's most violent critic of American policies, with their six votes, will still remain a minority in the 28-member high council.

IN YUGOSLAVIA, President Tito formally rejected the Italian proposal for settling the quarrel over Trieste by means of a plebiscite. Tito said a plebiscite would be unfair on the ground that Italy has pushed Yugoslavs out of the Trieste area since the end of World War I. Trieste belonged to Italy after the first World War but was given the status of a free territory under terms of the Italian peace treaty of World War II. Tito has proposed the internationalization of the port city of Trieste and the ceding of surrounding territory to Yugoslavia.

IN POLAND, the Communist regime deposed Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, the country's Roman Catholic primate, and "exiled" him to a monastery, a Warsaw radio reports. The broadcasts said Reds have forbidden him to "carry out functions connected with his religious status" and ordered him to retire "to one of the Polish monasteries." The Polish prelate did not go to Rome in January to accept his elevation to Cardinal by a Rome Consistory, apparently for fear that he would not be allowed to return to Poland.

IN RUSSIA, the Kremlin ordered its war factories partially to switch over to manufacture of farm tractors in order to help increase the Soviet Union's potato and vegetable output. Farm production has become one of the most important items in the domestic policy of Premier Georgi Malenkov. This week's action represented another phase in the government's campaign to boost farm output and living standards. Earlier restrictions on peasants were eased and some farm taxes were reduced.

IN IRAN, the new government of Premier Fazollah Zahedi told the Iranian people Tuesday the nationalized oil industry is more than $87,000,000 in the red and foreign experts will be needed to get it in operation again. The government of Mohammed Mossadegh, the Nationalist Premier now awaiting trial as a traitor, nationalized the oil industry in May, 1951. Since then, the government statement said the business has run into debt and has become saddled with millions of dollars of worn-out equipment. The statement pointed out it will be impossible to carry on much-needed reforms intended to aid the Iranian people "without solution of the oil problem."

IN KOREA, the United Nations Command announced that Indian guards killed one prisoner and wounded six others Thursday during a demonstration by anti-Communist POWs against Polish and Czech members of the Repatriation Commission. The demonstration reportedly began when Chinese and North Korean hospital patients saw the commission members enter and were joined by Korean prisoners in a compound next to the hospital who climbed over the fence to join the demonstration. . . . Questioning of nearly 23,000 Korean war prisoners who refuse to go home was postponed indefinitely Thursday. The U. N. command drafted a protest against the decision on rules procedure announced Wednesday by the five-nation neutral Repatriation Commission. The rules provide for individual interviews and require all prisoners to listen to the "explanations" regardless of their wishes.

IN INDOCHINA, a joint American and French communique has announced plans to make an all-out drive in the seven-year war against Communist-led rebels. The United States is helping the French with a 385 million dollar increase in military aid over the next 15 months. This aid is in addition to some $400,000,000 the United States already is making available this year for the Indo-Chinese campaign, the main battlefield against Communism. The French government alerted 8000 Moroccan and Algerian troops, now in Germany, to reinforce its armies in Indo-China. A Communist attack is considered imminent. . . . French Union troops occupied a number of fortified villages Wednesday in their week-old mop-up drive southeast of Hanoi.

IN EGYPT, government officials said Britain has agreed to withdraw her big garrison from the vital Suez Canal area in 18 months, but the British envoy in Cairo said final settlement is still a long way off. Major questions still outstanding were how long British civilian experts would remain behind to see that the great shipping canal runs smoothly and whether they should be permitted to wear identifying uniforms. Present indications are that the Egyptians and the British are closer to agreement now than they ever were before in the more than 70 years of bitter wrangling over control of the canal.

Fort Ord Reception Center Assigned Larger Mission

Fort Ord, Calif. — The 6230th Reception Center here will assume sole duties of receiving all enlistees and inductees from nine western states starting Oct. 1, following the discontinuance of the Army Personnel Center at Fort Lewis, Wash. The 6219th Reception Center at Fort Lewis will be released from active duty, according to a report from Sixth Army.

In addition, all transfer and reassignment activities currently performed at the reception center here will be discontinued in November, and the Army Personnel Center at Camp Stoneman, Calif., will assume the additional Sixth Army transfer and reassignment workload.

Returning oversea veterans and Sixth Army personnel ordered for reassignment will be processed at Camp Stoneman now, instead of Fort Ord as they have been in the past.

However, the change of the Transfer Center to Camp Stoneman does not affect permanent party personnel and members of units assigned to Fort Ord who are being re-assigned or released from active duty. This function will remain on the post.

Beginning in October, all persons drafted or enlisting from California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming and Nevada will be processed at Fort Ord. All those reporting to the 6219th Reception Center at Fort Lewis after Oct. 1, will be forwarded to the reception center here.

Roberts to Give Special Physical Training Awards

Camp Roberts, Calif. — Seventh Armored Division trainees' newest goal is competing for awards for proficiency in physical training. The new awards will be given to outstanding men in each company starting Oct. 1st.

In the physical training program at Camp Roberts, each trainee must take two scored tests. The awards to be given will be for (1) highest score made in the first test, (2) second highest score made in second test, and (3) the greatest improvement over first test score. Prizes for each company are a wrist watch for high score, portable radio for second high, and a pen and pencil set for greatest improvement.

Division Faculty will supervise the test and validate the scores, while unit commanders will retain the score cards and notify the Assistant Chief of Staff for Training of the names and scores of the winners.

Major General Robert F. Sink, division commanding general, investigated the awards to arouse physical fitness competition among the trainees.

The prizes for the winners will be presented at each company graduation ceremony.

WAC Fields Varied

Washington—Wacs may qualify for many vital and interesting Army jobs in a variety of career fields. These include medicine, personnel and administration, cryptanalysis (code-breaking), intelligence, communications, radio operations, auditing, finance, food service, education, mapping and drafting, psychiatric social work and military police.

MASTER SERGEANT JACK M. ANDERSON, a former Communist prisoner, signs up for another four years in the Army at the Army Personnel Center at Fort Lewis. Watching him is Master Sergeant Harold R. Willis of the Re-enlistment office at the Personnel Center. Sergeant Anderson drove to Fort Lewis from Fort Jackson, S. C., to re-enlist in the Sixth Army because "you can't beat the Sixth Army Area and the Pacific Northwest."

Something about a Soldier . . .

Lure of Sixth Army Draws Former POW Back Home

Army Personnel Center, Ft. Lewis, Wash.—The Communists left Master Sergeant Jack M. Anderson behind to die two years ago. Last week the same Sergeant Anderson showed up at the Army Personnel Center and reenlisted for another four years in the Army.

He explained that he had traveled from Ft. Jackson, S. C., to reenlist because "you can't beat the Sixth Army area and the Pacific Northwest."

For Sergeant Anderson of Centralia, Washington, it had been a full three years that began when he left Fort Lewis with the 2nd Division for Korea.

He started at the Pusan Perimeter in 1950 and rode the tide of war up the peninsula to North Korea and back again. He was going up the peninsula for the second time when his battalion was surrounded by the Chinese.

"I was shot through the face and neck," he recalled, "and the sergeant with me was trying to stop the blood flow with a compress when the Chinese captured us."

For the next twelve days of February, 1951, he was kept with 170 other GIs in a Communist prison compound. Then the Communists decided to move their prisoners north. But they thought Sergeant Anderson was too badly wounded to live, so they left him behind to die.

However, Sergeant Anderson made his way back to American lines and freedom.

Stateside again, he entered a Sixth Army contest to choose an enlisted man to witness the signing of the Tri-Party defense pact between Australia, New Zealand, and the United States.

Sergeant Anderson was chosen.

The story was completed last week when Sergeant Anderson visited the Reenlistment Center at the Personnel Center.

Then the veteran infantryman of two wars took a furlough at home, in his favorite state.

Army T.I.C. Topic

"Rumor Has It," Armed Forces TALK No. 449, will be used during the Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units next week to point out how rumors can distort the truth and endanger both the individual and the Nation's security.

Rumors may be classified according to the subject with which they deal, their duration, the groups within which they spread, and whether they are about the past or the future. Three general kinds—fear rumors, wish rumors and hate rumors—will be discussed during the conferences.

Thriving when there is widespread uncertainty about the facts that concern something important, rumors spread because they seem to supply the answer. They also furnish excuses for actions, relieve pent-up emotions and make the teller feel important.

Some rumors are planted, but some are started unwittingly from a grain of truth that becomes lost, or a half-truth that becomes distorted. In passing rumors along, the tellers tend to add, omit, or interpret details so as to fit them into their patterns of thinking.

In order to evaluate and debunk rumors, the TALK suggests being rumor-wise by getting facts, keeping a skeptical attitude, finding out who brought the story and laughing it off.

Fire Prevention Week Program Set; Fire Consciousness Theme

La Settimana Dedicata Alla Prevenzione Di Incendi!

Tydzien Biezacy Jest Tygodniem Zapobiegania Parzarom!

Este es la Semana Pro Prevencion de Incendios!

Dies Ist Feure-Verhuentungs Woche!

In any language it means: "This Is Fire Prevention Week!"

At the Presidio, the exceptional record of no fire losses in the past year, is paramount.

Winner of three awards in national competition for the best fire prevention program, the Post, in 1952, placed seventh in competition with 400 military installations.

In observance of National Fire Prevention week (4 to 11 October) there will be fire-fighting demonstrations, fire prevention talks and evacuation drills.

Dramatic fire posters, made by Post children, will be on display at the Presidio, Fort Scott and Fort Baker.

Daily broadcasts over KLAH, Letterman Army hospital station, stressing the importance of fire prevention, will also be presented.

Open house at the Presidio, Fort Cronkhite and Two Rock Ranch fire stations, will feature exhibits of typical fire hazards with an eye to stimulating fire consciousness.

As a climax to the week's activities, Post and sub-post children will get to ride on the big fire trucks and receive helmets, badges and candy—all for free! That's on Saturday (10 October) between 0900 and 1100.

George Geller, Presidio fire chief, sounded the warning note that, "it is easier to prevent a fire than it is to put it out. The excellent record of fire prevention practices on the Presidio and its sub-posts is a tribute to the cooperation of the personnel on these Posts, in the fire conscious program."

Physical Exams Set For All Officers Stationed on Post

Annual physical examinations for officers of the Presidio were begun Thursday and will continue until all have been examined, which must be accomplished by the end of the year. These examinations are given daily at 1400 in the Post Dispensary and require a maximum time of approximately one-half hour.

Lt. Col. Harry Spitz, Post Surgeon, stresses that it is the individual responsibility of each officer that he receives his annual examination. Officers are to make their appointments through their respective personnel officers and are expected to keeping their appointments.

Colonel Spitz recommends that an officer who is departing the Post for any reason contact the Surgeon's office for a special appointment before leaving so that he will not be forced to miss the examination.

New Research Chief

Dr. John E. Vance has been named Deputy Chief of Research and Development and Chief Scientist of the Department of the Army. Previously, he was head of the Department of Chemistry, Washington Square College, New York University.

Seven Decorations Will Be Awarded At Post Ceremony

Presentation of decorations to an officer, a master sergeant and a sergeant from Presidio units and four veterans living in the San Francisco Bay area, will be made at a ceremony to be held at 1615 Thursday (8 October).

Highest award will be the Silver Star to be received by William S. Jordan of Santa Clara for gallantry in action in the vicinity of Sumnyon, North Korea, from 11 to 13 October, 1951, when he was a captain in command of a company of the 23d Infantry Regiment, 2d Infantry Division, that successfully attacked and secured a vital enemy-held position on Hill 851.

Lt. Napoleon L. Donato, Post S-2 Section, will be given the Bronze Star Medal with Letter "V" device (First Bronze Oak-Leaf Cluster) for directing the fire of his mortar section from the crest of a hill near Persae, Korea, on 12 April, 1951. To reach this position he crawled under intense automatic weapons and small arms fire and killed two enemy riflemen who attempted to stop him.

James R. Sullivan, San Rafael, for performance of his duties as a lieutenant of the 34th Ordnance Depot Company with assignment as ordnance supply officer.

Melvin C. Wong, Jr., San Francisco, for performance of his duties as a sergeant of Company "I", 15th Infantry Regiment, 3d Infantry Division with assignment as a cook. Participating in the ceremony will be the Sixth Army Band and units of Headquarters Company, 505th Military Police Battalion, Detachment No. 1, 6002 ASU, WAC Detachment and 30th Engineers.

M/Sgt. Abraham L. Freeburg is to receive a Sixth Army Certificate of Achievement for outstanding service as Enlisted Chief, Personnel Analyst Branch, 102nd Machine Records Unit, Presidio of San Francisco, from 20 March, 1950, to 21 March, 1953.

A Bronze Star Medal will be presented John L. Brooks of Berkeley, who is cited for his service as a sergeant in the Army Medical Service in connection with military operation in Korea during the period from 5 May, 1952, to 6 March, 1953. During this period he was chief medical aidman of Company K, 35th Infantry.

The Army publishes two daily newspapers—a Far East and a European edition of the Stars and Stripes.

Recently Assigned

Colonel S. F. Jarrell

Colonel Shaffer F. Jarrell is the newly assigned provost marshal, Headquarters Sixth Army.

Colonel Jarrell returned to this country in August, after a tour in Heidelberg, Germany, where he served consecutively as assistant chief of operations, and later as chief of operations, provost marshal division, and finally as deputy provost marshal at that headquarters.

Commissioned a second lieutenant in the Infantry Reserve in 1926, the colonel came on active duty in 1941. In 1944 he served a year in the European theatre as a combat observer with the VII Corps. He participated in five campaigns, including the Ardennes, Central Europe, Northern France, Normandy and the Rhineland.

Transferring to the Military Police Corps in 1948, Colonel Jarrell attended the MP school at Camp Gordon, Georgia, prior to his assignment in the provost marshal division.

Colonel Jarrell has been decorated with the Bronze Star Medal as well as the various theatre ribbons, including ETO-Mediterranean, Army of Occupation, American Defense and American theatre.

Lt. Colonel Enos B. Thornton has just completed three years with the G-4 Service Division, Department of the Army, the Pentagon, Washington, D. C.

He is now in charge of the supply and maintenance division, Signal section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

A veteran of 25 years of service with the Army, Colonel Thornton began his World War II fighting career in North Africa in 1942 and served for three years before being returned to this country.

In 1946, the colonel again went to the European theatre, this time to Frankfurt, Germany, where he was deputy Signal supply officer for three years.

Colonel Thornton's decorations include the Bronze Star Medal and the Order of the Crown of Italy.

Lt. Colonel Burtrum I. Nash has taken up duties in the Reserve components division, G-3 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

He returned recently from 16 months of service in Korea, where he spent his first months as commanding officer of the 780th Field Artillery battalion.

For eight months he was senior advisor at the training center Artillery school, ROK Army, and for the last three months of his Korean service, Colonel Nash was senior advisor of the 11th Field Artillery group, ROK Army.

In the Army for the past 15 years, the colonel in World War II served in various Airborne divisions, primarily in the Artillery section, Airborne center, Camp McCall, North Carolina.

Colonel Nash has been decorated with the Master Parachutist award and the Army Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant.

Lt. Colonel Robert G. Van Ness is the new chief, supply division, Ordnance section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

The colonel has spent the past 18 months at the White Sands Proving Grounds, Las Cruces, New Mexico, where he was special assistant to the commanding general for inspections.

Colonel Van Ness came on active Army duty in 1940, and served in Japan from 1948 to March of 1952.

His various positions while in Japan included chief, maintenance and supply division, GHQ, deputy post commander for Headquarters, 24th Infantry division, 8th Army, Japan Logistical command, and deputy chief, industrial division, procurement section, Japan Procurement agency.

Colonel Van Ness wears the Presidential Unit Citation as well as various theatre and campaign ribbons.

Lt. Colonel Byron Barton comes to Headquarters from three years' service with Headquarters, Washington Military District, where he was the food advisor.

He now heads the plans and training division, Quartermaster Section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

His World War II service was spent at the Pentagon, Washington, D. C., from 1942 until 1946, for which he received the Army Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant.

In 1946, Colonel Barton went to Europe, where he served for three years as food supervisor, Frankfurt Military post, Germany.

Colonel Barton has been in the Army for the past 17 years.

It's Not 3-D!

Although the printed theatre schedule lists the coming film, "I, The Jury," to be shown in 3-D, it's all a mistake! Theatre officials said today that the Post theatre is not yet equipped to show 3-D presentations but that the hard-hitting film will be every bit as enjoyable in the usual filming.

Presidio Players To Branch Into Radio Productions

With two successful one-act plays to their credit, the Presidio Players drama group is now planning to branch out into radio drama presentations.

First of these dramas will be presented on 28 October, and tentative plans call for bi-monthly presentations over KLAH at Letterman Army hospital.

Directing this series will be Pfc. Curtiss Hungerford, Sixth Army band member, with the assistance of Pfc. Shirley Keith, Sixth Army Personnel section.

In addition, the Players are organizing a third play, which, upon completion of production, they plan to take on a tour of local Sixth Army military installations as well as Letterman hospital.

Their most recent effort, Lawrence Langner's "Another Way Out," was given before an unusually receptive audience who called the cast back for three curtain calls.

The modernistic stage setting, in keeping with the theme of the play, was the work of Cpl. James Bransford of Letterman hospital and Miss Jane Rey.

All Post personnel, whether military or civilian, who are interested in membership in the Presidio Players, whether their talents lie in the acting or technical phases, may contact the Service club, Ext. 2000, after 1200 for further details.

Or—attend the next meeting of the group on Wednesday (7 October) at 2000 in the Presidio Service club small lounge.

"THERE'S MORE OVER THERE!" is what these young men are saying as they gaze intently past the display of shiny new trucks at some even bigger and harder models at the next table. These are but a handful of the hundreds of toys and games that await the small fry come Christmas, and they may be purchased at Toyland, the Presidio's own dream world for children and parents, which opened this week in preparation for the coming of the great day in December. The boys, who include, l. to r., Craig Friar, Jerry Steele and Robert Davis, got an advance visit to Toyland from the Presidio nursery school which they attend during the day. (Army photo by Weiss.)

S'Wonderful Stuff!

Santa Delivers 1st Gift Barrage As Presidio Toyland Is Opened

Santa Claus is already at work!

Actually the big visiting day isn't too far off for him, and he has chosen the Presidio as one of his most favored spots, and bestowed it with bags and bags of wonderful, delightful toys and gifts for good little moppets.

The magic is all at Toyland so that Mom and Dad can assist Santa in his enormous job of distributing his favors to children all over the world.

It's open now, each weekday from 0900 to 1700 and on Saturdays from 0900 to 1300. Hours may be adjusted as the season progresses and shopping warrants, Bay Area Exchange officials stated.

Whatever your pleasure, Toyland has it.

There are dolls, lovely big dolls with almost real skin, lovely little dolls with soft hair and big eyes.

Little stuffed creatures of every variety are waiting with outstretched arms for some small boy or girl to claim them.

For the musically talented child there are horns, accordians, a variety of tinkling things.

Games for all ages and small tables and chairs to set them up on... a perfect arrangement for those rainy winter days.

If your youngster's forte is things that move, there are wagons, there are trucks, there are racing cars, all large enough to accommodate one or even two kiddies. And do they move!

Then there are the wind-em-ups, and the pull-ems, and the fire trucks with detachable ladders, and others with doors and backs that open and close and can be loaded with such gear as small people collect in their wanderings.

And don't neglect the books—books that will transport youngsters afar—into other lands and other worlds. There are books to look at, books to read and books to paint and color.

Toyland is located in Building 566 on Ruger street, and is next to the Post Kindergarten. There is a spacious parking area adjacent.

Grid Fans See Raiders Lose to Cal Ramblers 14-7 in First Home Game

The first locally staged tilt of the 1953 Red Raider football schedule catapulted the Presidio season to a flying start here last Saturday, with a grandstand of spectators, a reigning "Queen of the Red Raiders," and the Sixth Army Band on hand to spark the first home game of the year to success.

And it was a success, in spite of the fact that the visiting University of California Ramblers defeated the Raiders 14-7.

It was the tight action-packed drama that spelled the day's fulfillment. The tilt involved enough good football to be first-rate entertainment in any man's language and promised bigger and better attendance the next time the Raiders show locally.

In first quarter action by the soldiers they profited on two running plays by Dave Marcelli, good for an aggregate of 30 yards, and a 5-yard bullet pass from Dick Jackstadt to Bob Hooks, to ram the pigskin up to the visitors' 1-yard line.

But there it stayed. The Cal line held, and as close as the Presidians were to paydirt, their backfield was unable to generate enough line-cracking momentum to penetrate the obstinate Cal defense.

It wasn't till the middle of the second bracket that the Raider offense turned loose for their one and only touchdown. It developed out of a pass from Don Burroughs to Dallas Lamb, who in turn lateraled his way out of a wall of Cal-men to Roland Daigle. Daigle ran the pigskin 45 yards to the Cal 20, and in the next play scooted around left end for the marker—with the aid of running-mate Lamb, who bowled over a total of three tackle threats with a single block.

The break for the Ramblers came in the closing minutes of the third quarter. The Presidians had received a fourth-down kick-back on the 50-yard line, followed by a successful aerial combination of Jackstadt to Daigle, good for 20 yards of Cal territory.

But the second pass was pilfered by the visitors—with disastrous effect. Once in possession of the ball, they marched a determined 85 yards in a succession of ground plays to their first touchdown.

Cal-men instrumental in this first score were Yosh Katsura—who piled up a 25-yard gain in three plays—and Joe Babros, Cal fullback who gamboled the final 30-yard stretch to the end zone.

Later in the game a fourth quarter offensive by the Ramblers brought the pigskin to the locals' 15-yard stripe. Two line crashes by Katsura and some very able running by scatback Don Smith put it on the ten.

NO PLACE TO GO is the problem confronting Rambler backfield specialist Tom Kramer. Part of the opposition that the UC offense ran into is symbolized in this wall of Red Raiders putting the quietus on the Cal runner's drive in the fourth quarter of the game last Saturday. Raider tackles were, left to right, Leonard Hoaglund, tackle, Dallas Lamb, fullback, and Jim Fairchild, guard—all of whom turned in formidable performances throughout the game. (Army Photo by Minasian.)

Presidio hopes soared for a moment as Cal's Babros was taken down ten yards behind his own scrimmage. But a pair of Tom Kramer-to-Ron Dahlin throws, first to the 5-yard line and the next into the end zone, assured the visitors their winning margin.

Raiders Elect Queen

Ole King Football has his Queen!

As far as the Red Raiders are concerned anyway.

Miss Lorna Dunn, who works as a stenographer at the Sixth Army Headquarters here at the Presidio, was recently crowned Queen of the Red Raiders.

The official coronation took place at a football dance held at the Presidio Service Club last week and Post S-4, Colonel Harry E. Hoxie, did the official honors.

The slim, pretty brunette's first duty was to preside at the home game against Cal last Saturday, and we'll be seeing more of her as the season progresses.

In the latter part of the last quarter the Presidians worked mightily to remake the score. In a series of plays from deep in their own territory Marcelli and Burroughs bulldogged up to Cal 15, but the game ended there, the ball in Cal's possession.

In spite of the loss, the Presidio squad seemed to be working itself into a better-integrated playing unit than it has been in previous games. The biggest Raider weakness shows up in the statistics—poor defense against ground attack. The Ramblers gained a total of 234 yards by rushes through the Presidio forward wall—much of which can be attributed to their elusive little Don Smith, who slipped through the local linesmen like a greased monkey.

In contrast, the Presidians earned only 106 yards by rushing, most of their gains—146 yards worth—being won by successful passing.

This aerial offense, which suffered so heavily against Chico two weeks ago due to interception, had improved terrifically, with only three of the Raider tosses going into Rambler hands last week-end.

Part of the success of the new air strategy is probably due to newly-arrived Raider quarterback Don Burroughs. The ex-Colorado A & M backfield specialist played his first game with the Presidians last Saturday against the Ramblers.

Burroughs and other Raider backs completed 11 out of 18 attempted passes, while five first downs were earned via the air.

Look Out for Schmitz! Casaba Court Features Some Dillies for Season's First Five

The Post intra-mural basketball season got off to a fast start this week with unit teams meeting for a total of five games up to and including Wednesday night of this week.

At press time a single game was left to be played between the 99th Repro Company and B Company of the 505th.

Monday's National League loop-opener between C Company, 505th MP, and Harbor Defense found a strong band of sailors too hot for the MPs to handle. HD's Ebert and teammates racked up a total of 69 points against the MPs' 59. MP guard Jerry Schmitz proved himself the hottest casabaman of the week, totaling all of 31 points for the losers, while Ebert sparked the victors with 26.

Tuesday's American League opener between Headquarters Battery 459th AAA and Charlie Battery of the same outfit saw Headquarters' White power his team to the winners' 79 tallies with 22 points to his own credit, while the losers' center, Johnson, marked 24 of the 63 his team earned.

Most amusing part of this particular game centered around 2nd Lt. Gottsche, who coached both 459th teams and didn't know which one to root for!

The same evening Company B of the 505th shellacked 99th Repro 59-26. The MPs, coached and managed by Francis Hoskins, touted high point man Stoller for eight tallies, while the losers' Jerry Wilson racked up 18 for the losers.

GI Hurler to Browns

Bob Turley, a 15-game winner for Brooke Army Medical Center, Texas, this season, rejoined the St. Louis Browns recently. Club officials said they expected him to see plenty of action before the end of the season. Turley fanned 215 men in 115 innings at Brooke AMC.

On Wednesday evening Headquarters Company of the MPs tromped the 542nd Surveyors 65-39. Pfc. Glen Lovell was high pointer for the MPs with 16 points, with aces Jim McDonald and Mel Gartenberg each gathering 10 points toward the winners' total.

Detachment A clobbered Battery B, 459th AAA, for 92 points to 57 that same evening, with Honor Guard's Paylor registering 21 for the victors and Woodruff sinking 17 for Battery B.

Monday's tilt between A of the 505th and HQ Sixth Army was postponed until a later date, while HQ 9th AAA picked up its first win of the season on a bye.

World Series Roundup

Did you know—That in 1884 Old Hoss Radbourne pitched every inning of a three-game sweep by Providence NL—that Curt Welch of St. Louis AA in 1886 stole home with the winning run in the 10th inning of the final game—that in 1903, Bill Dinneen won three for the Red Sox, including two shutouts—in 1905, Christy Mathewson of the Giants pitched three shutouts in six days, fanning 18—that George Rohe, a substitute infielder in 1906, batted .333 for the series and whacked triples to win the first and third games for the White Sox—that in 1908, playing manager Frank Chance of the Cubs hit .421 and stole five bases—in 1909 freshman pitcher Charles (Babe) Adams won three for the Pirates, while first baseman Bill Abstein of the same team struck out nine times and dropped five thrown balls for errors—in 1913 Home Run Baker connected for his specialty (homers) and was batting .450 in the Series—in 1916, Babe Ruth pitched 2-1, the 14-inning victory for the Red Sox, longest game in Series history—1923 was the year that Casey Stengel's homers won first and third games for the Giants—in 1931 Pepper Martin, irrepressible Card, cracked 12 hits, and batted .500 and stole five bases—in 1941 Mickey Owen of the Dodgers muffed a third strike with two outs in the ninth, as Yanks go on to score four times and win, 7-4—that in 1952 Johnny Mize came off the Yanks' bench in a third game and blasted three homers in the rest of the Series, while Gil Hodges of the Dodgers went 21-for-0?

Buses Available To Raider Fans

The Presidio Red Raiders meet the Moffett Field football team at Moffett Field tomorrow at 1400 hours. This game will be the third official meeting of the Raider 1953 schedule. Military personnel who desire to travel with the team to the game have been assured transportation there and back by Post Special Services. Two buses will be waiting on the Main Parade Ground, in front of the PM's office, at 1200 hours tomorrow. They will leave the area at 1230 sharp. There will be no admission fee to the game.

Local & National . . . SPORTS PULSE

By Pfc. BRUCE LANSBURY
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

With the end of the softball season here at the Presidio—the exciting All-Sixth Army contests only two weeks gone and the dramatic final-hour defeat of our own 505th MP softball team in the tournament's last phase still fresh in our minds—it would be well to recall one person in particular who was responsible for much of the Presidio team's success against Sixth Army competition.

What this reporter had originally intended to do in respect to Master Sergeant Hiram "Tiny" Kochel was to give him and his team a player-by-player going-over as a journalistic send-off on their departure for the Military District of Washington and the All-Army competition.

In retrospect that seems a heck of an optimistic approach, seeing that their Fort Ord opponents in the finals are right now enplaned for the same affair—as winners of the Area tournament—and the 565th and "Tiny" Kochel have assumed the runners-up roles.

There still remains a great deal that can be said about "Tiny", however, and while before the five days of intra-Area softball competition as a figure he was little known outside the MP's, by the end of those five days he had earned quite a respectable reputation for himself, both as indefatigable chucker for the Presidians (he hurled all six tournament meetings) and as team mentor.

Tiny as a "figure" is mentioned advisedly. On the tournament diamonds he sported a custom-made uniform with the numbers 338 emblazoned on it—emblematic of his actual weight in pounds. And while he is a big man, his adversaries on the ball field discovered that the sergeant lacked little in speed and endurance.

His taking over the coaching reins of the 505th team is preceded by over 15 years of participation in a wide variety of sports. The 34-year-old soldier started his athletic endeavors auspiciously back in his Pennsylvania home-town high school, where, packing a mere 195 pound frame, he lettered in soccer, basketball, baseball, football and track.

Out of high school, he powered the semi-pro Reading Northern Collegians in the fullback position, and in 1938 resumed his interest in soccer with the National All-Stars.

As center-forward on that team, he played against the finest in the world, including the English Olympic contingent, and numbered such soccer greats as Sammy McIves and Sammy English, the immortal goalie, among his teammates.

By 1942, about the time Tiny donned khaki for the first time, he had become interested in boxing. He fought as an amateur in and around Reading, Pa., up to the time of his enlistment, then continued in the Army, coaching the Fort Benning, Ga., boxing team for the 15th RTC.

Among his proteges were George Allen, outstanding All-Army bantam of that period, and Leroy Jones, an All-Army welterweight.

Then in 1943, just prior to his WWII assignment overseas, he returned briefly to the gridiron and played fullback with the Fort Dix eleven.

The end of the war found Kochel in China with the 701st Military Police Battalion, where he served '46 through '48. Characteristically Tiny's sporting appetite was to be satiated here as in the States. He played catcher with the 701st hardball team and subsequently worked with the All-China and China All-Services nines.

In his final season with this team they lost only one game and that to the Manila Filipino Terminal Red Sox—the same team that beat the New York Yanks five out of seven games when the northerners invaded Manila in the late '30's.

Kochel's grid interests waned in '48 when he broke a leg in the Shanghai Rosebowl game, but in '49 he was back at Fort Benning once more and busy pitching their post softball team to the Third Army crown. It took the advent of the Korean crisis and Kochel's FECOM orders to prevent him from taking a part in the All-Army tournament of that year.

In '52 the tireless MP was back at Fort Ord and a member of the post bowling team. From Ord he came to the Presidio—which brings us back to where we started.

Last week Kochel was back on FECOM orders once more, and as far as I can see the only happy side of it for the Presidio, sportwise, is the fact that they caught him in the midst of something very dear to his heart—he was busy organizing and coaching one of this year's 505th MP Bn basketball teams.

I don't imagine that for any of the long-timers among us this is the last time they'll see or hear about Tiny Kochel in Army sports. Because if it isn't soccer, football, baseball, softball, track, bowling or boxing—it's going to be gymnastics or weightlifting or even something as sedentary as checkers or tidly winks. The sergeant's sporting instincts have to be satisfied.

And going on past record, I'll bet Tiny would make a pretty fine tidly winks player at that!

Piscatorial Jackpot

California's sea-going sportsmen caught 302,000 ocean fish during June, according to partyboat catch figures compiled by the Department of Fish and Game. This was an average of four fish a day for each of the 75,000 anglers tallied.

A Southern California kelp-bass catch of 107,000 made up over a third of the State's total catch. Some 69,000 rockfish and 41,000 jack mackerel were also counted. The barracuda take reached 29,000.

Only 5,100 yellowtail were brought in, compared with 13,500 for the month before.

Richter Powers Lewis

Starting off the season with a 32-19 drubbing of the El Toro Marines, the Fort Lewis Four-by-Fours launched a 10-game schedule that will bring them face-to-face with the most powerful service teams on the west coast. Lewis meets the strong Fort Ord gridders twice.

All of the team, except for two men, are members of the 44th Infantry Division, Illinois National Guard, and they have as coach Les Richter, two-time All-American linebacker from UC.

Ord to Encounter Tough Competition At All-Army Softball Test Next Week

The Fort Ord softball team, pride of the Sixth Army, is scheduled to enter All-Army competition next Monday at the Military District of Washington.

The games are scheduled 5-10 October, and according to pre-game reports the competition will be rough.

Two of the tougher teams the Ordsters will probably have to meet before the end of the tourney include the Fort Devens, Mass., nine, championship team from the First Army, and the Fort Jackson, South Carolina, Golden Arrows, Third Army softball kingpins.

The Devens ballplayers won their Area crown as their hurler, Don MacThail, blanked the Fort Dix, N. J., contingent 2-0, in the finals of a four-game tournament.

MacThail gave up only three singles, all three coming after two men were out—in the first, second and seventh innings.

One thing to remember is the fact that Ord played a total of six games to win the Sixth Army Championship, and each win they recorded—all five of them—cinched their position as top team in the Area.

A four-game tournament such as the Devens team participated in is less of an index to real championship caliber.

The Fort Jackson Golden Arrows topped a total of five teams for their Army title. They included the Atlanta General Depot, 5-1; Redstone Arsenal, 4-3; Fort McPherson, 7-1; Camp Gordon, 16-0, and Camp Rucker, 12-1.

Moreover, the South Carolina installation, an induction and training center much like Fort Ord, probably has as good a manpower potential as Ord.

Jim Manship, a lefthander, did all the pitching for Jackson, allowing but eight hits in the five games and at one point racking up a string of 11 shutout innings. Bill Ferguson was the Jackson batting star in the final game with four for four.

A so-called "Cinderella" team from Valley Forge General Hospital won the Pennsylvania-Delaware-Maryland Second Army District softball tournament and the right to enter the Second Army finals at Fort Lee, Va., early this month, but at press time this week no further word was available on the outcome of those finals.

Valley Forge rode to their preliminary victory on the strong right arm of John Morford, who had a mound record of 7-1. His only defeat was by Aberdeen, against whom he tossed a one-hitter but lost, 2-1, early in the prelims. Morford hurled all of 48 innings and whiffed a total of 68 men.

All of which means that the Ord moundster Lige Morris will have to do a heap of hurling to keep his teammates in the running at the All-Army affair.

Backing Morris at the rubber will be Lee Cameron, whose chucking ability was used to great effect against the weaker teams during the Sixth Army tourney.

Others slated to go against the inter-Area competition include Bruce Nordland, John Tussey, Manny Fierro, Hugh Kennedy, Albert Siciliano, Bob French, James Broady, Joseph Ikeguchi, Robert Coffman, Robert Dawson, Stanley Cooney, Edward Sparrow and August Zunio. The players will be accompanied by Captain Louis G. Hedgpeth, manager, and WOJG Urban Araujo, Sixth Army Sports Official. (B. L.)

Undeclared Oarsman!

New Rio Vista CO Was Once Pacific Coast Sculling Champ

The undefeated Pacific Coast sculling champion in 1924 through 1928, Colonel Frank Adams, has reported to the San Francisco Port of Embarkation for duty as Commanding Officer of the Rio Vista Marine Storage Activity in Rio Vista.

Colonel Adams, the son of a prominent English athlete and famous as Canada's first athlete in the 1920's, enlisted in the Army in 1942 and rose to Colonel in 1950. Although born in the United States, the Colonel spent most of his younger years in Canada and was the only Canadian Boy Scout at the International Jamboree in London, England, in 1920.

Frank Adams played basketball at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver and was a candidate for All Canadian Center on the school's football squad. Moving to California he continued his boyhood interest in rowing, became the Pacific Coast champion, and served as President of the Pacific Coast Rowing Association.

At the outbreak of World War II, when he immediately enlisted in the Army, he was employed as sales manager for a real estate firm in Palos Verdes.

After graduating from Officer Candidate School in November, 1942, and following assignments in California and Arizona, Colonel Adams left for the Southeast Pacific in 1944. He returned to the United States in 1947, served on the faculty of the Transportation School in Virginia and returned to the Far East the following year.

Back in San Francisco he was immediately transferred to Korea following the outbreak of hostilities, commanded a truck battalion and served as chief of the Central Purchasing Office in the Far East Command before returning to this country for his Rio Vista assignment. This assignment is his second in the Bay Area, having served as Chief of the Port Intelligence and Security Division in 1949.

Raiders to Attack Moffett Field Tomorrow

(Story on page 5)

FIRST HOME GAME FOR THE PRESIDIO RED RAIDERS football eleven came last Saturday on the Fort Scott Field before a crowd of 2000, and to the accompaniment of the Sixth Army Band. Fans saw the visiting University of California Ramblers overtake a first-half touchdown by the locals for a final 14-7 victory—but not without a hard fight and plenty of rough-and-ready gridding by both sides.

Picture above by Sixth Army Cameraman Sfc. Jim Claridge shows a collision between Presidio halfback Roland Daigle and Cal's lightning scatback Don Smith (15). Daigle struck hard enough from behind to dislodge the pigskin from the Cal-man and Presidio subsequently retrieved the fumble. Daigle cantered to the locals' one and only touchdown, while Smith accounted for most of the opposition's yardage on ground plays against the crimson line. The Presidians meet the Moffett Field eleven tomorrow at Moffett Field at 1400 hours. Transportation to and from the game is being furnished by Special Services for fans interested in traveling with the team. Next home game for the Raiders comes 17 October, against the highly rated Alameda Naval Air Station. (See page 6 for full story of game.)

THIRD PRIZE WINNER of the Sixth Army cost consciousness essay contest, M/Sgt. Charles D. Henry of the Army Personnel Center, Fort Lewis, Wash., receives his award of a $10 check from Col. Frank W. Roberts, commandant of the 6219th Reception Battalion at the center, as Lt. Col. S. V. Meighan, executive officer of the battalion, witnesses the ceremony. Sergeant Henry, chief clerk of the Classification and Assignment section of the 6219th, previously had won first prize in the center's local contest. (U. S. Army photo.)

III Corps Sergeant Takes Top Honor In Cost Consciousness Essay Contest

Sfc. Tony Tafarella of the G-3 Section, III Corps, Fort MacArthur, Cal., was awarded first prize in the Sixth Army cost consciousness essay contest for enlisted personnel, Headquarters Sixth Army announced this week. He received $35 for his winning article on "What Cost Consciousness Means to Me."

Second place and a prize of $20 went to Cpl. Robert E. Adamson, 6901 ASU, Oakland Army Base, Calif., while third place and a $10 prize was won by M/Sgt. Charles D. Henry, Army Personnel Center, Fort Lewis, Wash.

Sfc. Tony Tafarella

Judges awarded an Honorable Mention to the essay of Sfc. Robert J. Green, 2nd Battalion, 224th Infantry Regiment, National Guard, Riverside, California.

All enlisted personnel assigned to Class I installations and activities of the Sixth Army area were eligible to compete in the contest which opened on 1 June. Local contests were held at individual installations to select the best essay to be submitted in the Army-wide contest.

The full text of the essay which won first place for Sfc. Tafarella of Fort MacArthur appears in opposite columns of this page.

Eleven general orders to follow on cost consciousness are suggested by Cpl. Adamson of the Oakland Army Base in his second-place entry. They are:

"1. To take care of all government property entrusted to me.

"2. To use my equipment in the proper manner, keeping always on alert for minor corrections which I myself can make.

"3. To report all deficiencies which I cannot correct.

"4. To repeat to others what cost consciousness means.

"5. To discard material only when it can't be used again.

"6. To receive, take care of and process properly, all material placed in my charge, and remember that I have a personal interest in it.

"7. To talk to no one just to idle away the day when work is to be done.

"8. To give all details to the supervisor in case of an accident or serious mechanical failure.

"9. To call the attention of anyone misusing a piece of equipment to the Cost Consciousness Program.

"10. To salute mentally, all admirable ideas which would tend to conserve waste or save money.

"11. To be especially watchful at night while driving and during periods when working under stress, and to caution others to observe the rules."

The close relationship of cost consciousness and taxes are stressed in the third-place article by M/Sgt. Henry of Fort Lewis. "With this picture in mind," he writes, "it becomes imperative to me to see that I make maximum use of the supplies and equipment I use; to make those tax dollars, coming out of my own pocket, stretch as far as possible."

He points out that such a view on the part of each individual in the Army alone would make "an appreciable difference in our tax burden, by reducing maintenance, repair and replacement of specific items, which in turn would require less storage, less transportation, less administration, less manpower—in all, less tax dollars."

In conclusion, Henry states: "Cost consciousness is primarily a matter of common sense and an awareness of the importance of being cost conscious—all the time!"

Savings in taxes through the cost consciousness program are also stressed in the essay by Sfc. Green of Riverside, who was given Honorable Mention. "By protecting the clothing and equipment issued to me," he writes, "I will help make more money available for research and other facilities, which will eventually lead to a cut in Income Tax. I will then get more money across the pay table. Thus, cost consciousness, means a real 'payoff' for me."

C. O. at Madigan Army Hospital Gets B. G. Appointment

Colonel Emery E. Alling, commanding officer of Madigan Army Hospital, has been promoted to brigadier general in the medical corps, it was announced this week. He has been in command at Madigan since January, 1952, when he returned from duty in Germany.

General Alling entered the Army in 1917, serving during World War I as an infantry officer. He graduated from the University of Oklahoma Medical School in 1925 and joined the regular Army at that time. He served at Fort Lewis from 1935 to 1938 as division surgeon of the 3rd Infantry Division. During World War II he served in the European theater and commanded the 26,000-bed hospital center in Paris.

This Looks Like A 'Dorn' Good Cookbook

Washington—In keeping with the Army's policy about fitting round pegs into round holes, an immediate transfer for Brig. Gen. Frank Dorn to the Quartermaster Corps should be arranged.

The QMC would probably be considerably enriched by the addition of Gen. Dorn, for he is the author of—and hold on!—"The Dorn Cookbook."

Now acting Chief of Information, Department of Army, Gen. Dorn is rated by the society editor of the Washington Post as the capital's "No. 1 Host." His book contains many of the recipes which have won him his chef's reputation.

The 52-year-old bachelor spent much of his 30-year military career in foreign countries and, as a result, he has picked up many of the exotic dishes those countries offer.

Most of the recipes in his book are not in the realm of the company cook, but they certainly make good reading. Along with each tidbit, Gen. Dorn has included a well-written resume of the circumstances leading to his acquisition of the recipe.

Chateaubriand Glace aux Fraises, Ham in Beer, Zwieback Apple Pie, Stuffed Mushrooms ala 35th Street, and Beef Stroganoff ala

Dorn are just a few of the intriguing titles of equally intriguing dishes.

But here's the one QMC officials might well try out in Army kitchens:

Cafe Supreme

1 pot of strong coffee, 8 slivers of orange rind, 8 slivers of lemon rind, 2 tbsps. sugar, 2 oz. brandy, 1 oz. rum, 1 oz. Benedictine, 1 oz. kum-mel, 10 whole cloves, 4 sticks cinnamon, ½ pt. whipping cream.

"Whip the cream until stiff. Fold in one teaspoon of sugar and one ounce of brandy. Place in the refrigerator to chill.

"Place all ingredients, except the cream, in the coffee and boil for 3 or 4 minutes.

"Serve the coffee in small cups, topping each with about one teaspoon of chilled whipped cream . . . serves 12 to 15."

And if that doesn't help, nothing will! (AFPS)

An Essay

Cost Consciousness Means

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following essay by SFC Tony Tafarella of Fort MacArthur, Calif., was awarded first prize in the area-wide Sixth Army cost consciousness essay contest for enlisted personnel.)

Cost consciousness is a feeling of personal responsibility for the conservation and proper utilization of supplies and equipment. That feeling is present in every person, although it may be dormant in some.

We are conscious of the money we spend, but are we aware of the value of items we use daily at someone else's expense? These items are numerous. Electricity, water, heat, paper, pencils, typewriters, desks, chairs, and the many other things that are furnished FREE by our government. To know the price of these items is not enough. We must also know their value.

Cost consciousness is being able to think before you discard items that can be salvaged or used for other purposes. Typewriter ribbons are often thrown away when only one half of them are used. A simple adjustment on the typewriter can save one for every two ribbons used.

Our government furnishes us with the best that money can buy. Use these items to their maximum, and think before you waste. It is always better to have personal satisfaction in knowing that you are doing your part than letting the "other guy" save for Uncle Sam. Don't be the person who knows the price of everything and the value of nothing.

Each letter of COST CONSCIOUSNESS means something to me. That is:

C—Conserve utilities.

O—Observe the rules of protecting and caring for your equipment.

S—Safeguard your equipment against undue wear and tear.

T—Think before you waste.

C—Control the issue of supplies.

O—Order supplies when needed.

N—Need it, then draw it.

S—Service your equipment.

C—Care for your equipment.

I—Improvise whenever possible.

O—Obtain the maximum use of supplies and equipment.

U—Utilize supplies in an efficient manner.

S—Salvage whenever possible or practicable.

N—Never waste expendable supplies.

E—Economize in the use of supplies.

S—Sacrifice for Uncle Sam.

S—Sustain the life of your equipment.

Was Area Commander!

General Mark Clark Returns From Far East to Retire

General Mark W. Clark returned to the United States Wednesday night for his retirement from the Army at the end of this month after turning over his post as Commander-in-Chief of the Far East Command and Commander-in-Chief of the United Nations Command to General John E. Hull.

Arriving at Hamilton Air Force Base in his personal plane, the General and Mrs. Clark came to San Francisco where they will remain for several days before going to Washington, D. C.

General Mark Clark

General Clark had succeeded General Matthew B. Ridgway as Far East Commander on 31 May, 1952, and commanded all United Nations forces during the final months of fighting in Korea and during the crucial phases of the long truce negotiations.

During his long and brilliant career since graduating from the United States Military Academy in 1917, Clark served three tours of duty within the Sixth Army area. From 1925 to 1928, he was stationed at the Presidio of San Francisco with the 30th Infantry and he served at Fort Lewis, Washington, from 1937 to 1940.

On 19 June, 1947, General Clark assumed command of the Sixth Army with Headquarters at the Presidio of San Francisco. He remained as Army Commander until August, 1949, when he was named Chief, Army Field Forces.

General Hull, an atomic weapons expert, has been Army Chief of Staff for the past two years. In 1948, he commanded "Operation Sandstone" (Joint Task Force 7) in conducting the first tests of atomic weapons at Eniwetok. From 1949 to 1951, he directed evaluation of weapons systems for the Department of Defense.

General Charles L. Bolte, Commander-in-Chief of the U. S. Army in Europe, has succeeded General Hull as Army Vice-Chief of Staff. He commanded the Seventh Army and held several staff posts including Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans before his assignment to Europe.

Army's I&E Chief Visits Sixth Army Enroute to Fecom

Major General Harlan N. Hartness, Director of the Armed Forces Information and Education Division, Office of the Secretary of Defense, arrived in San Francisco Monday, for a brief stop-over in the Bay Area en route to the Far East.

After a morning visit to Camp Stoneman, where he observed the Overseas Orientation program for military personnel awaiting shipment to the Far East, General Hartness conferred with Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, Sixth Army commander, at the Presidio Tuesday afternoon.

He left San Francisco early Wednesday morning for an inspection tour of Armed Forces informational and educational facilities in the Far East Command, accompanied by Col. Otis McCormick, Chief, Troop Information and Education Division, Office of the Chief of Information Department of the Army.

A veteran of 35 years of Army service since his graduation from the U. S. Military Academy in 1918, General Hartness returned recently from Europe, where he commanded the 4th Infantry Division.

Between World Wars I and II, General Hartness held various assignments in the United States and the Panama Canal Zone, and also attended the Command and General Staff College and the German General Staff School.

In World War II, he was assistant division commander of the 94th Infantry Division at Fort Custer, Mich., and of the 26th Infantry Division when it moved to the European Theatre of Operations in 1944.

After a postwar tour as assistant commander of the 7th Infantry Division in Korea, General Hartness returned to the United States as Assistant Commandant and, later, Acting Commandant of the Command and General Staff College until his assignment to the 4th Infantry Division in 1950.

He holds the Silver Star, the Legion of Merit and the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster.

Out of Business

The Armed Services Textile and Apparel Procurement Agency is scheduled to terminate activities Oct. 31, 1953. It is the agency which has been responsible for the purchase of all textile, apparel, footwear, equipment and related items for military use. Most of these items now will be procured under a joint program by the Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

Colonel Slocum Assigned 6th Army ACS G-4

Col. LeCount H. Slocum

Colonel LeCount H. Slocum has been named Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4, Sixth Army Headquarters, succeeding Colonel Paul Steele, who has been assigned to the European Command.

A native Californian, Colonel Slocum attended Stanford University before entering the Army.

Prior to his assignment at the Presidio, the Colonel served as Chief of Staff, United States Army Europe Communication Zone in Orleans, France. From 1947-50 he served as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, at the Presidio under the commands of Gen. Mark Clark and Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer. In July, 1950, he was named Commanding Officer of the Wetzlar Military Post in Germany, and remained there until his assignment in Orleans.

After completing a special mission in connection with the invasion of North Africa, Colonel Slocum served in the Pacific area during World War II, including duty as Artillery Commander of the American Division. He fought in France with the American Expeditionary Forces in World War I, and between wars was assigned to various posts in the United States and Hawaii.

He is a graduate of the Army War College, Command and General Staff College and the Artillery School.

October Promotions

Army promotions for October for the top four enlisted grades will total 63,400. This is approximately 10,000 fewer than last month, but is about 12,000 more than the quotas for July and August.

Quotas for the various grades throughout the Army are as follows: master sergeant, 750; sergeant first class, 3,750; sergeant, 15,400, and corporal, 43,500.

During the month of September, promotions in the Sixth Army area were: master sergeant, 56; sergeant first class, 119; sergeant, 818; corporal, 1,777, and private first class, 4,892.

Command Changes!

General Officer Assignments Effects Three Area Changes

Two general officers have been given assignments to the Sixth Army area while another will leave this area for the Far East as the result of routine changes in assignment affecting eleven general officers announced recently by Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens.

Brig. Gen. Andrew P. O'Meara, Artillery Commander of the IX Corps in the Far East, has been assigned to the 44th Infantry Division at Fort Lewis, Washington, effective later this month.

AG Section Saves $12,000 Through Economy Program

Savings of $12,000 since 16 June, 1953 as a result of a message economy program have been realized by the Adjutant General's Section, Headquarters Sixth Army, it was announced this week by Colonel Morris H. Marcus, Adjutant General Sixth Army.

Colonel Marcus indicated savings of well over $50,000 annually are anticipated through the program.

This program was inaugurated following a review of all AG operations with the view of reducing costs to the absolute minimum. It was put into effect with the publication of Headquarters Regulation 435 and Sixth Army Numbered Memorandum 235.

Under effective management, message volume was reduced 48.3 per cent from an average monthly level of 10,719 messages to 6,311 messages.

The message economy program is one of several programs initiated by the AG Section in its drive to cut costs. "It is essential that all operations be constantly reviewed to reduce costs to the absolute minimum," Colonel Marcus said. "Economy in operation is good management."

In discussing the Department of the Army's role in the national economy, he concluded by saying, "the saving of funds and implementation of economy practices by all personnel of the military establishment should be considered a privilege, as well as a duty."

6A Posts Cited For Employment Of Handicapped

This is National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week!

Thousands of physically handicapped workers are employed to mutual advantage, in Department of the Army headquarters and installations throughout the world, Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens reported.

"And of the 1,801 handicapped workers added to Army pay rolls last year," the secretary said, "a total of 1,240 are veterans."

Because of their outstanding records in this field, Secretary Stevens said, certain Army installations have been recognized during the year by interested civic groups.

Deseret Chemical Depot, Utah, where 11 per cent of the civilians employed have a physical handicap, was presented a Certificate of Merit by the Utah governor's committee on the employment of physically handicapped.

Sacramento Signal Depot, California, which employs more than 600 handicapped persons, received the American Legion National Commission of Employment award, and Headquarters Sixth Army Infantry Division, Fort Ord, California, was cited by the Disabled American Veterans.

Brig. Gen. Roy E. Lindquist

Brig. Gen. Francis M. Day, Artillery Officer of the Eighth Army in Korea, has been transferred to the 47th Anti-Aircraft Artillery Brigade at Fort MacArthur, California. He probably will assume his new duties sometime in November.

Brig. Gen. Roy E. Lindquist, Assistant Division Commander of the 6th Infantry (Training) Division at Fort Ord, California, and formerly Commanding General of Camp Stoneman, California, will leave the United States this month for his new assignment with the U. S. Army Forces, Far East.

Maj. Gen. Gordon B. Rogers, Chief of the Korean Military Advisory Group, has been appointed to succeed Maj. Gen. Richard W. Stephens in command of the 3d Armored (Training) Division at Fort Knox, Kentucky. The change will take place early in December. General Stephens' new assignment will be announced later.

Maj. Gen. Francis W. Farrell, Army Deputy Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, for Operations, will assume command of the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, about 15 October.

Maj. Gen. Paul DeW. Adams, Commanding General of the 101st Airborne (Training) Division at Camp Breckenridge, Kentucky, will succeed General Farrell.

Maj. Gen. Carter B. Magruder, Army Deputy Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4, for Logistics, and Brig. Gen. Hobart Hewett, Assistant Commandant of the Anti-Aircraft and Guide Missile Branch of The Artillery School located at Fort Bliss, Texas, will depart this month for new assignments with the U. S. Army Forces, Far East.

Brig. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Commanding General of the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team in the Far East, will return to the United States in October. He has been assigned to the Office of the Army Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, for Personnel.

Brig. Gen. Hugh P. Harris, Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans of the Eighth Army, will leave the Far East in November for his new assignment at Headquarters Second Army, Fort George G. Meade, Maryland.

A Tribute to Ernie Pyle!

(Editor's Note: This being National Newspaper Week, The Star-Presidian salutes its sister newspapers of the nation for their contributions to the welfare of the Army. An illustration of how these newspapers give invaluable assistance to the Army is pointed out in the following address given by General of the Army Omar N. Bradley at Indiana University this week at the dedication of the Sigma Delta Chi bronze tablet in memory of Ernie Pyle.)

If it were humanly possible, I would like to do for Ernie Pyle what he did for the American soldier during World War II—make his load a little lighter, share some of his heartache, ease some of his worries about what the world is doing today.

It may seem to us that Ernie Pyle is now spared this burden and heartache. I pray that he is. But I know that if he were here, he would still be worrying about our soldiers, sailors, and airmen, still be sensing the tragedy of war, still be carrying more than his share of the front-line anguish, of loneliness, of destruction, and of death. Much of this is still with us in the world today, and it still must be seen—written about—and remembered if we are ever to be able to eliminate it.

Through his eloquent writing, Ernie Pyle managed to take the battlefield to the hearthstone of America, to bring the soldier into our hearts.

Through his simple stories, he let the people back home know the troubles of the men at the front. This was his gift to those at home who wanted to share, and in doing it he made the load a little lighter for the fighting man and for his family.

He even made some of our generals more human—including me. For this I am truly grateful. It is hard to imagine how difficult it is for a commander to know all his men. It is even more difficult for men—especially when there are 80,000 of them as there were in North Africa and Sicily—to know the man who has been selected to lead them, to send them against the enemy. But Ernie Pyle in his stories which were clipped out by parents and friends and sent back to our soldiers helped us with the job.

I remember when he first came to our command post to look me over. General Eisenhower had sent him to us, sensing immediately that he could acquaint the Army and the people back home with their leader, a man named Omar Bradley.

By the end of July 1943, our advance in Sicily had slowed as enemy resistance stiffened. Terry Allen's infantrymen droven on through Nicosia and came to a halt as they ran up against the enemy's defensive line outside the hilltop town of Troina. Meanwhile, the 45th Division on the north coast road found itself blocked by well-placed German defenses at the seaside village of San Stefano. The period of rapid movement had ended, for now we are solidly up against the enemy's coordinated defensive position.

II Corps had moved its CP into a scanty olive grove on the side of a hill northeast of Nicosia when my aide Chet Hansen came into my trailer one evening.

"I've been talking to Ernie Pyle," he said. "He'd like to trail around with you for a couple of day and do a column or two on you."

At the time I was still wary of newsmen. Thirty-two years in the peacetime Army had taught me to do my job, hold my tongue, and keep my name out of the papers.

"Why don't we get out of it if we can without getting Pyle mad. I'd feel better off without all that publicity."

"But General, try looking at it this way," Hansen said earnestly, "how many men do you have in the corps?"

"Oh—about 80,000."

"Well—now for those 80,000 troops you've got better than a quarter-million fathers, mothers, wives, and sweethearts in the United States, all of them worrying about these men. A good many of them are probably asking themselves: 'What sort of a guy is this Omar Bradley? Is he good enough to take care of my man?' They're the American people, General, and they've got a right to an answer. And believe me, Pyle is just the man to give them one."

I threw up my hands and laughed. "Put it that way and I can't turn you down. When does he want to begin?"

So I asked Ernie Pyle to ride around in the jeep with me for a couple of days. I thought that would be the best way for him to get on with his writing.

The first morning he appeared wearing that knitted stocking cap—that went under the helmet liner—which was his trademark at the front. I guess I am the only man who ever effected any discipline with Ernie—I made him wear his steel helmet.

"Ernie," I said, "the soldiers in this Army have to wear their helmets for their own protection. If they do it, I have to do it. And if I have to do it, when you're with me, you'll have to do it. Furthermore, it might come in handy before the day is over."

However, I noticed that the minute he left the area he snatched off the big steel helmet and replaced it with the Defense Chief's Salutation

National Newspaper Week serves to emphasize that the free press is one of the indispensable means for achieving and maintaining freedom.

Tyranny exists with difficulty in any country where its citizens are freely and fully informed on all the facts and issues involving their well-being.

In our free country the steps necessary to preserve our freedom require that our people be fully informed on the facts and issues involving our security.

In this age of peril, the job of keeping our citizens fully and freely informed would be difficult if not impossible without our press.

Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson.

First Buddy Teams in Germany, Japan

Bremerhaven, Germany — Five hundred infantrymen, the first of the Army's four-man "buddy teams," have arrived here to join American units. They will be assigned to the 1st, 4th and 43d Infantry Divisions in Western Germany.

Meanwhile, the first buddy teams have arrived in Japan enroute to units in Korea.

Members of each team, who were assembled during basic training, are to be kept together as long as possible. The teams are being used for overseas infantry replacements on an Army-wide basis.

Mother of Former 6A Chaplain Ryan Dead

Word has been received at the Presidio of San Francisco of the death at Walter Reed Army hospital, Washington, D. C., on 4 October, of Mrs. Hannah Ryan, mother of Chaplain (Brig. General) Patrick J. Ryan.

Chaplain Ryan served as Sixth Army chaplain from October 1948 until July 1952, when he was appointed deputy chief of chaplains, Washington, D. C. Mrs. Ryan lived in San Francisco during the time her son served here.

A Requiem High Mass was celebrated this morning (9 October) in St. Phillips church, Litchfield, Minnesota.

Select Group Learn Basic Technique In Word Warfare

Washington—A select group of Army officers here is learning to wage war without bloodshed.

At Georgetown University they are mastering the techniques of warfare with words—psychological warfare.

In the event of all-out war, responsibility for weakening the enemy's will to resist will be theirs.

They, and others similarly trained, will plan psychological attacks on various groups represented in the enemy country—combat troops, factory workers, farmers and others.

Their programs will include techniques for radio broadcasts, printed leaflets and the spoken word—all aimed at persuading the enemy to stop resistance.

These college-trained officers range in rank from first lieutenant to colonel. Most have combat records either from World War II, or Korea. Many also have had civilian experience as newspaper and radio script writers, advertising copy writers, promotion and motion picture men or in similar fields. Some are experts in international relations. Others are lawyers.

Now, in their post graduate course in the art of persuasion, they are studying the organizational and operational system of the country which is most likely to be America's future enemy—Russia.

The course embraces influences which impel Communists to think and act in an antagonistic way, analysis of Soviet methods of domination, national characteristics and cultures of Russians and the peoples of the satellite countries and many other related subjects.

Officers now taking the course will complete their studies in January. That same month, another group of aspiring Army psychological warfare officers will begin the course.

With two semester-length courses a year, the Army trains about 50 officers annually for the all important job of helping the United States win wars by crushing the spirit of resistance of the enemy. (ANF)

Admiral Radford's Salute

Observance of National Newspaper Week gives me the opportunity for pointing up the importance of the American press in these fast-moving times. Newspapers working hand in hand with the Armed Services are able, on a virtual day-to-day basis, to inform the American people of what is being done to keep our nation strong.

A free press is the life blood of democracy. In this period of our history, freedom means effort, sacrifice, and moral determination to preserve our way of life. Whenever you see liberty stamped out of the lives of people, it is because truth and fact were first obliterated from their newspapers.

By the same token, freedom cannot survive unless newspapers help share in the responsibility for safeguarding it.

Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Hip Pocket System

Camp Gordon, Ga.—Army switchboards now are hip pocket size.

Designed for paratroopers, they weigh two and one-quarter pounds. When paratroopers hit the ground, they can set up a telephone system in a few minutes with the tiny six-line switchboard.

The hip pocket switchboard is one of many different sizes used to train operators in the Army Signal Corps' Replacement Training Center here.

The Medal of Honor has been awarded to 1st Lt. James L. Stone, an Army infantryman, for supreme courage and complete disregard for his own safety in action against the enemy near Sokkogae, Korea, on the night of Nov. 21, 1951. He was commanding a platoon of Co. F, 8th Cav. Regt., 1st Cav. Div., when the enemy attacked his vital outpost. During the fighting a flame thrower went out of operation, seriously hampering the platoon's defense. Lt. Stone crawled from the comparative safety of a trench and repaired the weapon while fully exposed to enemy automatic fire. Then, when several of the enemy succeeded in breaking through to the platoon's position, he fought them hand-to-hand and led his men in repulsing the first attack. Although seriously wounded he assisted the wounded and prepared his men for another attack. During the second attack Lt. Stone personally carried his only remaining light machine gun from place to place in order to shoot down the enemy coming from two directions. Wounded a second time, he slipped into a trench and cleaned and loaded weapons until he was strong enough to resume fighting. Then standing erect, he directed action until he was wounded a third time and the outpost was finally overrun. All men of the platoon were casualties. Because of Lt. Stone's inspiring leadership, his platoon had inflicted such costly losses on the enemy forces that the communists were unable to hold the outpost. The announcement of the award was withheld pending the release of Lt. Stone, who was being held as a prisoner-of-war. (AFPS)

FOR THE LAST TIME honor graduates of the Military Police Training center at Fort Baker are congratulated by Lt. Colonel Keene Saxon, commanding officer of the 505th. This is the last class to be graduated from the MPTC prior to its closing on 3 October. Shown facing Col. Saxon is Pvt. Arnold G. Berlage, honor student who maintained a 93 per cent scholastic average throughout the eight-week course. Others include, l. to r.: Pvs. Robert G. Holdridge, Robert C. Eaton, Robert T. Peterson, Gerald R. Lamb, Kenneth L. Thompson, Howard L. Evans, Leslie E. Wall, Robert M. Ferguson, and John R. Silliman.

505th MP Training Center Ceases Operation as 11th Class Graduates

With the graduation of Company B on 3 October, the 505th Military Police Training center at Fort Baker ceased operations.

Since the inception of the school a year ago, more than 2,000 men in 11 separate companies have been trained and graduated as qualified MP's, according to Captain Raymond E. LeVan, school officer in charge.

The center was one of six in the United States whose sole mission was the training of military policemen. Lt. Colonel Keene Saxon, commanding officer of the 505th MP battalion, also commanded the school.

Training companies A and B, Fort Baker, and C in the Mendel area, trained the cycles of 200 men plus, and many of the officers and enlisted men on these instructor staffs have now been absorbed into the 505th, while some have reported to other Sixth Army installations for new assignments.

C Company of the 505th is now moving from the Mendel area to Fort Baker and will take charge of the billets and operate out of the offices formerly used by the center.

At graduation ceremonies, Pvt. Arnold G. Berlage walked off with top scholastic honors, his average throughout the eight-week course, 92 per cent. Entering the Army from North Bend, Oregon, Pvt. Berlage took his basic training at Fort Lewis, Washington.

Other honor graduates included Pvt. Howard L. Evans, John R. Silliman, Gerald R. Lamb, Robert G. Holdridge, Robert M. Ferguson, Kenneth L. Thompson, Leslie E. Wall, Robert T. Peterson, and Robert C. Eaton.

169 graduates paraded with the 505th and the Sixth Army band for Col. Saxon and his guest, Colonel Shaffer F. Jarrell, newly assigned Sixth Army provost marshal, as well as for a gathering of relatives and friends.

Col. Saxon gave the commencement address at the theatre and awarded the certificates of achievement.

Assignments for the company included 60 to stay with the 505th at the Presidio, the largest single group ever to be assigned here from graduates at the center. A total of 70 will go to FECOM and six to the Fifth Army area. There were 31 on TDY and these were returned to their parent units.

Two Silver Stars!

Seven Korean Veterans Given Decorations at Post Ceremony

Seven Korean veterans were honored for either gallantry in action or meritorious service at a ceremony on the Main Parade ground yesterday afternoon when they received decorations from Colonel William F. Magill, Deputy Post Commander. Six hundred Presidio troops and the Sixth Army Band participated in the parade and review.

Highest honors went to Lt. Col. John F. Varnell, now a patient at Letterman Army Hospital, who received the Silver Star, and William S. Jordan, a former captain from Santa Clara, who was presented an Oak Leaf Cluster in lieu of a second Silver Star.

Colonel Varnell was cited for gallantry in action against the enemy near Pau-gol, Korea, on 14-15 July, 1953, while in command of the 2nd Battalion of the 180th Infantry Regiment, 45th Infantry Division. Jordan's award was in recognition of his gallantry in action in the vicinity of Sum-myon, North Korea, from 11 to 13 October, 1951, when he was in command of Company B, 23rd Infantry Regiment, 2nd Infantry Division.

An Oak Leaf Cluster in lieu of a second award of the Bronze Star Medal was presented Lt. Napoleon L. Donato, Post S-2 Section, for valor on 12 April, 1951, while serving with Company A, 65th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Infantry Division, in Korea.

Sgt. Willie J. Preston, 9th AAA

Battalion, and John L. Brooks, Berkeley, both received the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service. Sgt. Preston served with the X Corps in Korea from 18 December, 1951, to 21 February, 1953, and Brooks was cited for his service as a sergeant in the 25th Infantry Division in Korea from 5 May, 1952, to 6 March, 1953.

The Army Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant was awarded Norman D. Rockwood, San Rafael, who was a first lieutenant with the 506th Quartermaster Petroleum Supply Company from 1 December, 1951, to 4 December, 1952, and to Melvin G. Wong, San Francisco, who was a sergeant with Company I, 15th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Infantry Division, from 20 January to 14 November, 1953.

In addition to the awards presented to the Korean veterans, Abraham L. Freeburg of San Francisco received the Sixth Army Certificate of Achievement for outstanding service with the 102nd Machine Records Unit at the Presidio of San Francisco from 20 March, 1950, to 21 March, 1953. He was formerly a master sergeant.

Fourth Mission Ends!

30th Engineers Return from Five-Month Survey in Alaska

Over 400 officers and enlisted men of the forward echelon of the 30th Engineer Base Topographic Battalion returned to Fort Winfield Scott last week after completing the battalion's fourth summer survey mission in Alaska.

Major part of this year's work was done in areas of vast desolate tundra plains, lakes and soggy swamp land, and erupting volcanoes. Transportation was possible only through use of amphibious Weasels and pontoon-equipped helicopters.

Except for the surveys themselves, the helicopters played the most important role during the five months of field work. They enabled survey parties to reach otherwise inaccessible areas in a matter of minutes and proved invaluable in the actual surveying.

The men returned to San Francisco aboard the USS President Jackson, which was the first large military troopship to arrive at Anchorage's Army dock when it stopped to take units of the battalion aboard. In preparation for the ship's arrival, a dredge pumped tons of muck from the harbor channel to insure safe docking.

Praise for members of the 30th was expressed in a letter of appreciation sent the Chief of U. S. Army Engineers by the commanding officer of the USS Jackson who was in command of two of the four trips to Alaska made by battalions on that ship.

"The interest, enthusiasm, co-operation, discipline and exemplary conduct exhibited by the troops of the 30th TOPO are far superior to what we are accustomed," the commanding officer stated.

He further commented that "when landing or picking up these troops, we have been very much impressed at the efficiency, capability and willingness with which they performed their work. Their equipment coming off the beach heads was as clean and well prepared for loading as when it was put aboard in San Francisco."

The battalion is now preparing for its annual winter survey season in southern California.

Wire Salvage Saves

Seoul—Army Signal Corps units in Korea recently saved American taxpayers more than $381,000 by reclaiming approximately 14,000 miles of used communication wire and 398 miles of rubber-covered, long distance telephone cable. The previously abandoned wire and cable was recovered during a six-month period.

The strength of the Army National Guard now is approximately 256,000.

Phone Office Moves

The business office of the Presidio Telephone system will move from its present location in Building 67 to Building 643, effective 26 October. After that date, payment of bills and applications for service will be made at the new location. Building 643 is located on Mason street near the west end of Crissy field.

Fire Prevention Activities Close With Kids Program

As a climax to Fire Prevention week being observed on the Presidio of San Francisco 4 through 10 October, more than 1,500 Presidio children will be guests of the Post fire department tomorrow morning (10 October) beginning at 0900.

They will be shown movies on fire prevention at the Post theatre, be given fireman's helmets, fire chief's badges, and candy to chew on while they ride around on the big red fire trucks, all through the courtesy of the local fireman.

Throughout the week, the menace of fire has been emphasized in a series of addresses by Arthur LeDuc, Post fire inspector, fire fighting demonstrations under the direction of Donald Thompson, assistant fire chief, a display of fire hazards, and an exhibit of fire prevention art done by Presidio children.

"Careless use of cigarets and matches, misuse of electricity and poor housekeeping practices are the three most common causes of fire," Mr. LeDuc explained. "To counteract them, keep plenty of ashtrays available and replace damaged electric wires."

"Trash, a prolific cause of fire, should never be allowed to accumulate, either in homes or offices. By training ourselves to think and act in terms of safety we can limit fires and save lives and property."

In conclusion, Mr. LeDuc also stressed the importance of prompt fire reporting and of having a definite plan of action should fire occur in home or office.

Former Cal Military Chief Retires After 36 Years

Colonel S. C. Cavender, former Chief of the Southern California Military Sub-District, retired this month from active military service after 36 years with the Army.

Born in Grapevine, Texas, in 1897, Colonel Cavender entered the Army in 1917 while a student at Texas A & M. He served with the Fifth Division in the AEF, and while in the Argonne was appointed to the U. S. Military Academy, from which he graduated and was commissioned a 2nd Lieutenant in 1923.

Since that time Colonel Cavender's military assignments have been many and varied. They include service with the 9th, 14th, 18th, 38th and 423rd Infantry Regiments. He commanded the latter during WWII and the Battle of the Bulge, at which time Colonel Cavender was awarded the Legion of Merit.

Other assignments included posts with the AG Department in various areas, a period with the Administrative and Transportation Divisions in Washington, and position as Executive Officer G-1 at Sixth Army Headquarters.

More recently he served as Chief of Staff of the Joint United States Military Advisory Group in China and as Chief of Staff of the 24th Infantry Division when it was stationed in Japan.

Upon his return to the States in 1950 he was appointed to the Southern California Military Sub-District and later was named Chief, at which assignment he served up to his retirement.

Able Battery Wins 9th AAA Morale Award Second Time

The 9th AAA Bn's monthly Morale and Welfare Plaque went for the second consecutive month to Battery A, 9th AAA Battalion recently.

The award was presented by Major C. R. Lucas, CO, 9th AAA Bn, to 1st Lt. David R. Spencer, CO of Battery A.

The plaque is awarded to the battery in the 9th AAA which has scored the most merits based on reenlistments, decorations and awards, and for the least demerits, such as AWOL's, court martials, D.R.'s during a given month.

PART OF THE FUN of being stationed with the WAC Detachment at the Presidio of San Francisco is the opportunity its members have to explore the vast number of novelty spots and picturesque settings of the San Francisco Bay area. Today's WAC May Serve In Many Interesting and Varied Career Fields

By Gloria Hetherington
Star-Presidian Feature Editor

"Because it is an integral part of the Army, the WAC primary mission is no different from the mission of the Army itself—that of defending the United States. The WAC contributes to the national defense by making available to the Army the nation's volunteer womanpower and women's special aptitudes and skills."

That is it.

On the Presidio, the WAC Detachment, numbering two officers and 147 enlisted women, are performing duties with a range of approximately 99 MOSs.

Greatest number, 25, are assigned to duty with the 6300 ASU Signal Service Detachment. Of these, six are telephone operators, four, cryptographers; three, tape relay operators; two are with the Sixth Army photo laboratory, one is with radio branch MARS, and the balance do administrative work.

There are 20 administrative WAC's in the G-1, 2, 3, and 4

Sections, five with the Provost Marshal section, five at the Post dental clinic, seven at the Post dispensary and four in the Finance section.

Quartermaster has seven WAC's employed in administrative work, and the Post Motor Pool, four. There are two working in the WAC clothing sales store, and four in the Commissary as cashiers. Special Services claims four WAC's, TI&E section, two and the 102nd MRU, three.

And there is the cadre which performs such essential functions as supply sergeant, company clerk, mail clerk and others.

The WAC began as a wartime auxiliary with the passage of the Rogers bill on 14 May, 1942, creating the Women's Army Auxiliary corps.

Women responded to the call to duty so well that by the corps' first anniversary, and just 10 months after the first group of enlisted women and officer candidates began training at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, there were 60,000 members stationed in 100 installations in this country and overseas. A contingent had reported for duty at Allied Headquarters, Algiers, in January, 1943.

The bill to make the corps a component instead of an auxiliary was signed by President Roosevelt on 1 July, 1943. With this WACs were given equal status with and placed under the same disciplinary regulations as male personnel.

By 1944, the Army's women soldiers were doing 239 different jobs at more than 400 installations of every theatre of operation, including the India-Burma and the Southwest Pacific.

Today, WACs also find an unlimited field of endeavor in hospitals. At Letterman Army Hospital on the Presidio there are a total of 87 WACs assigned to the 9956th TSU, and four to the 6930th ASU.

In addition, two types of classes are conducted, one for advanced medical technicians which is one year in length and at present has nine students, and the other, an eight-week course for rotating students.

Services in which Letterman WACs have become an integral part include minor surgery, operating rooms, X-ray, physical and dental medicine, neuro-psychiatry, laboratory service, obstetrics and gynecology, occupational and speech therapy, and allergy clinics.

There are technicians who work with the contagious and with the children's wards, in pediatrics and in the EENT clinic. WACs are stationed in the receiving center, the central service and the outpatient clinic.

On 12 June, 1948, the WAC became a permanent Corps when President Truman signed Public Law 625, and in a matter of days the first enlisted WACs were being sworn into the Regular Army. By October the first post-war training center was in operation, and will soon be permanently established at Fort McClellan, Alabama.

At the present time, the WAC has approximately 11,000 members on active duty at installations located throughout the United States and in France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Panama, Hawaii, Okinawa and Japan.

New Finance Rule Will Ease Travel Pay Advancement

Washington—It will be easier and less confusing for personnel to collect advance travel pay, Army Finance says.

A new system has been set up so that a soldier merely has to present a copy of his travel orders to the disbursing officer. No voucher will be needed at that time. The disbursing officer will then make the necessary notations on the person's record and give him his advance pay.

When the soldier has completed his travel he will then file a travel voucher with the disbursing officer within 10 days or before the next payday—whichever is later. It is this voucher that actually entitles the man to the money he has already received.

If he fails to file the voucher, the disbursing officer will be forced to deduct the amount advanced from his subsequent or regular pay.

It was necessary in the past to file two vouchers, before and after travel. Often the soldier forgot, or did not completely understand the regulations and did not file the second voucher, and the disbursing officer would have to deduct the amount advanced from his pay.

Finance men are happy with this system because it will not only permit more satisfactory service to personnel but will eliminate many of the technical difficulties under the old system. (AFPS)

Army Will Release 2200 Reserve Officers In Mid-October

Washington—Approximately 2,200 Reserve Officers will be notified by the middle of October of their release from active duty with the Army.

These officers being involuntarily released due to the limitation of reduced strength ceilings will be the first returned to inactive status.

The number involuntarily released under this program will be considerably less than originally contemplated due to a large number of eligible Reserve officers who voluntarily requested early release.

All officers to be released under this program will be given at least three months notice prior to the date of their reverting to inactive status. (AFPS)

AWARD FOR HIS SKILL in developing a combination jack and tow-bar unit for the H-23B type helicopter, was made to Mr. Albert F. Treskon, by Colonel William F. Magill, deputy post commander, in ceremonies this week. Looking on as the award was made was Lt. Robert F. Flint, commanding officer of the 87th Transportation aircraft unit. Mr. Treskon is an aircraft propeller repairman at the aircraft maintenance shop,

Post Transportation section. His device has been put into use on the Presidio and is about to be adopted by other Sixth Army area installations. The tow-bar is attached to a helicopter which may then be pulled by jeep or small tractor, where formerly the 'copters were moved by hand. The saving in manhours during the first year over the Sixth Army area is expected to approximate $11,000. (Army photo by Weiss.)

US Army Outlaws Pen Clubs, 'Blind' Correspondence

Washington—The Army has put its stamp of disapproval on Pen Pal clubs or letters, chain letters, round robins, or any other such blind correspondence.

The ban on soldier participation in these activities is outlined in SR 1-101-10, Sept. 16, 1953. Army Information and Education officials say that this step was necessary to avoid important fragments of security information from falling into the hands of enemy intelligence forces.

"Through such channels," the new reg says, "intelligence information may be accumulated with respect to meteorological studies, strengths, troop lists, research and development projects, state of training, troop movements, unit activities, equipment, morale, plans, and psychological warfare material."

All Army agencies have been alerted not to assist any Pen Pal projects by releasing lists of its personnel to unauthorized sources.

In writing the regulation Army I&E officials emphasize that they realize that this may impose a hardship on some troops but that ultimate results will be for the good of the Army.

They also emphasized that this regulation is not meant to discourage letters or presents from persons or groups of persons well known to the recipient. They merely object to correspondence initiated by persons or groups unknown to the individual soldiers. (AFPS)

Lunch, Fashion Show For Fort Scott PTA

A dessert luncheon and fashion show will highlight the meeting of the Fort Winfield Scott PTA membership on 13 October beginning at 1300.

Following dessert in the school auditorium there will be a short business meeting before the fashion show.

Hand knit dresses made by members and teachers will be modeled by their creators, and a group of Army mothers will model costumes from foreign lands. One of these will model a sarong and present a native dance.

Mrs. J. F. Robinson is chairman of the event.

American Troops at Pusan in Appeal for Children's Clothes

"What you give into the lives of others, comes back into your own!"

That's part of a famous quotation some very wise person once wrote.

And it's true!

That nice warm feeling you get inside from having done something for others is irreplaceable!

Here's a chance, if there ever was one, to bring on that glow.

The officers and enlisted men of the Cadre of the Pusan, Korea, Replacement depot, want to help bring some kind of a Christmas to thousands of Korean orphan children who never did anything but run — from guns and bombs and boots—and dead families.

They haven't a single thing in this world!

You can give them a Christmas. This is NOT an appeal for money.

All the men want from you is your stored away and probably forgotten used children's clothing. Anything and everything wearable is accepted with open arms. They will be distributed to the little ones through the orphanages in Pusan, with each sharing alike.

If your charity prompts you to include a bag or two of hard candy, so much the greater your reward!

Here is the address: Operation Santa Claus, Pusan Replacement Depot, 8069th Army Unit, APO 973, c/o Postmaster, San Francisco, California.

Please mail them soon. It's a long way to Korea, and Christmas is only 11 weeks away!

THREE KOREAN ORPHANS are temporarily "adopted" by WAC Master Sergeant Gwen Patrick Cathcart of 40 Lafayette Street, Rochester, N. H., during a party at the Seibi Orphanage in Tokyo. Sergeant Cathcart—with other members of WAC Company B, 8232nd Army Unit at Camp Tokyo—helps support Seibi orphans with donations of food, clothes and money.

Signal's New Energy Vest Packs Big Charge

Fort Monmouth, N. J.—A vest with 117 pockets?

The Army Signal Corps has come up with one. And it's mighty practical.

The 117 pockets are designed to hold as many dry-cell batteries. It is to be worn under the overcoats of soldiers assigned to cold-climate, frontline radio communications.

The vest is an experiment to find a way to keep walkie-talkie radio batteries warm and functioning in sub-zero temperatures.

Dry cells, kept warm in this manner, have much more energy than regular batteries, which are sapped of energy quickly when exposed to freezing temperatures.

The vest weighs slightly more than three pounds.

Advantages of a career in the Armed Forces will be brought out during the Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units in the discussions of Armed Forces TALK, Number 451, "It's Your Future."

These advantages include: financial security in the form of continuing employment, many paid expenses, and good retirement pay; opportunities for learning a skilled trade and for advancement, and opportunities for gaining an education at low cost.

"Other satisfactions of a Service career," the TALK points out, "are to be found in belonging to a great organization, in opportunities to travel and to form enduring friendships, and in doing a vitally needed job."

Raiders Meet T. I. At 1400 Hrs. Today In Season's Fourth

The Presidio Red Raiders take on the blue and gold clad Treasure Island Pirates today in their fourth tilt of the season. Play begins at 1400 hours on the Treasure Island field.

TT's head coach Dennis Heenan figures on fielding the backfield combination of Dink Fine, FB, Ernie Young, RH, Dick Fredrics, RH, and Jack Bond, QB, for the start.

Line coaches Boheman and Narcisan list ends Verle Helleckson and Bill Thompson; guards Ed Grimmer and Bob Good; tackles Herman Murrey and Larry Sewell, and center Bob Kaiser, as their most probable starters.

Average weight on the line is 198 pounds; for the backfield, 180.

The Pirates lost a bad spree recently to an overweight Hamilton Field crew 40-0 and two 12-0 contests to Martinez and Chico State. Their one victory was over Camp Stoneman, 33-6.

Ord Golf Range Gets New Look

The reconditioning of the Fort Ord Golf Driving Range is the latest news from the Special Services office there. Not only has the putting green undergone extensive rehabilitation, but new mats have also been provided for the range itself.

In order that the Post personnel can sharpen up their game in the evening, all income from the driving range is being placed in a special fund to eventually provide lights for the field.

Second Week Intra-Mural Tilts Reveal Three Casaba Threats

The Presidio 1953 intra-mural basketball program finished off its second week of the season today. Only three teams out of the 21-team National and American League congregation survived this second week with a two win, no loss record. They were Headquarters Company and B Company of the 505th MP Battalion, and Detachment A.

Wednesday evening casaba action at the Fort Scott gym saw an upset 71-46 decision go to the Headquarters MPs against a once-strong Harbor Defense crew.

According to a casemate spokesman, the sailors "just couldn't get going" against a gritty MP quintette—headed by a strong forward triumvirate of MPs Mel Gartenberg, Milt Garfield and Glen Lovell, powermen for the police with 14, 13 and 12 points respectively. Headquarters' previous win was against the 542nd Surveyors last week.

On Tuesday Company B of the 505th slaughtered HQ 9th AAA 71-36. Baker Company's Wilson looped 24 into the Ack Ack net to become high-pointer of the evening. Baker's initial win came last week against the 99th Repro, 59-26.

On Thursday of last week the 11th TC rolled over Battery A, 459th AAA to the tune of 72-42, 11th TC's Ogelvie being the winners' high-pointer with 25 and Webb of the defeated sinking an equal number.

A make-up game between Headquarters Sixth Army and the 30th AAA Group found the Ack Ack five too strong for the clerks. They swished a total of 68-31.

RED RAIDER HALFBACK Ralph Spreen takes ball into Moffett Field territory in the last minutes of the first half in game last Saturday. Spreen and other Raider backs accumulated the best yardage of the season in ground attacks such as this. Presidio quarterback Dick Jackstadt here runs interference for Spreen, while Moffett Field R. Millar (56), 210-pound tackle for the sailors, follows play from a distance. Raiders wrested win from Moffett 20-13. They meet Treasure Island today at 1400 hours away from home.

Red Raiders Come Back Strong, Sink Moffett Field 20-13 in Season's Best

The Presidio Red Raiders combined brilliant broken-field running by Jack Bridges, a 50-yard break-through ramble by Dave Marcelli, powerhouse throwing by quarterback Don Burroughs, to hammer out a 20-13 victory from the Moffett Field sailors last Saturday.

With losses to Chico State and the Cal Ramblers on preceding weekends, the game at Moffett Field was the first win for the home team in their 1953 regular schedule. It bore the effect of the lessons learned in those games, with a renewed fighting spirit especially conspicuous and better coordination in air and ground attack.

In opening-quarter play the pigskin was shunted ineffectually from one side of the halfway mark to the other through four exchanges.

It was in the middle of the quarter that the Raiders recovered a Moffett fumble on their own 40-yard stripe. Dallas Lamb bucked the sailors' line to gain five yards on the first play out, then the Raider offense erupted with a 25-yard throw from Burroughs to Bridges and two more rushes by Bridges and a lunge by Lamb to render the ball on the opposition's five-yard stripe.

In their first TD attempt the Raiders lost five yards when Burroughs was nailed behind his own scrimmage on an unsuccessful pass attempt. Two downs later the same aerial play clicked, however, when Burroughs' toss found Jack Barnes, Presidio end, in the vicinity of the goal posts. With the conversion good, the Presidio led 7-0.

In the last few minutes of the same quarter Moffett's W. Ketchum retaliated with two marches into Presidio territory. In a third play at the beginning of the second bracket H. Cooper, speedy sailor quarterback, flashed 58 yards to the Raider end zone. The first conversion attempt by the sailors was called back on a penalty, but their second try was good to equal the score.

At the beginning of the second half a sizzling Moffett eleven received the Raider boot, and Cooper for the sailors ran 30 yards into Army territory. On the next play R. Fadich, second-string quarterback for Moffett, slipped through the soldiers' forward wall for paydirt. The conversion was blocked by the Raider line.

It was at this point that the Army's ire reached a high point. They seemed to decide they'd better win—or else.

As a token of the newly-engendered Raider wrath Jack Bridges received the kick-off and picked his way through a field of sailors 75 yards to the Moffett Field four-yard stripe. Two plays later he plunged through the Moffett line for the Raiders' tying marker. The conversion was unsuccessful.

Moffett received the subsequent boot on their own five-yard line. Running plays by Cooper, L. Brightman and Fadich, and a pass from Fadich to Ketchum, bore the pigskin to the Raider 30, but the march stopped there.

Raider Dave Marcelli profited on a Navy fumble late in the quarter and scooted half the length of the field for the winning touchdown. Burroughs made the conversion.

Late in the last quarter 40 yards worth of running by Bridges and a Burroughs to Marcelli toss made it look for a minute as if the soldiers were going to remake the score, but the gun sounded before the Raider offense got into stride.

Statistics-wise the Presidians showed far better than usual on their ground attack, netting a total of 345 yards for the game, as against Moffett's 330. The soldiers gained 70 yards via the air, while Moffett earned 45.

Last Saturday saw a shift in Raider coaching strategy. Roland Daigle, head coach for the Presidians as well as an active backfield specialist, sidelined himself throughout the game for a better insight into the opposition's tactics. It paid off in victory.

Local & National

SPORTS PULSE

By Pfc. BRUCE LANSBURY
Star-Presidian Sports Editor

A big gun on the Presidio Red Raider football squad last Saturday and one of the guys instrumental in the locals' 20-13 victory over the sailors, was a 170-pound half-back from Texas by the name of Jack Bridges. In the Raiders' first two games against Chico State and U.C. the backfield ace's real potentiality wasn't so much in evidence, but against Moffett he really came into his own.

It was the beginning of the second half that Moffett's Faidich had run through the locals' line for their second touch-down, putting the sailors ahead. It made the Raiders and Bridges mad—that and the fact that certain decisions by the field officials had appeared to be prejudicial.

So Bridges did the only wise thing a griddier can do when the cards are down. He didn't beef and he didn't get into a fight. He received the kick-off on his own 22-yard line and filtered through a field of sailors for 75 yards to the Moffett four-yard line—the first time that the speedy soldier's open-field running tactics really showed to advantage.

The Texan is currently stationed with Headquarters Company, 505th Military Police Battalion. He came originally from Camp Polk, Louisiana.

Prior to the Army in '50, '51 and '52 he played with the San Angelo, Texas, College eleven, and made the All-Conference Pioneers two years running. He plans on finishing coaching school when he gets out of the Army next October.

If you looked hard enough around the Presidio I guess you'd find a specialist in about any sport you could name. We have the usual run of able athletes in team sports like football, baseball, basketball and boxing—some of them with very bright pasts in the local and national sporting circles. And there are others—the unsung heroes, as it were, in sports like racing, golfing, pool and chess. These lone wolves of Service competition usually have to operate without benefit of publicity and TDY arrangements which facilitate the fielding of an installation contingent, but during their careers in khaki they manage to cram in a surprising record of participation in the sports they hold dear.

And while they may never find themselves competing against Service personnel necessarily, they are nevertheless just as much ambassadors of the Army as their more touted cousins on Service teams.

Take, for instance, M/Sgt. Richard Mestas, 22-year-old veteran of Korea, and former member of the 21st Infantry Regiment there.

These days Mestas is assigned as assistant Chief Clerk in G-4, where he heads the TDY section there, but his chief extra-curricular interest is water-skiing.

Since he took up the sport, the Sergeant has competed in 15 races and won 10 trophies, including a third-place award in the 1951 50-mile San Diego course—a national event on the water-skiing calendar.

His most recent race was the Catalina national—a 52-mile jaunt from San Pedro, California, to Catalina Island and back. The first-place winner skeeted over the seaway in one hour and 50 minutes. Mestas came in 9th in two hours and 10 minutes.

What first comes into the mind of someone unversed in the sport is the problem of spills. Mestas himself is accustomed to being hauled by a Mercury-powered 16-foot V-bottom runabout, capable of averaging 45 mph. The only thing preventing the skier from flipping into the brine at some point in a 50-mile race on skis is an acute sense of balance, mighty strong leg muscles, and a lot of nerve. It is to Mestas' credit that he didn't get dunked once during all of the 120-minute, 52-mile Catalina run.

Next year's spin will see Mestas behind a custom-built racer put together by Los Angeles' well-known boat-builder Joe Mandella. The craft will be powered by a '53 Cadillac engine capable of an average speed of 65 mph!

According to Mestas, water-ski racing has quite a widespread popularity in the States. Enthusiasts from as far away as Florida and other eastern states converge on Southern California during the season to risk their necks on courses like the Arrowhead and Lake Mead 75-mile runs. Other "tracks" besides these include Long Beach's 15-miler; Santa Barbara, 25; Salton Sea, 25; Bass Lake 45, and Clear Lake, 15.

When Sergeant Mestas leaves the Army in January he hopes to land a civil service position here in San Francisco, at which time he'll find more chance to be on his skis, skimming at 65 miles an hour on California's lakes behind a Cadillac-powered boat.

I could think of safer ways to spend a sunny Saturday afternoon.

Sandy Amoros, Cuban outfielder of the Montreal Royals, captured the 1953 batting championship of the International League when he nosed out Rochester's rookie outfielder, Tom Burgess, .355 to .347.

The Giants will play 18 games on their exhibition tour of the Orient this fall, including two in Honolulu, one at Okinawa, one at Manila and 14 in Japan.

Ordmen Eliminated by Golden Arrows In MDW All-Army Softball Semi-Final

Semi-final round action at this year's All-Army Softball Tournament at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, saw a decisive 9-4 defeat of the Fort Sixth Army Champs by the once-beaten Fort Jackson, South Carolina, Golden Arrows. The loss was the second for Fort Ord and put them out of further contention for the All-Army title.

In another semi-final match Fort Lee defeated Fort Devens, 5-1, to remain unbeaten favorites to take the crown in their final match against the Fort Jackson nine.

The finalists were scheduled for a play-off on Thursday of this week, and no word of the outcome had been received by the time of the "Star-Presidian's" deadline.

Behind a superb three-hit hurling performance by pitcher Lee Cameron, Fort Ord had copped their second win in three starts on Tuesday of this week by defeating Fort Benjamin Harrison 3-0.

The Military District of Washington Army play-offs saw a first-round victory by the Sixth Army Champs over the Fort Jackson, South Carolina, Golden Arrows, 3-2, in their first win of the tourney. Minutes after completing their first game the Ordmen were called into a match with Fort Lee, Virginia, and lost that game 8-3.

In other first-round contests at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, Fort Lee had whipped the Brooke Army Medical Center, Texas, 5-2. Fort Belvoir, the host team, had out-hit Fort Harrison, Indiana, 7-2.

Ord's retaliation at the expense of the Harrison nine put the losers out of the double-elimination tournament for good and paved the way for the Wednesday night semi-final rematch between Ord and Fort Jackson.

The winner of the All-Army tournament will go to Puerto Rico, where this year's Inter-Service championship will be decided.

Airman Nabs Golf Win in First Annual Fort Douglas Match

Airman Captain Allen R. Pike outshot two Army golfers, Captains Lewis S. Peterson, runner-up, and Ervin Johnson, to grab the first annual Fort Douglas Golf Tournament, at Fort Douglas, Utah, recently.

The five-day match play was open to Army and Air Force personnel stationed at Douglas and was conducted under handicap match play rules.

Two flights of 16 players each participated. A consolation flight was run off for the loser of the first go around.

This first year's tournament was considered most successful and the list of entries for next year's contest is expected to double in number.

QUESTIONS

1. Who was the first modern day southpaw to hold a world boxing title?
2. What National League baseball team did Tony Lazzeri play for?
3. Was Bill Tilden or Don Budge considered the ranking U. S. tennis player for the greater number of years?
4. In baseball is the catcher classified as an infielder?
5. What player holds the record for most times at bat in the major leagues?

ANSWERS

1. Al McCoy, a left hander, KOed George Chip for the middleweight title in 1914 and held it until 1917 when he lost to Mike O'Dowd.
2. Lazzeri played 13 games with the Giants in 1939, his final season.
3. Tilden was considered ranking U. S. Singles player 10 years, 1920-29; Budge three years, 1936-38.
4. No. The catcher and the pitcher both are classified as "batterymen."
5. Ty Cobb is credited with 11,429 times at bat in 24 years of play, 1905-28. Honus Wagner holds the National League record, but was two short of Cobb's total times at bat.

Vejar at Benning

Professional welterweight Chico Vejar, number six welterweight in the country before his entry into the Army, has recently finished basic training at Fort Dix and has been transferred to Fort Benning, Georgia.

His first assignment is in HQ Co., First Student Regiment, where he will be athletic NCO.

Vejar says he doesn't plan to fight in nearby Columbus, Georgia, but does intend to do some fighting in Florida, probably Miami.

Sports Jargon Has Some Fans Hamstrung at Season's Start

By SGT. FRANK SLOAN

With the World Series barely over and the hunting and fishing season booming fit to bust, it might be a good idea to go over a few of the colorful slang terms brought forth by players and inventive sportswriters to help pass on the thrills and excitement of our favorite sports—and a few of the superstitions.

While browsing through these terms you may find some above your comprehension—but try to figure them out before you read the true meaning. Some are very popular and have been for some time. "Bases loaded," for instance. Know what it means? Sure you do, because it's one of the more popular ones.

How about a "clutch hitter"? This may stump some of us, but not the baseball fans. They know that a clutch hitter is one who can be counted on to deliver a hit when it is most needed.

Let's go on down the list and see how many we know.

Gopher ball—a pitch which the batter hits for a home run.

Cripple—ball pitched when the count on the batter is three balls and one strike, so-called because the pitcher usually needs to "groove it" for a strike and therefore eliminates trickery from his delivery.

Pull a rock—make a stupid or "bonehead" play.

Money player—one who can always be counted upon to perform well when most is at stake.

Sun field—that portion of the outfield where the fielder has to face the sun directly.

Pick off—to catch a base runner off base by an unexpected throw from the pitcher or catcher.

Mound, rubber, or hill—the slightly elevated pitcher's box in the center of the diamond.

Twin bill or doubleheader—two games played between the same two teams on the same day.

Twilight doubleheader—two games between the same teams on the same day, the first starting in the late afternoon, the second being played under lights at night.

As for the sports superstitions, take in a few of these listed as verified and authenticated in the fields of baseball, hunting and fishing.

Baseball:

A player having a lucky streak in hitting will not change his uniform, no matter how soiled it is, until his luck streak changes. . . . Each white horse seen by a ball player on his way to the park signifies a home run for him in the game. . . . Some baseball players keep their caps turned backward for luck.

Changing bats after you have taken one is unlucky. . . Spit on the end of your bat for luck. . . To strike out the first batter indicates the pitcher will lose the game. . . A pitcher thinks it is unlucky if the second baseman throws him the ball. . . It is a sign he will win if the pitcher finds a toad in the outfield before the game starts.

Some baseball players will turn around three times in the batter's box for luck. . . A ball player coming off the field will always lay his glove in the same place for luck in hitting. . . An outfielder muffing his first fly indicates his team will win the game. . . It is unlucky to drop a bat between home plate and the catcher. . . To be put out at third base is unlucky. . . A baseball player who sees a cross-eyed woman in the grandstand will fail to get a hit.

Hunting:

Just before you start on a hunting trip let someone hit you with an old shoe for luck, the more old shoes from your family, the more game you'll get. . . The hunter who shoots his gun once before leaving the yard will be lucky. . . Never load your gun until you reach the hunting grounds or you will have bad luck.

To turn back after you have entered the woods to hunt is a bad omen. . . Kill a cricket when you first reach camp and your hunting trip will be a failure. . . To find a large hairpin while hunting is a good sign of luck. . . Wrap a black horsehair around your wrist and you will shoot straight.

Fishing:

A good time to go fishing is when you see a chicken oiling its feathers. . . Always fish against the wind for luck. . . Carry a fishing pole into the house before you start on a fishing trip and you will not get any fish.

It is unlucky to bait your hook with a worm by using your left hand. . . Fish will not bite if it thunders. . . Fish bite well when it is thundering. (Now wait a minute) . . . The person who swears while fishing will not catch a fish.

Sweeping Revision of NCO Structure Due

knitted cap. It got to be a game with us. He was almost swallowed by his big steel helmet. It looked uncomfortable on him and it was uncomfortable. But so great was his heart that he never complained. But he never wore the helmet either except when I was around.

Riding around with Bradley was not without a certain amount of torment to him. He took an awful ribbing from his fellow correspondents—good naturedly they would kid him at night after his trips. After all, wasn't he the dough-boy's correspondent? The other correspondents jollied him for deserting the GI's to hobnob with the high brass. Hal Boyle's daily greeting was: "There goes that social-climbing columnist!" Chris Cunningham predicted that soon Ernie would be making remarks like: "Well, I told Omar that his battle plan wouldn't work, but he insisted on trying it out anyhow." Jack Thompson accused him of being "seduced by the aristocracy."

But he stuck with me and took it all in stride, and he showed me our wonderful Army through new eyes—eyes that drank in every detail of the battle, from the biggest plan to the smallest machinegunner in action. From this man who, at the end of the day, would retell the things we had seen together I better understood the feeling for battle and the feeling for these men that had always been the soldier's code of leadership. Ernie Pyle's typewriter had a real soul, and it told our story to the world.

No one could have been more pleased than I was when I heard that he was going with us on the Normandy invasion. It meant a great deal to the men, I was sure, and it seemed to be a symbol of good luck to have him along. I invited him to ride on the AUGUSTA, with the command ship, but he refused, preferring to go along on an LST with the troops.

Ernie Pyle worked with us to the German border, and I saw him from time to time. He always brought me more news than I could give him. He possessed a keen insight into the things that concerned, amused or distressed his fellow men, and was gifted with the uncanny ability of relating these things so that the inexperienced could sense their reality.

He knew that a dash of judgment is better than a flash of genius. He was a common man with uncommon qualities, and he gained a place in our hearts that shall be everlasting. Perhaps the greatest tribute I can pay to him is this: "My men always fought better when Ernie was around."

If a journalist—a writer—or a reporter—can do this for an Army, he contributes greatly to the success of the battle. I am sure that if more war correspondents could really appraise what their dispatches mean at home, and mean to the soldier when he gets the clippings in the mail, they would always strive to do a more understanding job. Out on the front lines we need the man who sees the battle from the human point of view—and we Americans have been fortunate in having many of those men with their typewriters and their cameras among our legion of correspondents. Ernie Pyle seemed to be as great as any of them by these humble standards.

Ernie was an unobtrusive, human, sweet, quiet man and as this memorial to this great Hoosier, a boy from an American farm and this great University is dedicated today, I can't help thinking back to the days of the war and how he painted in everyday simple words the great battles—Sicily—D-Day in Normany—the Breakout—Paris captured. I wonder how this correspondent would have written up the battles of Korea—the frustrations of the long armistice talks—how he would attack the problems of the battles of the cold war that are going on around the world today.

Ernie Pyle was a restless man. Certainly he would not have remained long in an office, but would have been in the trouble spots of the world where our allied forces are engaged. He would be out there reporting the battles of Indo-China, the fight against the communists in Malaya, the struggles in the Middle East, and the NATO maneuvers in Western Europe. Through his reporting we would see the soldiers of freedom as simple, dedicated men, doing a job we had given them, in the only way they could do it; with courage, with conviction, and with all the suffering and misery that battle and living in the field can bring. Today, we need him as greatly as we did in World War II.

His stories would portray the soldiers of today in the same understanding, human and honest way which marked all of his copy from Sicily, to Normany, and finally to Okinawa and Ie Shima, where he died, just as bravely, just as greatly, as the Americans he had written about so long—and so well.

Reserve Matters Will Be Studied By Area Group

Members of the Sixth Army Reserve Components Advisory Group will confer Monday at Headquarters Sixth Army on National Guard and Reserve affairs within the Sixth Army area. Conference chairman will be Brig. Gen. LeRoy Anderson, commanding general, 96th Division, USAR.

Acting as an immediate advisor to Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, Sixth Army Commander, the group will review the implementation of the civilian components programs of the army area and recommend possible improvements.

Recommendations which are approved by the Army commander and which will require adoption of new policies or regulations are submitted to the Department of the Army for further consideration with the view of their being considered for submittal to the General Staff Committee on National Guard and Reserve Policy for further review.

In addition to General Anderson, members of the group include: Brig. Gen. E. C. B. Danforth, Chief, California Military District; Col. Thomas M. Brinkley, Chief, Idaho Military District; Col. William C. McFadden, Chief, Utah Military District; Col. William J. Hixson, Assistant Division Commander, 63d Division, Southern California.

Brig. Gen. Lamar Toozee, Commanding General, 104th Division, Oregon; Col. Fernando C. Menacacey, Commanding Officer 311th Logistical Command; Maj. Gen. Harold G. Maison, Commanding General, 41st Infantry Division; Brig. Gen. Neil McKay, Commanding General, 115th AAA Brigade, Oregon; Col. Frederick R. Stofft, Commanding Officer, 158th Regiment Combat Team, Arizona, and Maj. Gen. Curtis D. O'Sullivan, Commanding General, 49th Infantry Division, California National Guard.

Washington — The Army is in the process of making sweeping revisions in its NCO structure.

The move, designed to restore NCO leadership and prestige, separates NCOs' from specialists all down the line.

Army Chief of Staff, Gen. Matthew Ridgway, has approved preliminary plans and revised TO&Es will be sent to field commands by Jan. 1, 1954.

The plans call for separating all present NCOs having command responsibilities from their specialist counterparts, giving the latter entirely new designations. Pay grades will remain the same and the top two grades of specialists probably will retain NCO privileges.

Here is what the new ranks will be called and how they correspond to their present counterparts:

Grade Pay	Grade NCO	Specialist Grade
E-7	M. Sgt.	Specialist Grade
E-6	Sfc.	First Class Specialist
E-5	Sgt.	Second Class Specialist
E-4	Cpl.	Third Class Specialist

The basic difference is that the Army is paying the NCO for leadership qualities and the specialist for technical or administrative ability.

The Army previously carried approximately 62 per cent of its enlisted strength in the NCO category. Under the new plan, only 18 per cent of the enlisted personnel will be NCOs.

Designs for specialist rates are being studied. Six have been approved by the Heraldic Branch, OQMG, and QM procurement officials. They are now in the hands of Gen. Ridgway for approval.

When the General passed on the six possibilities, a three-week pilot study will determine which design appeals to NCOs and specialists most, and then production of the new stripes will begin.

It is estimated it will take six months from the time of the design's approval to the time the stripes reach the field, but interim arrangements are being worked out.

The special regulation governing the sweeping change is expected to be in G-1 hands by Oct. 15 for staffing.

Here is how the new system will work out percentage-wise:

Pay Grade	NCO	Specialist
E-7	95%	5%
E-6	70%	30%
E-5	25%	75%
E-4	5%	95%

In the new TO&Es the corporal has few command responsibilities, therefore the number of corporals will be low.

Here are some of the practical situations which the new move brings on:

Jones, who is an NCO in grades E-5 through E-7 will be addressed as Sgt. Jones, or if he is an E-4, as Cpl. Jones. If Jones is a specialist in one of the pay grades of E-4 through E-7, he will be addressed as Specialist Jones.

Examples of common staff and organizational NCO positions:

First sergeant, motor sergeant, mess steward, sergeant major, operations sergeant and platoon sergeant.

Specialist examples:
Automatic rifleman, tank driver, gunner, high-speed radio operator, medical lab technician and welder. (AFPS)

Utah Reservist Wins Army Gold Medal For Long Service

Fort Douglas, Salt Lake City, Utah. — Colorful ceremonies were held at Fort Douglas recently, upon the presentation to Reverend Mortimer Chester, of Utah's U. S. Army Reserves, of a 10-year U. S. Army Reserve Medal, with a 10-year Device, for his twenty-one years in the Chaplain Corps of the Reserves.

Reverend Chester is the first Army Reservist to receive the 20-year Reserve Service Medal in Utah. The presentation was made by Lt. Colonel John C. Maddox, Acting Adjutant General, Utah Military District.

Reverend Chester is a veteran of World War II.

MASS RETIREMENT of eight ranking Reserve officers whose service totaled more than 330 years in the Utah Army Reserve was held at Stilwell Field, Fort Douglas, Utah last week. Here, Colonel William C. McFadden, chief, Utah Military district, presents a Certificate of Achievement to Lt. Colonel Harry A. Phillips for his more than 20 years of service. Other retiring officers who received a like certificate include 1 to r: Colonel Joseph W. Palmer, Colonel Clint H. Harrison, Colonel H. W. Shurtleff, Lt. Colonel James R. Barker, Lt. Colonel Myron R. Gillette, Col. Phillips and Lt. Colonel Albert O. Roberts.

First Link Forged!

First Automatic Radar Units Give US Six-Hour Warning

Washington — The first experimental units of a line of automatic radar stations 1,200 miles from the North Pole, which will give U. S. defense forces at least a six-hour warning of attack from this area, are now nearing completion.

So lightning fast is the new system that a warning signal will be picked up and transmitted to the U. S. within seconds of the time an enemy aircraft comes within range.

Unlike WWII radar, which requires constant watching by observers, the new equipment sounds a warning automatically whenever aircraft approach—greatly reducing the number of personnel needed for service in the Arctic.

Radio and radar transmitters of the new systems are all magnetic-proof against the storms which knock out conventional electronic equipment in the Arctic during substantial portions of the year.

Precise location of the distant Early Warning Line—as the system is called—is a military secret and the decision to extend the new line from Alaska to Greenland will hinge on the performance of the initial installation.

The immense project is being constructed by the Western Electric Company under contract to the Air Force Air Research and Development Command.

The new sites are expected to be fully operational soon. The plan, which grew out of the Project Lincoln findings under joint sponsorship of the Army, Navy and Air Force, was started last December.

Bringing in the necessary supplies involved the use of airlift, Navy transportation and even ski sleds pulled by tractors. Men and equipment are housed in heated buildings supported by stilts.

The intricate radar antennae sweep in 360 degree arcs. Their domed rubber protectors give the installations the appearance of astronomical observatories. (AFPS)

QM Dinner Set

The fifth annual dinner of the ETO QM Association will be held in New York City on 7 November, according to information received by the Sixth Army Quartermaster. All Quartermaster personnel who served in the ETO during or immediately after World War II, may attend the banquet. Requests for reservations should be forwarded to Harry Richter, 170 Broadway, New York 3, N. Y.

Reassignment of Two General Officers, Plus Retirements, Announced

Major General John F. Uncles, Army deputy assistant chief of staff, G-4, for research and development, has been named to succeed Major General Kenneth D. Nichols as chief of research and development in the office of the chief of staff. General Nichols will retire at his own request on 31 October.

Major General Charles E. Hart, chief of the joint United States military aid group to Greece, has been assigned to the Artillery center, Fort Sill, Oklahoma. He will succeed Major General Arthur Harper as commanding general of the Artillery center and commandant of the Artillery school.

General Harper will retire after more than 36 years of service with the Army, on 31 December.

Successors to Generals Uncles and Hart will be announced later.

New Policy Will Ease Resignation Rules for Officers

More liberal policies concerning unqualified resignations from the service, for other than extreme compassionate reasons, applicable to officers and warrant officers serving on active duty have been announced by the Department of the Army.

Unqualified resignations now will be accepted in cases where the individual has completed certain required periods of service and no conflicting circumstances exist in his case on the date of acceptance.

The policy changes are in line with the Army's announced program to reduce the number of officers on active duty and in consideration of the fact that the officer corps is on a volunteer basis at the present time, except in some specific instances.

Previously, even after satisfying active service requirements, resignations were accepted only in cases based on valid reasons, such as hardship or national health, safety or interest.

In view of the continuing need for drafting professional medical personnel, resignations submitted by medical officers will be accepted only upon the recommendation of The Surgeon General of the Army, and will be limited to a small number each month. Those with the longest periods of active service will receive preferential consideration.

This new policy does not effect any changes in policy pertaining to unqualified resignations for extreme compassionate reasons.

Engineer Panel Meets

A tripartite engineer panel is currently meeting at Ft. Belvoir, Va. Ranking Army engineers from the U. S., the United Kingdom and Canada will discuss subjects and problems in the field of military engineering.

Secretary of Defense:

Sees 3-Year Lag In Russia's Ability To Deliver H-Bomb

Washington—Russia will not be able to deliver and drop a thermonuclear bomb on the U. S. for at least three years, Charles E. Wilson, Secretary of Defense declared recently.

The communists do not now have a thermonuclear bomb capable of being dropped, or planes to make a round trip to this country, he opined.

Meanwhile, the Defense Department is spending more than at any time previous for research and development to improve U. S. security—$1.25 billion in this fiscal year—he told a press conference.

About $500 million can be added for this work next fiscal year, Mr. Wilson indicated, for advances in the early warning system and our means to destroy oncoming bombers.

"I don't want those bombers ever to start," he declared. "The objective of our country is peace and we want to establish a condition in the world through cooperation . . . so that we won't have another world war."

Russia could not wage war successfully right now, he said. "Is there any reason for them to go to war" he asked. The communists might win some initial victories, but they would be met by great opposition, and would finally lose.

Americans should not get "too panicky," the secretary urged. Russian people ought to be more afraid of war than Americans are, he thought. Our military force is superior to any in the world.

Technology provides superior weapons and knowledge to use them, he said, offsetting greater numerical strength of a potential enemy.

The USAF is and will continue to be the best air force in the world, Mr. Wilson stated at an earlier conference.

"I believe the MIG is over-rated—and I presume that is their best fighter," the secretary said and then added "all their bombers seem to be merely copies or improvements of our earlier type models."

"The Air Force will continue to work for its goal of 143 wings, with its interim program of 120 wings, taking precedence, subject of course to the findings of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Department of Defense."

The defense budget for next fiscal year may be cut below this year's amount, but the extent is still being determined, he indicated. As much money as possible will be saved through more efficient planning and systemizing. (AFPS)

Personnel Vacancies

Position vacancies exist in the office of the Quartermaster General, Washington D. C., as follows: 2 each, supply specialist, one at GS-11 and one at GS-9, and one tabulating equipment operations supervisor at GS-11. Interested and qualified individuals may forward Form 57 (application blank) or requests for further job information to the Quartermaster General, Washington, 25, D. C.

Districts Merge

Consolidation of the North and Northeast Districts of the Corps of Engineers has been announced. The change, effective Dec. 1, 1953, will result in an estimated saving of $400,000. The new Hq. Northeast District will be in New York with an area office in Iceland.

Rank Changes Not Final

Washington — An Army spokesman has cautioned that certain features of the new NCO-Specialist plan are not yet final.

Although the plan as released to AFPS the week of Oct. 4, calls for senior specialists and specialists first to third class, the final regulation may possibly specify different specialist ranks.

Likewise the percentage comparison of NCO's and specialists within each pay grade, as now indicated, may be changed. The regulation is expected to be in the hands of G1 by Oct. 15 for staffing. (AFPS)

Army Schedules 10,500 Officer, WO Promotions

Washington—Temporary promotions for about 10,500 officers and warrant officers to the grades of captain, major and lieutenant colonel and W-2, W-3, and W-4 have been scheduled by the Army for the next six months.

Boards to consider and recommend the temporary promotions began meeting about Oct. 12. There will be promotions in at least one grade on all promotion lists. Vacancies exist in all six grades for male officer lists, in the grades of captain and major for ANC and WAC officer lists, and in the grade of captain for the WMSC officer list.

The Army emphasized that these promotions will be made only if there are no major changes in the present Army fiscal position, troop program or size. Most of the projected promotions will be on the Army list. About 900 of these would be to lieutenant colonel, about 2,000 to major, and about 3,700 to captain.

The cutoff dates for zones of consideration for promotion are:

Army: Lt. Col.—Sept. 30, 1950; Maj.—Dec. 31, 1949; Capt.—Dec. 31, 1950.
JAGC: Lt. Col.—Sept. 30, 1950; Maj.—Dec. 31, 1949; Capt.—Dec. 31, 1950.
Chaplains: Lt. Col.—Dec. 31, 1949; Maj.—Dec. 31, 1946; Capt.—Dec. 31, 1950.
Medical Corps: Lt. Col.—Sept. 30, 1950; Maj.—Dec. 31, 1949; Capt.—Dec. 31, 1950.
Dental Corps: Lt. Col.—Sept. 30, 1950; Maj.—Dec. 31, 1949; Capt.—May 31, 1952.
Veterinary Corps: Lt. Col.—Dec. 31, 1948; Maj.—Dec. 31, 1949; Capt.—Dec. 31, 1951.
MSC: Lt. Col.—Dec. 31, 1949; Maj.—June 30, 1947; Capt.—Dec. 31, 1950.
WAC: Lt. Col.—(none) Maj.—Dec. 31, 1948; Capt.—June 30, 1951.
ANC: Lt. Col.—(none); Maj.—Aug. 31, 1942; Capt.—June 30, 1950.
WMSC: Lt. Col.—(none); Maj.—(none); Capt.—June 30, 1951.
Warrant Officers: W-4—Nov. 28, 1951; W-3—Dec. 14, 1951; W-2—Sept. 15, 1951. (AFPS)

New Pamphlet Out

A new pamphlet for male non-commissioned officers of the Army alerted for assignment to the Far East will be available on or about Nov. 1. The pamphlet, DA Pamphlet 21-58, is aimed at helping upper three graders in completing the numerous details concerned with shipment to the Far East.

Weekly World News AT A GLANCE

IN PANMUNJOM a battalion of Indian troops broke up a sitdown strike of anti-Communist Chinese prisoners after a violent attempt by the anti-Reds to win new delays. India's Lt. Gen. Thimayyz, chairman of the Repatriations Commission, said that the commission had agreed to use force if necessary to get the explanations started. Prisoners delayed the scheduled start of the explaining sessions by hurling defiance at their guards, waving nationalists' flags and jeering at the Reds. They demanded further assurances that they would not be forced to return to Red China against their will.

IN TRIESTE, rioting broke out this week for the first time since the United States and Britain announced last week their plan to divide the territory between Italy and Yugoslavia. Some 2,000 Slovenes and pro-Communist Yugoslavs staged the disorder in defiance of an Allied ban against public meetings. Prior to the rioting, Russia demanded action in the United Nations Security Council on the Trieste question and the Big Three western powers called a meeting of their foreign ministers for today in London to discuss Trieste problems and other major issues.

IN BELGRADE, the Yugoslav government threatened to close the British and American information offices after Belgrade mobs wrecked the interior of the British building. This move followed an increase of anti-Western violence over the Trieste dispute. Yugoslav demonstrators beat up an American student and manhandled a Yugoslav who dropped into the U. S. Information Service office. Tuesday night more than 100,000 Yugoslavs surged through the streets of Belgrade in demonstration against the United States, Britain and Italy.

IN GREECE, the United States and Greece signed an agreement in Athens authorizing the Americans to use an undisclosed number of Greek air and naval bases to forge a new link in the NATO defense system. The naval bases will be available to other NATO countries as well as the United States. The agreement is similar to those signed by the United States with Denmark for use of facilities on Greenland, with Portugal covering the Azores, and with Iceland for use of an airfield at Keflavik. American personnel in "small numbers," mainly specialists and technicians, will be sent to Greece under the pact.

IN FRANCE, thousands of farmers in the southwestern section of the country manned hundreds of highway barricades and stopped all highway traffic Monday in protest to the government's failure to bolster prices on their products. Their main complaint is that retail prices are way above what they get and the balance goes to middlemen. The immediate thing that caused the demonstration was a fall of 30 to 40 per cent in the price of meat on the hoof during the last year. The farmers furthermore are angered because the cut they suffered in meat prices did not show up on the butchers' counters.

IN NORWAY, Prime Minister Oscar Trop said his Socialist Party's victory in Monday's general elections has given him a clear signal to make Norway a socialist state. On the basis of incomplete and unofficial returns, the Labor party has won a two-seat majority in the 150-member Parliament. Trop, making a victory statement, declared: "We may now follow the course we presented to the people before the elections: To further the work to transform the Norwegian society in a socialist direction."

IN WEST GERMANY, the United Nations Refugee Commission announced that 700 refugees from Germany, Austria and Trieste will be admitted to the United Kingdom. The refugees will, by an agreement with the British Government, be admitted under the sponsorship of private persons or voluntary agencies. They will guarantee accommodations and maintenance.

IN EGYPT, Karim Tabet, once one of ex-King Farouk's closest advisers, pleaded innocent Wednesday to charge of high treason and abuse of power while he was Farouk's press adviser. The indictment requested the revolutionary court to return the death sentence. Meanwhile, three more Egyptians have been sentenced to hang in Cairo as spies. Five have now been condemned, although one—a former Egyptian Premier—has been reprieved and given life imprisonment.

IN BRITISH GUIANA, the colony's biggest business—sugar—was being ruined this week by cane field fires and sugar mill strikes in protest against Britain's removal of the native regime on the ground it appeared Communistic. The Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan and five of his ministers, all belonging to the leftist People's Progressive Party, were removed on the charge they planned to turn British Guiana into a Communist state allied with Moscow. Last week 600 British troops and three warships were sent to Georgetown to back up the colonial governor. Tuesday police raided headquarters of the party and dozens of homes in an apparent effort to prove the charge of leftist plotting.

IN PANMUNJOM, the Communists began Thursday the long delayed "explanations" to 22,500 North Korean and Chinese prisoners refusing to return to their side. The Reds are holding their talks in 32 canvas and wooden structures, each of which is capable of handling 25 to 35 prisoners, erected by the United Nations. Neutral Repatriation Commission officers from five nations and an observer from the Allied and Communist sides are witnessing the explanations. United Nations officials have advised the commission they definitely were not ready Thursday to begin explanations to the 359 Americans, South Korean and British pro-Communists refusing repatriation.

IN INDO-CHINA, a French high command spokesman said recent heavy air attacks and commando raids had set back the Vietminh timetable for launching a Red-led fall offensive in northern Indo-China. He declared the Vietminh had been hard hit by the attacks, which had resulted in the destruction of many thousands of tons of war equipment stocked up by the rebels in preparation for an autumn drive. In two raids along the Chinese border since July, the French have destroyed an estimated 5,000 to 9,000 tons of war equipment. Meanwhile, French fighters and bombers daily are plastering the Vietminh, scoring direct hits on supply depots.

IN HONG KONG, a radio message was received Monday from the British freighter Inchislay that she was fired on and chased by an unidentified warship just off the Red China coast about an hour before arriving at Foochow Harbor. The 2,800-ton Inchislay was en route from Shanghai to Foochow with a cargo of 900 tons of coal.

General Ford, Chief Of Ordnance, Will Retire 31 October

Major General Elbert L. Ford, the Army's 19th chief of Ordnance, will retire on 31 October, after more than 36 years of military service.

Major General Emerson L. Cummings, who has been assistant chief of Army Ordnance since July, 1951, has been appointed to succeed General Ford. Commissioned a second lieutenant in the Corps of Engineers at West Point, class of 1924, General Cummings transferred to Ordnance in 1936.

According to the announcement, "General Ford, during the four years he has been chief of Ordnance, has had the responsibility of virtually re-establishing a whole new arms and ammunition industry because of the rapid and large scale demobilization at the close of World War II, and the outbreak of the fighting in Korea."

A graduate of West Point, class of 1917, he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Coast Artillery corps, and was transferred to the Ordnance department in July, 1950.

During World War II, General Ford was chief of the maintenance division for Ordnance in the European theatre, and as chief Ordnance officer, Allied Forces Headquarters, assisted in planning the North African landings.

His decorations include the Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf cluster and the Army Commendation Ribbon.

Most Officers and WO's Are to be Reassigned After Stabilized Tours

Current world-wide requirements necessitate the reassignment of most officers and warrant officers and warrant officers after completion of a stabilized tour. Department of the Army has informed Headquarters Sixth Army in a letter which was published as a memorandum this week.

Department of the Army states that in many cases, company grade officers and warrant officers may serve longer than the minimum one year period of stabilization. However, field grade officers and others who are stabilized for three or more years will be reassigned upon completion of their tours.

Every effort will be made by the Department of the Army to publish orders as far in advance of reassignment as possible and to furnish replacements as rapidly as possible.

Stabilized personnel will be reassigned on Department of the Army orders without prior negotiations with losing agencies regarding their release. As an exception to this policy, losing agencies will be advised in advance of the contemplated reassignment of key personnel, such as chiefs of staff of army, corps and division, deputy chief of staff of Army and Corps, and G-1, G-2, G-3, and G-4 of Army, Corps and division.

The Eighth Army in Korea saved American taxpayers an estimated $100,000,000 through salvage and reclamation during 1952. Battlefield salvage operation included the reclamation of 500 tanks, 800 artillery pieces, and 28,000 vehicles. One division alone recovered more than 6,000 miles of field wire during the year.

SOLDIER OF THE MONTH for September, Pfc. Francisco Perez, 740th AAA Gun battalion, is congratulated by Colonel Walter H. Murray, commanding officer of the 30th AAA Group, who presented him with a citation for the "Best Soldier" award. Pfc. Perez, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rinaldo Perez, reside in Ysleta, Texas, is a member of A Battery of the 740th. He was chosen from among enlisted personnel of the entire 30th AAA Group. Test 'Ski Jump' Will Open Army's New Maneuvers Washington—Exercise "Ski Jump" has been scheduled by the Army to open its 1954 series of maneuvers.

As the name hints the maneuver is a mountain and cold weather exercise. It will be spread over January, February and March and will take place at Camp Hale, Colo.

A regimental combat team from the 11th Airborne Division, Fort Campbell, Ky., will be combined with supporting units from the Fifth Army area, primarily from Camp Carson, Colo., for the exercise.

The aggressor cadre at Ft. Riley, Kans., will provide the "enemy."

Ski Jump is scheduled for three main phases:

1. A four-week period of indoctrination for participating units and umpire personnel.
2. A five-week phase devoted to training of individuals and small units, stressing over-snow movements on skis and snowshoes, tactical patrols, anti-guerrilla operations, and information regarding the aggressors.
3. An RCT exercise of five days, employing current concepts of offensive and defensive operations under conditions of extreme cold, deep snow, high altitude and mountainous terrain. During this phase, logistical training will include resupply with the use of animal pack, over-snow vehicles and aerial drop. The Air Force's TAC will supply the aircraft.

QM Develops Paper Thermometers That Record Atomic Heat

Washington—Paper thermometers—capable of determining temperatures ranging from 115 to 500 degrees Fahrenheit—are being used to measure the amount of heat radiated in atomic explosions.

The thermometers were developed by the Army Quartermaster Corps. They consist of white pigment coatings on black paper. Each coating is designed to melt at a given temperature.

When one of these strips of paper is heated to its designated temperature, the white coating melts and disappears into the black porous paper, revealing the black background.

Army Researchers Take Positive Steps In Map Production

Ft. Belvoir, Va.—The Army's Engineer Research and Development Laboratories are accenting the positive and eliminating the negative in map reproduction.

Since WWII there has been a great need to produce large numbers of maps quickly. And the ERDL are looking into an ammonia process which makes prints from a positive film and in effect reduces the material and time needed in making maps from negative prints.

The ammonia process, often called the diazotype method, uses a paper coated with a light-sensitive dye which can either be selectively decomposed or bleached by light. This paper is exposed to light in contact with a transparent positive original, and the exposure is subjected to ammonia fumes. A direct positive photographic print of the original is produced.

Once a film positive is made only two steps, printing and dry development, are necessary, and five processing steps are eliminated. (AFPS)

DEADLINE IS WEDNESDAY NOON

This Year the Need is Greater-Give Enough...through your UNITED CRUSADE

Aids 225 Agencies!

Campaign for United Crusade
Reaches Halfway Point Today

Today marks the halfway point of the campaign on the Presidio and its sub-posts to raise funds for the United Crusade, which combines into one single campaign the fund drives throughout the entire San Francisco Bay area of several hundred welfare agencies, both local and national.

Pledge forms were distributed to both military and civilian personnel early in the campaign, which began 25 September. Payment of these pledges may be made at one time or spread over the paydays occurring during the drive.

Some military personnel contributed on 30 September, while others will give their donations on 31 October. All civilians, both Post Operating and Sixth Army personnel, will have had three paydays during the drive and a deferred payment plan is also available to them if they desire to extend their payments even further.

An estimated 50,000 military personnel will have a vital role in this year's crusade, which is the first to combine campaigns in five Bay area counties with four simultaneous crusades. A combined goal of $10,000,000 has been set to meet the needs of 225 health and welfare agencies.

Object of the combined drive is to assure greater financial support by spreading the base of giving and support the needs of agencies where people live as well as where they work. Commuters may now give where they work with full assurance that their donations will apply to the support of the agencies benefiting their home communities.

Although crusades are being conducted simultaneously in San Francisco, East Bay, Marin County and San Mateo, all employed individuals in the four communities are being asked to give where they work, regardless of where they live.

When the campaign is ended, all funds will be pooled and then divided according to a plan accepted by all four crusades.

More than 224,000 men were trained by the Army during the past year.

Economy Message!
A drastic reduction has been made in the amount of funds available to pay for utilities at the Presidio and the various installations based thereon. This situation is so serious as to necessitate immediate and very real economies in the quantities of light, gas and water being used. It is believed that this can be accomplished by the voluntary efforts of every organization and individual in continually eliminating unnecessary usage and waste. Unless very real savings are realized at once, it will necessitate emergency type action to reduce the quantities of utilities available for consumption. Your cooperation is earnestly requested. TURN IT OFF—TURN IT DOWN.

Army's Latest Tanks
Going to NG Units;
Shipped to 32 States

Washington — The latest type light tanks are being delivered to National Guard tank-equipped units in 32 states.

The Army reports that all tank shipments should be completed prior to the start of next summer's field training. The new tanks meet requirements in the NG's infantry divisions, armored cavalry regiments and heavy tank battalions.

The M-41 Walker Bulldog, equipped with 76mm guns, are of the same type now being delivered to active Army units. They replace the NG's M-24 tanks of WWII vintage.

The NG's two armored divisions — the 49th of Texas and 50th of New Jersey — also are due to get new 45-ton M-47 tanks mounting 90mm guns to replace WWII-type tanks. (AFPS)

Officers Recently Assigned

Lt. Colonel Robert E. Divine, released from a six-months stay at Letterman Army hospital, is now with the Manpower division, G-1 Section, Headquarters Sixth Army. Colonel Divine is returning to the same position that he was assigned to at the Presidio from April 1951 to March 1952, at which time he left for Korea.

With the 2nd Infantry division in Korea for a year, Colonel Divine was wounded and returned to this country.

A member of the Army for the past 12 years, the colonel served with Field Artillery forces in the South Pacific from Australia to the Philippines during a four-year period in World War II, and has been decorated with the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Purple Heart.

Major William A. C. Gavin has become plans and projects officer of the Public Information Office, Headquarters Sixth Army.

In Germany for the past four years, Major Gavin held three positions there during his tour. From September 1949 to May of 1950 he served as executive officer of the labor supervision center at Stuttgart, followed by two years in Munich as director of the 7728th claims office team, and as German claims commissioner.

From May 1952 until his recent return to this country Major Gavin was in Wurzburg as Post S-5 (civil affairs section), and was later appointed District S-5.

Entering the Army Reserve in 1922, the major served with the provincial Military Police in the Philippines in World War II and in Korea as executive to the staff Judge Advocate USAMGIK, and staff claims officer, from 1945 to 1947.

Major Gavin is a graduate of the Infantry school, Fort Benning, Georgia, the Provost Marshal General Advanced courses at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, and the Armed Forces Information school, Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania.

Major Emmett C. Townsend has recently returned from 40 months of duty in Vienna, Austria, where he was Special Services officer.

He is now assigned as athletic officer, Special Services, Headquarters Sixth Army.

In the Army for the past 12½ years, Major Townsend served in the Southwest Pacific with the unit attached to Sixth Army Headquarters during World War II.

Major Townsend wears the Bronze Star Medal, the Army Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant and four battle stars on his campaign ribbons.

Lt. James W. Wagner, who has just finished a tour at the 505th Military Police Training center, Fort Baker, as instructor, is now a platoon leader with Detachment A, Fort Scott.

Lt. Wagner, who entered the Army 1 March of this year, received his commission upon graduation from ROTC ranks at Knox college, Galesburg, Illinois.

Upon receipt of his commission, he entered and was graduated from the 16-week course at the Infantry school, Fort Benning, Georgia.

With a degree in business administration, Lt. Wagner was employed by the Admiral Corporation prior to entering active Army duty.

Colonel Valentine Smith has been assigned as senior Army advisory for the California Military District headquarters replacing Colonel Milton Heifron who retired recently.

Before coming to the District, Colonel Smith was the Army attache at Haiti.

He entered the Army in 1923 and during World War II served with the 7th Corps, Port Supply Transportation division, Port Headquarters, 4th Port, ETO; he was also camp commander at Camp Pall Mall and Camp Wings, 52nd Medium Port in France, and served as Deputy Port commander, 16th Major Port, ETO.

Lt. Colonel Caifson Johnson has assumed the duties of deputy chief of staff of the California Military District headquarters.

He was assigned to the Sixth Infantry at Fort Ord until August when he was put in charge of the Sixth Army mobile instructional and demonstration teams that are presently touring the Sixth Army area.

Colonel Johnson was with the "Big Ten" and was national intercollegiate wrestling champion from 1935-1936. He was also a runner-up in the 1936 United States Olympic team trials.

During World War II the colonel served in Burma with Merrill's Marauders and during the Korean conflict, with the Korean advisory group as senior advisor to the II Korean corps.

Lt. Colonel Charles W. Gollehon has been assigned as assistant area veterinarian with station at the Presidio of San Francisco.

For the past three years, Colonel Gollehon has been area veterinarian at Heidelberg, Germany.

In the Army for the past 12 years, the colonel served with the Fourth Air Force on the west coast during World War II.

He is a graduate of the University of Toronto as well as of the Army's Medical Field service school at Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania.

Captain Robert P. Ratayczak is the new commanding officer of the 87th Army aircraft repair team, Presidio of San Francisco.

Prior to coming to the Presidio, Captain Ratayczak spent a year at Camp Carson, Colorado, where he was with the 40th Field Artillery group. And just previous to that, he was with the 25th Infantry division in Korea for 13th months.

During World War II, the captain was with the 761st Field Artillery battalion in the ETO for 43 months. This was followed by three years at First Army headquarters, Governors Island, New York.

Captain Ratayczak has been decorated with the Air Medal with five Oak Leaf clusters, the Bronze Star Medal, the ETO ribbon with three campaign stars and the Korean theatre ribbon with three campaign stars. He has been in the Army for 11½ years.

Captain James E. Sommer comes to the Presidio of San Francisco from a year's service as sales commissary officer, Utah General depot.

He is now assigned as Post clothing sales officer, Quartermaster section.

A graduate of the Quartermaster associate school, Fort Lee, Virginia, Captain Sommer spent 37 months in the Far East in Quartermaster sales, first with the 7th Division and later with the 40th Division at Camp Haugen, Hachinohe, Japan.

With the Army for the past 10½ years, the captain served in the Asiatic-Pacific theatre during World War II, and has been awarded the appropriate theatre service ribbons.

Captain Daniel King has recently been assigned to the Chemical section, Headquarters Sixth Army.

His most recent service was with the ACE section, Korea, where he has spent the past 20 months.

Enlisting in the Air Force in 1942, Captain King entered the OCS Army administrative school, Grinnell, Iowa, in 1943, to obtain his commission.

During World War II, he served at Camp Cooke, California, and he has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal as well as appropriate theatre ribbons.

Lt. William R. Carey is newly assigned at Post Special Services as assistant athletic officer.

Formerly, he was with the 505th MP Training center at Fort Baker where he instructed in general subjects.

Entering the Army on 1 March of this year from ROTC ranks at Michigan State college, Lt. Carey spent four months at the AICOC, Fort Benning, Georgia, before reporting to Fort Baker.

With a graduate degree in speech and radio, Lt. Carey coached at a Michigan high school for three months prior to entering the Army.

Lt. James A. Carroll has become assistant motor officer, Post motor pool, Presidio of San Francisco.

A native of San Francisco and a graduate of the University of San Francisco, Lt. Carroll received his commission from ROTC ranks at that institution.

He has spent the past four months at Fort Eustis, Virginia, where he was enrolled in the Transportation Officer basic course.

Entering the Army in June of this year, Lt. Carroll majored in English and education at the university.

Lt. Albert G. Baggiani has been assigned as platoon leader, Second platoon, 11th Transportation Car company, Presidio of San Francisco.

A graduate of the University of San Francisco with a degree in business administration, Lt. Baggiani was a member of the ROTC at the university.

When he entered active Army service in June, he was assigned to the Transportation Officer basic course at Fort Eustis, Virginia, a 16-week school.

Lt. Baggiani is a native of San Francisco and a classmate of Lt. Carroll.

Topic

Troop Information Conferences of Presidio units next week will be given over to a quiz on the subjects presented in the conferences during the period from 1 July to 30 September.

Subjects discussed during this period include: "You and the Law," "Can Austria Be Freed?", "Europe Uniting," "Information and You," "Combat Tools: Organization and Terrain," "You and I, U.S.A.," "The Importance of Honorable Service," and "Where the Money Goes."

Sources of the material used for these conferences were Armed Forces TALKs, Troop Topics, Sixth Army Discussion Topics and weekly news summaries.

In addition to testing the knowledge of the subjects, the quiz will serve also as a review of the various topics.

New Courses for Officers of ANC Start Next Year

Two courses to be conducted next year at selected Army hospitals for officers of the Army Nurse Corps, both Regular and Reserve, were announced this week by Headquarters Sixth Army. One course is in operating room technique and management and the other is anesthesiology.

Two classes per year are planned for the 22-week course in operating room technique and management to be given at Walter Reed and Letterman Army Hospitals, starting 1 March, 1954. The course will train members of the corps to become competent operating room nurses.

Prerequisite for this course are as follows: Must be a member of the Regular Component or a member of the Reserve Component on extended active duty with at least one year of current service in this status, as well as one year of extended active duty remaining in category commitment following completion of the course; a minimum of four months' professional nursing experience in an operating room is desirable, and must have interest in and an aptitude for the training.

Applications will be initiated by the individual in letter form through prescribed command channel so as to reach the Office of The Surgeon General not later than 1 January, 1954.

Anesthesiology will be a 52-week course at Fitzsimons, Brooke and Walter Reed Army Hospitals, starting 5 April, 1954. Four courses a year are planned to train members of the corps to become anesthesiologists and satisfactory completion of the course will qualify individuals for examination by the American Association of Nurse Anesthetists, leading to registration by the association.

Prerequisites are similar to those for the other course and applications by individual letter through channels must reach the Office of The Surgeon General not later than 15 January, 1954.

Armed Forces EM May Apply to Take CG Academy Exam

Washington — A nation-wide competitive entrance examination for the U. S. Coast Guard Academy has been set for Feb. 23-24, 1954.

Qualified applicants including military personnel will be tested at centers in 109 major cities. There will be no Congressional appointments or geographical quotas. Successful candidates will enter the Academy class beginning 1954.

An applicant must be aged 17-22, a high school senior or graduate with at least 15 units by June 30, 1954. These must include three units in English, two in algebra, one each in plane geometry and physics.

He must be 66-76 inches in height with proportionate weight, uncorrected 20/20 vision in each eye, and have a minimum of 20 vital serviceable teeth.

The academy, located at New London, Conn., prepares potential career officers during a four-year course for a bachelor of science degree in engineering and a commission as ensign in the Coast Guard.

Inquiries should be addressed to the Commandant (PTP), U. S. Coast Guard, Washington 25, D. C. (AFPS)

HITCH HIKING HELICOPTERS from the 30th Engineer's Aviation Detachment are given lifts by C-124s for the annual trip from Fort Scott to Alaska where the 30th Engineers have been surveying for the past four summers. The 'copters enable survey parties to reach otherwise inaccessible areas in a matter of minutes and are invaluable in the actual surveying.

Organization Day of 30th Engineers Honors Battalion's 14th Anniversary

With the distinction of being the only battalion of its type in the United States, the 30th Engineer Base Topographic battalion today celebrates its 14th anniversary. Although the true birthday of the Battalion is 1 September, the celebration was delayed until survey units returned from Alaska.

During the Battalion's 14 years of existence, the map-makers have gone half-way around the globe. Africa, Hawaii, and Alaska are just as familiar to men of the 30th as the Golden Gate.

Since its arrival at Fort Scott on 12 December 1949, the 30th has been engaged in an extensive mapping program of Alaska which has taken its troops to the northland for four consecutive years. When the surveyors are not in Alaska they can be found on the deserts of southern California.

While the survey units busy themselves with field work, the photomapping and reproduction units of the 30th maintain year-round operations at Fort Scott.

Today's activities will begin at 0900 with a review of the Battalion at the Fort Scott parade ground. Following the review, the program shifts to Crissy Field where the 30th Engineer Aviation Detachment will present an air show from 1030 to 1130.

The pilots of the 30th will demonstrate flight formations and tactical approaches with fixed wing aircraft. Then the battalion's helicopters will be put through their maneuvers which will find them doing everything except flying up-side down. It is these same helicopters that lift the surveyors to swampy areas and mountainous terrain while in Alaska.

PRINTED MAPS in five colors are run off a lithographic off-set press, such as the one shown above, which is one of the many used at the 99th Engineer Base Reproduction plant at Fort Scott. These maps represent the final product of many months of work by various units of the 30th Engineer Base Topographic battalion.

After the air-show, dinner for personnel and their guests will be served in the company mess halls

Beginning at 1330 on the Fort Scott football field, eight units of the battalion will compete in a program of athletic events, which will be concluded by the presentation of a gold trophy to the winner.

At 1530 a softball game on the Fort Scott diamond will pit the "high brass" against the "old first three graders." The day's celebration will end with parties at the Presidio Officers Club and the Fort Scott NCO Club.

SKILLED DRAFTSMEN of the 21st Engineer Base Photomapping Company do the final exacting work on the maps prepared by the surveyors of the 30th Engineers. During the past four years, the 30th has engaged in extensive mapping programs in Alaska and southern California.

National Bible Week Observance Set October 19-25

The 13th annual observance of National Bible week will take place this year from 19 through 25 October, the Laymen's National Committee has announced.

Named to lead this year's observance is Herman W. Steinkraus, Bridgeport, Connecticut, business and civic leader.

In his recent statement Mr. Steinkraus said: "The subject of this great book is life itself. In it you will see clearly stated the principles of right living, without which no man can be truly happy or successful. Through the centuries its wise guidance has helped the greatest minds, as well as the humblest.

"Today we hear much about the need for military strength. Far greater, I believe, is the need for spiritual strength. Let us observe National Bible week this year with special thanks for the recent Korean truce, and a prayer for guidance toward finding the way to lasting peace, and the conquering of that greatest enemy of all—man's inhumanity to man."

This all-faiths drive, begun in 1941, has each year continued to be supported by those whose belief and aim is that a daily reading of the Bible will strengthen national as well as individual living in America.

Fire Chief is Gratified At Cooperation in Fire Prevention Program

Expressing gratification at the results of Fire Prevention week, held 4 through 10 October, Presidio Fire Chief George Geller praised both military and civilian personnel on the Post for their alertness and use of fire prevention practices.

Throughout the week evacuation drills were conducted at office buildings and addresses on fire prevention as well as demonstrations were given at intervals.

"The effectiveness of our safety program is largely due to the interest and participation of everyone on the Post," the chief emphasized. "By being fire conscious you not only increase your safety but the safety of others."

Youngsters of the Presidio, numbering more than 1,000, were guests of the fire department on the last day of the official campaign, and they were made junior fire fighters as they received fire helmets and badges. They also inspected the fire station and climbed aboard the various pieces of equipment.

Monday's the Night!

A chance to display your talent, whether it be singing, dancing, instrumental or what, is offered come Monday (19 September) at the Presidio Service club, beginning at 2000. It's the military talent show, and you can be on it if you'll phone the club, Ext. 2000, and let them know you plan to come.

Cinema Previews

"SO BIG," F*, is the story of a girl who lived and loved by her own strange code; the code her father had taught her. But her own son chose another.

"MARRY ME AGAIN," F*, concerns what happens when a beautiful heiress tries to conceal her inheritance from the man she loves because his ideal is that the girl he marries must be able to live on his income alone.

"I WAS A MALE WAR BRIDE," F*, is the hilarious story of a WAC lieutenant and the miles of Army red tape involved when she attempts to bring her French intelligence officer husband back to the United States with her.

"PRIVATE EYE," F*, is a major laugh riot in which the Bowery Boys decide to capitalize on Sach's mystic mind reading powers and set up the "Eagle Eye Detective Agency." One of their customers leads them to a gang of fur thieves and then the Bowery Boys take over as only they can.

"ALL THE BROTHERS WERE VALIANT," F*, pits brother against brother as one, captain of a whaling ship, sets sail determined to learn about his brother's mysterious disappearance. He eventually finds him on an island, but he also finds himself with a murderous, mutinous crew on his hands.

"THUNDER OVER THE PLAINS," F*, portrays the agony of a prairie town as it waits in the heat and dust, for a storm of lead expected from a man named Dave Porter.

On TV Saturday

"Talent Patrol," on which will appear service personnel from the Presidio of San Francisco, will air a nationwide TV show over KGO-TV, Channel 7, Saturday (17 October) between 1700 and 1730.

The United States Congress appropriated more than $50,000,000 (M) for fiscal years 1950-1953 to pay for engineering, signal and transportation supplies and equipment used in Korean rehabilitation.

During the last year of the Korean war, the U. S. Army allocated 28,000 long tons of grain per month for relief in the Republic of Korea. Of this amount, 26,000 long tons were distributed free to needy persons and 2,000 tons set aside for emergencies.

OF INTEREST TO "ROCK HOUNDS," as well as others stationed at the Presidio and surrounding area, is the above display of lapidary and mineral specimens. These and many more will be shown at the Gem and Mineral fair being held this weekend at Scottish Rite temple, Sutter and Van Ness, in San Francisco. Representing the Sixth Army arts and crafts program, the above display, part of the activities carried on at Camp Irwin near where most of the specimens were found, will be shown from 1000 to 2200 on Saturday (17 October) and from 1000 to 2000 on Sunday (18 October). There is no admission charge. Lapidary is the art of cutting and polishing precious and semi-precious stones to bring out their true beauty and color.

Raiders To Tackle Hellcats Here Tomorrow

Great Show Goes With Raider's TV Debut at Ft. Scott

Tomorrow's home game between the Presidio Red Raiders and Alameda NAS is scheduled to be televised at 1400 hours over local station KPIX-TV, Channel 5, as the second in a series of Bay Area football coverages.

And the event promises to be something more than just a football game.

In view of the expected large attendance at the Fort Scott Field and the added TV audience, PIO officials at the Presidio have lined up a four-barreled half-time show which should rival the grid action itself.

Units scheduled to make an appearance include the Sixth Army Band, the Sixth Army Pipe Band, the Sixth Army Honor Guard, plus a tactical demonstration by a machine gun squad by troops from the Presidio.

ON THE OTHER END of Quarterback Don Burroughs' tosses will often be Presidio end Bob Hooks, who is returning to the line-up tomorrow after being benched for a back injury suffered in the Moffett Field victory two weeks ago. The hefty Texan joins Jack Barnes, Jay Wilson and Billy Carey on the flanks. (Army Photo by Weiss)

Knee Injury Will Keep Guard Jim Fairchild Out of Alameda Tilt

The Presidio's starting line against Alameda tomorrow will be considerably weakened in the left guard position with the absence of Jim Fairchild, usual starter for the Raiders.

Fairchild suffered a severely twisted knee ligament in last Saturday's tilt against the T. I. sailors, and team trainer, Arkie Stanton, has reported that it will be at least two weeks before the valuable Presidio lineman will be back with the team.

Prior to his injury last Saturday Fairchild had contributed to the soldiers' victory when he intercepted a T. I. pass in the third quarter, thus paving the way for a Burroughs-to-Carey pass and the third Raider touchdown of the game.

Presidian Thurman Belcher will take over Fairchild's regular starting spot in tomorrow's game.

The Unlucky Nine

Sixty per cent of all hunting accidents in 1952 occurred during the first nine days of hunting seasons, reports the National Rifle Association.

TREASURE ISLAND SPARKER fullback Jack Bond had a heap of trouble on his hands as he tried to break through the Raider defense in last Saturday's Pirate-Raider tussle at Treasure Island field. Above we see Bond being headed off by Raider tackle Leonard Hoaglund (left). On Bond's left flank and partially hidden by his arm, guard Thurman Belcher comes in for the kill, while Harvey Garcia (40), watches from afar. Raider number 25, is big left end Jack Barnes. Presidians won game 27-13, for their second league victory of the season. (Army photo by Hilmer)

Presidio Red Raiders Ramble Over Weak Treasure Island Sailors 27-13

The Presidio Red Raiders turned in their finest performance of the season last Saturday when they trounced the Treasure Island Pirates 27-13, on the Pirates' own field.

The victory, witnessed by some 3000 spectators from both Army and Navy strongholds, was the Raiders' second this season and showed the soldiers at their best in a coordinated ground and air attack.

While offensively the game found them in far better order than when they first went out against Chico and Cal, their defensive strategy alone still remained weak.

The Pirates, ostensibly the softest team the Presidians have met all season long, should have been held scoreless.

First quarter action left both teams without a tally. A combination aerial and ground attack by the Presidians, involving tosses from Don Burroughs to Bill Carey and Dave Marcelli and rushes by Marcelli, intimated something of what was in store for the Pirates.

It was in the big second quarter that the Raider offense opened for all it was worth. The soldiers received a Pirate punt on their 35-yard stripe. Marcelli and Bridges ran the pigskin back 55 yards in a series of three ground plays. From the Navy 10

Marcelli bucked the line three times up to the opposition two-yard marker.

A 15-yard penalty set the Raiders back momentarily, but they retaliated with a long toss from Burroughs to Carey, good for the first TD. Burroughs made the conversion.

The Pirates didn't get a chance to catch their breath. On the subsequent kick they lost 20 yards to a penetrating Raider front. They punted on four, whereupon Marcelli and Bridges returned the ball to Navy territory, and another Burroughs toss found Marcelli for the second tally. The conversion failed.

In the latter part of the same quarter Treasure Island halfback Ray Darkins took an intercepted Raider pass and ran it to the soldiers' 18-yard stripe. Then sailor halfback Ernie Young blasted the Raider wall for pay dirt.

The third bracket found the Raider offensive strategy working at a new high. The Presidians alternated between aerial sorties, which served to loosen the Pirate defense, and quick, sharp end-skirmishes piloted by Marcelli. The Presidians' final TD came by way of Jim Fairchild's momentous interception. Dallas Lamb and Dave Marcelli combined their ground attack to bring the leather to the Navy 10, and another Burroughs to Carey heave clinched the tally.

The conversion — a tricky fake kick play where Burroughs passed into the end zone amidst a dismayed Pirate defense—was successful.

Late in the same quarter Burroughs intercepted another TI pass. Marcelli ran off 40 yards into the end zone in three plays for the final Presidio touchdown. Burroughs made good the extra point.

The fourth quarter opened with a determined sailor offensive, with halfback Dick Fredrick doing most of the plunging for the Navy, bringing the pigskin from his own 40 up to the Raider 15.

But the Presidians held. Later, Treasure Island intercepted a Raider toss, and in the last four minutes of play penetrated a third-string Raider defensive eleven with a Dick Fredrick to Gordon Million toss good for their last TD. The conversion was incomplete.

Game statistics showed the Presidio gained their key advantage in ground offense, registering 248 yards against the Pirates' 173.

By air the soldiers accumulated 115 more yards. QB Burroughs completed an astounding six out of six tosses during the first minutes of the game. The final Raider average was nine out of 20. Treasure Island gained only 90 yards by air.

FRONT LINE SPARKERS for the Presidio include, left to right, Pfc Harvey Garcia, Don Garrison, Jim Fairchild, and 2d Lt. Bill Carey. All except Fairchild, who suffered a knee injury in last Saturday's game, will be on hand to give the Hellcat eleven a rough time of it tomorrow. In this picture Bill Carey is acting in his official capacity of line coach for the home team. When he is not mentoring, the ex-Michigan State All-American is hard at work in his left end position with the soldiers. All four players are members of the 505th Military Police Battalion. (Army Photo by Weiss)

Presidio Will Meet Toughest Team Yet In Alameda Tussle

Tomorrow's tilt featuring the Presidio Red Raiders and the Alameda Naval Air Station Hellcats is the second home game of the season and fifth league tilt for the Presidians.

It will take place at 1400 hours on the Fort Scott Playing Field.

In Alameda, the Raiders will probably face the toughest competition of the entire season, since the Hellcats stand high among the ranking Service teams on the West Coast.

Alameda Head Coach LODRC Chapman has suggested his probable starting line-up for tomorrow's game. It includes San Mateo JC gridder John Leal at quarterback; 200-pound Bruce Randall at fullback, and Mike Masjlo and Gene Sandage in the halfback slots.

Randall is the Hellcats' leading groundgainer this season, while both Masjlo and Sandage are second-string All-Navy players, the latter being a broken-field expert.

On the line ex-University of Illinois sparker Jim Sieno and 1951 All-Navy player Bud Landers will cover the starting end positions. Bill Johnson, from Iola College, Kansas, and Charles Murphy of San Francisco State will be at right and left guard respectively.

University of Michigan alumnus George Sagin and mate Robert Lyall are at tackle, while Byron Slater will fill the center spot.

ACE PASS-THROWER for the Presidians is lean and speedy Don Burroughs, whose aerial plays against the Raiders' last two opponents were keys to Presidio victories. Burroughs' play-calling will be up against the toughest opponent so far when the Big Team tangles with Alameda tomorrow. (Army Photo by Weiss)

Advent of New Raider Coach Will Allow Daigle To Return to HB Slot

Part of the new-found success of the Presidio Raider football strategy may very well be due to a man who hails from Waiakoa, Maui, Territory of Hawaii.

He is Captain Stanley Vincent, new assistant Post Athletic Officer and Head Coach of the Red Raiders. He has stepped into the job lately filled by Lt. Roland Daigle. Daigle, in turn, has returned to his regular halfback position with the gridgers.

Captain Vincent has participated on a number of Army football teams and has served in the Pacific and Far East theaters.

Basketball Victors!

HQ 505th MPs, Honor Guard, Co-Leaders With 3 Straight

Two teams shot to the fore of the Post intramural basketball series this week with HQ Company, 505th MP Battalion, and Detachment A, both of the National League, registering their third straight wins of the season against no losses.

HQ Company of the MPs earned their latest victory on Wednesday night of this week against a highly-touted Charlie Company, 505th, 67-62, and the game was as exciting as the score implies.

The C-men led the HQ boys all through the first half and by mid-time the score ran 33-30 in their favor. During the latter half of the game the lead changed hands several times.
